An old army officer, who had been a shipmate of Acting Rear-Admiral Sampson for many years, tells this story of him: "I have never doubted Sampson's courage since the first cruise I made with him. We were ward-room officers together. The first night aboard ship, when the hour arrived for 'piping down' and turning in, there were several officers sitting around the ward room table indulging in some innocent merriment. I was taught to say my prayers before going to bed at night; but I confess I lacked the courage to kneel down in the presence of my shipmates and pray. It was warm weather, and our state-room doors opened into the ward-room. Then it was that Sampson displayed the moral courage that forever after impressed me. He is a God-fearing man, and he always says his prayers before turning in. When he was ready to turn in, he knelt down by his berth and prayed. A stillness came over the ward-room immediately, and I concluded that if Sampson had the courage to say his prayers in the presence of his shipmates, I could do likewise; so I have never hesitated since to pray before turning in. Only those who have sailed the sea in a warship can appreciate how much moral courage is required to kneel down in the presence of a lot of roystering shipmates, and ask God's blessing. Sampson never makes his religious devotions offensive to his shipmates; but he reserves the right to be master of his own conscience."—Selected.

CRITICS.

Critics are not hard to find. But critics who are competent to make intelligent criticism are rare. Thousands of people have been ready every day to find fault with the management of the war, or with the direction of particular events. But very little censure has been heard from any who could have planned a single campaign or commanded a company of troops with success. The same could be said concerning all great work in the world. It is true of affairs and incidents connected with the work which the churches are doing. Those who are actively and heroically engaged in the performance of duty are seldom heard indulging in criticism. Those who either can not or will not be heroes themselves, find fault with everything that is done.—Central Advocate.

Perhaps nothing will so much hasten the time when body and mind will both be adequately cared for as a diffusion of the belief that the preservation of health is a duty. Few seem conscious that there is such a thing as physical morality. Men's habitual words and acts might imply that they are at liberty to treat their bodies as they please. The fact is, all breaches of the laws of health are physical sins. When this is generally seen, then, and perhaps not till then, will the physical training of the young receive all the attention it deserves.—Herbert Spencer.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Booneville, Miss., EDITOR.

"The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom."

The Epworth League stands for the acqnisition of knowledge, bnt recoguizes the Bible as being first among the text-books.

Sir Walter Scott, who was a great scholar, and contributed much to the literary world, acknowledges that there was but one book—the Bible.

We devoutly pray that the time may not be far distant when it shall be a text-book in all the schools and colleges of this Christian land, and that our children everywhere may be tanght that it is the foundation of onr law and government.

This writer is at present condncting a series of services for a circnit preacher who, a few years ago, distributed 26,000 copies of the Word of God in Japan and China. We refer to Rev. B. S. Rayner, of the North Mississippi Conference.

Let the Leaguers everywhere stndy systematically the Old and New Testament Scriptnres, that they may become workmen that need not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of trnth.

Many persons who profess and call themselves Christians know very little abont the doctrines concerning sin and salvation, and hence are nnable to instrnct the nngodly abont the way that leads to heaven.

In many places in the conntry the Leagne is doing a good work. It was onr privilege recently to address a goodly number of yonng people on a certain Snnday afternoon in a conntry village some distance from the railroad. They have a League organized which promises to do great things for the young men and women of the commnnity.

By all means make np a clnb of ten for the Epworth Era. From now nntil Jan. 1, 1899, for 25 cents. Try also to circnlate the NEW ORLEANS and Nashville Christian Advocates.

A great orime recently committed in Arkansas was attributable to the reading of oheap novels. Let the Leagne endeavor to displace these wretched books by pntting good, wholesome literatnre into the hands of onr people.

The Leagne is designed to be the pastor's helper, and should assist him in the distribntion and circnlation of religious literatnre.

The schools and colleges will soon re-open. Let us see to it that our own boys and girls attend onr own church schools.

Report of the Epworth Leagnes in bounds of Sardis district (North Mississippi Conference) as read by Miss Estelie Boothe, district secretary before the District (Leagne) Conference recently held in Sardis, Miss.:

She went to sleep; she slept so long,
We buried her with mournful song;
And o'er her grave, with many a sigh,
To tell to strangers passing by,
Of her brief life so lately past,
We lifted high this marble shaft—
"Here lies the Sardis League"—nay! nay!
No such inscription here to-day!
Ten members see, with hand and head
And heart and soul, strong, loyal, true.
What matter if they are a few!
Not one his part would dare to shirk;
I tell you they are in for work.

Sen'tobia's League here lieth low.
Yet many times she tried, I trow,
To fan the feeble spark of light
And make the fire burn warm and bright.
Whose fault? Is't hers? Is't yours? Is't mine?
Whose fault her lights no longer shine?
Her eight five members—where are they?
Who knows? Alas! Ah! who can say?

Tyre's League at Harmontown,
Once in our annals gained renown.
With thirty members, four years old;
This League was worth its weight in gold.
Alack-a-day! she's fallen to dust,
Her soul is with the saints, we trust.
Perhaps I'm wrong, she may yet live.
Can any, information give
Of her condition at this day?
O tell us, friends, we beg, we pray,
Is she living, or is she dead?
This stone we'll place above her head,
"Here sleeps the League at Harmentown,
In peace at last, she lieth down."

Come, Leaguers, friends, and view this stone,
Death claims another for his own.
Is this Hernando? Can it be?
That 'tis her League that here we see?
In ninety-seven she saw the light.
Ah me! her spirit took its flight
In ninety-eight. "So young to die,"
You murmur as you heave a sigh.
Yes, one brief year her presence lent
Its charm to cheer our discontent.
"Whom gods do love," the poet sang.
"Were ever known to die when young."

Coldwater has no burial lot,
We trust that one she needeth not.
With her young life so full and free
She'll ever with the living be.
*For Bro. Duncan looks afar
And sees the silvery evening star
Shine down into his loving heart,
And with the children takes his part.
Endowed with clearest vision he,
Who doubteth not the end to see,
When Jesus bids the children come
To live with him in his dear home.

Eureka's League 'tis there you see
"Not quite dead, but soon will be."
Nay! Speak not thus, for don't you know,
That our Christ can life bestow!
That He who raised the widow's son,
Can heal the sick ere life is done!
The members once were forty-two
That took delight God's work to do.
"Now, now, there's none to help!" O give
To Him your fears, and look, and live!

Nesbitt circuit, we've heard it told,
Could boast of two good Leagues of old.
But they have never written line,
Nor sent us word, nor made us sign,
To say they live. I believe they're dead;
For in my life I've never read
Of one who lived and did not show
In some faint way the living glow.
But silent as the dead are they,
Tho' called on oft to speak and say,
Tho' urged to tell if still they live,
And some slight sign of life to give.

"What empty tomb is this?" you say.
Why, Pleasant Grove once in it lay.
But in it now she sleeps no more.
Her death is past, her burial o'er.
And, lo! she riseth from the dead,
Lays off the cloth that bound her head;
And we but trust she'll live for aye,
And share God's glories by and by.

Two "real live" Leagues we once did own
To Holly Springs, forsooth, have flown.
For Pleasant Hill and Wall Hill, too,
What did our Annual Conference do
But move away to where they'd fare
On wholesome food and livelier air!
But, Leagues, don't you be afraid,
Our Christ can even raise the dead.
He says, "Fear not, O little flock,
I can the gates of death unlock;
My Father's pleasure 'tis that you
Shall have the kingdom, if you're true"—
A kingdom fair, not built with hands,
Where Christ the Lord of hosts now stands,
Is come into your hearts this day
Who hear his words and do obey.

All hail, Epworth Leaguers!
The glad dawn is breaking.
The cry, "He is risen!" now breaks from the tomb.
All hail, Epworth Leaguers!
The dead are awaking,
The sunshine of Life has scattered our gloom.

*I wouldn't have written this about Bro. Duncan, if I had known he was not going to attend our District Epworth Conference.

LESSON IX.

SUBJECT—THE BLOOD OF THE MARTYRS THE SEED OF THE CHURCH. THE MIRACLE OF PROTESTANTISM.

1. Secure a copy of "The History of the Inquisition," by Thos. O. Summers, from the Publishing House. Study the causes and methods of the Inquisition, its effect on the church, and, withal, its effect on Spain. Gather the statistics from pages 148 and 149 of our text.

2. Note that the free and unrestricted distribution of the Word of God is the key to the perplexing problem of all Roman Catholic countries. "The entrance of thy word giveth light." Illustrate this truth from references to the time of the Reformation.

3. Study the persecutions that still exist in these countries, as well as the persistency with which loyal Protestants continue their work of preaching in season and out of season. Compare pages 144 and 145.

4. There is a great deal of literature on Spain just at this moment. The search-light of criticism has been turned upon her and her history. The fearfully weak points have been shown clearly, and the verdict of Christian civilization is that she has been "weighed in the balances and found wanting." Let some one gather data to show how much of this is due to her rejection of the gospel in its purity.

President Beeson, of the E. M. F. College, has had such a demand for Catalogues, that his large supply is exhausted, and asks all who have Catalogues and do not particularly need them to please return them, as he is much in need of them.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To the Members of the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences:

For forty years I have been a pastor in the Mississippi Conference, having entered the work in November, 1857. The Lord has blessed me in this service, but I am growing old, and still have several children whose education is not complete. Our Conference is well supplied with younger men, and still they come. Under the circumstances, I have consented to take charge of one of the boarding houses at Millsaps College (Williams Hall). We can accommodate twenty five, or more, boarders. We propose to give them the best of care, and make the house a "home" to them in the best sense of the word. We have long tried to maintain a Christian home of the purest type in which to rear our own children, and we will spare no pains to keep the standard high for the benefit of the young gentlemen who may be intrusted to our care. At present address me at Carthage, Miss.

Niagara Vapor Baths

We have, during the last ten years, supplied thousands of our Baths to physicians, hospitals, sanitariums, etc., and we are now, for the first time, advertising them direct to the general public.

IN BUYING A VAPOR BATH Get one with a steel frame that stands on the floor. If a manufacturer does not show you a cut of the frame without the covering, you may take it for granted that his "Steel Frame" is a wire hoop that rests on the shoulders of the leather.
Get one that is covered with proper material. Insist on seeing a sample of material before ordering. We make our own covering material and print it with a handsome "all over" pattern of Niagara Falls.
Get one with a thermometer attachment. Don't go it blind—a bath that is too hot or not hot enough will be of no benefit to you.
Get one that you can return and have your money back if not satisfactory in every way.
Send for sample of material and interesting booklet that will tell you all about Vapor Baths.
Vapor Baths are an acknowledged household necessity. Turkish, Hot Air, Vapor, Sulphur or Medicated Baths at Home, &c. Purifies system, produces cleanliness, health, strength. Prevents disease, obesity. Cures Colds, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, La Grippe, Malaria, Eczema, Catarrh, Female Ills, Blood, Skin, Nerve and Kidney Troubles. Beautifies Complexion.

MORNING PRAYER.

Hear my, Father, guardian true,
To thee my vows I would renew,
That this new day, new life to me,
Be sweetly, purely spent for thee.

Let peace and harmony prevail,
No matter what doth me assail,
May love disseminate from me
As freely as it doth from thee.

Shield not from that which seemeth hard
If given to lift me heavenward,
Only grant me strength to bear,
In patience, holy, everywhere;

Whate'er may come each passing hour,
That I, with more perfected power,
Reflect thy light, thy peace diffuse,
Each moment purely, wisely use.

I know, if I but my part do,
Thy blessing cometh, sure and true;
So grant me peace to make this day
The purest, best in every way

That e'er in all my life has been,
And help the spirit from within
To clearer shine than e'er before;
All this in faith do I implore.

THE LONDON TIMES.

The London Times was an insignificant sheet, published by Mr. Walter, and was steadily losing money. John Walter, Jr., then only twenty-seven years old, begged his father to give him full control of the paper. After many misgivings, the father finally consented. The young journalist began to remodel the establishment, and to introduce new ideas everywhere. The paper had not attempted to mold public opinion, and had no individuality or character of its own. The audacious young editor boldly attacked every wrong, even the government, when he thought it corrupt. Thereupon the public customs, printing, and the government advertisements, were withdrawn. The father was in utter dismay. The son, he was sure, would ruin the paper, and himself. But no remonstrance could swerve him from his purpose to give the world a great journal which should have weight, character, individuality, and independence.

The public soon saw that a new power stood behind the Times; that its articles meant business; that new life and new blood and new ideas had been infused into the insignificant sheet; that a man with brains and push and tenacity of purpose stood at the helm—a man who could make a way when he could not find one. Among other new features, foreign dispatches were introduced, and they appeared in the Times several days before their appearance in the government organs. The "leading article" also was introduced to stay. But the aggressive editor antagonized the government, and his foreign dispatches were all stopped at the outpost, while those of the ministerial journalists were allowed to proceed. But nothing could daunt this resolute young spirit. At enormous expense he employed special couriers. Every obstacle put in his way, and all opposition from the government, only added to his determination to succeed. Enterprise, push, grit, were behind the Times, and nothing could stay its progress. Walter was the soul of the paper, and his personality pervaded every detail. In those days only three hundred copies of the Times could be struck off in an hour by the best presses, and Walter had duplicate and even triplicate types set. Then he set his brain to work, and finally the Walter Press, throwing off 17,000 copies, both sides printed, per hour, was the result. It was the 29th of November, 1814, that the first steam-printed paper was given to the world. Walter's tenacity of purpose was remarkable. He shrank from no undertaking, and neglected no detail.—Success.

SPECIMEN OF WORK DONE INSIDE.

"One of my friends," says the Rev. Charles Garrett, "is a very earnest, shrewd man, who seems to always know how to do the best thing at the right time." One day he was passing a gin-shop in Manchester, when he saw a drunken man lying on the ground. The poor fellow had evidently been turned out of doors when all his money had gone. In a moment my friend hastened across the street, and, entering a grocer's shop, addressing the master, said:

"Will you oblige me with the largest sheet of paper you have?"

"What for, my friend? What's the matter?"

"O, you shall see in a minute or two. Please let it be the very largest sheet you have."

The sheet of paper was soon procured.

"Now, will you lend me a piece of chalk?" said my friend.

"Why, whatever are you going to do?"

"You shall see presently."

He then quickly printed in large letters: "Specimen of the work done inside!" He then fastened the paper right over the drunken man, and retired a short distance. In a few moments several passers-by stopped, and read aloud: "Specimen of the work done inside." In a very short time a crowd assembled, and the publican, hearing the noise and the laughter outside, came out to see what it was all about. He eagerly bent down and read the inscription on the paper, and then demanded, in an angry voice, "Who did this?"

"Which?" asked my friend, who had now joined the crowd. "If you mean what is on the paper, I did that; but if you mean the man, you did that! This morning, when he arose, he was sober; when he walked down the street, on his way to work, he was sober; when he went into your gin shop he was sober, and now he is what you made him. Is he not a true specimen of the work done inside?"—Gems of Illustration.

POVERTY.

We once heard an aged man of our acquaintance say, "I do not know whether I am an honest man or not; I have never been put in a position where I had to make great sacrifices to pay my debts." Adversity may be called the trial of principle. Without it a man hardly knows what his principles of honor are. The name of poverty drives some to extravagance, but to avow poverty is no disgrace, yet to make no effort to escape from it would be a crime. Still there are differing views as to its salutariness or misery. Dr. Johnson wrote from time to time to Boswell—we presume out of his own experience—"Poverty is so great an evil, and pregnant with so much temptation and so much misery, that I can not but earnestly enjoin you to avoid it. Live on what you have; live if you can on less; do not borrow either for vanity or pleasure; the vanity will end in shame and the pleasure in regret. Poverty is a great enemy to human happiness; it certainly destroys liberty, and it makes some virtues impracticable, and others extremely difficult." A philosopher of another kind thus apostrophizes poverty: "Holy poverty! teach me to endure without complaining, to impart without grudging, to seek the end of life higher than in pleasure, further off than in power. Thou givest the body strength, thou makest the mind more firm; and, thanks to thee, this life, to which the rich attach themselves as to a rock, becomes a bark of which death may cut the cable without awakening all our fears." Perhaps Solomon has the wiser view: "Give me neither poverty nor riches; feed me with food convenient for me."—Selected.

CHILDHOOD FOR CHILDREN.

A polite, sweet-tempered, bright boy or girl of ten is one of the most attractive objects in "animate nature." To answer their questions, propound conundrums to them, help them to reason, tell them incidents and watch the effect, listen to their accounts of games, studies, visits, and companions, delight every mind not totally absorbed in the gradgrind of life, and "warm the cockles of every heart" not ossified by selfish pursuits or fermented by sinful passions. But a child of that age, conceited, impudent, pert, forward, garrulous, or "old" in thought, feeling, and manner, should not be encouraged, but accustomed to being checked and, if necessary, ignored—always, however, in such a way as not to ruin his temper.

One of the bitterest complaints ever made was that of a man broken down in middle life against his parents: "Because they thought I was bright they pushed me forward, made me make speeches in the parlor when they had guests, kept me up late at night over my books, told me a boy as smart as I was ought not to play in the school-yard with the other children, gave me prizes for learning twice as much as I should have done, kept me dressed up as though it was Sunday, and all the time worried me when I got a spot on my clothes. I grew up nervous and presuming; and here, just as I am about ready to live, I am broken down." Those who knew his history and his parents said that his complaint was just.—New York Advocate.

SAINTLY FACES.

Sometimes, in passing through a crowd, we see a face that attracts us by its sweetness of expression. Perhaps it is an old face, crowned with a glory of hoary hairs; yet love, joy and peace shine out of every dot and wrinkle in it. Sometimes it is a young face that beams with health and purity and beauty. But whether old or young, when we see that unmistakable soul-light in a face, we know that the heart behind it is pure, the life good, and that the body thus illuminated is the temple of the Holy Spirit. To keep the mind occupied with good, pure, useful, beautiful and divine thoughts precludes the possibility of thinking about, and thus being tempted by, things sinful, low or gross.—Scottish Reformer.

ENERGY DIRECTED.

There is no danger so great for a man or a boy as idleness. If mothers and fathers would save their boys, they should give them something to do. Buy an axe and a saw, and let them chop up that wood, no matter how large the bank account. Let them keep the weeds from the garden and the tall grass from the lawn, the dirt from their own clothes and the dust from their own shoes. Don't do everything for them. It pays to teach the boys to work—not so much for what they can do as for what it does for them. If more boys could have a piece of ground, a shop, a place of some kind where they could work off their superfluous energy, we should hear less of truant and reform schools. In the matter of reading, too, if you do not wish the boys to read worthless books and trashy novels, you must put into their hands good, well-written books, and these not of the dull type, which will discourage a young mind.—Exchange.

A FAMILY FAILING.

The struggle with Heredity.

To heredity, to the transmission of traits from sire to son, we owe most of the possibilities of growth and development. If each newly born being started out anew, without the force of heredity the level of life might be expected to be that of the digger Indian or Bushman. Naturally bad traits descend like the good. Peculiarities of feature, eccentricities of speech and manner, birth marks, etc., are handed down just as surely as manual dexterity, physical beauty, mathematical ability, and the mental and moral qualities in general. A curious example of this descent of family traits is furnished by Mrs. Maggie Pickett, Canton, Ga., in whose family gray hair was hereditary. She writes:

"Gray hair is hereditary in our family. As long as I can recollect, my mother's hair has been gray. About twelve years ago, my hair began to show signs of turning. I resolved to try Ayer's Hair Vigor, and after using it only a few times my hair was restored to its natural color. I still use this dressing occasionally, a bottle lasting me quite a while; and though over forty years of age, my hair retains its youthful color and fullness. To all who have faded and gray hair, I would heartily recommend Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor."—Mrs. MAGGIE PICKETT, Canton, Ga.

There is no shame in gray hair, but there may be some sadness, because it is untimely, and out of season. Gray hairs are a crown of honor to the aged, but to the young they are a stigma. There is no need to be gray in youth. Grayness comes from a deficiency of the coloring matter which gives the hair its natural tint. This coloring matter can be supplied artificially and is so supplied by Dr. J. C. Ayer's Hair Vigor. It is by supplying the lacking pigment that Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor restores gray or faded hair to its original color. Beyond this, it makes the hair grow, gives it gloss and softness, stops it from falling, removes dandruff, and cleanses the scalp. Mrs. C. M. Ayres, Mount Airy, Ga., writes:

"About three years ago, my head became full of dandruff, which caused great annoyance; after a time the hair began falling out. The use of Dr. J. C. Ayer's Hair Vigor stopped the hair from falling out, and made the scalp clean and healthy."—Mrs. C. M. AYRES, Mount Airy, Ga.

Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor is noted as a dressing. It is used every day by thousands whose chief claim to beauty rests on beautiful hair. Send for Dr. Ayer's Curebook, a story of cures told by the cured. Free. Address the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

A LITTLE OIL.

When the wheels of the carriage, bicycle or machine run heavily, it will sometimes be found that a little oil will remove the difficulty. When the wheels have grown dry and hot and clogged, it takes great force to make them move, and there is danger that they may absolutely refuse to move at all. Then it is that a little oil comes in with most cheering results. The struggle is over. The wheels move easily, and existence once more is a pleasure. A little patience, a smile, a pleasant word, a something of graciousness and gentleness, are all of them examples of the excellent oil which does so much at the right time to make existence easier and more pleasant.—Herald and Presbyter.

To be always intending to lead a new life, but never to find time to set about it: this is as if a man should put off eating and drinking and sleeping from one day and night to another, till he is starved and destroyed.—Tillotson.

Education is leading human souls to what is best, and making what is best of them. The training which makes men happiest in themselves also makes them most serviceable to others.—Ruskin.

Hygiene.

EATING BEFORE GOING TO BED.

A writer in "Italia Termale" is not much in favor of the theory that late suppers are injurious. He declares, in fact, that many persons who remain thin and weakly, in spite of all precautions in regard to diet, etc., owe the fact largely to habitual abstemiousness at night. He says, very truly, that physiology teaches us that, in sleeping as in waking, there is a perpetual waste going on in the tissues of the body, and it seems but logical that nourishment should be continuous as well. The digestion of the food taken on at dinner time, or in the early evening, is finished, as a usual thing, before or by bedtime, yet the activity of the processes of assimilation, etc., progress for hours afterward, and when one retires with an empty stomach the result of this activity is sleeplessness and an undue wasting of the system. "All other creatures," says the writer, "outside of man are governed by a natural instinct, which leads those having a stomach to eat before lying down for the night. The infant, guided by the same instinct, 'takes the breast' frequently."

The lungs of a dog become tuberculated (consumptive) in a few weeks if kept confined in a dark cellar. The most common plant grows spindley, pale and scraggling if no sunlight falls upon it. The greatest medical names in France, of the last century, regarded sunshine and pure air as equal agents in restoring and maintaining health.—Home Doctor.

BUCK—Choctaw county and the Christian churches share with the bereaved family the loss of the late eminent Christian and citizen of Chester, Mr. J. W. Buck, who died at his home on the third, and was buried on the fourth instant at South Union Church. He was born May 24, 1832; joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1848, and lived a consistent Christian and citizen a half century. During this extended period, eventful in the history of the State and the Church, he has nobly borne his share of the burden, and fully discharged his duty. Though a cripple from an accident in early life, he bravely fought his country's battles in the Civil War. Afterward, by his own labor, he opened a farm and built up a substantial, cred table home. There he reared a large family, the youngest of whom he lived to see grown up, and all members of his loved Zion. To the surviving members of the family—a widow and ten children of a former wife—we tender our profoundest sympathies. His example and fatherly precepts are a sterling heritage of which neither life nor death can rob you. None knew this knightly character intimately but to receive some good from his consecrated life and to bless his sacred memory. He never had an enemy, yet always waged unceasing warfare against evil of every kind. Many will miss his friendly greeting and generous hospitality, especially at the camp meeting ground, where he seemed at his best. Too much can not be said of him. He taught us to know and love Christ better by his holy life. He was the father of two of our effective traveling preachers—Rev. A. T. Buck, of Salem, North Mississippi Conference, and Rev. J. E. Buck, of the Southwest Texas Conference. Thus, though he has fallen; "his works do follow him."

We grieve, yet we are comforted, expecting one day to meet him where pain, labor and sorrow are no more. THIS PASTOR.

COLLINS—G. W. COLLINS, son of G. N. and Mrs. E. A. Collins, was born Nov. 18, 1817, in Marshall county, Miss., and departed this life at Cotton Valley, La., June 12, 1893. He was sick only a few hours, but suffered agonies during those few hours.

Bro. Collins joined the Methodist Church in 1854, and lived a strictly moral life for some years, serving as a faithful steward in his church. He never made any manifestation of deep spirituality till he attended Bro. Hopper's meeting at that place in August, 1897. Then he began to hunger and thirst, and gave himself anew to God. The few remaining months of his life he was an earnest advocate of sanctification, and gave liberally to support the truth. He was never married, and was the last male representative of his family.

The last eighteen years of his life were years of self-sacrifice. He spent them in taking care of his aged parents. There are few such faithful sons as he was. He spared no efforts in trying to make them comfortable. His aged father, who was an invalid five years before his death, passed away two years before him.

Bro. Collins leaves an aged mother and three sisters to mourn his death. While it is an irreparable loss to them, it is heaven's gain. His heart was ever open to the cries of charity. The day was never too cold for him to go out and administer to the needs of both black and white. He was not only the staff of his mother's declining years, but a stay to the poor and needy of his community. While we were attending his funeral he was attending the marriage of the Lamb. A FRIEND.

CAMPBELL—WM. G. CAMPBELL was born Sept. 29, 1835, and departed this life June 27, 1898, at his home near Kosciusko, Miss. He was married to Miss Nancy D. Hughs, with whom he lived happily till her death. He was a Christian gentleman in every respect. He joined the Cumberland Presbyterian Church in early life, but after moving to Mississippi united with the M. E. Church, South, at Bethel, and has served in an official capacity for many years. He made an excellent Sunday-school superintendent, and delighted himself in the work. Many are on their way to heaven as the result of his influence. As a steward, he had no superior. Always in the sunlight of God's love, with a smile upon his face, he went about the business of the church so cheerfully that others were constrained to assist him. Filled with the Holy Ghost, he was ever ready to give a reason for the hope within him. A more efficient official member we have never known. He was loved by all who knew him. We rejoice that we were permitted to be associated with him in our Lord's work. His life was a benediction to all. Sister Campbell and three of his children have preceded him to glory; five children survive. We shall meet him again.

J. W. TREADWELL.

DUNBAR—The sad messenger, Death, has visited our home and taken from us our much-loved and honored grandfather, Dr. JOSEPH DUNBAR, in his eighty-third year. We loved him for his real worth. We will ever cherish his memory and endeavor to emulate his virtues. It has pleased our heavenly Father to take back the good grandfather he has given to us to sleep with loved ones that have gone before. He was born in Adams county, Dec. 31, 1815, and died in Jefferson, July 29, 1898. In 1841 he was married to Miss Orleat Fowler. They lived together thirty-four years, and then the angel of death carried her home to glory. He then lived with his daughter, Mrs. Sallie Stephens, until his death. He was an honorable member of the Masonic Lodge of Fayette until he lost his eye-sight. He then drifted into private life, bearing his affliction with all ease. His general health was good until about the first of May, and he began to get feebler and feebler. He was helpless when he died. He suffered so much he wanted to die; said he was ready and not afraid to go. He leaves a son and two daughters, a number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren, to mourn his loss. May we all meet him in that home above where parting is no more!

GRANDDAUGHTER.

PORTER—ANDREW CAMERON PORTER, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Porter, was born Sept. 6, 1884, and died July 24, 1898. He was an invalid most of his life; was never exposed to temptation to sin, as most other children. Being continually under the influence and teaching of a Christian mother, it is not strange that he was a Christian at so early an age, which he gave every evidence of during his entire sickness. He was a remarkably intelligent child. He suffered greatly at times, but was patient and appreciative of everything done for him. Several days before he died his voice was so weak he could not talk, but when told his condition, he still made known his unfaltering faith in Christ as his Savior. Just a few hours before he left us he called for all the family, put his arms around the neck of each one, and requested them to meet him in heaven. Afterward he raised his hands, saying, "I am going higher, higher," and his spirit took its flight. May the dying request of the son be the means of leading the father to Christ, as he is the only one of the family that is not a Christian—all members of the Methodist Church. Farewell, my little friend; I will meet you in our Father's kingdom after awhile. A DEAR FRIEND.

NATIONS—CATHRINE HEWIT NATIONS (nee Hewit) was born in Laurens, S. C., Dec. 5, 1823 and died in Crockett, Texas, July 6, 1898. Being converted, she joined the Methodist Church when eight years old, and was faithful until death. Being left an orphan at twelve, she lived in the home of Judge Williams Watts, of Laurenceville, S. C., until she was married to D. S. Nations, Dec. 20, 1843. They settled in Choctaw county, Miss. Her husband preceded her only seven months to the home of the good. After his death she came to Texas, where she has three daughters living, and with whom she spent her remaining days. She was sick twenty-five days, but was patient and ready to go when called. She was a Methodist of the old type. Her uncle, Ashley Hewit, was an original member of the Louisiana Conference, and helped to organize the Mississippi Conference. She leaves a large and worthy family of children and grandchildren to mourn her departure. She met faithfully all the duties of daughter, wife, mother, and neighbor, and in these relations set a good example. May God comfort those who mourn her loss! A. S. WHITEHURST.

MOSLEY—The long expected death, on Aug. 3, of Mrs. F. E. MOSLEY brought sadness to many loved ones and friends in Chester circuit and Choctaw county, Miss. She was born in Lowndes county, this State, Nov. 24, 1821. She first joined the Cumberland Presbyterian Church early in life, but after moving to Choctaw she joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1845, and has been a loyal, consistent member for fifty-three years.

None knew her but to bless her sacred memory. Her own family shared her every joy, and were shielded from her sorrows. Her church and pastors were first in her mind, with her prayers and labors of love always at their service. She has a glorious heritage, and her many admirers feel no doubt that she is fully entered upon her reward. To the grace of God we commend the bereaved family "till fruition's perfect day." HER PASTOR.

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result; and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

The preparations for the coronation of Queen Wilhelmina continne. A photograph of her majesty in er coronation attire will be sent to every public school and barracks in Holland.

Instructions to the Cuban and Porto Rican military commissions have been formally delivered to members of the commissions and arrangements are being rapidly perfected for their departure to their respective scenes of duty.

A dispatch from Pekin says the French, Italian and Dutch ministers have formally demanded a share for their respective nationalities in the professional chairs at the new university, of which an American, President Martin, is president.

Spain takes a gloomy view of the situation. The United States commission, officially announced, is translated as meaning that four ont of the five are in favor of annexation, and that the fifth, Justice White, is merely a religious and judicial adviser.

The military government in the Philippines is working efficiently in all departments. The business is being actively resumed; the water works is in operation, and the Pasig river is open. Stringent measures have been taken to insure the sanitation of the citadel, which is crowded with prisoners.

J. S. Coxey, formerly general of "Coxey's army," is now about to take 'to touring in a private car, from which he will peddle trading stamps and disseminate ideas about non-interest-bearing bonds. If he has the success he expects, he will visit every State in the Union, carrying with him a brass band of sixteen pieces.

Greensboro folk say that there was no more surprised man in Alabama than was Judge Hobson the other day, when he opened the letter notifying him of his appointment to the postmastership of that place. He had not been consulted by the friends who urged the President to offer him the place, and the fact that he is a strong advocate of the principles of the Chicago platform means that politics has been side-tracked in the honoring of a hero's father.

Among American troops at Manila there have been only seventeen deaths from illness since landing. Twenty-three thousand stands of arms, 10,000,000 cartridges and an immense quantity of large ammunition have been surrendered, with nearly 15,000 prisoners. There is undoubtedly practical unanimity among merchants, irrespective of nationality, in favor of the permanent occupation of the archipelago by the Americans. Nobody conceives the re-establishment of Spanish sovereignty possible.

The Czar's proposition for an international conference for the purpose of securing real and lasting peace among the powers and the termination of the progressive increase in armaments, as conveyed in a note from Count Muravieff, the Russian foreign minister, to the foreign diplomats at St. Petersburg, is likely to produce a sensation throughout Europe, and coming from such a quarter and with such evident sincerity of purpose, it is likely to have important effects.

The announcement is made from Baton Rouge that the governor has appointed the members of the Louisiana State Board of Health as required by the new Constitution. The organic law now requires that there shall be a State Board, whose members shall be appointed by the governor, and a local or City Board for New Orleans, whose members are to be chosen by the City Council. Dr. Souchon, who has so ably and firmly administered as its president the affairs of the old Board, has been made president of the new State Board. Dr. L. Sexton has tendered his resignation as a member of the Board.

INSTITUTION FOR THE EDUCATION OF THE DEAF AND DUMB, JACKSON, MISS.,

Will open its Fall session Oct. 5, 1898. This institution gives not only a good literary course, but also a course in Industrial Arts, which will prepare pupils, both boys and girls, to earn their own living. Its benefits are within the reach of the very poorest. For terms write to

CALL FOR AN INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE.

On the twenty-fourth of August, by order of the Czar, Count Muravieff, the Russian foreign minister, placed in the hands of all the foreign diplomats at St. Petersburg a communication, of which the following is a copy:

"The maintenance of general peace and the possible reduction of the excessive armaments which weigh upon all nations present themselves in existing conditions to the whole world as an ideal toward which the endeavors of all governments should be directed. The humanitarian and magnanimous ideas of his Majesty, the Emperor, my august master, have been won over to this view in the conviction that this lofty aim is in conformity with the most essential interests and legitimate views of all the powers, and the imperial government thinks the present moment would be very favorable to seeking the means.

"International discussion is the most effectual means of insuring all peoples' benefit—a real durable peace above all, putting an end to the progressive development of the present armament.

"In the course of the last twenty years the longing for general peace has grown very pronounced in the consciences of civilized nations; and the preservation of peace has been put forward as an object of international policy. It is in its name that great States have concluded among themselves powerful alliances.

"It is the better to guarantee peace that they have developed in proportions hitherto unprecedented their military forces and still continue to increase them, without shrinking from any sacrifice.

"Nevertheless all these efforts have not yet been able to bring about the beneficent results desired—pacification.

"The financial charges following the upward march strike at the very root of public prosperity. The intellectual and physical strength of the nation's labor and capital are mostly diverted from their natural application and are unproductively consumed. Hundreds of millions are devoted to acquiring terrible engines of destruction, which, though to-day regarded as the last work of science, are destined to-morrow to lose all their value in consequence of some fresh discovery in the same field. National culture, economic progress and the production of wealth are either paralyzed or checked in development. Moreover, in proportion as the armaments of each power increases, they less and less fulfil the obligations the governments have set before themselves.

"The economic crisis due in great part to the system of armaments, l'ontrance and the continual danger which lie in the massing of war, are transforming the armed peace of our days into a crushing burden which the peoples have more and more difficulty in bearing.

"It appears evident that if this state of things were to be prolonged it would inevitably lead to the very cataclysm it is desired to avert and the horrors whereof make every human being shudder.

"To put an end to these incessant armaments and to seek the means of warding off the calamities which are threatening the whole world—such is the supreme duty to-day imposed upon all States.

"Filled with this idea, his Majesty has been pleased to command me to propose to all the governments whose representatives are accredited to the imperial court, the assembling of a conference which shall occupy itself with this grave problem.

"This confidence will be, by the help of God, a happy presage for the century which is about to open. It would converge into powerful focus the efforts of all States sincerely seeking to make the great conception of universal peace triumph over the elements of trouble and discord, and it would at the same time cement their agreement by a corporate consecration of the principles of equity and right whereon rest the security of States and the welfare of peoples."

Georgia's equipped School of Technology in Atlanta offers courses in civil, electrical, and mechanical engineering. Board, $6.50 to $10 per month. Fees nominal. The shops for manual training in wood, machine, smith and foundry work have no superiors. The catalogue lists all graduates and their occupations, and the record is unsurpassed.

All students living in the dormitories are under wholesome regulations, which protect morally and physically, save them from all pernicious influences, and promote their interest in studies. For industrial catalogue, with full particulars, address Lyman Hall, president, Atlanta, Ga. Fully equipped textile department opens February next.

The cause which produces sick headache is more promptly removed by Ayer's Pills than by any other medicine. They easily and speedily correct all disorders of the stomach, liver, and bowels, and restore to these organs regular and healthy action.

EAST MISSISSIPPI FEMALE COLLEGE AND ITS GREAT SUCCESS.

The outlook for the E. M. F. College is very flattering. The buildings were full last year, and this year they will be full to overflowing. The success of this college is something wonderful, and not so wonderful either, when we notice the fine talent that is being employed.

President Beeson is acting wisely in sparing no means in getting the trained teachers, and plenty of them. He employs twenty-six teachers and officers, and therefore can give all the attention needed.

Colleges, in trying to economize, often do not have enough teachers; frequently they employ cheap teachers, thinking thereby to save money, but this is poor economy. These fine teachers from Wofford College, the University of South Carolina, those who have taken post-graduate courses in the University of Chicago, the famous Normal College of Chicago, and other fine colleges, prove that President Beeson has the correct idea about a faculty.

People are finding out and appreciating these advantages, as can be seen by a glance at the catalogue showing an enrollment of 327, with several States represented.

The conservatory was a great success the first year of its establishment, enrolling 178 students. Students who have been a year to Boston or Cincinnati, and then spent a year in the Meridian Conservatory, say they get as fine talent at Meridian as at Boston and Cincinnati, and receive better attention, and therefore advance more rapidly.

They will return to Meridian, when they could go back to these Northern conservatories, which is proof that they are pleased. We are glad to have such a college and conservatory in Mississippi. It is a great help to those who have girls to educate.

They can get such fine advantages here at such little cost, with a curriculum equal to that of most Southern male colleges, with a faculty costing several thousand dollars; with a fine health record; with the best of home influence and training; with skill in management; and with a high grade of thorough, honest, conscientious work, what else could the college be but a great success.

It is no surprise that the outlook for next session is fine; it would be surprising if it were otherwise.—Macon Trihune.

The Electropoise will cure most diseases without medicine, by simply placing the body in condition to receive oxygen enough to purify and keep in health.

We say "most diseases," for the Electropoise will not cure everything; but where it fails to cure it will afford relief that you would not knowingly go without.

The Electropoise makes well and keeps well, prevents as well as cures—used every day will keep the doctor away.

A GLIMPSE OF GREECE.

MR. EDITOR: More than a month has passed since you, in saying good-by, asked me to send you a line now and then. I trust you will not think my silence has been due to any lack of appreciation of your kindness or desire on my part to enjoy selfishly all the pleasures of a Summer's outing. The fact is, I've been so busy taking in that I've had little time for putting out. The soaking era is as important as the squeezing time—to a sponge—perhaps more so. Holland, with its easy-going people and slow, sleepy ways; France, gay in her fashions and grand in her historic monuments; Switzerland, rich in mountain and lake, where God has been his own painter and sculptor; Italy, attractive by reason of its being, as it seems, the arena where art and nature have striven for the mastery, culminating in the glory of Saint Peter's, on the one hand, and the awful grandeur of Vesuvius on the other—each of these has been of great interest to me, and might well be the subject of a lengthy sketch. But knowing, as I do, the aversion an editor feels for bulky manuscripts—especially in August—I have so far resisted the temptation to burden your waste-basket. However, the pressure has been very great, I assure you, and just to keep myself from the calamity that Elihu feared would overtake him if he found no vent for his super-saturated sagacity, I made a promise that when I reached Greece I'd take a long breathing spell, and would, if possible, write a few notes on what I saw and felt while on this classic ground.

To see Athens has, from my earliest recollection, been the inspiration of my life. While yet an undergraduate, as far back as my Freshman year, when reading of the heroic ambition of Schliemann—that prince of Grecian archæologists—this desire was fanned into an ardent hope. For years it was only a hope, but now, under the blessing of a gracious Providence, this hope has come to full fruition, and I stand here amid the scenes that have for years been shaping my studies, and in a large degree moulding my character. It's a wonderful thing for a man to get a good glimpse at what has made him. A no less wonderful thing to behold the place from which have emanated the mightiest influences in the history of the civilization of the race. The broad river, bearing on its bosom the commerce of a nation, charms us by the rhythm of its movement, and at times thrills us by the energy it displays in hewing its way through massive mountains and plowing up great plains; but the little spring away up in far distant hills, gurgling and sparkling in its native purity, whence all this majestic outflow to the ocean takes its origin, must ever claim our most thoughtful consideration and arouse within us feelings, not so strong, it may be, but none the less pleasing.

Such a source was ancient Athens. Cicero, steeped as he was in the culture of Greece, could not withhold his meed of praise, but has left it on record in the graceful characterization, "Athens, fountain-head of all the arts." And Cicero's "all" included a great deal. Poetry, philosophy, art, religion—all these here, on the human side, reached their climax. Here full scope was given for the exercise of every faculty of man's manifold make-up. The imaginative, the reflective, the executive, the spiritual, the soul, mind, hand and heart were here employed to their fullest capacity. Athens was a central market-place, where every human commodity was in demand, and the highest price was paid for the best. She was continually challenging the world to show what she could do. Needless to say, the challenge was accepted, and the proofs exist to this day. But enough of the dry dust of historical speculation; let us come to things that have a "local habitation and a name."

Of course, the first thing in Athens is the Acropolis—that great hill towering above everything else in the city. Every school-boy knows about this famous site. How, at first, it formed the citadel for the city; then, in the time of Pericles, it was transformed into a sacred spot, and under the magic touch of Phidias was made to contain wonders in marble and gold such as the world had never seen. Here was the Propylæa, or entrance, ruins of which still remain—a stairway of noble ascent. To the right, on the brow of the hill, was the beautiful Temple of Victory, well preserved. Upon the top, crowning the whole, was the Parthenon—the glory of all architecture. Wonderful it is that it has withstood the shocks and ravages of time so well. Its majestic colonnus, its noble proportions, its beautiful frieze—though only partial now—have been heralding the genius of their creator for more than twenty centuries, and today stand in all their silent grandeur eloquently proclaiming the matchless glory of the Golden Age of Greece.

In the Parthenon is the site where once stood the famous gold and ivory statue of Athena. This magnificent piece, wrought by the hand of Phidias, was thirty-nine feet in height, exclusive of its pedestal. To-day not a splinter remains, but from the descriptions we have in ancient writings and the miniature copy I saw in the National Museum in this place, I can readily believe the verdict that it was at once the glory of art and the despair of artists.

Just to the north of the Parthenon, on the other edge of the hill, stands the Erechtheion, containing the beautiful "porch of the maidens," so called because, instead of columns to support the roof, there are six caryatides in graceful pose, with delicate drapery, bearing it upon their heads. The contrast between ancient art and modern talent has no greater illustration than in some of the restorations made in this porch by later hands.

In strange contrast to all the magnificence of the Acropolis is the barrenness of the bold knob of rock pointed out as Mar's Hill. But a visit to this place throws more vividness into the sixteenth chapter of Acts than all the many commentaries I have ever consulted. To read Paul's famous speech right on the spot where he delivered it is an inspiration, the memory of which will last a life-time. As he stood upon that rocky height, facing the august body of the Areopagites, just to his right there towered aloft the Acropolis, with its magnificent miracles in marble; to the left, down the hill-side a bit, his eye fell upon the Temple of Theseus, the best preserved of all these ancient piles; behind him rose the Pnyx, the place for political assemblies in ancient times, and just in front he could catch distant glimpses of the Temple of Olympian Zeus, that "work of despotic grandeur," as Aristotle termed it, the ruins of which are the most impressive of all I've seen. Here it was that the heroic soul of the apostle flamed into ardor as he saw the evidence of idolatry run mad; beholding, as he did, more gods than men in this city wonderfully "given to religion." Here it was that he sought to lead them from nature up to nature's God, and right under the shadow of the noblest edifices ever reared by human skill he proclaimed the glorious truth that the God that made the heavens—the beautiful heavens of Greece, for example—dwells not in temples made by hands of men, not even the hands of Phidias or Praxiteles. Here it was the dauntless preacher struck the blow that has turned the Acropolis into a field fit only for the spade of the archæologist, and laid the great temple of Jove the Thunderer in a mass of shapeless ruins; yet no monument marks the scene of the victory of this soldier of the cross. If you seek one, look around you and read in the battered wrecks of heathendom the story of the invincible faith of him who wielded what he was pleased to call "the power of God."

But there's a modern Athens, and a strong impression it makes on one who has for years been looking through the telescope of history to come face to face with nineteenth-century realities. Hard it is to trace, even in imagination, this latter-day folk back to that noble breed of men who, like a mighty bulwark, breasted each successive wave of Eastern assault and made possible thereby the civilization of modern Europe. A paradox, it seems; or is it the grim irony of their own poets' fate, that to-day the descendants of the heroes of Marathon and Salamis are paying tribute to the Turkish conqueror, and, all the worse for them, seem to feel no tinge of shame? Byron's words are still too true, "All, except their sun, is set." But it is not my purpose to attempt to rival Max Nordau in the discussion of degeneracy; suffice it to say, he must have paid a visit to Greece, and there gotten inspiration for his volume.

There is, however, a humorous side to this sad decline. To see the language in which Demosthenes rolled forth his sonorous periods and Æschylus sang his majestic strains, heralding the praises of Pears' Soap, and exhausting all its manifold capacity proclaiming to the passer-by the excellence of Havana cigarettes, is in itself a refreshing novelty; while the sight of an Edison phonograph, an Eastman kodak, or a "bicycle built for two" decorated with the same characters that made the magic music of the Iliad and the weird solemnity of the Delphic Oracle, is one that would doubtless shock the enthusiasm of all the adversaries who throw the wet blanket of "utility" on the study of Greek, and, when thus shrouded, seek to shelve it in one of the mummy niches of the world's museum.

But I see I'm on my hobby now, Mr. Editor, and I like his gait so well that I shall never dismount unless I do it very abruptly, and I'm certain you'll thank me for not waiting for him to "slow up."

"OUR WESTERN WORK"—ANOTHER VIEW.

MR. EDITOR: A short time since I received a pamphlet, which was written by Dr. Steele (Rev. Robert Eldredge) and very industriously circulated by some one who seems willing to help him throw mud. It is composed of a series of letters written by him to the St. Louis Christian Advocate in reference to his trip to this coast in the interest of the Epworth League.

Concerning that trip, I distinctly remember he was very positive and particular in stating through the press that he desired to be entertained only at hotels, maintaining that the hospitality of private families would, to a certain extent, disqualify him for platform work. While that precaution may have been necessary, I contend it kept him from coming in touch with the people, and unfitted him for criticising or reviewing them or their work. I believe it is generally admitted that the man who merely passes through a country on a Pullman sleeper can possibly describe the scenery within reach of his vision, but he can not truthfully discuss the people or the conditions under which they labor. It is positively tiring to read some of his uncharitable and unkind animadversions on Western preachers, who, I fear, were the creations of his imagination, or, at best, fables, which are told as coarse jokes by a certain class of would-be wits. If that is what he was looking for, he could have heard much more profitable and truthful comment on our preachers in private families who have been saved through their efforts.

I do not intend to review his criticisms, but as briefly as possible present another aspect which seems to me to be a chief reason for our tardy growth. I firmly believe that the "Boards," whose duty it is to assess the different Conferences for the money necessary to carry on the work of the church, have, by their unequal and exorbitant assessments of the Western Conferences, done more to retard their growth and paralyze their life than all other influences combined. Every Bishop who has presided over these Conferences during the last nine years, at least, has affirmed on the platform and in the church papers that the assessments were unreasonably excessive. About four years ago one of them made a vigorous effort before the "Boards" to have the assessments reduced, but he met with no better success than did the protests and petitions which the Conferences had repeatedly sent to the same "Boards." And, so far as I know, no member of the "Boards" has ever made an excuse for their oppressive administration. I say "excuse" because I don't believe a "reason" can be given.

It is well understood that this is missionary ground. All denominations should, and they do, expend vast sums of money in the building and sustaining of churches, and while our branch has done as much as the others according to her ability, her "Boards" have made a fatal mistake in assessing these weak Conferences from 100 to 300 per cent. per capita more than they do the old, strong Conferences in the East. If anyone questions their doing so, I call his attention to the following figures as a sample; and if he cares for more light, I refer him to the general Minutes, which will prove an interesting study if he is disposed to doubt the statements made in this article.

In our entire church the assessment for foreign missions is 23 1-3 cents per capita. The Los Angeles Conference is assessed for the same cause 63 2-5 cents per capita. For church extension the church at large is assessed 7 1-3 cents per capita. The Los Angeles Conference, for the same cause, is assessed 22 7-10 cents per capita. I believe the North Georgia is considered the strongest Conference in the church. It is assessed for foreign missions a little over 26 cents per capita, the Virginia is assessed nearly 27 cents, the Tennessee a little over 28 cents, and the Holston a little over 18 cents per capita. The proportion of the other assessments is about the same, but I will give one more item. Last year the North Georgia paid to the Bishops' fund a little less than 3 cents per capita, and the Los Angeles paid to the same fund 5 1-2 cents per capita. My last year at San Diego (1893 and '94), with 36 members, we paid, all told, $3,894.75, or $108.18 3-4 per capita, and yet we did not pay all our assessments; we lacked considerable. As usual, many of the women and children, and some of the men, did not pay anything, because they could not; consequently, it was rather burdensome to those who did pay.

There is much truth in the statement so often heard in California, "The church is too expensive for poor people." I will give a few more items which will show the force of the statement by comparing our expenses with those of our brethren in the East. I was transferred to the West from a church in the Mississippi Conference that paid its pastor $500 annually. About three dollars additional per member would be required to pay all the other assessments, including the presiding elder's salary. Arriving in the West, I was first stationed at San Diego, and about the first thing I learned was that all private and corporate property was heavily taxed by the State. Nothing but public property is exempt. All churches, parsonages, private schools and colleges are taxed the same as business houses. The great Stanford University, with the vast property which endows it, is taxed the same as a mercantile establishment. After paying State, county and city taxes, the water company for the water we used, and the gas company for light, janitor's wages and premiums on the insurance, I found the aggregate was more than my salary in the Mississippi Conference. I also found that the assessment on my charge for foreign missions alone was $2.50 per capita for all the members I could find, and all other assessments in proportion. Leaving out of account the pastor's salary, the sum of all the other assessments was more than that congregation should be required to pay; and after adding the pastor's salary, the effect was to paralyze the efforts of the membership. They could not see the justice in their being assessed so out of proportion to their brethren in the East, where the church was strong, and at the end of the year they asked me to join with others of our Conference to petition the "Boards" to lower our assessments. The Conference did so; the "Boards" replied by raising them, and some of the most influential members I had threatened to quit the church unless their protests or petitions were heeded. They were not heeded by the "Boards," and the best members I had have since withdrawn, and with their families are forever lost to the church. Such cases are by no means rare. They can be found everywhere in the State. Many of our people from the South come here to live. They expect to continue their church relation, but soon learn that the State taxes them for having a house to say their prayers in, but they can't understand why the church, as a church, adds to the burden till it becomes oppressive; therefore, many of them get disgusted and go to other churches, or join the crowd of worldly pleasure-seekers every Sunday. Moreover, the pastors are expected to have their charges as thoroughly organized as the large, strong congregations of the East. There are the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, the Home Mission Society, the Ladies' Aid Society, the Senior and Junior Leagues, and now the Sunday-schools are required to become missionary societies, and give about one-fourth of their collections to missions, in addition to supplying themselves with everything needed. Now, it costs something to sustain all these organizations, and they must all be sustained by the same families, which, in the Western churches, are few in number. Every society is composed of nearly the same persons that compose every other society. They do the best they can in all, but the State makes no reduction in its taxes, neither do the corporations in their charges for supplies, and the church makes such persistent and continuous demands for money through all these societies in addition to the pastor's assessments, that many of our converts who have been born into the kingdom at our altars, knowing the situation, join other churches where more is not required of them than they are able to accomplish.

At one of my meetings twenty-two young people were converted at the mourner's bench, but not one of them joined our church. They felt they could not discharge the obligations the church would lay upon them, so they sought homes elsewhere. It is well known that the assessments are greater than the people will pay in the East, where the church is strong. Then why, I ask, are the assessments at least doubled, and frequently quadrupled, out here where the members are so few, and every other expense is so much greater than at any other place on the continent?

Some of the strictures contained in the letters of our hotel-entertained visitor prove that the writer was painfully in need of information, which he should have obtained before writing such unkind, misleading and faulty criticisms of his brethren on the picket line. There are no places out here for incompetent preachers. The persons of that type who come to us soon find it out and go back. Those who stand by their colors where the church assigns will not suffer by comparison with any other body of men anywhere.

The reason that Cuba is not the Gem of the Antilles—in fact as well as in name—is not the fault of the Cubans, but its woeful condition is occasioned by the oppressive system of taxation by the Spanish government. The cause of our slow growth in the West is found in that insane method of taxation resorted to by those in authority rather than in the incompetency of the hard working preachers who hold the field under every difficulty. FROM BRAZIL.

Rio is better known abroad probably than any city in Brazil or South America. Does not everybody know of and drink Rio coffee? So, by name, at least, this city is known. It is situated over twenty-two degrees south of the equator, or just above the tropic of Capricorn, but, because of its local surroundings, has a heated term much longer than any other city in Brazil, except Para, on the equator, and Santos, a little further south. The heat here is often more intense than at Pernambuco, which is only eight degrees south of the equator.

Sunday, the sixth of February, was one of these blazing torrid days. But it seemed to make no difference in our church work. At the morning preaching, at ten o'clock, in Portuguese, the number present was larger, and in the Sunday-school, which began at eleven o'clock, there were about sixty present. At midday I began the worship in English, and a goodly number of believers in this far-away land gathered around the communion table. For the afternoon service, at five o'clock, I went along with Sir Jose Primenco, my Brazilian helper, to celebrate the communion with our members in the Jardin Botanico—Botanical Garden—Church. There we have no church building, but the hall was full. And such earnest attention and spiritual singing was an inspiration. Nearly forty persons presented themselves to partake of the holy sacrament, and thus declare their faith in His death until He come again.

At night I was again back in the city at our Cattete Church, where large numbers attended, and we had an animated service. Over seventy came forward to the communion table. All was lively and inspiring, and some persons came forward for church membership. It was a bright and happy day.

A CONTRAST.

The very next Sunday offered the other extreme—an entire contrast. The day dawned dark and gloomy. Heavy clouds, a suffocating atmosphere, and a threatened tropical down-pour—all united to give much physical discomfort and no spiritual inspiration.

I had no sooner entered the church than word came that the child of Dona Leopoldina Carmago had died. In a few minutes a card was handed me, saying that Dr. Cleary, an American friend, was lying a corpse, having expired suddenly, and that Bro. Tilley had been called by telegram from Petropolis by the greatly affected widow. And then, before I could get into the pulpit, some one came to say that the pastor of the Botanical Garden Church had been taken quite ill, and hence requested me to send some one to direct the preaching for that congregation. The congregation was small, and now the rain was falling; so you may imagine the inspiration with which I went forward. Truly we know not what a day may bring forth. Still, I remembered that it is written, "I am the Lord; I change not." If my hearers had understood English, I would have given out:

> "In trouble and in joy
> The praises of my God shall still
> My heart and tongue employ."

As the experiences of life come upon us, or pass before us, or move around us, he must indeed be a dull scholar who does not learn of the instability of these things, and learn also to look up to those things which can not be moved, but abideth forever.

These things referred to above were, of course, only for a day, and may, and no doubt shall be, repeated many times. But, after all, the darkest days for our gospel work in this great city are, so I believe, now behind us, and signs of development and progress multiply from week to week. J. W. WOLLING.

CO-WORKERS WITH GOD.

BY HELEN G. RICE.

Lord, when we pray, "Thy kingdom come,"
Then fold our hands without a care
For souls whom thou hast died to save,
We do but mock thee with our prayer.

Thou couldst have sent an angel band
[illegible]
And thus through heavenly ministries,
On earth thy kingdom might have come.

But since to human hands like ours
Thou hast committed work divine,
Shall not our eager hearts make haste
To join their feeble powers with thine!

To word and work shall not our hands
Obedient move, nor lips be dumb,
Lest through our sinful love of ease,
Thy kingdom should delay to come!

LETTER FROM NEW ENGLAND.

MR. EDITOR: There is a strong suggestion of the near approach of Autumn in the cool breath of the winds that sweep over these New England hills and down Narragansett Bay across the Atlantic. With these unseen messengers comes the realization that Summer is almost gone—the Summer that has brought to me the conglomerate of excessive fatigue, of successful work, of richest opportunity, of deepest satisfaction, and most terrible sorrow.

In June I went to Pulaski, Tenn., to pay my respects to my venerable kinswoman, my great-aunt, Mrs. Ann Lindsay, who stands upon the mountain-tops of eighty-five years. This gracious old lady, who discussed the Spanish war with absorbing interest, and showed me perishable family relics a hundred years old—for instance, a silk purse that was given my great-grandfather Lindsay by his fiancee when he began his ministry as a Methodist circuit rider in Virginia—lives in a large, curious old house on a wheat farm. The only other occupant of the dwelling is her bachelor son, who makes it a point not to boast of his sixty-five Winters. In this beautiful section my "fathers trod" in early days. In a little graveyard in the town of Pulaski is a long vault of stone, upon the face of which I read, "Sarah Kearney Lindsay; died 1774." Under this lies the earthly remains of my great-grandmother. The shades of the past were strong about me, but also the modern spirit was strong upon me. I gave public addresses, and reaped a blessed harvest of membership for the W. C. T. U.

In the gray of a morning's light I swept through classic Columbia, where my mother was educated, and soon left dear old Nashville, the place of my father's nativity, in the distance as I turned my face toward Louisville. I stopped long enough in Washington City to visit the gorgeous new Congressional Library. Then I went on to Frankford, Pa., a suburb of Philadelphia; Wilmington, and another point in Delaware, where meetings were held; then spent a number of days at Prohibition Park, on Staten Island, to attend the International Congress of Temperance Workers. This conference will prove memorable in the history of the prohibition movement. Although the gatherings were not vast in numbers, it was compensated for by the richness of the materials of which they were composed. The leading men and women from nearly every temperance society in the United States were present, and entered cordially into the plan of getting upon a basis of unity. A Provisional Committee was appointed, consisting of representatives from various bodies opposed to the liquor traffic, whose province it will be to overlook the field and find lines of work upon which all organizations standing for the abolition of the open saloon can enter. The first step proposed was to present petitions to President McKinley for the abolishment of the canteen system in the army.

While resting here at Sannderstown, a little sea-side resort in Rhode Island, the awful tidings reached me that my oldest brother, a beautiful young man in the majesty of his strength, was shot and killed in New Mexico while trying to capture a desperado who was stained with a bloody crime, defying all law, and successfully outwitting and resisting the officers of the territory. My brother, who was absolutely fearless and brave to the last degree, undertook the perilous encounter in which his bright, promising life was laid down. When only seventeen he went to the West, and in the thirteen years that followed he lived alternately in Texas, Old Mexico, and the mountains of New Mexico. He paid us a visit at the plantation in Mississippi last Spring, and immediately after went to Los Cruces, New Mexico, where he intended to make his permanent home, and enter law and journalism. Before he had established himself fully came the frightful ecquel. My splendid brother! Almost faultless in physique, tall and elegantly proportioned, with a strikingly handsome face, clear cut features, and noble expression; charming in manner, refined and courtly; a brilliant mind which had been enriched by constant reading and contact with all kinds of people in different sections; lofty in character, honorable in the extreme, unselfish, loyal, tender-hearted. He did not conform to outward expressions of worship, but had the deepest sense of sacred things. Out of the shadows of the earth-life he has stepped; the sunlight is over there. Surely "our Father" has prepared for him "a place" where his glorious faculties can find their full development, where he can grow into "the perfect stature." I thank God that the thought of everlasting death has passed from me. I believe that it is his blessed will to save all his creatures. If it were not for the unspeakable bestowment of immortality—a happy, peaceful, glorified immortality—I would think most certainly that "the gift of life is not only a tragedy, but a crime." In the sifting, intuitive, divinely wrought assurance that has come to me, I ask no questions of God. I am conscious of no rebellion. I lift my thoughts calmly to him, and with eyes undimmed with tears and lips untrembling with sobs, I say: "It is all right, my Lord, whatever thou sendest me. It is all right." This is the second brother that has gone out from us in less than three years; the first not quite thirty, this last beloved nearly ending his thirty-first.

One October day in '95 a little funeral procession moved slowly from the old home at Vernon across the sunlit fields to our family burial-ground, lying in the heart of the cool, green woods. There by an open grave we stood and watched the gleams of evening light and flickering shadows fall across its sides and upon the coffin. A long, agonizing sigh from my father when the clods began to fall; after awhile came the stillness; then the heart-break of the home-going; then the fever, the semi-consciousness, the resting, the abiding, the all-rightness.

In '98—in July—a sudden, cruel, frightful encounter, followed by hours of mortal anguish in being taken across the plains for thirty-five miles; then a special car; then other hours of unutterable suffering—all borne with the fortitude of a hero; then the last words, "My only regret in dying is that I have not made a greater success of my life." Laid to rest by that little band of men who had stood by him and ministered to him on his terrible journey and in his final agony. Now a lonely grave at La Luz, in the far-away territory of New Mexico, in the depths of isolation, and the dreary winds, and the sweep and moan of the prairie grasses as they bend toward it. A lonely grave and—God! Since it came—the message of his death—I have kept right on in the midst of my work. What else could I do? In the midst of the work, and the loneliness, and the crowds, and the stress of the human—but no questioning, no rebellion. Out of the darkness I am crying: "It is all right, my Lord, whatever thou sendest me. It is all right." BELLE KEARNEY.

LETTER FROM ORIGON.

MR. EDITOR: As you are sweltering under a tropical sun, allow me to add to your burdens by sending a message from the cool breezes of Oregon. Think of it!—a fire is a source of comfort by nine o'clock of an evening; still, our Summer has been unusually warm. In some of the recesses of the mountains the thermometer has gone to more than 100 degrees in the shade; still, 110 degrees will not oppress us here as 90 degrees will you there. Some of our people took advantage of the cheap rates and went East. Their letters are "almost burning hot." One man said he actually felt his head to see if it were not on fire, and longed for the cool breezes of Oregon.

Excitement is at "fever heat" with some of our people. A coal mine has just been discovered that is 107 feet in depth and 4x6 miles in extent. Some of you who are ready at figures tell us what that is worth at $2 or $2.50 per ton. It is good coal; I have some of it. So with our many other coal mines, our gold mines, our millions of timber (fir, spruce, hemlock, cedar, red and white maple), our unparalleled opportunities for stock raising; grass grows all Winter—is now waist-high in the mountains; our creameries and dairies, and the unparalleled fruitfulness of the soil of our valleys. Beets and carrots grow from 20 to 60, and some say 80 tons per acre, and many other things in proportion. Then our fruits so abundant that after everybody consumes all they can, millions of it go to waste. I say, with all this plentifulness around us, it would seem our people ought to be content; but not so. It seems we are a nation of chronic grumblers. We haven't railroads enough to get our produce to market, ocean steamers are too slow, sailing schooners were good enough for our fathers, but railroads are getting too slow for us. What are we to do? "Tear down and build anew." Tearing down and hindering seems to be the policy with many now. "Where are we?" But I'll not enter the field these thoughts suggest; it is too hot—with you—for such reading.

I believe I told you in February I had gotten well enough again to preach. It has been a treat to me, and how I wish my hands were loose from this school, so I could do so constantly!

Among the trips I have taken was a romantic one to Curry county. The mountain to cross was seven miles from foot to summit, and much of the way was like climbing the roof of a house—so steep. Of course, I did not ride; it was as much as the horse could do to pull the cart. Nearly one mile was on the "hog's back." There was just room enough for a wagon-way, and off on each side the slope was from 45 degrees to nearly perpendicular, and the distance from 500 to 1,500 feet. It was not a good place for a nervous person. When I first came out here I suppose I would have felt uneasy, though I was always venturesome about such things; but it did not seem so dangerous to me. On the other side the grade was gradual, and it was quite enjoyable, though lonesome. Often I'd come to a prairie all covered with virgin grass waist-high, with signs of wild game in many places; but I had neglected to bring a gun, so was not careful to keep quiet; hence saw none. I had never been where I had so long a view of the coast line as I got that evening. It must have been 20 or 30 miles at one glance; it was a pretty sight. I stopped my horse and let him graze upon the grass while my whole nature feasted upon the vision before me.

At the services I was fed in the glad delight that appeared on every countenance as their hungry souls seemed to feed upon the Word. It paid me well for my long, lonesome ride to get there; and the cordial welcome they gave me seemed like a Southern welcome. One don't get that everywhere here.

On my return I stopped for the night about fifteen miles up the river. They had an appointment for me, and the one night lengthened into a week of preaching at night and visiting through the day. Again, I was repaid by the avidity with which people seemed to feed upon the Word. "We have had only about three sermons this year." People came who had not been for many years.

Last of July I took wife and daughter up into the mountains, in answer to an earnest invitation by a stranger to "come up and take a rest and hunt." They had prepared a place in a grove, and on each Sunday the people for nine miles around gathered and gave us opportunity to hunt for souls, which was more delightful than hunting for game. Though they were on seats without backs, they said one hour and twenty minutes was not too long for the morning, and forty minutes for the evening sermon. But it was their first this year. Then most of the nights we held service at some place, as they would not agree for us to stay at one place. It was another instance of genuine hospitality, like that in the South. The man to whom we first went was almost Southern; came from Baltimore when a child. His brother, Binger Herman, has been a member of Congress for twelve years past.

Of mornings I would be out with my gun by four o'clock, in search of the haunts of deer or bear; but they told me I was there in the "wrong time of the moon"—i. e., as it shone all night, the game would go to cover so early I could seldom get a sight of it, and when I did, it would be on the run, as it was so foggy they could see me before I saw them; so we only got one in the ten days. I must try it again, and will know better next time. Mr. Editor, you, or some of your readers, come and go with me. I had a gentleman and his wife with me this week from Kentucky who just "came to see the country and take a hunt." A party of two men, their wives and daughters, went further into the mountains; went in a-foot and on pack horses; the women in bloomers; spent a month; got fifty-one deer, one elk, and one of them caught 600 fish. A party of four in three or four days got sixteen deer. There are thousands of game. I saw signs of bear and panther, but did not come up with any of them.

I was surprised at the soil. Up here, nearly 2,000 feet, there were prairies two miles, or more, in length, with soil just like that in Mississippi and Alabama; but when I went from one to another, it was a jungle indeed—fallen logs, trees, bushes and vines, etc., and hot. Oh, my! I felt like I was back in Kentucky or Mississipi. We seldom sweat in this climate, but I had a good one every morning when I went hunting. It was my first hunt in Oregon; but if I stay long, it will not be my last.

I spoke in the beginning of our unsatisfied condition, and later on of my wish to be back in the pastorate. Both these conditions are mine now. It is but natural I should want to do that that I love, as I do preaching; still, I want, more than all, to do the Lord's work in the Lord's way, and if the Lord sees this the best way to serve him, I want to do so; still, I can not but want to do this to the best advantage, and I think the way is opened to do that, but that way is coupled with a condition with which I can not comply without the assistance of others. It is: If I will invest about $6,000 more in improvements, half as much more will be added to it. How am I to secure this half? Of course, I will not ask contributions, though I expect to run the school as religiously as any church school. But I am in position to make one of two offers. If a party, or parties, will take stock to that amount, to allow them about forty to fifty per cent. premium, and the assurance if they are not satisfied, their stock will be bought back at a good per cent. on cost. Or if they prefer to make a loan, security will be given on more than three times the value. I would much prefer that some one who wishes to teach, and is capable of teaching through a college course, would take this stock; so I might have some one to help me bear the burden of work and responsibility, as it is most too much for me.

Now, Mr. Editor, if you can put me on the track of some one who wants their money to be doing good while it also brings them are yenne, I will be under lasting obligations to you. Very truly your brother,

J. L. FUTRELL.

TOPISAW CAMP MEETING.

AUG. 11-19, 1898.

Our camp meeting was a success in very particular. The attendance was good, far beyond our expectation, considering the daily rains for two weeks or more preceding, with one or two heavy rains during the meeting. Several of our most substantial tentholders were kept away on account of serious sickness, and among these some of our most active church workers. The death of Sister Huffman, wife of Geo. W. Huffman, one of our oldest and most substantial tenters, threw a gloom of sadness over the entire community. She was buried Thursday, the last day of the meeting.

The following preachers were present and took active part in the services, namely: Revs. J. M. Weems, D. D.; T. W. Adams, W. W. Simmons, H. D. Howell, H. A. Gatlin, J. A. Moore, J. T. Abney, L. E. Alford, J. M. Morse, J. W. Sandell, B. H. Rawls, and M. Ferrell. The preaching was of the highest type, and was attended with the power and demonstration of the Holy Spirit. Sinners came to the altar promptly, without being sung and pulled from their seats, under great conviction. Seventy or more professed conversion and reclamation. Eight joined the church on profession of faith. The meeting was a season of great grace and power to the church.

In addition to the religious and spiritual success, it was a season of great social delight. Perfect harmony and good will prevailed throughout the entire camp. It was as one great family. I have attended camp meetings where I thought the preachers were not as religious as they ought to be; where the spirit of criticism and fault-finding prevailed more than prayer. We had none of this. I have never seen a band of preachers render more unselfish service, willing to preach at any hour, or lead any service appointed. Our presiding elder was the biggest exhorter we had. He can pray, exhort, and talk to penitents as well as preach. This, and last year's meeting, which was under the preaching mainly of Bros. B. S. Rayner, J. T. Nicholson and I. W. Cooper, D. D., has demonstrated the fact that we can have an old-time camp meeting without an evangelist (no reflection, however, on the evangelist). The power is of God, and will accompany the faithful preaching of his Word and united prayers of his people.

All praise to him who power gives,
And saves a soul from sin and hell.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the North Mississippi Conference has reason for much thanksgiving and rejoicing, in that we have now an applicant for foreign mission work to fill our Helen Finlay Scholarship in the Scarritt Bible and Training-School. It has been the continual prayer of our women that God would call one from our midst for the foreign field who could enjoy the training given through this scholarship; and while two earnest, consecrated, gifted young women in our Conference have felt the call, still the way has not yet opened for them to leave their homes and devote themselves to the work. Their hearts yearn to do it, but loved ones need them, and they must stand at the post of duty here until our Father lets them go to those further off. But now one presents herself to us in obedience to the "heavenly vision," fitted by culture and consecration, filled with love for Christ and lost souls, who asks to be trained for service and sent into the foreign field.

On July 27 an executive meeting of the W. F. M. S. of the North Mississippi Conference was held in the parsonage in Winona, and the papers of Miss Mollie Cessna, of Columbus, Miss., were examined, and, being found highly satisfactory, she was recommended to fill the Helen Finlay Scholarship. Miss Cessna is very proficient in music, and will probably fill the position of music teacher in McTyeire School, Shanghai, China.

Miss Helen Richardson, during her stay at home, made several earnest pleas for a young lady to fill this position, and we rejoice that this need can be so quickly met by one from our own Conference, trained through the advantages of our own scholarship—in fact, one who will be our own missionary. Miss Cessna will leave for Kansas City, in company with Sister Hargrove, the second of September. The small amount of $25 has been asked through the district secretaries for the traveling expenses and books for Miss Cessna, and has been paid to her in advance, as we were sure the loyal women of our Conference would gladly make the amount good. We only ask that, as soon as your auxiliary is apportioned its share of this small amount, it may be promptly attended to, and the money sent to Mrs. C. C. Fant at Holly Springs, marked for Miss Cessna's traveling expenses.

Let earnest prayer be made for this dear young woman, that our Father may lead her into places of highest usefulness, and may give her many precious souls for her hire.

MRS. G. H. LIPSCOMB.

When there is no gospel in the preaching, what good will it do to crowd the church?

The Christian Life.

THE BLESSINGS OF CHEERFULNESS.

What a difference it makes when one is habitually cheerful! Wherever such a person goes he carries gladness. He makes it easier for others to live. He puts encouragement into the heart of everyone he meets. When you ask after his health, he answers you in a happy, cheerful way, that quickens your own pulses. He does not burden you with a list of complaints. He does not consider it necessary, to tell you at breakfast how poorly he rested, how many hours he heard the clock strike during the night, or any of the details of his miserable condition this morning. He prefers only to speak of cheerful things, not retaining the brightness of the morning for you with the recital of his own discomforts.

The cheerful man carries with him a fragrance in his presence and personality—an influence that acts upon others as Summer warmth on the fields and forests. It wakes up and calls out the best that is in them. It makes them stronger, braver, and happier. Such a man makes a little spot of this world a lighter, brighter, warmer place for other people to live in. To meet him in the morning is to get inspiration which makes all the day's struggles and tasks easier. His hearty handshake puts a thrill of new vigor in your veins. After talking with him for a few minutes, you feel an exhilaration of spirits, a quickening of energy, a renewal of zest and interest in living, and are ready for any duty or service.

The blessing of one such cheerful life in a home is immeasurable. It touches all the household with its calming, quieting influence. It allays the storms of perturbed feeling that are sure to sweep down from the mountains of worldly care and conflict, even upon the sheltered waters of home.—J. R. Miller, D. D.

HOW TO EDUCATE.

Youth is the season ordered by nature for the training of mind and character. Then strong propensities, so easily converted into instruments of vice, may be regulated and counteracted by providing channels for their proper exercise, by giving high and pure objects for their co-operation. Thus the feelings and passions of youth and manhood can obtain their highest gratification and be contributory to the best moral culture. If a youth be imbued with a love of pursuits that employ the intellect, and is furnished with refined pleasures, he is more likely to become a good man, a useful, honorable citizen, than if subjected to the strictest moral discipline and kept in unsuspecting ignorance of the vice and wickedness of life. A proper knowledge of the nature of evil is the best armament against becoming subject to it.—The Outlook.

A brittle thing is our earthly happiness—brittle as some thin vase of Venetian glass; and yet neither anxiety, nor sorrow, nor the dart of death, which is mightier than the oak-cleaving thunderbolt, can shatter a thing even so brittle as the earthly happiness of our poor little homes, if we place that happiness under the care of God. But though neither anguish nor death can break it with all their violence, sin can break it at a touch; and selfishness can shatter it, just as there are acids which will shiver the Venetian glass. Sin and selfishness—God's balm does not heal in this world the ravages which they cansel—Canon Farrar.

If I do what I may in earnest, I need not mourn if I work no great work on the earth. To help the growth of a thought that struggles toward the light, to brush with gentle hand the earth-strain from the white of one snow drop—such be my ambition!—George Macdonald.

I hope we shall educate the people until a soul's inheritance as an immortal being, with the universe of God at his feet, shall count for more in the thought of his heart than all the gold and all the glory of the world.—J. H. Vincent.

Narrow-minded people who have not a thought beyond the little sphere of their own vision recall the Hindoo saying, "The snail sees nothing but its own shell, and thinks it the grandest in the universe."

A MINISTER'S STATEMENT

Rev. C. H. Smith of Plymouth, Conn., Gives the Experience of Himself and Little Girl in a Trying Season—What He Depends Upon.

The testimonials in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla come from a class of people whose words are worth considering. Many clergymen testify to the value of this medicine. Read this:

"By a severe attack of diphtheria I lost two of my children. I used Hood's Sarsaparilla as a tonic both for myself and little girl and found it most excellent as a means to restore the impoverished blood to its natural state and as a help to appetite and digestion. I depend upon it when I need a tonic and I find it at once efficacious." REV. C. H. SMITH, Congregational parsonage, Plymouth, Conn.

DIED IN THE FAITH.

Rev. Geo. Morrison, a local older belonging on the Caseyville circuit, died two weeks ago. He was a good man and full of years. I hope some one of his friends who has known him for many years will write for the ADVOCATE of his life. I would suggest Rov. A. B. Nicholson, who was a life-long friend, or Hon. J. S. Sexton, who know him intimately.

THE HOLY PASSION OF ENTHUSIASM.

The men and women who have been greatly used of God in the conflict with evil and in the extension of his kingdom have not always been the talented, the intellectual, the educated, the trained, the strong; but they have been souls aglow with Christian enthusiasm. Whatever else they may have had or had not had, they did have this one thing. The Christian worker who lacks this enthusiasm will have a hard time of it. He must fail of attaining the best possible results of service.

Enthusiasm is not a rare thing among men. It is manifested wherever men toil and strive and contend, in all departments of human ambition and effort. But the enthusiasm that is Christian is not so common. If we inquire for a definition of Christian enthusiasm, it is easy to find it in a thousand exemplifications in heroic lives of men and women in the service of God and humanity. Christian enthusiasm is a high and holy passion. It is divine life in motion. It is pure love on fire. It is faith inspired, it is hope triumphant, it is faith, hope, and love at concert pitch in the swell of a mighty harmony. It is knowledge driven by zeal. It is a soul at full stretch under high and holy inspiration.

Christian enthusiasm kindles, warms, and burns like flame. It flashes and strikes like lightning. It pours like great showers. It rushes like mighty rivers. It moves onward resistlessly. It pierces the darkness; bridges the rivers; climbs or tunnels the mountains; shatters the barricades of hell. It presses toward the mark and reaches it. —The Evangelical.

Finding fault with everything is the poorest business any man ever went into, for the simple reason that sensible people soon tire, and then sicken, listening to the ill-natured snarls of a chronic fault-finder. There is no kind of a man that will not commit suicide in the fault-finding business if he just keeps on at it. When he gets so far that people say, "Oh, he'll find fault anyway; what is the use in paying any attention to what he says!" the unfortunate man is about done. Prolonged unfavorable criticism, even when it is right in the main, injures a man; when it is wrong, it kills him! One thing is clear. Should the day ever come when sensible, reasonable people say instinctively, "Oh, he'll snarl, and find fault and oppose, no matter what you do," be sure your usefulness is about gone. Your first duty is to mend your ways, or look around for a quiet corner to die in!—Kuoxonian, in Canada Presbyterian.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. J. W. Tinnin, P. C.: "We closed our tent meeting at Pisgah, Whitestown circuit, Mississippi Conference, on Aug. 24. More than 60 professed to have been either converted, reclaimed or sanctified during the meeting. We were assisted the first three days by Rev. C. H. Ellis, of New Orleans, and the last seven days by Rev. J. L. Morrill, of Cartersville, Ga. We have received about 60 in the church up to date and have more than 100 professions. We have three more meetings to hold. Glory!"

Rev. H. P. Lewis, P. C., Carthage circuit, Aug. 26, 1898: "Am just home from Pine Grove, on Walnut Grove circuit, Forest district, where I helped Bro. L. J. Jones in a meeting. Bro. Jones is very much loved by his people. We had a wonderful meeting at Pine Grove; several conversions and accessions, and the church revived. On my work we have held some good revival meetings. The camp meeting at Carthage Camp Ground was a success; many bright conversions; a number of backsliders reclaimed. The preaching, done principally by Rev. J. L. Morrill, of Cartersville, Ga., was plain and pointed. At Singleton we had a wonderfully good meeting."

Rev. F. N. Sweeney, P. C., Pine Grove circuit, Louisiana Conference, Aug. 30, 1898: "We are moving along very nicely on the Pine Grove circuit. I have held three of my pretracted meetings. Revs. J. H. Montgomory, J. I. Hoffpauir, and J. M. Alford assisted me. These brethren rendered good and efficient service, and I feel under many obligations to them. I have been almost constantly engaged in protracted meetings for the last six weeks, and I have witnessed great manifestations of the Holy Spirit in the conviction and conversion of sinners. We are now engaged in the Bluff Creek Camp Meeting. Pray for us."

Rev. J. W. Raper, Montpelier, Miss., Aug. 24, 1898: "We have just closed a most powerful meeting at Prospect, on this work. We begun on the thirteenth of this month. Bro. Thames, our presiding elder, was with us Saturday and Sunday. On Sunday he preached the most powerful sermon that we have ever heard from him. The people were moved to tears. We went on from that service, and had fifteen additions to our church. Such power as we have not often seen was felt in this meeting. We had, some time ago, a very fine meeting at Friendship, another one of the appointments on this work. We were there nine days. We had nine additions there. We are indebted to Bros. E. S. Lewis, G. S. Sauders, and M. W. Ward for their faithful service at Friendship. God is with us. We expect to be in a new house at Sparta by Conference."

Rev. W. J. Porter, Eunice, La., Aug. 24, 1898: "Closed a good meeting in Prudhomme City on July 20, another at Church Point, Aug. 7, and the last at Long Point on Aug. 21. Bro. J. G. Sloane, of Crowley, assisted me in each meeting. Bro. Fannt LeRoy, of Opelousas, also assisted at Church Point. The Holy Ghost was manifest at each place in convicting, converting, and sanctifying power. In all, there were about thirty-five professions of regeneration and cleansing. Thirteen were added to the church; six of whom were parents, and three in the evening of life. Praise the Lord for sanctifying and keeping power."

Rev. W. T. Woodward, P. C., Simesport circuit, Louisiana Conference, Aug. 27, 1898: "We have just closed a most gracious revival at Marine Church. The preaching was done by preacher in charge, Bro. H. L. Hughes, preaching six sermons each. Bro. A. C. Flowers preached one sermon, and did faithful work both in singing and praying. We had several conversions, nine additions to the church, and baptized an adult. Our church is ready for use in Marksville. It is finished throughout; painted beautifully. We expect Bishop H. C. Morrison to dedicate it some time in October. Prior to his siege with Bro. B. F. White, of the Delhi district."

Rev. W. G. Roberts, Glenmorn, La., Aug. 24, 1898: "We have had some good meetings. We found the work in a bad condition, spiritually and financially, and some of the churches are very much like we found them. However, there is great improvement all over the work. I held a meeting at Hemphill, and had no help. Five joined the church. I held one meeting at Spring Creek. Bro. Geo. Jackson did the preaching. Visible results, Bro. Jackson did some good preaching, notwithstanding he is very feeble. He has not forgotten how to preach. We did not have many in attendance, as the weather was unfavorable. We had received four into the church before having any protracted meetings."

J. N. Ware, Damascus, Miss., Aug. 30, 1898: "Our beloved pastor, L. J. Jones, of Walnut Grove charge, closed one of the best meetings at Pine Grove Church, Aug. 25, that the writer has ever had the privilege of attending. The church was wonderfully revived; seven accessions and, I think, more to follow. Many testified to their conversion. Bro. Jones was assisted by Rev. H. P. Lewis, Sr., of Carthage circuit; also valuable services were rendered by Rev. Murdock McDonald and Rev. J. R. Hays, local preachers. We will never forget our much-loved old father in Israel, H. P. Lewis, who was so faithful in preaching the pure Word of God while in our midst, and the Word was honored of our Father in heaven. May he live long to bless the church with his labors!"

Rev. R. C. Grace, Plaquemine Brulee circuit, Aug. 24, 1898: "We have had a glorious revival in Rayne. The meeting closed last Thursday night. There were five accessions to the church, and about fifteen conversions and reclamations, and the church greatly strengthened and blessed. Rev. R. M. Blocker assisted me, and his preaching was with power in the Holy Ghost. Rev. W. B. Van Valkenburgh was with us at the commencement of the meeting and preached three sermons. Rev. M. C. Manly was with us very near all through the meeting, but was taken sick before we closed. He preached two sermons, and was happy all the time. Brethren, you will do well to get Bro. Blocker to help you in a meeting. I wish I had space to tell you all about his preaching and his faith. At different times after he had preached the sermon, and had plead with the unsaved to come to the altar, and there would be no more in the congregation, he would look over the church into the faces of the people and say, 'We must have a conversion to-night;' and they would come and be converted in a few minutes. Again, when there were conversions at the altar, he would say, 'We must have more conversions to-night.' Brethren and others would come, or some brother or sister would bring them, and they would be converted. All the glory to the Lord. Amen!"

CASEYVILLE CIRCUIT.

We held a protracted meeting at Bethel, beginning the fifth Sabbath in July; Rev. J. M. Morse assisted. The congregations were large and the attention good. There was a spiritual impulse given the church that will bring forth fruit in the future.

At Pleasant Valley I had Robt. Selby as the preacher. It was a good, spiritual meeting. Work was done that will abide. Selby is yet young, but he is one of our best preachers.

New Hope meeting was next, and B. H. Rawls came to help, and the work was well and satisfactorily done. The membership was stirred and twelve added to the church, and two children baptized, one of whom was named for the pastor, which was highly appreciated.

On Aug. 25 there was a meeting at St. Water to take legal steps in a variance between two of my principal members of ten years' standing, but it was settled between themselves with some assistance of friends. This itself will go far towards greater spirituality. This charge has been greatly divided from various causes, so we have lacked unity of spirit for years. Now we expect better times. We have two meetings yet to hold.

Cupid's Lasso.

It's the way of the world. Cupid discovers a man and a maid putting their heads together in a confidential way. The little frontiersman throws his lasso over them and there you are; two people are made more or less happy for life. If she is a bright, healthy, cheerful wife they will be more and more happy as the years go on. If she is weak and ailing and incapable there won't be much happiness for either of them.

A woman makes a grave mistake who enters upon the obligations and trials of married life handicapped by physical weakness or disease. It is her duty to be in the best possible condition to support the duties of wifehood and motherhood.

If every young woman who knows of or suspects any unhealthy condition in her physical make-up would seek competent professional advice she would save herself much future mortification and misery. Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y., gladly answers confidential correspondence from women free of charge and gives careful fatherly and professional advice, to suit the individual case.

He has, for thirty years been recognized as among the most eminent of living specialists in the treatment of diseases peculiar to women. His "Favorite Prescription" is the only proprietary remedy in the world designed by an authorized, educated physician specifically to cure female troubles. His great thousand-page illustrated book the "Common Sense Medical Adviser" will be sent free for 21 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only. For 31 stamps a heavier cloth covered copy will be sent.

Barbara A. Mudd, of Indiancreek, Monroe Co., Mo., writes: "I am very thankful for what Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription did for me. I was all broken down from nervous prostration, but since taking your medicine I have had more relief than from all the doctors. Your 'Favorite Prescription' did me a world of good."

All the possible charities of life onght to be cnltivated, and when we can neither be brethren nor friends, let ns be kind neighbors and pleasant acqnaintances.—Edmund Burke.

Death to a good man is bnt passing through a dark entry, out of one little dusky room of his Father's house into another that is fair and large, lightsome and glorious and divinely entertaining.—Adam Clark.

Theology is but a science of mind applied to God. As schools change, theology mnst necessarily change. Truth is everlasting, bnt our ideas of trnth are not. Theology is but our ideas of trnth classified and arranged.—H. W. Beecher.

If in the plan of hnman life godliness be made the center, from this spring will flow on one side a stream of self-cnltivation, and on the other a current of helpfnl deeds which will fill the measnre of one's dnty to his fellows.—Selected.

However far apart two people may be, if they will move toward a common center, they will find that as they come nearer to the center, they will be nearer to each other. So the nearer we come to Christ, the nearer we will be to each other.—Selected.

All natural results are spontaneous. The diamond sparkles without effort, and the flowers open impulsively beneath the Summer rain. And trne religion is a spontaneous thing—as natnral as it is to weep, to love, or to rejoice.—Rev. E. H. Chapin.

Blessed is the man who has the gift of making friends, for it is one of God's best gifts. It involves many things, bnt above all is the power of going out of oneself and seeing and appreciating whatever is noble and loving in another man.—Thomas Hughes.

ECCLESIASTICAL NULLIFICATION.

The pnblished purpose of a few exalted Methodists to defy the law passed at the recent General Conference defining the anthority of a pastor in his pastorate, and the throat of a few others to "appeal to Cæsar" if any pastor dares to interrnpt their movements, and of others to secede from the church, recall a chapter of early history.

The General Conference of 1850, after full discussion, declined to expnngo from the Discipline the celebrated "Ninth Section." The South Carolina Conference was vigorously opposed to retaining that statute, believing it to be the source of mnch tronble, and at its session succeeding the General Conference resolved nnanimously that an edition of the Book of Discipline, amended by having the Ninth Section expnnged, should be pnblished for circnlation within its bonnds. The edition was printed, a fac-simile of the authorized edition, minus the rnle on slavery, and received the editorial endorsement of the Southern Christian Advocate. That a large and influential Annual Conference could have been induced to adopt a measure so menacing to the integrity of the church shows how nnreliable the jndgments of men become when influenced by passion.

The announcement of that Discipline for circulation in South Carolina—"terms the same as the anthorized edition"—called forth a wise, statesman-like deliverance from Holland N. McTyeire, then in the first year of his editorship of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. In the ADVOCATE, of May 24, 1851, he says:

"An Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has formally discarded the 'connectional edition' of the Discipline, and published another to snit itself—and this in open defiance of the General Conference. What are we coming to? And is it so that our much-boasted connectional bond is bnt a rope of sand?

"The qnestion was fairly discussed; the South Carolina Conference was fully and ably represented in that discussion, and the General Conference refused, for reasons, to expunge the Ninth Section. After snch decision, from which there is no appeal, our adherence to the Discipline, as it is, resolves itself into attachment, not to the section itself, bnt to Connectional Methodism. May any Annual Conference, after failing to carry a point through its representatives on the floor of the General Conference, take the matter into its own hands, and do what the General Conference onght to have done? Then, this going np qnadrennially to General Conference, and carrying grave questions for discussion and decision there, is all a farce; it is only for the amnsement of the delegates—traveling a little and speaking a little. If the General Conference will only do what it onght to do, all is well; bnt, if not, any Annual Conference will do it. The Georgia Conference will expurgate and amend the Articles and Constitntion of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and make it what, in its jndgment, it onght to be. The Alabama Conference will have another edition differing from the others, it matters not at what point; and all the rest are at liberty to follow suit. . . . It matters not whether in a small matter or a great one the change was made, the principle is the same. The action is a direct and bold anbversion of Connectional Methodism."

So it was in that day of sectional and political excitement. Snch history could not now be repeated. The value of Connectional Methodism as an evangelistic agency has been too abnndantly vindicated, and its principles are too dear to her people, for an entire Annual Conference to nullify one of its statntes. Bnt individuals here and there, from various motives, have announced their determination to defy a law adopted by the General Conference—the only legislative authority in the church. In so doing they resist not one piece of legislation alone; they assail the integrity of Connectional Methodism. If one law can be set aside with impunity, why not another? And, then, why have any law at all?

THE CZAR'S PLEA FOR PEACE.

The following letter from Judge S. S. Calhoon, one of the leading lawyers of Mississippi, and the reply of Bishop Galloway, will be read with intense interest. The sentiments here expressed can not fail to awaken a sympathetic response in every Christian heart.

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 30, 1898.

Right Rev. Charles B. Galloway, City—

MY DEAR BISHOP: No donbt yon concur with me in the opinion that the peace papers of the Czar Nicholas is the most striking historical fact of the whole Christian era. From no other potentate could it have come with the same significance and power of influence as from the chief of a semi-enlightened nation backed by snch enormous force. Manifestly, Providence inspired it.

However, I write not to bore you with any views of my own, but to say I think now is the time for the great heads of churches, by tongue and pen, to emphasize and spread the influence of the Czar's utterances, and to snggest the large value of a pnblication by yon of snch a paper as yon are so admirably snited to prepare on this theme.

Yonr friend, S. S. CALHOON.

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 31, 1898.

Hon. S. S. Calhoon—

MY DEAR FRIEND: Many thanks for your much appreciated note of yesterday afternoon. I can not express the gennine satisfaction it gave. My own soul has been profonndly stirred by that most remarkable and timely deliverance of the Russian Emperor, and I was longing for the intelligent sympathy of some kindred spirit. I qnite agree with you that this plea for peace by the ruler of the most powerfnl nation on earth marks an epoch in the world's history which will become an era. It has come with the snddenness of a revelation and the force of an inspiration. The diplomats of nations have been startled, while court and cabinet have felt the tremor of a political convnlsion. Astnte statesmen—skilled only in the game of diplomatic intrigne, and utterly innocent of the spirit out of which snch a prayer is born—are shaking their heads ominously while trying to divine the secret of this sndden conversion. But while the sports of the world's politics are in skeptical amazement, the plain people of the nations will accept the straightforward statement as the expression of the benevolent honesty and transparent sincerity.

Whatever hidden motives may be attributed to the great monarch by the snspicious and envious, the noble sentiments expressed, and the lofty pnrpose avowed, mnst command the warm approval of all Christian nations and peoples. The world has taken a long step forward because of this manly and timely utterance. It may be called utopian, and may occasion smile or sneer according to the temperament of the critic, bnt no nation will ever again reckon without this high deliverance.

By this one act the young Emperor of Russia has placed himself at the head of modern, progressive statesmanship. He has set aside the stern traditions of his own royal house, and expresses sincere desire to reverse the war policy of ornel centuries. He has thus brought not a new element into the world's politics, bnt has placed the old principles under conditions and sanctions that must hereafter tell immensely and benefi cently upon the destiny of nations.

I agree most entirely with the comment of one great European statesman, that "whoever believes in the creative power of ideas propounded with conviction and clearness must rejoice that the note brings a new and benevolent course into the world's life, and groups anew the participants in that life." It means a new alignment on higher plans—an international readjnstment on diviner principles. In a word, it contemplates the incarnation and enthronement of the teachings of the Man of Gallilee in the life and intercourse of nations. And in it is involved the grand triumph of the principle of arbitration in all international controversies—a principle which is only another name for Christianity in political statesmanship.

An "armed peace" is a real declaration of readiness for war. It is a travesty on national trust, an impeachment of personal and national honor. It not only exhausts industrial resources, disrupts the home-life of a people, and diverts the energies of thousands from productive pnrsuits, but it destroys international confidence, cheapens respect for national treaties and alliances, and assails the sacred principles that bind communities and peoples together.

Disarmament, of course, as has been suggested, involves the necessity and duty of removing the causes for heavy and increasing armaments; international politics mnst, therefore, be revised and made to harmonize with new principles.

Not to respond heartily to this royal appeal—this imperial prayer for peace—would reflect upon the teachings of our churches and impeach the vital principles upon which our boasted civilization has been providentially built. I feel authorized to say for the more than 5,000,000 adherents of the great communion to which I belong, that we will respond to the Emperor's earnest prayer with a loud and long "Amen!"

I have thonght it beautifully significant that this royal plea for peace should signalize the closing days of the nineteenth century; that its evening sun should go down in benediction upon a planet praying that wars may cease in all the earth. Of necessity hopes can not be realized at once. The currents of centuries can not be changed in a day. Other storm clouds will appear, and other wars and rumors of wars will be heard. Yet, a better day is coming. I have no dream of an early millennium, bnt the Russian Emperor has sounded a note that will make melody through the generations. Slowly, but surely, the prayer for peace will be converted in the world's hymn of praise for the restored brotherhood of man. Then will open wide the gates of that glorious morning which Alfred Tennyson saw in a vision, when

"The war-drums shall throb no longer, and the battle-flags be furled,
In the parliament of man, the freedom of the world."

Very truly your friend,
CHAS. B. GALLOWAY.

AT SLIDELL.

By invitation of the pastor, Rev. J. J. Kelley, we lectured on Tuesday night, the thirtieth, at Slidell, La. The lecture was given in the Pythian Hall, which was well filled with an audience that gave respectful attention to what we had to say. The proceeds of the lecture will be used in the erection of a parsonage, which Bro. Kelley hopes to erect in the near future. Slidell is a prosperous town of more than a thousand inhabitants. Its principal industries are brick making and the manufacture of lumber. Our church there is weak, numerically and financially, bnt is on the up grade. Bro. Kelley seems to have won the hearts of his flock and of the community in general. Any Methodist who wishes to put money into the Lord's treasury in a place where it is needed, and where it will bring in large returns, can do so by aiding this church in building a comfortable parsonage.

To Bro. and Sister Kelley we are indebted for genial companionship and cordial hospitality during our stay.

FROM DR. CAMERON.

The Rev. J. B. Harris, of the North Mississippi Conference, died at his home in Kelley, Miss., this morning, at fifteen minutes after 3 o'clock. He was sixty four years old, and had been in the ministry about forty years. The Rev. B. P. Jacobs has been down with slow fever three or four weeks. His wife is also sick.

J. D. CAMERON.

Holly Springs, Miss., Sept. 3, 1898.

[The brethren of the North Mississippi Conference will read the above with painful interest. Bro. Harris was a most excellent man—highly esteemed by all who knew him. His old parishioners in various sections of the Conference will mourn his loss as that of a personal friend. Many prayers will go up for the recovery of Bro. and Sister Jacobs.]

TO THE SHREVEPORT DISTRICT.

DEAR BRETHREN: The physical condition of my wife and daughter Pauline render it necessary for me to get them out of this climate, and I leave here with them for San Antonio, Texas, at once, and will remain with them until Oct. 1, when I will return and begin my last round on the Shreveport district. Please pray for us. Fraternally,

J. L. P. SHEPPARD.

[We sincerely hope and pray that a change of climate will result in the speedy recuperation of Sister Sheppard and her bright, accomplished daughter.—EDITOR.]

A YOUTHFUL QUEEN.

On Monday, the fifth, at Amsterdam, Wilhelmina was crowned Queen of Holland in the presence of more than 200,000 people, she having just reached the age of eighteen, at which she is legally eligible to rulership. Since her father's death, some eight years since, her mother has exercised the prerogatives of sovereignty in her behalf. During all that period this young scion of royalty has been in training for her high position. Her mother, though not, perhaps, what the world would call a very talented woman, nevertheless possesses a vast amount of good common sense. Hence, she has left no stone unturned to fit her daughter for rulership. Ample educational facilities have been afforded her, but book knowledge has been only a small part of her equipment. She has been trained to habits of industry and economy. She has not been taught to look upon the world from palace walls alone, but has been brought into contact with life in its multifarious phases. She has been taught to sympathize deeply with the toiling masses in their struggles with poverty and hardship, and to manifest her sympathy in various forms of efficient helpfulness. This seems to have been in perfect accord with the tendencies of her nature. Hence, she is most ardently beloved by her subjects. She has also been brought up "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." While not specially brilliant, she nevertheless possesses in abundance those traits of character which are essential to wise rulership.

Queen Wilhelmina is to-day the idol of her nation, and we do not doubt that she will continue to hold the affections of her subjects as with hooks of steel. Had royalty always been of her type and had her training, many a blood-stained chapter in mundane annals would never have been written.

THE FACTS IN THE CASE.

Denunciation of railroads as great cormorants, devouring the substance of the people, has been in recent years a part of the stock-in-trade of a certain class of political demagogues, who have asserted, without offering a scintilla of evidence to support the assertion, that there has been no reduction in railroads rates at all comparable with the reduction in prices of other commodities. This charge will no longer be made among intelligent people. The Agricultural Department of the United States Government has recently published a statistical exhibit showing the freight rates of the railroads of the country for the past thirty years, from which it is learned that during that period there has been a decline in rates of fifty-eight per cent.

The Denver Conference was held at St. Paul's Church, Denver, beginning August 18. Bishop W. A. Candler was the president, and it was his first Conference. In the chair, he was a model presiding officer—just, fair and courteous to all. In the cabinet, he was kind, brotherly, wise and firm. In the pulpit, he was a great preacher of a strong Christly gospel. The prophecy of this Conference is that Bro. Candler will be one of our greatest Bishops. Dr. J. H. Pritchett, the new Secretary of the Board of Missions, was with us. This was his first Conference. He is a workman that needeth not to be ashamed of his work. He will awaken the conscience and stir the heart of the church on this great theme.

We were blessed with the presence and counsel of the new Secretary of Church Extension, Dr. H. P. Whisner. This was also his first Conference. He is evidently the right man in the right place. The verdict is that he is well qualified for his important work.—Rev. J. H. Ledbetter, in St. Louis Advocate.

The Mid-Continent has the following: "The announcement is often made when a minister enters the pastorate in a new field, that he begins his labors 'under the most encouraging circumstances.' Of course he does. 'A new broom sweeps clean.' The new minister is praised and feted; his congregations are large, and everybody is in a good humor. What a pity that such condition of things can not last! But after a while the novelty wears off just like the nap on the minister's broadcloth coat, and then a scene not so encouraging is presented. The minister is perhaps as good a preacher as he was at first, and just as faithful in his pastoral ministrations, but a change has come over the spirits of some of the people and they think a change desirable. Some of the people who are most cordial in their treatment of a minister at the beginning of his labors are the most distant after the lapse of a few months or years. This picture does not describe the situation in every church. Let us be thankful that it does not. But that it is descriptive of many congregations is manifest from the many changes which are made after a ministry of very brief duration in each."

He who is doing all for God he can do will soon be able to do more than he does now.—Selected.

NOTES.

Dr. Sawyer dispensed the Word last Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church.

Rev. C. H. Ellis has emigrated from the low grounds of the Crescent City to the very Summit of Mississippi.

We regret to have missed a call recently from Rev. F. N. Parker, who made a brief visit to the city to "see the folks at home."

Miss Minnie Cowan, of Oxford, will resume her duties as teacher of Latin in the North Texas Female College, Sherman, Texas, Sept. 6.

Rev. S. S. Keener is at present making headquarters on the gulf coast, but this does not prevent his meeting all his engagements as presiding elder of the New Orleans district.

Our offer to send the ADVOCATE until the first of February for fifty cents is one which every pastor ought to make known to his flock. Take notice that we offer a premium for subscriptions sent under this offer.

Rev. M. L. Burton, manager of the Methodist Orphans' Home at Water Valley, has started a small monthly paper in the interest of the institution. It is called "Our Home." The September issue is filled with interesting matter pertaining to the institution.

From a private letter from Rev. J. W. Honnoll, presiding elder of the Corinth district, we quote as follows: "Our preachers on the district are doing good work. We have had good revivals in the church, but not many conversions. The collections will be better, I think, than ever before."

The Harmon-Knickerbocker meeting at Ellisville was a success, resulting in twenty accessions, a number of conversions, and a general quickening of spiritual life. There were also many accessions to other churches. Congregations were so large that the church had to be exhausted for the court-house.

The W. C. T. U. of this city has established headquarters in a spacious and well-arranged building at 305 St. Charles street. The hall where meetings will be held is on the second floor. The first floor will be occupied by the W. C. T. U. restaurant, which has been successfully operated here for many years. This is a good place for visitors to the city to find something to refresh the inner man.

Rev. J. A. Randolph, of the North Mississippi Conference, now stationed at Macon, has been appointed chaplain of the Third Mississippi Regiment, now in camp at Jackson, Miss. This regiment, it is supposed, will be continued in the service for a year or more. While men of the type of Randolph are needed in the pastorate, they are also needed in the chaplaincy. To an earnest, consecrated, tactful minister, who is adapted to the work, an army chaplaincy offers immense possibilities for usefulness. More especially is this the case when the field of service is to be a country like Cuba, Porto Rico, or Luzon, where Christianity in its purity is unknown.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

The seventh session of Millsaps College will begin Wednesday, Sept. 14. Let all new students take notice that the entrance examinations will begin Tuesday, the thirteenth. Interesting exercises will be conducted in connection with the opening of the session, and it is important that all students should be present.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Booneville, Miss., EDITOR.

The Sunday-school Year-Book of the Mississippi Annual Conference is just from the press. It is a neat booklet edited by Rev. Henry G. Hawkins, of Meridian. It is brimful of information concerning Sunday-school work. The League and the Sunday-school are twin sisters.

We thank Dr. DuBose for complimentary notice in Era, of Aug. 18, concerning this scribe and this department. We are also under obligations to our good friend, Dr. Black, for publicly announcing in ADVOCATE, of Aug. 25, his opinion as to our ability to hustle.

All we have is upon the altar—time and talents—dedicated to God and humanity. Particularly are we interested in the young men and women of to-day, upon whom the Church and State depends for great things in the coming days. Wonderful are these nineteenth-century opportunities! May God help us to take advantage of them!

Rev. C. D. Atkinson, the Vanderbilt missionary campaigner, who has done such good work among the Leagues in Louisiana, is now in Mississippi. Below we give dates and places he will (D. V.) visit during next two weeks: Brandon, Sept. 9; Durant, 11; Winona, 12; Carrollton, 13; Greenwood, 14; Grenada, 15; Water Valley, 16; Oxford, 17; Holly Springs, 18.

In another place in these columns will be found a communication from Miss Vic Thompson, of Tupelo, anent the amount pledged by the Mississippi Leaguers at Meridian. We ask the Leaguers to read, mark, learn, and inwardly digest, and then act in the living present.

In a private letter from Mrs. T. S. Sligh, the accomplished wife of the president of Mansfield Female College, she expresses her deep interest in the Epworth League work. Many of our colleges now have flourishing Epworth Leagues. This is as it ought to be.

Recently, during a protracted meeting in a distant community, we were called upon to bury a young lady who had died without God and without hope. She had signified (some weeks before) her intention of attending the services, becoming religious, and joining the church, but she put it off too late. Jesus offers salvation to sinners; but let us remember that he offers salvation to-day.

ATTENTION! MISSISSIPPI LEAGUERS.

The twelve hundred dollars pledged by the Leagues of our State for the support of Dr. and Mrs. Fearn in China, and the Water Valley Orphans' Home, is coming in slowly. Not yet $200 of it has been paid. This money is needed, and I urge that all League presidents throughout the State give this matter immediate attention; also that the district secretaries push the matter in their immediate districts as much as possible. In order to rouse people to action in regard to anything, the matter must be kept before them continually. This pledge must be redeemed. It will never do for the Leaguers of a State which has given to Southern Methodism both of our Epworth League secretaries, to fall behind in this work. Shares were taken at the Meridian Conference to the amount of $600. So, Epworth Leaguers, arouse yourselves, and redeem these shares at once. I also avail myself of this opportunity to request that the name of the presidents and the membership of all new Leagues be sent to me immediately upon the organization of same, as it is very necessary that I have a correct State League directory. Yours, "All for Christ,"

MISS VIC THOMPSON,
Cor. Sec. and Treas.

Tupelo, Miss.

LESSON X.

SUBJECT—THE WINNING OF PERSIA; OR, THE MIRACLE OF PERSONALITY.

The heroine of this chapter is one of the noblest figures in all church history. Note the statement accorded of her character on page 150. The story of her self-devotion, her indomitable courage, and her implicit faith, is well calculated to arouse every young woman to the question, "What may I do for my Master?" This is pre-eminently a woman's age, and the gospel is not lacking in its invitations to them to thrust forth the sickle and garner in the ripened grain.

1. Study the character of Miss Fiske from the natural and supernatural sides, and emphasize the power of this character in the accomplishment of the arduous labors to which she was called.

2. Study the character of the people to whom she went, and show how gradually her influence began to tell, and how permanent was the effect.

3. Pay special attention to the points on pages 157-161, illustrating the fact that she was divinely sustained and guided in her work.

Monthly meeting of Union Epworth League on Tuesday eve, Sept. 13, at Rayne Memorial Church, at 7:30.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

The third Sunday in August, and two days following, this scribe spent at Wesley Chapel, Poplar Creek circuit. On Sunday we had an enjoyable Children's Day service. Although there had been no Sunday-school in that church of more than 100 members for a long time, the canonical programme was well rendered, a creditable collection taken, and arrangements perfected for a permanent Sunday-school hencoforth. The pastor, Rev. J. J. Garner, was sick and unable to be present during the meeting. I learn that he is getting well now.

On Tuesday evening, Aug. 23, I journeyed by buggy and train to McAnerny, Carrollton circuit, where Bro. Sanders, aided by Bro. Crowe, was engaged in a good meeting, which closed on Thursday night with three accessions to the church. Bro. Sanders reports well of his protracted meetings, which have resulted in about thirty-five additions to the church on profession of faith.

Friday evening, Aug. 26, I went to Water Valley; thence out four miles to attend the camp meeting held on the camp ground established in 1877. A goodly number of tenters were present, and the congregations were large and orderly. The meeting was in charge of Presiding Elder Morehead, and Pastors Bowen, Gibbs, and Leech. The first-named, however, was unable to be present until the last day. Other preachers were also present, and rendered valuable service, as follows: Revs. J. W. Malone, E. H. Rook, B. P. Patterson, and H. D. Estes. Bro. A. J. Jones was also with us, but in great feebleness of body. The preaching was evangelical, the singing hearty, and all the services spiritual. "The Young People's Hymnal" was used to the delight of everybody.

On Tuesday evening, just as we were ready for the night service, notification came that there were four suspected cases of yellow fever eight miles distant; so it was deemed best to close the meeting immediately. There was evidently much good accomplished, and there would have been far greater results could the meeting have continued two days longer, as was contemplated.

Rev. J. F. Evans has been unable to preach for some time past. He is suffering with rheumatism, and has lost the sight of one eye. His numerous brethren and friends deeply sympathize with him, and pray for his speedy restoration to health.

Rev. J. A. Bowen and others recently held a meeting at Blount's Wells, ten miles east of Coffeeville, in a region destitute of Methodist preaching. A church was organized with eighteen members, a Sunday-school started, and a church building enterprised.

We have good news from many brethren of successful meetings, the details of which they will surely furnish to our "Conference organ."

Brethren, let us hear from you often. Tell to the world what the Lord is doing in your part of the vineyard.

EAST MISSISSIPPI FEMALE COLLEGE.

President Beeson, of East Mississippi Female College, tells us his buildings will be full to overflowing; that he is puzzled to arrange for room for all who want to come. He has had time to do but little travelling, the college having grown so much in favor that he has been compelled to give most of his time to his mail, having two stenographers and other clerical help employed. He has applicants from nearly every Southern State. The fine talent he employs is bound to attract patronage. People like to send where they can get the most for their money. We extend our best wishes to this growing institution. Next session opens Sept. 21.

WASHINGTON COLLEGE.

In this issue of the paper will be found the announcement of the Washington College, Washington, D. C. This is probably the leading school for young ladies at the National Capital and the only one there claiming a distinctly college grade.

The grounds of the college front the Capital and Library and are commanding and beautiful.

It is doubtful if there is a city in the world that offers so much, educationally and socially, as our beautiful Capital City. A year at this school must be of incalculable benefit to any young lady who attends.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To the Members of the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences:

For forty years I have been a pastor in the Mississippi Conference, having entered the work in November, 1857. The Lord has blessed me in this service, but I am growing old, and still have several children whose education is not complete. Our Conference is well supplied with younger men, and still they come. Under the circumstances, I have consented to take charge of one of the boarding houses at Millsaps College (Williams Hall). We can accommodate twenty five, or more, boarders. We propose to give them the best of care, and make the house a "home" to them in the best sense of the word. We have long tried to maintain a Christian home of the purest type in which to rear our own children, and we will spare no pains to keep the standard high for the benefit of the young gentlemen who may be intrusted to our care. At present, address me at Carthage, Miss.

Niagara Vapor Baths

We have, during the last ten years, supplied thousands of our Baths to physicians, hospitals, sanitariums, etc., and we are now, for the first time, advertising them direct to the general public.

IN BUYING A VAPOR BATH Get one with a steel frame that stands on the floor. If a manufacturer does not show you a cut of the frame without the covering, you may take it for granted that his "Stool Frame" is a wire hoop that rests on the shoulders of the bather.

Get one that is covered with proper material. Insist on seeing a sample of material before ordering. We make our own covering material and print it with a handsome "all over" pattern of Niagara Falls.

Get one with a thermometer attachment. Don't go it blind—a bath that is too hot or not hot enough will be of no benefit to you.

Get one that you can return and have your money back if not satisfactory in every way.

Send for sample of material and interesting booklet that will tell you all about Vapor Baths.

Vapor Baths are an acknowledged household necessity. Turkish, Hot Air, Vapor, Sulphur or Medicated Baths at Home, &c. Purifies system, produces cleanliness, health, strength. Prevents disease, obesity. Cures Colds, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, LaGrippe, Malaria, Eczema, Catarrh, Female Ills, Blood, Skin, Nerve and Kidney Troubles. Beautifies Complexion.

Price of Niagara Baths, $5.

A MOTHER'S GOOD-BY.

Sit down by the side of your mother, my boy;
You have only a moment, I know;
But you will stay till I give you my parting advice—
It is all that I have to bestow.
You leave us to seek for employment, my boy;
By the world you have yet to be tried;
But in all the temptations and struggles you meet,
May your heart in the Savior confide.

You will find in your satchel a Bible, my boy;
It is the book of all others the best;
It will teach you to live, it will help you to die,
And lead to the gates of the blest.
I gave you to God in your cradle, my boy,
I have taught you the best that I know,
And as long as his mercies permit me to live
I will never cease praying for you.

Your father is coming to wish you good-by;
Oh, how sad and how long we will be!
But when far from the scenes of your childhood and youth
You will remember your father and me.
I want you to heed every word I have said;
For it comes from a heart filled with love;
And, my boy, if we never behold you on earth,
Will you promise to meet us above?
Hold fast to the right, hold fast to the right,
Wherever your footsteps may roam;
Oh, forsake not the way of salvation, my boy,
That you learned from your mother at home!

—Our Visitor.

FROM $1.50 A DAY TO $75,000 A YEAR.

Conrad H. Mathiessen, of Chicago, receives, as president of the Glucose Trust, seventy-five thousand dollars a year, the highest salary paid to anyone in the United States. The Glucose Trust has a capital of forty millions, and controls ninety per cent. of the glucose product of the country. Mr. Mathiessen is thirty-three years old.

"I began at the bottom," said Mr. Mathiessen to a World reporter. "My father was president of the old Chicago Sugar Refining Company, and when I came West, he put me in as a workman at $1.50 a day. Many a morning I've gone over to the plant on Taylor street, with my dinner-bucket in my hand, and worked ten hours a day at hard labor. I was gradually promoted, and, in 1890, the management of the company was given me. Business had not been good.

"By fighting on my own lines, I succeeded, in a short time, in paying forty per cent. a year in dividends. The capital stock was only $1,250,000, but we paid forty per cent. on this every year.

"We had such a good thing that we were in a position to make strong demands before we entered this combination. These demands were accepted, and I took a leading part in the formation of the present company. The organization was completed a year ago, and the presidency was tendered me."

"How would you advise a young man to succeed as you have done?"

"The only way I know for a young man to make a success is to work hard. I work because I like it. There is so much diversity about this business, it never gets monotonous. My success here is largely due to system. The business is divided into departments, and they run like clockwork. I could not retire from business if I wanted to. I could not be happy unless I had something to do."

Mr. Matthiessen is easily approached, greets all visitors pleasantly, listens attentively, and answers briefly and tersely. He will not allow men to take up his time unnecessarily, but jumps to the point in the fewest possible words. He frequently carries bundles of papers home, which he works over until midnight.

His time is so entirely occupied that he has not developed any decided inclination for amusements. He says he finds all the relaxation he wants in his business. He is not a club-man, and he is not a fashion-plate. He will talk with a visitor and carry on business at the same time, without losing sight of the object of the visit or the business in hand.

SELECTING A CAREER.

"Next to the matter of selecting a wife—which in the majority of cases is little more than a leap in the dark—the most important problem which a young man has to confront is that of deciding upon his trade, business or profession," writes Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst, D.D., in Ladies' Home Journal. "Almost any young man's decision as to what he is going to do will mean the narrowing of his preparation, whereas all success that is fairly worthy of the name means breadth of preparation. A man needs to get a great mass of foundation under him if he is going to put either a high or a wide structure on the top of it; and if he knows too soon exactly what it is he is going to do, that mass of foundation will not be forthcoming. In all cases where it is possible it is a great deal better for a man to get the knowledge first, and then let him decide what the vocation shall be, than to decide the vocation first, and let that determine what sort of knowledge he shall accumulate.

"If a man is in earnest to do the best that is in him, it will be much to his advantage to get over the feeling that there is any hurry about actually settling down to his life-work. It is a great deal wiser to drift, and to do almost anything that offers, as a temporary arrangement, than to make up one's mind finally and irretrievably to an employment that may possibly be a misfit, and that will involve, therefore, a certain amount of failure. We can safely depend upon it that in the case of a man who has a strenuous purpose there is a certain gravitating tendency between him and the work he is best fitted to do, and if that gravitating tendency is not hurried too much, it will assert itself, and the man, without any excessively painful searchings of heart, will find himself where he belongs. Along this line the only safe decisions are the decisions that shape themselves, and that we settle into without being very distinctly conscious at any time that a conclusion is being reached."

"I WANT A DOLLAR."

A miser lay dying who had been a professed follower of Jesus all his life, but whose supreme purpose had been to get rich. My father was the attending physician. The old man lay upon the bed, his white locks, whitened by the frosts of over eighty Winters, pushed back from a noble brow, his hands bleached by sickness, clasped over his breast and above the coverlid, the firm lips slightly parted, the eyelids closed, as slowly, but surely he was breathing his last.

Weeping loved ones had gathered round to catch the last words, if such there should be, or obtain once more some faint recognition. My father knelt by the bedside, and taking one of his hands in his, asked him if he should pray. A slight pressure was the only response. The prayer was offered, and then father sang a hymn which had been the old man's favorite.

As he closed the song the eyes of the dying man opened, the friends pressed closely to the bedside, his lips moved, and father, bending over him, asked him if there was anything he wanted. He spoke one short sentence; then his chin dropped, the eyes opened wider, the breath stopped, and he was dead. What was that last sentence? It was this: "I want a dollar." Strange consolation for loved ones. Yet that sentence was the very incarnation of the supreme object of his life. It is not possible to press within a smaller compass the very pith of the mercenary spirit. A wonderful sentence for a dying man face to face with eternity. What an epitaph for a tombstone?—The Gospel in all Lands.

The single glass of wine or beer per day, which sufficed at the beginning, will soon be enlarged or repeated. It was enough to start the blood into a gallop yesterday, but falls short to-day, and will not begin to do to-morrow.—Horace Greeley.

GENTLENESS.

Gentleness is love in society. It is love holding intercourse with those around it. It is that cordiality of aspect and that soul of speech which assures that kind and earnest hearts may still be met with here below. It is that quiet influence which, like the scented flame of an alabaster lamp, fills many a home with light and warmth and fragrance altogether. It is the carpet, soft and deep, which, while it diffuses a look of ample comfort, deadens many a creaking sound. It is the curtain which, from many a beloved form, wards off at once the Summer's glow and the Winter's wind. It is the pillow on which sickness lays its head and forgets half its misery, and to which death comes in a balmier dream. It is considerateness. It is tenderness of feeling. It is warmth of affection. It is promptitude of sympathy. It is love in all its depths and all its delicacy. It is everything included in that matchless grace, the gentleness of Christ.—The Parish Visitor.

BOY CHARACTER.

It is the greatest delusion in the world for a boy to get the idea that his life is of no consequence, and that the character of it will not be noticed. A manly, truthful boy will shine like a star in any community. A boy may possess as much of noble character as a man. He may so speak and live the truth that there shall be no discount on his word. And there are such noble, Christian boys, and wider and deeper than they are apt to think is their influence. They are the king-boys among their fellows, having an immense influence for good, and loved and respected because of the simple fact of living the truth. Dear boys, do be truthful. Keep your word as absolutely sacred. Keep your appointments at the house of God. Be known for your fidelity to the interests of the church and Sunday-school. Be true in every friendship. Help others to be and do good.—Child's Paper.

THE SWEETNESS OF LAUGHTER.

A woman has no natural gift more bewitching than a sweet laugh, remarks a writer in the Home Queen. It is like the sound of flutes on the water. It leaps from her in a clear, sparkling rill, and the heart that hears it feels as if it bathed in the cool, exhilarating spring. Have you ever pursued an unseen fugitive through trees, led on by a fairy laugh, now here, now lost, now found? We have, and we have pursued that wandering voice to this day. Sometimes it comes to us in the midst of care, or sorrow, or irksome business, and then we turn away and listen and hear it ringing in the room like a silver bell. How much we owe to that sweet laugh!

A gentleman once went to Sir Eardly Wilmot, Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas, under the influence of great wrath and indignation at a real injury he had received from a person high in the political world. After relating the particulars, he asked Sir Eardly if he did not think it would be manly to resent it? "Yes," said the knight, "it will be manly to resent it; but it will be God-like to forgive it." The gentleman declared that this had such an instantaneous effect upon him, that he came away quite an altered man, and in a very different temper from that in which he went.—Churchman.

The question of how far family prayer is observed in Christian households is being given consideration in religious papers. Another, closely connected with it, that it might be well to inquire concerning, is this: How far does the reading of religious literature occupy the Sabbath hours in Christian households? There was a time when secular papers, magazines and books were carefully collected on Saturday evening, and laid away. But we fear that in many households it is not so now, but that even children are permitted to read the monthly magazines and the literature and fiction of the day.—Journal.

NOT A GOOD USE OF THE BIBLE.

When we see men spending all their time and all their energies on analytical criticism of the Bible, we recall the story of the little girl who, when writing her geography lesson on the Arctic Ocean, said, among other things: "The Arctic Ocean is used principally for purposes of exploration." The Bible with some people is principally used for the purpose of criticism.—Watchman.

Hygiene.

A SOUND BODY.

A great deal of the want of harmony in the world, the impatience, the quick flashing anger, the hardness, the harshness, comes from lack of physical health.

Balance gives power, and power gives serenity. The well man is happy in spite of himself. He does not mind a pin-prick or a nettle-sting. If stirred for a moment to resentment, he easily settles to his wonted calm. He lives outside himself in a range of natural pleasures, and brings to his companions the breeziness, the freshness of nature.

The music of life was never evoked from a tortured nerve. Dull, damp, raw, spiritual weather has no more attraction than a day of this description. Just as a sparkling fire on the hearth sets hearts dancing in accord with the dancing flames, so the brightness of the eye, the cheeriness of the smile, the jollity of the laugh of a healthy man brings buoyancy and blitheness to all about him.

We are rested out of doors because there we find the tonic, the cheer, the sanity of health.

Is it not, then, everyone's duty to strive for right physical conditions? The body is the soul's house. Ah, what a poor, ill-cared-for home do we in many cases furnish for the celestial tenant! The inner man looks out through grimy windows upon a distorted landscape. To his vision, his world, his fortunes, his friends, are unnatural.

The serene man, the loving man, the believing man, is very apt to be a man in good health. His "good disposition" has either preserved his health or produced it. The soul that turns constantly to the source of life for supplies brings to the body full tides of vitality that heal, nourish, inspire. It is well for the body when we remember that in God "we live and move and have our being."—Mary F. Butts, in Golden Rule.

BOUNDS—On the twenty-seventh of April, 1898, died in the triumph of the gospel of grace, Mrs. JANE BOUNDS, in her seventy-seventh year. Her illness was long, but at last she sweetly passed away to be at rest.

Sister Bounds was one of those good women at home whose life was consecrated to the comfort and happiness of her family and the many relatives and friends who shared her generous hospitality. More than thirty years ago she lost one of the best of husbands, after which the care of a large family was committed to her, some of whom have preceded her to the better land, while those left to mourn her loss, one, the Rev. Ben H. Bounds, is an honored member of the North Texas Conference; others are members of the church, and those who are not, high-minded men. In her long illness she was kindly cared for at the home of her devoted son, A. J. Bounds, whose good wife never grew tired in her labor of love to the suffering one.

Her happy conversion, and the circumstances attending it, are thus related by her son, Rev. Ben H. Bounds, who was present:

"In the year 1873 I was on the Kosanta circuit, North Mississippi Conference. The second Sunday, I think, in September I announced to my congregation that I expected to be at a camp meeting the next Sunday with my mother, who was out of the ark of safety, and requested all who would agree to pray for her salvation next Sunday to please stand up, and, to my great delight, almost the entire audience rose.

"The next Sunday I was on the camp ground with mother, located some five miles west of Pittsboro. The previous service, Friday night and Saturday, had passed off rather dull, and so with the Sunday services, consisting of morning prayers at the stand, preaching at 8 A. M., at 11 A. M.; at 3 P. M. grove meeting, and at night we had the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, followed by an exhortation, a short altar service, and we closed and went to our tents. The camp lights were all out but a few, and I think there were sixteen preachers in the preachers' tent, and all had lain down but Bro. Amos Kendall, when some one commenced to shout at a tent near by, and soon the well-known voice of Rev. Jas. M. Hampton was heard leading one of those grand songs as no one else could but him. Soon there was quite a gathering about that little shouting band, and, as the interest rose, some one proposed to have a midnight sermon, to which all readily agreed. Bro. Kendall, who was presiding elder of the Granada district at that time, soon had the horn sounded at the stand, which brought out all the campers, and Bro. Hampton led his band of singers and shouters to the stand, where, as soon as the song closed, he mounted a bench and proceeded to call for penitents, which flocked around him so that he could not get down; but, standing there, he called on Bro. Peacock, a local preacher from near Granada, to pray, and while he was praying there were twelve bright, happy conversions, and soon after the prayer the others were converted, and it was very apparent that another call must be made, or we would have to quit. So, urged by the presiding elder, I took my stand in the altar and proceeded to give another exhortation, and call for more penitents, and after some forty or fifty had crowded into the altar, my mother came in and gave me her hand, weeping, and said, 'I can't stand it any longer.' I led her out in the altar to where her father (Andrew Hailey) was sitting in a chair, who had hobbled out there to be in the thick of the fight, and I told her to 'kneel there at her father's knee, who had prayed for her a thousand times, and would pray for her again,' and, kneeling there, she gave her heart to the Lord just before midnight on that Sunday night, I think, in answer to my people's prayer, and from that happy night to the day of her death I felt that I had a mother to pray for me." R. M. DAVIS.

KILPATRICK—GEORGE KELSAY KILPATRICK was a sprightly boy of two years and eight months. He was the son of James and Jimmy Kilpatrick. He was born in Marshall county, Miss., near Red Banks, and died the seventh of August, 1898. He was the idol of father and mother. Their hearts were set upon him, and they anticipated much pleasure in him in their coming life; but how soon can our plans and prospects be thwarted!

God hath taken little George to himself, and hath, in doing this, given the father and mother an urgent call to steer the boat of life toward that heaven where Jesus said: "I will come again and receive you unto myself, that where I am ye shall be also."

Father, what a call! George lives on heaven's high and holy hills, and do you not hear his sweet voice saying, "Father, steer the boat this way"? He lives far from a world of grief and pain; he is happy for evermore. You can [illegible]

A FRIEND.

Mt. Pleasant, Miss.

CASE—SADIE CASE was born and reared in Marshall county, Miss.; was poor and little known to but few people. Homeless and but few friends, but Jesus loved her, and I have been informed that she was one of the few that were converted at the Rosaville Camp Meeting last year. She and her mother stopped in at Bro. John Woody's about the first of August, and she, being weak and sick, was not able to get away from there, being afflicted with typhoid fever. The kind women of this place (Mt. Pleasant) gave her every attention that they could, and Dr. Scruggs did a faithful part in administering to her wants; but, despite of all that could be done, death did its work on the twenty-first day of her sickness. She was fifteen years old the fourth day of July, 1898. After the solemnities of the burial services were performed by Rev. Joseph Johnson, her body was laid to rest in the cemetery of this place to await the resurrection of the good. May the peace of God abide with the bereaved and lonely mother!

A FRIEND.

HARRIS—A cloud of sorrow gathered over the home of Bro. Sam and Sister Fannie Harris on the fourteenth of August, 1898. The angel of death visited their home and took their lovely daughter, IRBY LINWOOD, who was born May 30, 1886. The Sabbath before she attended the camp meeting at Bailey's Camp Ground in apparent good health.

Irby had a lovable disposition, and was loved by all that knew her. She said to her mother while in health that she felt that she ought to join the church; that she loved the Savior, and was trying to do his will. She lived just long enough to gather the affection of her associates. The good Lord knows what is best. He has taken her home, and has given her parents and her sisters and brothers another cord to draw them heavenward.

Weep not, fond parents; the Judge of all the earth will do right. Heaven will be the home of all the good. JOSEPH JOHNSON.

CHRISTY—WILLIE ARCHIBALD CHRISTY, son of A. H. and R. M. Christy, was born in Wall Hill, Marshall county, Miss., July 3, 1881; professed religion and joined the Southern Methodist Church in 1891, and died Aug. 3, 1898.

Bro. Willie was always a good boy. With him life was an earnest reality. His conversion was genuine, and his Christian life consistent and faithful. With him Christianity was a grand reality, and deserved the greatest respect and the best service. Bro. Willie had the confidence and appreciation of all who knew him. Near the last he said: "If it is the Lord's will for me to go, I am ready. I am his child, and where he leads me, I will follow."

He is greatly missed in the home, the Sunday-school, and the church; but just over the river he is waiting and watching for loved ones whom we trust will all meet him when this weary life is over. J. H. SMITH.

COOPER—Died at his home near Bergamot, Ala., Aug. 12, 1898, Bro. JESSE COOPER, aged seventy-two years ten months and ten days. He was married Sept. 25, 1855, at the same time uniting with the M. E. Church, South. A faithful soldier of the cross has fallen asleep in Jesus. To him were given twelve children, six of whom, with his companion, survive him.

Look up beyond the trials here
Unto the home of Christ so dear,
And see the father, husband, friend,
With Christ in sweet communion blend.

"He is not dead, but sleepeth," and may we all, loved ones and friends, live so that we may be permitted to meet our sainted brother with all the redeemed host when the death angel shall call us hence!

SHIPPEY—We, the committee appointed by Rev. H. C. Morehead, P. E., by order of the Quarterly Conference of Paris circuit, third quarter, 1898, held at Liberty, Aug. 6, submit the following:

Whereas, It has pleased God, in his providence, to remove from the militant church and time to the triumphant church in eternity Rev. W. L. SHIPPEY, who was clear in mind and strong of heart, pure in life and abundant in labors in the Master's vineyard, loving all, and by all loved who knew him; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we bow with submission to the will of God, who does all things well, and we extend to his bereaved parents and brothers and sisters our sympathy, and commend them to the love of that God who never makes a mistake.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished the bereaved family, and a copy be spread on the Quarterly Conference journal, and one each be furnished the church organs, Methodist Headlight and NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, for publication.

DEAFNESS CAN NOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result; and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Forty-five deaths from sunstroke occurred in one day in New York City recently.

The American Bible Society has sent 3500 Spanish New Testaments to Santiago de Cuba.

Baltimore is about to send a pioneer commercial expedition to Cuban and Porto Rican ports.

A steamboat, which was employed in taking up torpedoes near Fort St. Philip, below New Orleans, was wrecked by a torpedo last Saturday. Six lives were lost.

General Miles' plans to have the 4600 volunteers now on their way with him to New York from Porto Rico march up Broadway and pass before him in review, has been upset in Washington.

While 350 officers and men have been killed in battle or died of wounds received in our late war with Spain, there have died of disease in camps between 1200 and 2000 volunteers and regulars.

This year's election will be the first to be held in the greater City of New York, which has the largest constituency in the world in respect to the vote cast in it for any candidates. London, with its larger electoral population, votes for its nominees in districts instead of at large, as in New York.

The mustering out of troops is being carried on pretty actively. It is entirely possible that there may still be serious trouble with Spain over the terms of peace, unless the defeated nation can be allowed to have her way in settling the details. In the event of such trouble the war would have to be continued.

President Benjamin Andrews, of the Chicago schools, is going to introduce Spanish into the schools there. He holds the belief that business as well as culture now demands a knowledge of Spanish on the part of the people of the continent of the United States if they wish to deal successfully with the islands.

The last cotton crop, just figured up, breaks all records at 11,199,994 bales. The next largest cotton crop was that of 1894-95, when 9,901,251 bales were made. More than one-fourth of this year's great cotton yield must be credited to Texas. Kansas and Utah produce a little cotton, the former being credited with 364 bales, and the latter with 75.

The Peace Commission appointed by President McKinley is as follows: William R. Day, Secretary of State; Edward Douglass White, Associate Justice of United States Supreme Court; Cushman K. Davis, United States Senator from Minnesota; William P. Frye, United States Senator from Maine; Whitelaw Reid, formerly United States Minister to France.

Miss Annie Wheeler, daughter of General Wheeler, who has been nursing the sick at Santiago, and is now in the United States, has become especially endeared to the men for her adaptability under all circumstances. On the voyage from Santiago to Montauk, Miss Wheeler several times acted as chaplain in reading the prayers for the dead as the bodies were consigned to the watery grave.

General Wheeler, commanding the camp at Montauk Point, Long Island, has issued an address to the people of the United States, giving the situation at that camp and the conditions which exist there. He says that while there has been more or less mismanagement in the care of the soldiers, sick and well, the Montauk Camp is in excellent condition, the defects and mistakes having been corrected.

On Friday, Sept. 2, the army of Sir Herbert Kitchener, composed of British white troops, Egyptians and Soudanese Arabs, to the number of about 30,000, met the 80,000 men of the Mahdi, near Omdurman, on the Upper Nile, a grand rallying point for the wild tribes in that part of Africa. The Mahdists made the attack, and were routed. It is estimated that 10,000 of the Mahdists were slain. The total casualties of the English were about 500. Kitchener's great victory, after a march of more than a thousand miles into a desert under the equator, is one of the most magnificent achievements of modern times.

IT IS JUST AS IMPORTANT

That you enrich and purify your blood in the Fall as in the Spring. At this time, owing to decaying vegetation, a low water level, and other causes, there are disease germs all about us, and a weak and debilitated system quickly yields to attacks of malaria, fevers, etc. By purifying and enriching your blood with Hood's Sarsaparilla you may build up your system to resist these dangers, as well as coughs, colds, pneumonia and the grip, which come with colder weather. To be on the safe side, take Hood's Sarsaparilla now, and always be sure it is Hood's, and not something else represented to be "just as good."

McCLURE'S MAGAZINE FOR SEPTEMBER.

In McClure's Magazine, for September, Mr. George E. Graham describes the destruction of Admiral Cervera's fleet, as he himself had the good fortune to see the work done from Commodore Schley's flagship, the "Brooklyn"; and Mr. W. A. M. Goode describes it as he, too, saw it, from Admiral Sampson's flagship, the "New York." Together the two papers give a complete and most vivid account of what was undoubtedly the most picturesque event of all the war; and being illustrated with portraits of all the commanders, pictures of all the ships, and views of all the wrecks, largely from photographs taken by the authors they leave nothing to be desired.

An exposition, by Mr. George B. Waldron, of "The Commercial Promise of Cuba, Porto Rico, and the Philippines," presents the possibilities of our recent conquests in most eloquent figures.

Other features of the number are a fully illustrated article giving some marvelous facts regarding the action of volcanoes, by Cleveland Moffett, and an account of "How the News of the War is Reported," by Ray Stannard Baker.

PAINT TALKS—VIII.

WHY A COMBINATION OF ZINC AND LEAD IS "NON-POISONOUS."

All the salts of lead, including white lead, are extremely poisonous compounds, and nothing can be added to them which will make them non-poisonous if taken into the system. Therefore the lead in a combination paint is of itself as poisonous as the lead in a keg of "strictly pure carbonate." But in the combination paint, the lead is first of all, diluted. Suppose the mixture to be half lead and half zinc white: this reduces by one-half the quantity of poisonous material in a given bulk of the dry paint. Furthermore, such a combination will require about fifty per cent. more oil than the pure lead would need to make it ready for use, thus reducing still further the quantity of the poisonous material in a given bulk of the paint.

The foregoing considerations are of special interest to the painter, he being the only one whose health is jeopardized in the application of the paint. But the most important consideration is the behavior of the paint after it has been applied. It is well known that pure lead paint quickly crumbles and falls into powder—"chalks off," in painters' parlance. This lead dust or powder is poisonous, and especially so to women and children. It may not produce severe lead poisoning, but it does injure the health. Now zinc white does not crumble from the painted surface, and when combined with lead it prevents the latter from crumbling. Hence with a combination paint made of zinc and lead there is no "chalking off," and consequently no possibility of lead poisoning.

A lead combination paint containing zinc is, therefore, perfectly safe to use as far as the health of those living in its presence is concerned, and relatively safe as regards the health of the painters who apply it.

Some French authorities claim that pure zinc white is superior to white lead on every account, and one prominent Parisian firm of contracting painters use no white lead in any of their work; but, taking conditions as they are and experience as it runs, this is rather an extreme view. Painters are familiar with the use of lead, it is very opaque, and when properly combined with zinc to hold it in place, and to whiten it, makes generally a satisfactory paint. But alone it is not a good paint and is anything but economical. Compared with the best combination paints it costs more per pound, requires fully fifty per cent. more of it to cover satisfactorily an equal surface, and needs renewal in a much shorter time. On every consideration the combination paints have the advantage. STANTON DUDLEY.

FORGETTING.

BY REV. C. OWEN LARRISON.

How often the cares of yesterday,
The past with its ghost of pain,
Rise up to our burdened souls to-day,
And we bear them all again!

Yet, why should we worry and grieve in mind?
The past can return no more.
We [illegible] better forgetting the things behind
And reaching to those before.

It matters not what "might have been;"
The great are the things to be;
And the highest aim is to now begin
To live for eternity.

Then, leaving the changeless past for aye,
Forgetting its trials and tears,
Step out in the newer, brighter day,
And live in the coming years.

Correspondence.

A VIEW OF VENICE.

MR. EDITOR: Since writing my last I seem to have bidden farewell forever to Mother Earth. Have been on the water for a week, and now find myself still in its grasp. When I left Athens, instead of making my return trip overland by way of the railway which skirts the coast of the Gulf of Corinth, I took ship at the famous port of Piræus, and coasted around the southern extremity of the peninsula. Needless to say, this was one prolonged holiday excursion. "The south wind blew softly" all the while; the Mediterranean was at her best. Smooth, placid waters, skies of beautiful blue, golden suns, and soft, balmy breezes—these, together with charming company on shipboard, made up one of the most delightful trips of my whole series so far. For full six days we enjoyed the exquisite effects of that strange intermingling of the lights and shades of heaven and earth so characteristic of this fascinating sea.

Nor was the Adriatic a whit behind the "Great Sea" in the glory of her cloud and sky panoramas. I confess I had some few misgivings as we entered upon it. The memory of Horace's "Stormy Adriatic"—so vividly impressed by the master's rod in my early attempts at Latin—was so fresh as to arouse my fears lest old Neptune might take dire vengeance on one so great a land-lubber as I for presuming to trespass on his fair domain. But, happily, these fears were never realized. The calm beauty of this justly famous water, the gentle caresses she gave our good ship, the soft, silken breezes with which she fanned us to peaceful slumber, will never be forgotten.

At Trieste my stay was not long; just had time enough to be "pulled" (in two senses) by the boatman who transferred me and my ever-faithful companion in travel—my grip—to the ship that was to bear me to this place. She had the good old name of "Thetis," and I was glad to entrust myself to this daughter of the sea. Her easy motion, and the lullaby made by her powerful engines, soon put me to sleep, and when the morning came I found the vessel anchored, but, wonderful to tell, no land was near on which to rest my longing eye; nothing but vast areas of palaces and churches, towers and massive mansions in stone and marble emerging like a thing of magic from the fountains of the deep. And this was Venice, set like a jewel in the sea, her gilded domes and flashing minarets reflecting such a lustre as to obtain for her the enviable title, "Queen of the Adriatic." This meed of praise I readily accord, and add: the gem of all the land as well. Milan has her grand cathedral, Florence her veritable acres of exquisite art, Rome her Forum and Saint Peter's, Naples her Vesuvius and Pompeii, the glory and interest of which are offset, however, by the city affording, as it does, the most concentrated combination of dirt, disease, and deviltry I've yet seen; but Venice is unique. She stands alone in the variety of her beauty and the unending charm of the interest she excites. Imagine a modern metropolis without any of the appliances of modern life. No wagons, no fire engines, no street cars, no dust, no noise—no anything that we are accustomed to attribute the title of civilization to. There's not even a horse here; am told that there are thousands of people in the city who never saw one, save the bronze ones that adorn the entrance to St. Mark's; so that, unless they get it in the guise of beefsteak, these people are very unsophisticated in the matter of horseflesh. But there is one animal that thrives here—the pigeon. What the bald eagle is to America, this the pigeon is to Venice—only more so. St. Mark's Square is a perfect paradise for pigeons. Pigeons, pigeons everywhere; but, look out! don't touch one of the dear birdies, save with the stroke of affection, for, if you injure a feather, down swoops a policeman and ings you off to jail. One can spend hours watching these flocks coming and going, cooing and bathing in their special fountain. 'Tis interesting to see visitors and children feeding them corn, which is peddled out by regular venders. So gentle are they that they feed without fear from the hands, and some I've seen so brave as not to wait for the corn to be bought, but, with an air of supreme importance, light at once on the peddler's basket and devour the golden grain with a zest that would put all artificial appetizers to the blush. If we follow the pigeons, they will lead us straight to St. Mark's Church. What St. Peter's is to Rome, and St. Paul's to London, this St. Mark's is to Venice—the climax of art and architecture on their religious side. The view from the head of the great square—which itself is flanked on either side by pillared aisles of imposing appearance—is grand in the extreme. Indeed, so gorgeous is this church, with its array of gold and blue, as to appear on first sight gaudy. But this false impression soon passes, and one is absolutely lost in contemplation as the five magnificent arches, with their mosaics, which form the great facade, begin to tell their story. As one stands there entranced, the great drama of the crucifixion begins to unfold. The deposition from the cross, the victory over death, the resurrection, and, finally, the ascension, find new emphasis as they are narrated no longer in letters, but in these great mosaics from the masters. The inside is even more impressive. Here you stand amid the monuments of the prowess of Venice on land and sea. That little column there in the left corner near the great altar has been snatched from the great mosque of St. Sophia at Constantinople, along with the four bronze horses and columns that adorn the main arch of the entrance. All about you are the indications of an antiquated past wholly a revelation to Young America. The massive pillars, made of huge slabs of porphyry and marble; the five great domes, glistening with gold; the floor, sunken with the weight of centuries—all these, coupled with the tomb-like stillness of the place, cause a weird feeling to pass over one unaccustomed to anything older than the up-to-date-ness of Caroudelet or Moreau. But I shan't burden your patience further than to say that the second evangelist—the "straightway" man, as we Greek students call him—assumes larger interest when viewed through the adoring eyes of these Venetians. Henceforth I have a most majestic commentary on his character as well as newer light on his interpretation of the Man of Galilee. He and his lions are indelibly impressed upon me. Venice without them is like Hamlet with Hamlet left out. In themselves they constitute a sermon of lasting power, both indicating by every turn of feature and expression of countenance massive force held in due bounds by the restraining influence of a heaven-directed judgment; but more impressive than Mark and his lion are the words inscribed on the tablet he holds—words of his Lord speaking in tones of endearment to him, and through him to all that should come after, "Peace to thee, Mark, my messenger of good tidings."

But there is an exhaustive (and exhausting) work of over six hundred pages descriptive of St. Mark's; so I may be pardoned for feeling as I've often felt before: that the text is too big to handle, and for availing myself of that rendering made for the benefit of preachers "in the brush:" "When you are persecuted in one verse, flee to the next for protection." That "next" with me is the far-famed Doge's Palace, just around the corner from St. Mark's. Here I would fain take refuge for a while, and, as I sit and lounge, describe its gilded halls and gloomy prisons, its gorgeous saloons and Bridge of Sighs; but the number on this page warns me that I have already exceeded my limit.

CENTENARY OPENING.

MR. EDITOR: The opening at Centenary was an occasion which attracted to the Auditorium quite a select and appreciative audience on Sept. 7. President Cooper was on deck with much just pride, as there assembled more boys than at any time since the war, eighty-two being enrolled on the first day. The auditorium, whose artistic dome has acted as a cavern which has swallowed eloquence without limit in its capacious maw for years gone by, having been lately beautifully ceiled, is transformed in its acoustic properties so that all eloquence will hereafter reach those for whom it is wrought out—the audience. The speaker is now easily heard all over the large auditorium. The campus has been greatly beautified by trimming up all the trees, removing all the undergrowth, and building a new fence all round the large grounds of the college; the erection of two new cottages—one for the president, called the Gay Cottage, in memory of Sister E. J. Gay, who made quite a large and generous gift to the college, just before her death; another cottage to be occupied by Prof. W. H. Carter. The dormitories are thoroughly renovated and occupied by boys; all the rooms taken up to date. There have been purchases made for the chemical department, and it is hoped to have the grounds and buildings lighted by our own electric plant by the next commencement day. The immediate community have expended quite a neat sum in grading and graveling a nice sidewalk all the way round the college property up to Millwood Institute.

Everything is moving off right foot foremost under the very able and energetic management of President Cooper. Unless all promises fail, there will be one hundred students at Centenary within the next ten days (they are promised), and by the next term we hope to have one hundred and twenty. The quarantine may delay some of these students a few weeks, but some are on the way who will be on hand at opening of next week. All the professors start off with much enthusiasm. Centenary is on the up-grade, and doing work second to none, whether they be renowned far and near by the blare of trumpets, or not. The work turned out from our college is the peer of any, and excelled by none. There was never a time when the denominational college was more needed in our State than now; never a time when the Methodists ought to exhort on this line more so than now, not that our college is merely a machine for sectarianism, but because it is turning out true and noble specimens of Christian manhood. Every Methodist family ought to stand by their own institution of learning, and have their boys educated by an institution that has the right and province to develop them, soul, mind, and body, religiously and spiritually as well as mentally.

We congratulate the Methodists of Louisiana on the auspicious opening of their college, and hope they will rally to its support, as it is the only chance for a religious education of a vast majority of our boys who can not leave the State to seek an education abroad. We, too, raise the cry like our sister State. Let Louisiana Methodists educate their own boys in Louisiana. Why call on Mississippi to do this work, or any other State? Let us have State pride enough to care for our own children, neither educating them at public expense or at the colleges of neighboring States, thus admitting our own neglect and indifference. Centenary will give as thorough and economical an education as any college. Let us all stand by our own institutions.

The exercises were opened by Dr. Byers leading in prayer, a letter of congratulation from Bishop Keener to Dr. Cooper was read, then an address by the writer, and a practical and very appropriate one from Bro. F. N. Parker, of Baton Rouge. Dr. C. W. Carter is to preach the opening sermon on next Sabbath in the auditorium. Everyone went home greatly rejoiced over this "real commencement occasion" that gave promise of enlarged usefulness for our Centenary College.

"For her our prayer shall rise
To God, above the skies."

S. S. KEENER.

N. B.—Later note that ninety were enrolled by Sept. 12.

A WORD ABOUT THE WAR CLAIM.

In response to many inquiries, and in order to remove some possible misapprehension, I feel constrained to make a brief statement about the Publishing House war claim.

1. The Bishops of the church, at their own instance, and with perfect unanimity, have proposed, on stated conditions, to take proper steps to have tendered back to the United States Government the money appropriated in payment of that claim. While reaffirming its righteousness—believing it a debt of honor that should have been paid years ago—we could not consent, so far as our responsibility extends, for the church to retain the money, if either House of Congress affirmed it was appropriated on the misleading statements of our representatives. We felt as much assured then, as now, that in making this formal tender, we represented not ourselves alone, but the overwhelming sentiment of the entire church.

2. That action of the Bishops has been formally and officially communicated to the Vice-President of the United States, with the respectful request that he lay it before the Senate and "invite prompt action thereon."

3. The further "steps" promised, in response to that solicited action on the part of the Senate, the Bishops are voluntarily and sacredly pledged to take. To the absolute fulfillment of that promise the church has felt no occasion for additional assurance.

4. Whatever may be necessary to preserve the stainless honor of the church will assuredly and promptly be done. But every step must be taken legally and constitutionally. Precipitate action would almost certainly produce complications that would delay final and honorable adjustment.

5. Personally, I can not commend the wisdom of an immediate session of the General Conference on this matter. Still, it may become necessary; if so, I am sure the call will be promptly issued.

6. Apart from lamented personalities that may have been indulged in earnest discussion, the widespread sensitiveness to any criticism upon the stainless name of our church is occasion for great gratification. Such godly jealousy will preserve her perpetual purity. There has never been the slightest possibility of the church's failure to do absolutely right in this whole matter. The question of money is nothing when a vital moral principle is involved.

BY THE GOVERNOR OF THE MISSISSIPPI TERRITORY.

A PROCLAMATION.

For the preservation of peace and good order, all persons within this Territory are hereby prohibited from giving, or vending to any Indian, or Indians, at or within three miles of the town of Natchez, or of any other settlement of white people in the ordinary jurisdiction of the Government, any whisky, rum, brandy, or other ardent spirits, upon penalty of being punished with the utmost vigor.

This prohibition to continue in full force and effect to the first day of November, next.

Given under my hand and seal, at Concord House, near Natchez, and Territory aforesaid, on the tenth day of October, 1798, and of the Independence of the United States of America, the twenty-third.

(Signed) WINTHROP SARGENT.

MR. EDITOR: In examining, a few days ago, the manuscript journal of Governor Winthrop Sargent, the first governor of the Mississippi Territory, my eye chanced to fall upon the above most interesting document. It was the first feeble effort put forth to restrain a great evil in this young country—an evil which grows with the years, and which demands the sleepless vigilance of all Christian patriots to arrest its shameless tide of ruin. We are far removed from that day of small things in matters of legislation, but there is occasion for renewed organization and determination if we are to preserve the fruits of moral reform. I call upon every friend of temperance in Mississippi to prepare for another assault upon an intrenched and unscrupulous foe.

A TRIP TO MONTEAGLE.

During a recent trip from Birmingham to Chattanooga, on the A. G. S, I was more than ever impressed with the quiet sublimity and rare beauty of the scenery which greeted our eyes. Our roadbed lies at and near the base of Lookout Mountain for more than seventy miles.

We can not pause long in bustling Chattanooga, with its noisy rock-paved streets, its needless distance between depots, its numerous decorations, indicative of a past and present war.

Nor can I enlarge on a hasty visit to Chickamauga Park, with its fifty thousand troops in camp and on drill, its stirring bugle calls and drums' deeper roll.

At Cowan we change cars for the mountain line. This meanders up Sewanee's rugged sides, affording us a wide, sweeping view of vales and mountains, with Tullahoma and Nashville on the blue horizon—one of the loveliest scenes the eye can rest upon, like a glimpse of "the bright world far away." Passing University of the South and its village, we soon reach the village of Monteagle, where we find three or four hundred people nicely homed, hotel, church, etc. By paying a small gate fee, we enter the "assembly grounds." Here the sight of a small city in a forest greets the eye. Very few of the primeval monarchs of the wood have been taken away, yet the cottages are as near together as in most towns. They have no need of gardens here, for the mountaineers and lowlanders supply all such luxuries at moderate rates. Very few of the denizens remain here for the Winter. It is emphatically a "Summer resort"—the "Southern Chautauqua." Those who build, and most who visit this place, combine the pursuit of knowledge with health and pleasure. This gives a choice collection of people from many States. Mississippi is well represented.

The last few years have marked great improvement in the hotel and other accommodations. With little labor a perfect system of drainage and sanitation has been achieved. If people there are not healthy, it is not for lack of pure air and water, good food, and ample means of recreation. Prominent in the latter line are the lectures (two daily) on various scientific, historical, literary and humorous subjects; frequent concerts by Fisher's Centennial Band; magic lantern exhibitions of naval battles, cities, harbors, etc.; playing tennis, ten pins; swimming matches in the "pool;" going on excursions to points of historical interest, like "Bragg Point," "Cooley's Rift," "Bridal Veil Falls," "Alpine View," "Sunset Rock," "Coal Mine," etc.

Twilight prayers, usually attended by four or five hundred people each evening, with stirring song and rapid talk on religious subjects; Sunday-school, Christian Endeavor, sacred concerts and sermons on the Sabbath, give a sweetly hallowing influence to the whole program.

Did space permit, I'd like to tell of some of the most notable of these things enjoyed during a stay of eight days. But I must cease for the present.

Further improvements are in hand for next year. With such a wisely liberal man at its head as Maj. R. W. Millsaps, of Jackson, it is not hard to foresee continued and increasing prosperity in every department of this great association's good work. The rates of travel and of board are very cheap.

GREAT BRITAIN SAID NO.

There does not seem to be any reason to doubt that France planned to have Europe interfere in Spain's behalf. It would have been a dexterous stroke of policy had she succeeded in uniting all the powers against the United States, for it would have diverted their attention from disquieting matters at home, and would have been an assertion of European supremacy. With her adroitness in diplomacy, joined with exceptional good fortune, she succeeded in gaining the assent of Italy, Austria, Russia, and even Germany. She looked upon Great Britain as the nation most easily won to her side, because of the menacing attitude assumed by President Cleveland, and because of the disputes which so often arise between the two nations speaking the same language. But to her intense chagrin, and to the utter defeat of all her plans, Great Britain not only refused to join such a movement, but declared that if any further steps were taken in that direction, she would join forces with the United States and declare war against all interference from any quarter of the globe. It is needless to say that nothing more was done.—Zion's Herald.

BARON HIRSCH'S GREAT GIFT.

Baron Hirsch gave to the poor Russian Jews and their fellow-Hebrews in Poland, Hungary and Austria $10,000,000, and shortly afterward as much more to other charities. His benefactions are yet without a parallel in history. And this famous financier and railroad king, besides giving $10,000,000 to Christian schools and hospitals in Europe, gave $40,000,000 to build commercial schools in the waste lands of the continent for the Jews. His widow and daughter are following his example.—Exchange.

WHO IS GREAT?

We call him great who stands unmoved—
Calm as some beaten rock—
When some great trouble hurls its shock;
We say of him, his strength is proved;
But when the spent storm folds its wings,
How bears he then life's little things?

We call him great who does some deed
That echo bears from shore to shore;
Does that, and then does nothing more;
Yet would his work earn richer meed,
When brought before the King of kings,
Were he but great in little things.

FROM DARKNESS INTO LIGHT!

BY MISS ADAH SAUNDERS.

On a cold January morning, a timid, light haired little girl, ten years of age, was brought from her rural home in Itswamba county to the Mississippi School for the Deaf, in Jackson.

There was nothing to mark the identity of this little girl—save a tag, on which was written her name and the address of the institution.

Her mind was in total darkness—even to the knowledge of her own name—and she was too timid to try to make herself understood by the natnral gestionlations she had nsed at her home. She was put in the primary department, under Mr. Saunders' instruction.

She was soon assured that her teacher was her friend, and by his tender, fatherly attentions he interested her in the bright-colored pictures, charts, toys, blocks, etc, that furnished his class-room. In a few days she was willing to have him take her little hand and form the letters of the alphabet, also the sign-words for many of the objects around her. After constantly associating the sign-word with the object, she was taught to select the object from the sign-word, and vice versa.

When she had learned the names of some of the objects, she was taught verbs expressing simple actions. It was shown to her that "a girl runs," "a boy runs," hnt that a table or a chair could not run; and that a bird flies, but that she could not fly.

Instruction in writing began almost from the start, and from the labored efforts at tracing over her teacher's writing, she learned to form the letters and write words and short sentences.

She was then taught to count with bright colored buttons and crayons, and when two or three fingers were held np she could select a corresponding nnmber of objects without hesitation. As light gradually entered into the little darkened mind, her whole face seemed to be illumined with the happiness of intelligence.

Along with this daily routine of class-room work was the regular assembling in the chapel, every morning, for religious instrnction. At first, all the part she could take in these exercises was to fold her hands and bow her head at the close of prayer.

She soon was able to delight in the pictures of the infant Christ; recognize the boy, Jesus, and feel deep sorrow for the Savior on the cross.

Promptly at the opening of her second session, she returned with much gladness, an evidence that the little knowledge she had gained gave her a thirst for more, and a willingness to trust those who had guided and guarded her for one year.

With each recurring year she advanced in both manual and oral departments. Her life in the domestic department was a particularly useful one. From making doll's clothes and sewing gay patch-work, she learned to keep her wardrobe in order, and finally to design and make her own clothes. She was of great assistance in the general sewing for the institution, and became so efficient in the household duties that she was appointed to assist the matron and received a small salary for her services, which services were not allowed to conflict with her literary advancement.

No step in this girl's school life was more gratifying than that of her spiritual development. From the simple Sunday-school lesson that was repeatedly tanght her that "God is good," "God is wise," "God is love"—she gradually acquired the ability to study intelligently the more difficult lessons; and to apply the truths of the Bible to her own life, until she realized her duty and became a member of the Baptist Church.

At last her school days were ended. It proved, however, that all her institution friends were not willing to give her up, for one young man, who had been a pupil, and is now a prosperous farmer in one of the northern counties of Mississippi, wrote and asked her to come back to this State and preside over his home. To this she agreed. Nothing was more natural than that the marriage ceremony should be solemnized at her alma mater, surrounded by those who had trained her for life's duties. The pride which all connected with the institution felt in the State's ward was manifested by the deep interest taken in preparing for this wedding.

The ceremony was performed by the pastor of the Baptist Church, and interpreted by the superintendent of the institution.

This ends the school career of one girl who was educated at the Mississippi School for the Deaf.

What was done for her has been, and is being, done for all who avail themselves of the opportunities and advantages offered to those who are in need of this kind of instruction. I hope this true story, of one pupil, may induce any who have deaf children to send them where they may be fitted for good and useful lives in this world, and for eternal life.

BOARD OF MISSIONS M. E. CHURCH, SOUTH.

FIFTY-SECOND ANNUAL REPORT, MAY, 1898.

This pamphlet of 244 pages (including the covers) is of more than usual interest, and ought to be in the hand of every intelligent preacher and layman in our church. Besides the usual statistical and financial tables, which are of no little value to the student of mission work and mission fields, there are new features which greatly enhance the worth of the book. The half-tone portrait of Dr. I. G. John, who magnified the office of Missionary Secretary, who loved the cause, and whose mind was stored with accurate information from every mission field in the world, is a tasteful memorial to a good and useful man who fell on sleep a few years ago. And so of the portrait of Thomas B. Holt, the faithful treasurer of the Board. The picture of the China Mission Conference, in which are grouped the Bishop presiding, the missionaries of the Parent Board and of the Woman's Board, the native helpers, preachers and Bible women, the little children of American parents and the little children of parents converted from heathenism, with the vine covered walls of church and school for a background, furnishes food for thought and seed-thoughts for more than one sermon. The picture of the Brazil Mission Conference, as it appeared in 1895, made up of men, missionaries and native, in all the vigor of glorious young manhood, devoted to the work of the Lord, is suggestive of a young giant not wholly conscious of his strength, yet feeling the strivings and stirrings of the almost infinite potentialities with which he is endowed, and incarnating the promise and prophecy and certainty of marvelous results. The picture of the "Old Ladies' Meeting, Kobe, Japan," makes one sad because of the long, long, and inexcusable delay on the part of our church, as well as of other churches, in sending the gospel to those who so sorely needed its light and its peace; and yet it makes one glad also, inasmuch as the gospel reached Japan and was preached unto the people before these old women had passed away in the darkness of heathen superstition. But what shall be said of the picture of Dr. Charles F. Reid, our apostle to Korea? Twenty years ago he stood before the Kentucky Conference in Shelbyville, Ky., a slender, but athletic young man, scarcely more than twenty-one years of age, accepted by the Board of Missions and appointed to China. His portrait represents a man whose head is as white as if seventy years had been lived by him. Surely he bears on his "body the marks of the Lord Jesus;" not the scars made by Roman rods or Jewish lash, but the deeper wounds made by the evil influences of China's enervating and prostrating climate. The diet of raw beef and water crackers, on which he so long lived, stayed the hand of death and prolonged his days for the labor of love to which his life has been and still is thoroughly consecrated. It is no wonder that our God is so abundantly blessing his efforts, and giving him and his faithful co-workers so many souls as seals to their ministry. The picture of MacDonell Memorial Church, Durango, Mexico, shows that we have gone there to stay as a church, and help to lead Mexico out of the darkness of superstition into the light of the pure gospel of Jesus Christ. The maps of our mission fields in China, Korea, Japan, Brazil and Mexico, and of the contiguous country, are helpers to a right understanding of the situation and condition of affairs. The list of contributors to the "Debt Payment" gives honor to whom honor is due, and suggests that it might be wise for our secretaries to follow the example of our Canadian brethren, and publish in the annual report the name of every person who pays not less than $2 yearly to the cause of missions. It evidently tends to increase collections in Canada; why would it not do in our own country? Public recognition of good done hurts nobody, and helps many. To contribute to missions is not giving to charity, and it is very well to let each hand know how little the other is doing. Both might do better.

Let all our preachers, local and traveling, and all our laymen and laywomen who love the Lord Jesus Christ and long for his coming, send three two-cent stamps to Dr. W. R. Lambuth, 346 Public Square, Nashville, Tenn., and get a copy of this very valuable and very interesting book.

BY WAY OF REPLY.

Anent the strictures of Rev. S. Q. Bass in the ADVOCATE, of Sept. 1, on my notes in the issue of Aug. 11, I have a few brief remarks to make. The animus of his writing renders it unnecessary to explain to the observant reader who or what the writer is. "His speech bewrayeth him."

What I wrote that touched his sensitiveness was and is true, and "as yet" I have no regret for the writing, nor any purpose to retract or modify it in the least, notwithstanding his expressed wish that I had not written it. If the little that I said puts his "craft in danger of being set at nought," as he seems to fear, he should rather be glad that many things have not been written that might have been. Wonder if the following will not take his breath? Rev. C. Herbert Richardson, in the New York Christian Advocate, Sept. 1, writes as follows: "The church is burning 'strange fire'—that is, is looking to others than pastors for 'revival work'—and a class of men known as 'evangelists' is called upon for such occasions. There are, doubtless, among these godly and useful men who, like Mr. Moody, have done noble service for God and his cause. But the great majority of them go throughout the land seeking whom and where to devour. Novelty of methods, of doctrine, of statement and of conduct usually characterize them; so that not infrequently the church experiences a revolution that depreciates all its past history and effectually bars the path of its immediate progress in the future. At times coarseness of speech, approaching even to vulgarity, ribaldry and indecency, form prominent features in their preaching. Usually they bring a song book, often of their own composition, or, if not, one in whose sale they are pecuniarily interested, and the service begins with the disuse of the sublime and godly hymns of Wesley, Watts, Cowper and Newton, set to the music of Mozart, Haydn, Mason, Hastings, etc., and the use of a vapid and senseless jargon that catches the ear only to create a meretricious appetite and to lure from the power and beauty of divine song. The last state of such a church is worse than the first. Both the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, have been compelled to put in their Disciplines provisions to prevent the evils wrought by this class of men."

Let it be borne in mind that not I, but a greater than I, drew the above picture, which is a true representation of what we have seen and heard in our own regions.

As to Rev. S. Q. B.'s animadversions on myself, and "all others who oppose local preachers' help," and are guilty of "the awful sin of prejudice," and of "the selfish principle and littleness of being against so-called evangelists," they may pass for all they may be worth to every well-informed and candid mind. It is well known that these are but hackneyed thrust phrases belonging to the dialect of a certain class of disappointed self-seekers that are used when reason or intelligent argument can not be adduced to justify a hobby or practice.

This leads me to say that this constant rant from certain quarters about opposition to local preachers and their work from the itinerant preachers deserves to be rebuked wherever heard. It is, in general, evidence that a local preacher in the M. E. Church, South, who proves himself worthy and well qualified for the office that he bears, by keeping himself in harmony with the doctrines, polity and authorities of the church, does not want for favor and encouragement from the itinerant ministry. But when one chooses to be a roaming preacher, to go at will without counsel or rule, rather than to be a local preacher and do the work of the same under law and wise counselorship, he forfeits his claim upon the co operative sympathy of the "loyal sons of the gospel;" then when they do not bow to him and yield to his whims, he cries out "littleness," "prejudice," "opposition," etc. So it is from that way and source that comes most of the trouble. The Lord give us more local preachers.

LETTER FROM MONTANA.

If anyone does not know what real loneliness is, let them undertake, as I did, a railway journey of between two and three thousand miles. On the invitation of my uncle, Rev. T. W. Flowers, of the Montana Conference, I left my home Aug. 9, and traveled continuously for five days and nights, parting with my last Mississippi friend at Port Gibson on the first night of my travels. At Vicksburg a pleasant-faced lady, who had taken quite an interest in the lonely wayfarer, left also, and after that it grew to be quite an affliction to have to change conductors. All honor to the patient, kind-hearted conductors, who take such good care of unprotected ladies. A friend said to me as I was leaving Fayette, "I don't believe you realize what you are undertaking," and I really did not, but traveling is rendered safe and pleasant by the fidelity and courtesy of the various officials. We had no mishap; only once our engine became detached and ran off from us, and twice in the same night some of the car-coupling broke, and we waited with what fortitude we could until it could be fixed. Fortunately there were no other trains due; so we did not fear any collision.

We passed through nearly all sorts of places—through some of the best, some of the worst, some of the grandest, some of the wildest, some of the most desolate, and some of the most fertile regions that the Lord ever made. All kinds of crops could be seen, and I shall never again wonder where all the tobacco comes from. Acres on acres of it, and then more; but there were times and places where even a tobacco patch would have been a refreshing sight, a sure evidence of human life in some form; desolate regions which seemed to be forsaken of God and shunned by man, where even a goat could not find enough to sustain life, and for, perhaps, hundreds of miles our way led us through this terrible bleakness. Suddenly, on rounding a curve, there burst into view a magnificent herd of cattle, and we were in Montana. But nature has jealously guarded this lovely valley, and there were still the Rocky Mountains to cross. In one place the train makes almost a complete rainbow, and to one unaccustomed to mountains, it seems quite a dizzy height. But man has braved all the dangers and discomforts of mountains and tunnels and arid plains to reach the Bitter Root Valley in Ravalli county, and well has he been repaid for all. I can not begin to do justice to it in this short letter. Nature has opened her storehouse in rich profusion, and peace and plenty reigns on every side. Vegetables, fruits and flowers delight and please in endless plenty. Mr. Robertson, a progressive ranch man (or as we call them, farmer), has at last succeeded in growing Montana peaches equal to any I ever saw elsewhere. Nearly everything necessary for man or beast is grown here—everything, in fact, with the exception, perhaps, of sugar and salt. Tons and tons of hay and wheat are being harvested, and still the fields teem with plenty.

I have often heard of Kentucky horses, but do not care to see any finer ones than they have here. They fairly fly over the ground with what seems to me immense loads. But locomotion here, in people and horses, may be summed up in three words, "Coming, going, gone." There are no loiterers, and yet nobody seems to be at work. One thing deserves special mention: no oars run here on the Sabbath. They have two churches here, and some good church workers. We attended services yesterday conducted by Rev. E. J. Stanley, a member of the Montana Conference. We were too late in the evening for the meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society, which I very much regretted. I heard a little of the leader's closing remarks, after which we had a sermon delivered by my uncle, who has been here twenty-seven years, and is still striving to extend the Redeemer's kingdom. We had a pleasant call to-day from one of the foremost church workers, Mrs. Curtis Goff, an earnest Christian, full of good works.

Now, Doctor, I am not employed by any syndicate, or firm, or railway company to write up this section; but if I could prevail on anyone seeking a home to come here before settling elsewhere, I should feel that this was not written in vain.

For twenty years the Woman's Board has been at work seeking to carry on God's will concerning the nations of the earth. Though marked by no startling achievements during these years, there has been steady progress, creditable development, and to-day flourishing missions in China, Korea, Brazil and Mexico are maintained. Looking over the past, noting the small beginning in 1878, the few hundred women willing to work systematically for the divine enterprise of foreign missions, the one missionary sent out, and the widespread apathy of the church as to woman's work, the heart dwells with thanksgiving upon the present condition of Woman's Board. Comparing our achievements, however, with the tremendous forces of heathendom which still confront Christianity, we should be depressed, rather than exultant, but for the sure words of promise. It is sad, but true, as some one strikingly declares, that "Christianity as yet touches the age-incrusted and unyielding surface of heathendom only in spots, and has hardly broken its way through to an extent which enables us to recognize its power or to discover its transforming tendency." But we rejoice to know that, as a Board, we have helped to send to far off lands a force of transcendent energy of divine power that in some measure is making itself felt, that with quiet persistency will continue to overturn all obstructions until it becomes the maker of a new civilization throughout the world.

What has been accomplished abroad has not been more important, not more transforming, than done at home. The women of the church have stepped out upon a broader platform, have reached a higher plane. Twenty years ago they hesitated to assume the responsibility of planning and executing work which demanded so much thought and faith. Opportunities were overlooked, or cautiously and imperfectly met; but a change has come, not only in methods of work, but in motives and purpose. Flashes of enthusiasm, consequent upon some thrilling speech, have in many hearts settled into steady, abiding conviction, and the thought of God that woman is a potent agency in the evangelization of the world has been transforming conscience, educating the mind, sanctifying the whole being, and elevating the hopes of the rising generation. A wonderful movement of the young life of the church has grown out of the home influences consequent upon the uplifting, quickening power that the subject of foreign missions has wrought upon the mothers' hearts. Are not the sons and daughters of such mothers more ready to respond to the watchword of the Students' Volunteer Movement, "The evangelization of the world in this generation"? Very gratefully does every woman recognize the powerful influence the work is having upon her own life. Visions of the "white-robed throng," many of whom she turned to Christ, make the dark valley bright and the Holy City more inviting. The conflict is only fairly begun, however; and no woman who loves the Lord Christ is thinking of retiring from the ranks. She is seeking rather to swell the number enlisted, to revive the flagging energies of the disheartened, and to push the battle to the ends of the earth.

"The army of Christ is not an army of occupation simply; it is an army of conquest," and moving to certain triumph. The world is open; not a country is closed to trade, to the eye of adventure, to the greed of gain, and surely not to the gospel. There is money in the pockets of the church, and facilities of travel have made the opposite shores of the Pacific almost "next door," and all the nations need the gospel. As we catch glimpses of the great thought of God, to evangelize the world through human agency, our purposes broaden, and, instead of China, Korea, Brazil, and Mexico, we embrace Africa, India, Cuba, the isles of the sea—the whole world.

The organized working force of Woman's Board include 34 Conference Societies, 270 districts, 3,629 auxiliaries, and 74,479 members—a gain of 664 during twelve months. There has been increase in collections, notwithstanding the small amounts in the way of donations and bequests. The report of the treasurer shows $86,418.76—$3,538.29 over last year's receipts. This is better than our fears, and encourages us.—From Mrs. S. C. Trueheart, Foreign Secretary, in Twentieth Annual Report of "Woman's F. M. Society," 1898.

GOD'S CHISEL.

Look at the artist's chisel. The artist can not carve without it; yet imagine the chisel trying to carve alone. It lays itself against the hard marble, but it has neither strength nor skill. Then the artist comes and seizes it. The chisel lays itself into his hand, and is obedient to him. Thought, feeling, imagination, skill flow down from the deep chambers of the artist's soul to the chisel's edge. The sculptor and the chisel are not two, but one; it is the unit which they make that carves the stone. We are but the chisel to carve God's statues in this world. We must yield ourselves altogether to Christ, and let him use us. Then his power, his wisdom, his skill, his thought, his love shall flow through our soul, our brain, our heart, our fingers.—Phillips Brooks.

It is not a sign of character or of intellect always to be giving emphasis to one's disbeliefs. If a man does not believe this thing or that, why should he trouble himself or others about it? If there is anything that he does believe, that is the thing for him to emphasize. If, indeed, he does not believe anything, the less he says about himself the better.—Sunday-School Times.

Joy is a prize unbought, and is freest, purest in its flow when it comes unsought. No getting into heaven as a place will compass it. You must carry it with you, else it is not there. You must have it in you, as the music of a well-ordered soul, the fire of a holy purpose, the welling up out of the central depths of eternal springs that hide their waters there.—Bushnell.

The Bible is a book full of light and wisdom. It will make you wise to eternal life, and furnish you with directions and principles to guide and order your life safely and prudently. There is no book like the Bible for excellent learning, wisdom, and use.—Sir Matthew Hale.

If you tell your troubles to God, you put them into the grave. They will never rise again when you have committed them to him. If you roll your burden anywhere else, it will roll back again like the stone of Sisyphus.—Spurgeon.

Real friendship is a slow grower, and never thrives unless engrafted upon a stock of known and reciprocal merit.—Chesterfield.

It requires the effort of your life to forgive the person whom you have wronged.—Exchange.

Clergyman's Statement

Nerve Strength Gained by Taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

BRIGHTON, IOWA:—Rev. Bernard M. Shullck of this place, owing to weakness of the nerves, was for a time unable to attend to his duties. He makes this statement: "I have suffered for a long time from weak nerves. After I had taken a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla I became quite well again. The weakness of the nerves has now wholly disappeared and I am able to attend to my duties again. I am therefore grateful to Hood's Sarsaparilla and I recommend it to everyone who suffers from weak nerves."

HENNINGTON CAMP MEETING,

NEAR CRYSTAL SPRINGS, MISS.

The twenty-seventh annual camp meeting at this place was opened Wednesday night, Aug. 24, and closed Thurs. day night, Sept. 1. There were fourteen ministers in attendance, ten of whom participated in the preaching of the Word. We have seldom listened to a series of sermons as full of instruction and spiritual power as those delivered at this camp meeting. The congregations were uniformly large, and the order well-nigh perfect. There were a large number of penitents at the altar at many of the services, and many of these, perhaps seventy-five in all, professed to find peace with God. The camp meeting was much enjoyed by the Christian people, who were there in considerable force. It was an occasion of social reunion of great value to the church life of the country. This camp ground was established twenty-seven years ago. Of the forty original stock-holders, only eleven survive. There are now about one hundred cottages on the grounds; all were occupied except, perhaps, two or three. The gate fee, and a voluntary contribution of the members of the association, paid the expenses of the meeting, and also liquidated the remains of an old debt amounting to $100, that had existed for several years.

The ministry of the Rev. Geo. R. Stuart was greatly enjoyed. Several of his sermons will not soon be forgotten.

Rev. Dr. Weems, the presiding elder, was not able to be with us but a few days, owing to his other duties on his large district; but his sermon on Tuesday, at 11 A. M., made a profound impression that will abide.

Rev. A. B. Nicholson, in age and feebleness extreme, preached with the power of former years. It reminded us of forty-three years ago, when we were converted under his ministry.

J. W. Brown gave us a sermon on the Christian armor that was clear, strong, and scriptural. It was much enjoyed by all who heard it.

J. W. Chambers did efficient service, both in preaching to the general congregation and to the children. We had several services for the children at 4 P. M., which were largely attended by the little folks.

Bros. Williams, Tucker and Smiley also ministered to the lambs, greatly to their edification, as well as to the general congregation. Their preaching was with power and demonstration of the Spirit.

T. W. Adams thrilled the audience with an earnest sermon on the strait gate and narrow way.

The presence of Rev. P. A. Johnston was a benediction. He declined to preach, on account of his infirmities, but his prayers and his talks in the experience meeting had the old-time ring about them.

The singing, led by W. O. Newman, was good. The book used was "Our Young People's Hymnal." It is, perhaps, the most popular song book ever published by our House. I have sold about 500 copies of it, including the two last camp meetings held here.

And now let us face the future. We know not what a day may bring forth. Let us all be ready for life or for death, as the case may be. W. B. LEWIS.

OPELOUSAS DISTRICT CAMP MEETING.

This camp meeting was held about two weeks ago at the Kennison Springs, midway between Opelousas and Washington. This is but the second annual meeting, and everything belonging to this institution points to future success. The grounds, so beautifully shaded and bountifully watered, with unsurpassed drainage, furnish an attraction to all comfort-seekers and pleasure-lovers. A comfortable tabernacle, a good preachers' home, and a hotel with one small temporary tent, make up the buildings. No improvements since the last year's meeting. If the citizens of that section of country—and a few of the surrounding towns of the district—would build and camp on the grounds, we would soon have a good thing of it. As it is, our congregations come and go. During the week we have but few people, except at night, when a great many attend, and on Sunday the crowd is large. Bro. Blackshear, the chairman of the Board of builders and managers, is in every way wide-awake, and is doing all within his power to make the enterprise a success. The presiding elder, Rev. H. O. White, leaves nothing undone that would add to the development of this encampment and services. The preaching was done this year by the following ministers: Revs. H. O. White, J. M. Henry, T. K. Faunt LeRoy, Isaac T. Reames, A. S. J. Neill, and R. M. Blocker.

Two excellent young ladies—Miss Bessie Cunningham, of Rayne, and Miss Daisy White, of Crowley—handled the organ. Bro. A. C. Skiles, of Opelousas, was our efficient cornetist. The choir was led by the writer. Our choir was strictly religious, and did their part well, considering a want of training in special songs for the occasion.

While we did not have many conversions and accessions, the general good, wholesome impression indicates a great deal for the cause. If our present presiding elder, who moves at the end of this Conference year, can be succeeded by a man like himself—full of camp-meeting life—and if our wide-awake Bro. Faunt LeRoy is retained as the pastor at Opelousas, and if our good old Bro. Blackshear is spared us to hustle up matters generally, there can be no reason why we should not look forward to a better meeting another year. This camp-meeting enterprise, if properly managed and well manned, and fully baptized with the fire and the Holy Ghost, is destined to become a great power for the Lord in Opelousas district. Let this whole country begin to work and pray for the next annual meeting.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. J. White Davis, Indian Bayou circuit, Louisiana Conference, Sept. 7, 1898: "Last week Bro. R. C. Grace, of Bayou, La., assisted me in a meeting at Bethel of 7 days. Results: 21 conversions, 16 applications for membership, and 2 infants baptized. He preached a plain gospel, and all who heard him were deeply impressed. Our membership has been greatly strengthened and revived. Results of work on this circuit since Feb. 13, 1898, have been 53 infants baptized, 32 accessions to the church, and 21 conversions. Our congregations have been immense and extremely quiet. God bless these people."

Rev. W. M. Williams, Gallman, Miss., Sept. 5, 1898: "We have had good meetings at three of our churches. There has been many conversions and about forty accessions. We have our meeting at Bethesda yet to hold, which will begin the second Sunday, ultimo. Can't you come and be with us? We had a good camp meeting. I think much lasting good was accomplished. Our work is improving spiritually and increasing numerically. God has graciously blessed our work this year. Our meeting at Gallman was especially good; about twenty-one conversions and sixteen additions. Come if you can."

Rev. L. F. Alford, DeKalb, Miss., Sept. 2, 1898: "I began my work on North Kemper circuit, which is composed of six churches, with the full determination of having a revival at each church, and the Lord has graciously heard our prayers. We began our meetings the second Sunday in July, and have held five. The Lord has been with us in saving power. Many hard sinners have been converted, and have given their lives to their Savior. Oh, how it fills my heart with unspeakable joy to see them coming out on the Lord's side! Our members have been greatly blessed. Many of them have moved up in the divine life, and are on a higher plane of Christian living. We are indebted to the following brethren for services rendered: Revs. J. J. Kelly and J. M. Alford, of the Louisiana Conference; J. J. Golden, C. M. Crossley, D. G. W. Ellis and F. Robinson, of Mississippi. These men of God did us much good. My work has as many good, kind people as any work I know anywhere in the country. We have almost completed a new church and furnished another. Thirty-nine members have been received up to date. Collections very good, and yet the good work goes on. We feel stronger in the faith, and better prepared to do our duty. 'The best of all is, God is with us.' To him be all the glory. Brethren, pray for us."

Rev. J. B. Anders, Amite circuit, Aug. 31, 1898: "On the thirteenth of August we commenced protracted services at Mt. Vernon Church with no ministerial help, except Rev. C. A. Hastings, a local preacher, from Wilkinson circuit. The preacher in charge, Rev. D. F. Guice, did not come until Monday evening, and had to leave Tuesday morning on account of his wife being sick. Bro. Hastinge did all the preaching for seven days, preaching two sermons a day. We had an old-time revival such as Methodists enjoyed fifty years ago, shouting and praising God. It was said the preaching was the old-time doctrine that Methodists preached forty and fifty years ago. The verdict of the four denominations that worshiped with us was that God surely had called Bro. Hastinge to preach, and that he preached nothing but the gospel. So I will say to any preacher that wants to get help in revival work that I know of none that will do better work in the old-time way of singing, praying and preaching. The church was greatly revived, sinners converted and old feuds settled, and a weekly prayer meeting organized, and at the close of the last service the writer baptized and received into the church twenty-one adults and baptized one infant, and (D. V.) on the third day of September, at 3 o'clock, will baptize and receive 6 more adults into the church. To God be all the honor."

SALLIS CHARGE, NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Our people paid their assessment for foreign mission early in the year, and have met the entire assessment for the other collections where they have been called upon. We expect to pay "in full" all these assessments. Our church at Sallie now shines with new paint, at a cost of $70. On the seventeenth of July, it being the occasion of our third Quarterly Conference, Bro. Oakley dedicated Bethel, a beautiful little church, completed last year. Here we were joined by Rev. E. G. Kilgore, who gave us seven days' faithful service. This earnest man of God has lost none of his former zeal, but preaches a full gospel, pungent and effective. He remained with us through our next meeting of eight days at Spring Dale, which was a veritable Pentecost. I have scarcely ever witnessed such power as was manifested in both preacher and people. We thank God for the coming of Bro. Kilgore, and our prayers go with him.

On the seventh of August we began a ten-days' meeting at Sallis. We were joined Tuesday, the ninth, by Rev. W. M. McIntosh, and while some of our people were prejudiced against not only Bro. McIntosh, but any and all evangelists, yet the great victory for God and the church in Sallis won by the uncompromising faith and zeal of this consecrated man of God, coupled with the prayers and labors of the Christian people here, has removed all such prejudice, and we all feel that the Lord sent Bro. McIntosh to Sallis.

As a result of the three meetings mentioned, we report sixty-three conversions, twenty-four additions to the Methodist Church, and as many to the other churches. To our God be all the glory.

Our Woman's Home Mission Society has recently placed a beautiful suite of furniture and matting for one room in the parsonage. A well has just been dug, and we expect to remodel the parsonage throughout before Conference. The Lord bless the ADVOCATE.

A. T. BUCK.

An honest man in this day and age has little need to fear death by hanging. The danger that Innocent men will die upon the scaffold has been reduced by modern laws of evidence to a minimum. There is one appalling death that still threatens innocent men. It is a slow and lingering death from consumption. One-sixth of the human race die from this relentless enemy of humanity. Probably no subject connected with health is so important and so little understood as the conservation of vital force. The human organism is a wonderful machine, and is so constructed that if exhaustive draughts are made upon the vital forces during youth and middle life, the mechanism responds for the time, but at the expense of its future usefulness. The man who overworks or exhausts himself day after day is constantly overdrawing his store of vital force. Finally the mechanism of supply breaks down and the man becomes a physical bankrupt. The mechanism of supply in a man is his stomach. There the food is transformed into vital force. If the stomach is weak and the digestion impaired, the body ceases to receive and store up vital force. If the draught is continued, consumption or some other equally fatal disease is the result. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a great producer of vital force. It enables a man to daily store up energy to do almost any amount of work or stand any amount of exposure. It does its work through the stomach. It makes the weak stomach strong. It facilitates and increases the flow of digestive juices. It promotes and perfects the assimilation of all the life-giving elements of the food. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder.

Mr. F. M. Robinett, of Xenophon, Tenn., writes: "I can heartily recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for indigestion and torpid liver. I was very bad off and tried different doctors with but little benefit. I decided to give the 'Golden Medical Discovery' a trial and I soon began to improve. If it had not been for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery I believe I would not be living to-day."

Best Edition of the World's Best Book,

—THE—

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers. New Type. All Proper Names. Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangment for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to September, '99. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

SELF-PRONOUNCING

S. S. Teachers' Reference Bible.

Text Conforms Exactly to the Oxford Teachers' Edition.

The self-pronouncing text enables the reader to pronounce all proper names at a glance.

This Bible is printed from Large, Beautiful and Clear Bourgeois Type. All Proper Names are Divided into Syllables and Every Vowel is Marked and the Syllables Inflected, showing the Sounds and Accents as they are given in a Dictionary, thus enabling the reader to properly pronounce every word. This feature is a great improvement and a strong recommendation for this Bible over others.

This Bible contains the celebrated Oxford Teachers' Helps together with a complete series of New Maps illustrating the geography of Palestine and the surrounding countries from the earliest times, and embodying the most recent discoveries renders this Bible especially desirable to teachers and students of the Holy Scriptures.

Imperial Seal Binding, Tuck Edges, known as "Divinity Circuit," Linen Lined, Round Corners, Red under Gold Edges, Price, $4.00.

This book in Bourgeois type will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price ($4) to any address; but to that select class who read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, we furnish it on the following terms: Pay your subscription one full year in advance, viz., to September, '99, and we will send it to you, postpaid, for $1.75. (A little later you will have to pay to October, '99.) We will also send this book as a premium for two new subscribers at the regular rate—$2 per annum. We will also send this Bible with index for 50 cents additional.

For fifty cents additional we will send Bible with index. For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved on the outside in gilt letters.

P. S.—We are still handling the Minion type and the Emerald type Bible; but will not continue to do so long. Those who wish to order should do so at once.

THE GOSPEL OF GIVING.

If we are to judge by appearances, comparatively few Christians have definite convictions on the subject of giving. While some devout, unselfish souls regard liberality as a means of grace—yea, as a gracious privilege—the vast majority in the church seem to regard it as a duty to be shirked, if possible; and neglect thereof is generally supposed to be a trifling matter.

Though there are but few who would openly boast of illiberality as did a certain sister, who thanked the Lord that though she had been a member of the church twenty years, it had not yet cost her a cent, yet not a few are victims to the same spirit of selfishness. Consequently, instead of "honoring the Lord with their substance," they dishonor him by living for themselves, and by giving the church as little as possible. It is astounding how little conscience church members, as a rule, manifest when it comes to contributing to religious purposes. The collector, be he steward or pastor, is oft regarded and sometimes treated as if he were an extortioner, whose demands are to be resented and resisted. Vast numbers gain all they can, and save all they can, but not for a moment do they entertain the thought that it is their Christian duty to give all they can.

We believe that stinginess is hurting the spirituality of far more people than either worldliness or intemperance. Where rum debauches thousands, covetousness is debasing and deadening the souls of tens of thousands. Liberality is one of the surest indications of piety as well as one of the best promoters of spiritual life. Not every man who gives liberally is a consistent Christian; but no man can be a consistent Christian without giving as the Lord hath prospered him. Heart-religion and purse-religion are inseparable. The idea is far too prevalent that what is given to the Lord is lost, so far as this world is concerned—that there is no temporal advantage in liberality. Such a notion, however, is contrary to the teaching of the Bible and the general experience of faithful Christians. The saintly Richard Baxter left on record this testimony: "I never prospered more in my small estate than when I gave most." Says the editor of the United Presbyterian: "Experience, observation, and the divine promises prove that God is as ready to prosper a liberal man and a consecrated life now as he was under the Mosaic dispensation. His challenge has never been withdrawn, 'Prove me now herewith.'" Almost without exception, believers who have adopted the plan of giving a tenth of their income to the Lord have been so wonderfully blessed, financially and spiritually, that nothing could induce them to abandon it. What a multitude of professing Christians persist in believing that selfish living is the surest way to prosperity in spite of the plain teachings of Scripture! Says the sacred writer, "The liberal soul shall be made fat." Again, it is written: "Honor the Lord with thy substance and with the first-fruits of all thine increase: so shall thy barns be filled with plenty, and thy presses shall burst out with new wine." And shall we not believe the Savior when he says: "Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall men give into your bosom"?

The fault with a large number of Christians is not that they give nothing, but that they give so little in proportion to their ability and manner of living. Liberality that amounts to self-denial is by far too rare. A street Arab once said to a companion, "Jim, what does liberality mean?" The reply was, "Why, it means to give away all the old clothes you don't want." Liberality of this type is, alas! too frequently met with. All through the Scriptures God seeks to impress upon us the duty and importance of offering to him the best we have, of bringing to him the most precious gifts in our possession. The Jews were required to bring as offerings the firstlings of the flock, the finest of their wheat, the first-fruits of the harvest, the tithe of all their produce, and, as long as they did this faithfully, the Lord's blessing was upon them. Is our best too much to give our Lord, who shed his precious blood upon the cross for our redemption? Those who love the Lord with all their soul and strength do not count it a burden to give liberally to his cause. The Christian who practices liberality finds indeed that "it is more blessed to give than to receive."

Some who are struggling under the burden of poverty, not being able to give as liberally as their neighbors, withhold all offerings, and so deprive themselves of a means of grace. Let us remember that God values our gift, not according to the size of it, but according to the motive that prompts it—according to the self-sacrifice it represents. The offering of a penny by a person of small means may be of far more value in the sight of the Lord than a gift of many thousands by a man of wealth. To the poor Methodist miners of Cornwall, in John Wesley's time, church membership meant as to giving "a penny a week and a shilling a quarter;" and yet this small sum, like the widow's mite, was worth far more in the sight of God than are the far larger contributions of latter-day Methodists.

The faithful Christian must not only "honor the Lord with his substance," but he should do so regularly and systematically. Spasmodic giving is one of the great hindrances which the church has to contend with. Paul's advice is to lay by something on the first day of the week. How seldom is this injunction observed! Few, indeed, are they who regularly set aside a specific sum for religious purposes. Hence, when calls are made to replenish the Lord's treasury, there is nothing on hand. Church members usually find money enough for the things they like, but the instant church finances are mentioned, they become poverty-stricken. There is plenty of money for pleasure excursions, for ornaments, for luxuries, for follies of various kinds, but how little, comparatively, is obtainable for the promotion of the blessed gospel!

Says the Rev. S. B. Shaw: "Men will boldly declare in religious meetings how many dollars they used to spend for whisky and tobacco and other things that they would have been better off without, and yet, if asked to give half of that amount each year for the support of the gospel, they declare they can not possibly afford it. Will not God say to us as he said to Israel of old: 'Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me.' And while we say, 'Wherein have we robbed thee?' will not his answer be, 'In tithes and offerings'"?

ANARCHY REDIVIVUS.

On Saturday, the tenth, Elizabeth, the Empress of Austria, was assassinated while walking the streets of Geneva, Switzerland, whither she had gone on account of her health. The instrument used was a stiletto made from a triangular file. The assassin was immediately arrested and is now in custody. He is an Italian of the name of Luccheni. He had no personal grudge against his victim, but slew her simply because he is an anarchist—a would-be destroyer of law, order and government.

The deceased Empress was in her sixty-first year. Though somewhat eccentric, she was a highly accomplished woman, of thoroughly lovable character. She was almost idolized by her subjects, or, rather, we should say those of her husband, the Emperor Joseph. The entire land is in mourning. Such demonstrations of grief as have been witnessed in the cities of Austria for the last few days are rare in the annals of the world.

The effect of that assassin's dagger no eye but that of Omniscience can foresee. The Emperor is old and feeble. He is a man of a very affectionate nature, and devoted to his wife. This blow may be more than he can stand. His death would be disastrous in the extreme. The Austrian Empire is held together almost solely by his unique and charming personality. There is, perhaps, no nation in which there is less homogeneity of sentiment. There are diversities, racial, linguistic, political, and so on to the end of the chapter. The only bond that holds the antagonistic elements together is reverence for the venerable monarch whose sceptre has been for a half century the symbol of integrity and patriotism.

The heir to the throne, the Archduke Ferdinand, is a man so utterly different in character from the present sovereign that it requires no prophet's eye to foresee a clash of arms as one of the probable results of his coronation. Let that begin, and the dismemberment of the empire and its partition among the great European powers is almost certain.

HIGHLY COMMENDABLE.

Rev. J. L. Morrill, of Georgia, a local-preacher evangelist well known in these parts, has withdrawn from the M. E. Church, South, and joined the Methodist Protestant Church. He has recently published a statement of his reasons for this course, which may be briefly summarized thus: He had made up his mind to continue to do evangelistic work in such localities as he might choose without regard to the wishes of pastors or presiding elders. This being the case, he could not continue in the M. E. Church, South, without being a rebel against its authority. This his conscience would not allow him to do. Bro. Morrill's course is to be commended. No man ought to continue to minister at the altars of a church whose authority he sets at defiance. And the same principle applies to laymen. Strange ideas of honor those people have who remain in a church which they denounce and defy. Such a standard of honor is held in contempt by men of the world. No secular organization would tolerate such conduct in its membership. How it is possible for a professing Christian to pursue such a course is more than we can understand. The world is wide, and ecclesiastical organizations are numerous. That man is exceedingly hard to please who can not in these times find some church to suit him. The Methodist Protestant Church is a good church, and is exactly the place for many among us who are dissatisfied with our form of church government. If we should ever become dissatisfied with the polity of the M. E. Church, South, we think it likely that we shall follow the example of Bros. Morrill and Beard.

SPLENDIDLY UNIQUE.

Helen Gould's last benevolent deed is the most striking of them all. She has turned over her splendid home on the Hudson—Lyndhurst—one of the most magnificent mansions in America, to the government, to be used temporarily as a hospital for sick and wounded soldiers. There are others who have given money for the relief of suffering humanity, but if there is another millionaire in the world who has given such an exhibition of philanthropy as this, the muse of history has failed to record his name. In addition to this, with the cares and toils incident to her large estate upon her hands (for she manages her own affairs), she has for some weeks spent much time in giving personal attention to the wants of the sick and wounded soldiers in the national hospitals. No official of our army or navy comes out of the war with such a halo of glory about his brow as does Helen Gould.

NEW BOOKS.

The above-named pamphlet lies upon our table by courtesy of the author. The title is a terse description of the book. The ordinary excuses which men render for neglecting to seek "the pearl of great price" are "weighed in the balances and found wanting." Its circulation among that class for whom it is prepared ought to be productive of much good. Pastors will find it a valuable adjunct to their pulpit ministrations.

PRIZE FIGHTING IN THE SCHOOLS, AND OTHER ESSAYS. By W. L. C. Hunnicutt, D. D. Barbee & Smith, Nashville, Tenn.

The above-named work is a 12 mo. of 208 pages neatly bound in cloth. Price, 50 cents. There is also a paper-bound edition which sells at 30 cents. As indicated by the title, the work is a collection of miscellanies, there being in all eighteen different productions, some in prose, some in verse. The first and longest article is that named in the title, "Prize Fighting in the Schools." It is a forceful argument against the prevailing custom of offering medals and other prizes in our schools. Inasmuch as the prize can be won by only one pupil of a class, however large, the author thinks the effect upon the class, with the exception of the few who compete for the prize, is depressing rather than stimulating; and who can deny that this is true? Many other evils of the system are pointed out. The author would have prizes offered, if at all, in such a way that all diligent and faithful pupils will be rewarded. Another thoughtful paper is entitled, "Freedom, Human and Divine." "Susannah Wesley" is a treatise whose circulation among the mothers of the country would be beneficial to the next generation. All the articles are thoughtful and suggestive. The poems are in a pleasing vein. Send and get the book. It may be had of the publishers at Nashville, or of the author, Gloster, Miss.

AN ENGLISH JOURNAL ON THE PRESIDENT.

An article in the London "Spectator," the most influential of English weeklies, comments as follows on President McKinley's great services during the war:

"Without training in military business, or experience in diplomacy, or habitude in managing great affairs, he was suddenly called on to conduct a serious war which he only half approved, to create the necessary forces and to take resolutions certain to rouse the jealousy of half the great powers of Europe. He had, at one and the same time, to organize a fleet, to create an army, and to make it clearly understood that during war time the United States would suffer no interference. It seemed at first that, crushed by the weight of these responsibilities, the President might fail. The total unreadiness of the country for war, an unreadiness in which European statesmen could scarcely believe, deepened this impression, and for a moment it was generally held that Mr. McKinley, though a good man, would prove unequal to a task which might have oppressed a Bismarck.

"The doubt has now disappeared. It seems probable that power, as occasionally happens, has developed latent forces in its possessor of which the world did not suspect the existence; but at all events it is certain that Mr. McKinley has risen to the height of his circumstances, and though he can not be Abraham Lincoln, he convinces those around him that he has many of his great predecessor's best qualities. All disposition to wobble has gone out of him. He is aware, as Lincoln once said, that ultimate decision in executive matters must rest with him; that the responsibility before the people and before history rests on his shoulders; and with that certainty he has become as clear and firm as if he were a great man of business at the head of a great factory.

"The enlargement in his conception of the work to be done is unmistakable. The President was, probably, at first under the impression, shared by the whole of his countrymen, that the war would be a small affair; but that impression has disappeared, and America is fighting Spain as if Spain were a first-class power. . . . The man who steadily grows like this is a considerable man, even if he did choose some inferior advisers, and does not realize any more than Thiers did the effect of heavy tariffs upon the production of national wealth. Mr. McKinley's new demeanor has been answered by a new development of public confidence, and he is now, by far, the most influential personage in the United States."

Our friend, Bro. W. Y. Webb, of Gloster, Miss., has been a subscriber to the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE thirty-three years, having subscribed for it immediately after he joined the church—a good example for all young converts. He has never missed an issue, except during the quarantine last year. He has always paid in advance, has never received a dun, and never had any trouble with the publisher. May his tribe multiply!

From a private letter from Dr. I. W. Cooper, dated Sept. 12, we quote as follows:

Finest opening since the war! We will enroll 100 this week. By Oct. 1 we will have 130 students at Centenary. Buildings and grounds attractive. Students delighted. Tidal wave has struck us. Enthusiasm at white-heat.

We extend heartiest congratulations to Dr. Cooper and his co-laborers. Louisiana Methodism will rejoice with an exceeding great joy.

Rev. H. G. Hawkins has published a neatly-gotten-up booklet of seventy-six pages, entitled "Sunday-School Year-Book, 1898, Mississippi Conference." The work was prepared by request of the Mississippi Conference of Sunday-school Workers, held at Meridian, April 12 to 14. It contains the Minutes of that Conference and much other matter concerning Sunday-school work within the bounds of the Mississippi Conference. The work of the editor seems to be admirably done.

We are indebted to our good friend, Sister S. S. Cope, Paulding, Miss., for a copy of the Minutes of the twelfth Annual Meeting of the Parsonage and Home Mission Society—a pamphlet of 106 pages, containing full information about all the work of the society. It is adorned with portraits of Dr. David Morton, Miss Lucinda B. Helm, and Mrs. George P. Kenrick. If there is anywhere a belated Methodist who thinks this society is doing nothing, or next to nothing, a copy of this pamphlet put into his hands will show him what a Rip Van Winkle he is.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Booneville, Miss., EDITOR.

The Epworth League stands for reverence for sacred things.

The man that does not uncover in the presence of all sacred things lacks the essential elements of nobleness.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

Rev. C. H. Briggs, in his letters of travel to the Nashville Christian Advocate, mentions the fact that the non-conforming churches in England pattern too much after the Church of England.

The above statement will doubtless meet with the approval of most Methodists from America who have traveled in England. We are, however, afraid that many American Methodists, in their efforts to keep away from the forms and fashions of the "Old Church," have gone entirely too far in the other direction.

In many places there is no reverence for the sanctuary or the service, and many regard the minister as a mere professional man.

Let the young Leaguers everywhere remember that the ministry is heaven-ordained, and that no man is qualified to preach the gospel who has not first been called of God, and inwardly moved by the Holy Ghost so to do.

The custom of bowing in prayer upon entering the house is a custom among the English that the Americans would do well to perpetuate.

A lady friend of this writer, who was recently called upon to conduct a missionary service, expressed herself as being much impressed by the conduct of an elderly lady in the congregation. Immediately upon reaching the pew this mother in Israel knelt for a few moments in silent prayer. The Leaguers everywhere will do well to thus prepare themselves for the sanctuary service.

No longer do we worship in peculiarly planned temples or tabernacles, nor do we bow before figures erected through Popish error, but the house where we meet is God's house, and we should realize that we are in his presence, and so deport ourselves. This rule applies both in log-meeting houses with pulpit floor and metropolitan cathedrals with orchestral choir.

The young people should be taught to carry their Bibles, in order that they may follow the reading of the lessons by the minister. This we noticed to be the habit of the Canadian Methodists, before whom we had the privilege of preaching last Summer.

Another fact noticeable in the congregation just referred to was, that the young men—members of the congregation and of the League—occupied the front seats in the middle aisle.

We are sure that the above paragraph will remind many of our readers that such is not the case in the Southern States. As a rule, the young men, and many of the young women, see how near the rear of the church they can sit, and leave the front seats entirely vacant. A stranger, on entering, might be impressed that the young people were afraid of the preacher, and wished to be as far away from him as possible under the circumstances.

If we were asked to give our views, we would certainly say it was a sign of religious coldness, for we have never known a really spiritually minded man or woman who would voluntarily select a back seat in church.

Epworth Leaguers of Mississippi and Louisiana should take front seats, enter heartily into all of the service, and thus inspire and help your pastor, and at the same time secure a rich blessing upon your own heart.

"Let all the people sing," is by no means an exhortation of recent date, but, nevertheless, needs to be emphasized as much just now as it ever was. The Epworth League ought to take the place of the so-called singing-school, and teach our young people to use our own books and sing our own songs.

The "Young People's Hymnal" is a capital book, and should be in use in every League. Write to Barbee & Smith, Nashville, Tenn., for special prices. Leaguers in bounds of the North Mississippi Conference will do well to write to Rev. G. W. Bachman, Kosciusko, Miss. Get a good supply at once.

LESSON XI.

SUBJECT—MADAGASCA THE MARTYR; OR, THE MIRACLE OF PERSECUTION.

(Read also Sections VI, p. 93, and IX. p. 133.)

1. The people superstitious, cruel, lustful, thieving, lying idolaters. (Pages 162-165.) Hardly any field more uninviting. See the statement of the French governor.

2. Study the providential movements among the people themselves. Political unity a necessity. Study the influence of the Roman Empire on the spread of early Christianity. Educational movements a necessity. The study of the language and introduction of printing stages not to be overlooked.

3. The crisis in the work. All seems about to be lost; the period of persecution sets in. Compare the story of the Israelites in Egypt and the experience of Daniel in Babylon.

4. Make a comparative study of the four eras of persecution (p. 171), and compare with these the history of early Christianity, showing how the purity and truthfulness of the gospel will always arouse opposition on the part of the prince of the power of this world.

5. Study the period of progress (p. 186) on. Contrast the reigns of the two Ranavalonas (p. 189), and see what God can do in less than 40 years! There is scarcely anywhere in all the range of missionary literature a closer approximation to apostolic experiences than here.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

Our health authorities report a case of yellow fever in Jackson, and you may announce that the opening of our college session is postponed until further notice. Those who are familiar with the history and surroundings of the reported case say there is no occasion to apprehend any serious spread of the disease. We have no fear at all of the infection reaching the vicinity of the college. The case reported is more than one mile from us. We hope, therefore, that students who intended to come this session will adhere to their purpose. We will announce another day for opening as soon as practicable. W. B. MURRAH.

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 10, 1898.

NOTICE.

To the Members of the W. F. Missionary Society of the Mississippi Conference—

The time for our nineteenth annual meeting is near at hand, embracing the second Sunday in October. Let every member of the Conference society bear this meeting on her heart in daily prayer to God for the presence of the Holy Spirit on that occasion, and let us set apart Friday, Sept. 30, as a day of fasting and special prayer for the blessing of God upon our meeting.

Delegates and visitors are requested to send their names as soon as possible to Mrs. B. F. Jones, so that homes may be assigned and everything made ready to receive our visitors.

ADDIE V. MARSHALL,
Pres. W. F. Miss'y Society, Miss. Conf.

A FAR-AWAY ADVERTISER.

On this page will be found an advertisement from Mrs. Altaresky, Jerusalem, Palestine. Naturally our readers will wish to know something of her before entrusting her with business. We, therefore, state that we have in our possession a testimonial as to her entire reliability from Bishop Blythe, and this document is certified to as to its genuineness by Edwin S. Wallace, U. S. Consul at Jerusalem. The document bears the official seal of the United States. Mrs. Altaresky is the wife of a missionary.

OBSERVATIONS.

MR. EDITOR: After more than four years' absence, I have recently visited my children in North Louisiana, only one of whom is "according to the flesh," but three of them who are "my sons"—and daughters—"in the gospel," of whom I am proud, and whom I love as my own "kin according to the flesh."

A run from Boyce, via Shreveport and Gibbsland, to Homer brought me to the scenes of my first labors in Louisiana in 1877.

As I neared Homer I began to hear talk of "the Spring Lake Camp Meeting." About 4 miles south of that town, on the L. and N. W. R. R., there is a beautiful miniature lake covering, perhaps, one or two acres of land. On the plateau to the south of this lake is a commodious tabernacle and a few tents. Over the pulpit is the motto of the corporators: "Holiness Camp Meeting." I thought all camp meetings were holiness camp meetings—never heard nor read of one carried on for unholy purposes. Wonder why this particular one should assume to be more holy than others?

I saw Revs. J. M. Beard and F. D. Van Valkenburgh, formerly of the Louisiana Conference, M. E. Church, South. At the time of my presence there the only preacher beside those named was a Rev. Walker, whose accent of the "r" was of the regular Yankee roll. I took him to be quite a funny sort of man. He seemed so full of fun that there was not much room for anything else. Dr. Beard preached an interesting sermon the evening I was out to hear.

After a meeting of ten days the Methodists (who are members of the M. E. Church, South), together with a Presbyterian or two, got together and organized a circuit, composed of Monroe, Aroadia, Homer and Minden, and called to the pastorate of this new circuit Rev. J. M. Beard, who at present—I am told—is a local preacher in the Protestant Methodist Church.

It is due those who have gone into this new movement to say that most of them are of our very best people, and have not withdrawn from our church. The intention behind this concerted insubordination is, I am persuaded, good; but the error will surely crop out in the near future. Too much zeal is never "according to knowledge," and will always overreach the ends intended. Holiness is both a good thing and scriptural; but when holiness assumes an unheard-of policy to override an aged, well-tried, and God-honored policy, it is time to stop and think—and pray.

The doctrine of holiness is preached in all our pulpits by all our pastors, and nothing more than technical differences can be had by going elsewhere. God has greatly honored our ministry, and the wise will stay with it. Truly yours,

J. A. PARKER.

GRENADA COLLEGE.

At this writing, Sept. 10, the quarantine is very rigid at Grenada; but the infected district is over 40 miles away in one corner of Lafayette county. The fever has been kept strictly confined to the infected section, not more than 10 miles square, and has now nearly run its course for the want of material. There has not been, and is not now, any fever in Water Valley, and twelve days have elapsed since the place was quarantined. Dr. Gant and other health officers, in position to know, are confident that there will be no further spread. The sanitary condition of Grenada is almost perfect, and the town is remarkably healthy. In my travels during the Summer I have found no place so nearly free from all kinds of sickness. The reports are so favorable that I feel confident that the quarantine will be raised, except against the infected district, in time for the college to open, as published, on Sept. 21. If in the next few days I should find travel still obstructed, I will give each patron due notice for a later opening. J. W. MALONE,
Pres. Grenada College.

BLUE MOUNTAIN FEMALE COLLEGE.

In spite of the quarantines and fever excitement we brought our girls through, without exposure or trouble, and opened our twenty-sixth session with the usual local patronage and 104 boarders. On account of the yellow-fever scare many failed to come. We do not wish them to try to come now; but just as soon as the situation will permit we will arrange for them to come. The girls are well and happy, and are perfectly safe here. No one at Bine Mountain has been to or passed through a suspected point. Every precaution will be taken by us and our village officials. We have fine prospects for a prosperous session. But for the fever scare we would have had the largest opening in the history of the college. LOWREY & BERRY.

EPWORTH COLLEGE OPENING POSTPONED.

In view of the prevalence and possible spread of yellow fever, the quarantine regulations, etc., we deem it advisable to postpone the opening of Epworth College until the fever excitement abates. We will open as early as the circumstances will justify, and all pupils, patrons, and teachers will be duly notified. We have incurred a heavy expense during the Summer; have repaired the college buildings thoroughly, advertised liberally, and have traveled many miles in canvassing, and we trust that our friends and patrons will not forsake us and turn aside to some other school pending this misfortune to us. We will make good all losses, and will give a full session's work.

Trusting that the college will feel no lack of loyalty on the part of its patrons and friends, I am,

Yours respectfully,
E. T. KEETON.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To the Members of the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences:

For forty years I have been a pastor in the Mississippi Conference, having entered the work in November, 1857. The Lord has blessed me in this service, but I am growing old, and still have several children whose education is not complete. Our Conference is well supplied with younger men, and still they come. Under the circumstances, I have consented to take charge of one of the boarding houses at Millsaps College (Williams Hall). We can accommodate twenty five, or more, boarders. We propose to give them the best of care, and make the house a "home" to them in the best sense of the word We have long tried to maintain a Christian home of the purest type in which to rear our own children, and we will spare no pains to keep the standard high for the benefit of the young gentlemen who may be intrusted to our care. At present address me at Carthage, Miss.

IF YOU KNEW.

BY CARLETON EMERSON FNELL.

If you knew the dreadful story of that sparkling cup you're draining,
How it drags a man from virtue down to dark perdition's brink,
Yes, and wrecks his brain and body, leaves no trace of good remaining—
You would never dare to touch a drop of the accursed drink.

If you knew the crime it genders, how it makes a man a devil,
How it prompts to deeds of evil such as mind could hardly think,
If you knew the sickening scenes that mark the drunkard's midnight revel—
I know you'd never touch a drop of the accursed drink.

If you knew the grief, the anguish, if you heard the bitter crying
Of the piteous pleading hearts now doomed in black despair to sink—
As you saw that host of victims on rum's bloody altar dying,
You'd swear to never touch a drop of the accursed drink.

If you knew how many souls were hasting on to woes infernal,
If you know how hell rejoiced as each form staggers o'er the brink—
You would pledge your sacred honor at the throne of the Eternal
That you'd never, never stain your soul with the accursed drink.

God forgive the man or woman who by thoughtless word or doing
Dares uphold the glittering wine cup! Let that man or woman think
That he who thus approveth hath become with guilt accruing
A partaker in the evil of the soul-destroying drink.

PRESIDENT FAURE, OF FRANCE.

H. S. Morrison, a lad of seventeen, having secured a position as a contributor for Success, has traveled considerably in Europe. He obtained recently an interview with Felix Faure, the President of France, an account of which he gives in the following words:

He came into the room unexpectedly, but I knew him at once, from his pictures. He held out his hand and his greeting was most pleasant. "I am very glad, indeed, to see you. You have come a long, long way to see me"—and he laughed, pleasantly. The President, to my astonishment, spoke English with scarcely any French accent,—a somewhat remarkable thing.

"Yes," I said, replying to his greeting, "I have come a long way, but I do not consider that I have traveled in vain, since you have been good enough to see me."

"O, I am always glad to see American people, and especially young people," he added. "I have always had a great admiration for the Americans I have met over here in Paris, though of course I have not seen them at home."

"American boys are very energetic, aren't they?" "Yes," I replied; "but I don't believe they're any more clever than French boys, who sometimes work their way to the very top from the very bottom."

The President laughed. "You mean me, don't you?" he said.

"Yes, sir. And I should be so glad if you would tell me something about how you happened to rise in such a remarkable way."

"Well, in the first place,"—and M. Faure settled himself in his chair for a long talk,—"it didn't happen. It wasn't by any mere chance that I have become President of the Republic, but it was accomplished only by years of hard and faithful labor. You will find, as you grow older and move along in the path you have chosen for yourself, that nothing that amounts to much is accomplished in any other way than by hard work. At least, that is the case in France, and I don't see why it should be different in America. As I suppose you know, I was an apprentice in a tannery at Havre, when only a boy of fourteen. I had to go to work at an early age, you see, and I have worked ever since. I worked in that tannery for several years, doing my best to learn and advance myself. Finally, I grew skillful enough to earn wages, and a part of those wages I placed in the bank every week, even if it were only a franc. A franc a week, you know, will make a great many Napoleons in time. After a few years, my employer was so much pleased with me that he gave me a partnership in the business, which I was able to pay for with the francs I had laid by week by week. A short time afterwards my old employer died, leaving the entire business to me. So much for my business and money-making! You must know that all the time I was working so hard in the tannery, I had little or no opportunity to learn to read and write; so that, when I became the owner of the business, I could barely keep my books. I used to be obliged to keep a secretary the whole time, though I might have done his work with ease had I been capable.

"Being proprietor then, and no longer a workman, I had much more time for study, and I immediately began to school myself in every branch of learning, with the result that I can now speak several languages, and feel equal to almost any mathematical problem. My wealth and learning gave me an opportunity to become member for Havre in the Chamber of Deputies; and, after several terms in that body, I was elected President of the Republic. So there you have my whole career in a nutshell!

"You and every other boy can do the same, but it takes grit and hard work, and perseverance, and that's what so many men haven't got. But perseverance can be cultivated, too. Some boys don't seem to have a desire to accomplish great things. When I was a boy, the example of Napoleon and our other great Frenchmen gave a constant inspiration to me. I could never read enough about their lives, and the things to which they attributed their success. And I never read of one of them who thought he had risen by anything else than hard work and perseverance.

"There is no such thing as luck in the world. What people call luck has been accomplished by that same hard work I have been telling you about. It is only a way lazy people have of excusing themselves for not having accomplished as much as their neighbors, and it is a poor excuse, indeed.

"It is the duty of every man to make the most of himself, and not the least, and we should never rest on our oars while we have strength left to push ourselves along. Do you suppose that I shall now retire and enjoy myself, because I have been President? No, indeed; I propose to work as long as I am able, serving myself and the world at the same time, for it is possible to do that, you know. Young men shouldn't get the idea that, because they are to serve the world, they must give up all thought of their own future. Serving the world means making the most of your opportunities, be they ever so small, and always looking upward. You can not look too high."

THE BRAVEST THING.

I am asked to record the bravest thing done within my immediate knowledge in the Civil War. On mature reflection, passing by some hairbreadth escapes, I should award the palm to something done by a young assistant surgeon of mine, not quite twenty-one years old, Dr. Thomas T. Miner, then of Hartford, Conn. It was at an exceedingly convivial supper-party of officers at Beaufort, S. C., to which a few of my younger subalterns had been invited. I saw them go with some regret, since whisky was rarely used in my regiment, and I had reasons to think that it would circulate pretty freely at this entertainment. About Dr. Miner I had no solicitude, for he never drank it. Later I heard from some of the other officers present what had happened.

They sat late, and the fun grew fast and furious, the songs sung becoming gradually of that class which Thackeray's Colonel Newcome did not approve. Some of the guests tried to get away, but could not; and those who attempted it were required to furnish in each case a song, a story, or a toast. Miner was called upon for his share, and there was a little hush as he rose up. He had a singularly pure and boyish face, and his manliness of character was known to all. He said: "Gentlemen, I can not give you a song or a story, but I will offer a toast, which I will drink in water, and you shall drink as you please. That toast is, Our Mothers."

Of course, an atom of priggishness or self-consciousness would have spoiled the whole suggestion. No such quality was visible. The shot told; the party quieted down from that moment, and soon broke up. The next morning no less than three officers from different regiments rode out to my camp, all men older than Dr. Miner and of higher rank, to thank him for the simplicity and courage of his rebuke. It was from them I first learned what had happened. Anyone who has much to do with young men will admit, I think, that it cost more courage to do what he did than to ride up to the cannon's mouth.—Col. T. W. Higginson, in Chicago Inter-Ocean.

THE IDEAL HOME.

The ideal home is the one that ministers to the needs of all those who make it. It is the place where sympathy, interest, intelligent understanding of even the moods of its circle, inspiration, and, above all, repose, are found. The ideal home ministers intelligently to the needs of the spiritual and intelligent nature, as well as the physical. Its development unto perfection depends on the combined efforts of its responsible members. The ideal home was never attained by the efforts of one, but by the co-operation of all. This does not mean that each shall fit himself into a mold. A perfect home is like a perfect mosaic, where each part, with its individual difference, fits in its place to make the perfect design. The corner-stone of the ideal home is love; it is love that is its life; love is its inspiration, its defense, its crown of victory. Sorrow, defeat, shame itself, are vanished where love has its perfect work. "O world, where is thy sting? O poverty, where is thy victory?" is the pæan of him who is sheltered in the love that makes the ideal home.—Nashville Advocate.

TROUBLES WHICH NEVER REACHED ME.

He was an old man, and on his death-bed, so the story runs, and thus addressed his sons: "I have had a great deal of trouble in my life, but most of it never happened." It was a clergyman of Virginia who thus addressed his congregation, one Sunday morning: "I declare unto you, brethren, the sharpest troubles I ever had were those which never reached me." Other folk beside the clergy can deliver like testimony. Most people will anticipate, get into fanciful moods, imagine with great and sore imaginations what will happen, and thereby get into the sorrows. They will do it, and there is no help. Real troubles, and we have no God on our side; imaginary trials, and we have God on our side. What such need is a little wisdom and a little faith, and troubles of this kind will not so much as pay them a visit!—Southern Churchman.

EDUCATION AND HEALTH.

My one grumble in life is that while we are advancing at last in the matter of technical education in so far as trades are concerned, we linger and lag in the matter of health-teaching, that most vital of all subjects; and thus far we fall short of the ideal of national education. What are the opportunities for the average man or woman to acquire a training in the laws and practice of health? Is the subject taught in schools? Is it made a compulsory and essential part of ordinary education—this vital knowledge which teaches us how to live long and to live happily? Does "the man in the street" know the composition of the air he breathes; or does he appreciate the functions of his skin? How many cultured people know anything about the germ theory of disease, or what the difference is between infection in typhoid fever and infection in typhus? Does the householder know what is meant by an intercepting trap, or that he is liable to acquire disease if, in the absence of proper drainage, his house is only a continuation of the sewers? It seems to me that we utterly neglect these things in our teaching, and yet on our knowledge of them depends our very existence. Truly does Spencer say that in education we allow the ornamental to supplant the useful; and he is equally sarcastic and forcible when he remarks that it is small comfort to a mother whose first-born has died of the sequelæ of scarlet fever, to reflect that she can read Dante in the original.

If it be admitted that of all knowledge that which enables us to live long in the land is the most precious, why is the teaching of health not made compulsory in every school in the land? I would allow no boy or girl to leave school without being taught the laws of health, plainly and soundly expounded, and based on the knowledge, equally plainly illustrated, of the simple facts of physiology. I taught physiology and health in schools for years, and I experienced no difficulty whatever in interesting boys and girls in their physiology lessons. You arm them for the world's sanitary dangers and pitfalls in this way, and at least give them the chance of living healthily and well. To-day most of us maintain our health more as a matter of accident than as one of good guidance. Strange is it to reflect, that if we desire to know the facts of, say, astronomy, we are willing to study at least a primer of the science. We know the knowledge we desire will not come to us save as the result of study. But with health, a far more vital thing for everybody than a knowledge of the starry heavens, the matter is only one of luck. If we happen to be healthy born and to escape disease, good and well—if we fall ill, well, it is simply our fate in the game of life, and there is an end of it. I would make all this apathy about health impossible, by teaching the young that to live long and healthy means applying a little knowledge to the affairs of our daily existence; and I say, I would begin with the school, for there you find the mind receptive, and the soil ready for the good seed to be sown therein, such as will bring forth fruit an hundredfold. Well may thinking people approve of such sentiments, when they consider the profit likely to accrue from the establishment of health-knowledge as a permanent subject in our educational curriculum everywhere.

There are many voices pleading to us for culture and for education—voices that seek to make the world better and brighter and happier all round; but it is surely the comely Hygeia that, amid the Babel of tongues to-day, entreats us to heed her counsels, speaking to us with a sweeter voice and a purer tone than all the rest.—Andrew Wilson, in The Humanitarian, London.

OBITUARIES.

Obituaries of 200 words published free. For all words in excess of that number send one cent per word.

TAYLOR—Mrs. CORNELIA TAYLOR was born Sept. 20, 1853, and went away to be with God, Aug. 11, 1898. She was married to Mr. George Taylor, January, 1880, by Rev. J. W. Medlock. She joined the M. E. Church at an early age, in which she lived true until death, and was constant in attendance upon the preaching of the Word. She will be sadly missed at her church—Blocker's Chapel. Her pastor has lost as true a friend as ever a preacher had. Her home was the home of the preachers, and many have found joy and comfort in her hospitable home. She was loved by all who knew her. A devoted mother, a loving companion, a good woman has gone

"Where the winter of death will give place to life's spring,
When the ransomed ones enter the courts of their King,
And walk by the river that flows where the light
Is dimmed by no winter, where death can not blight."

She was conscious until the last. Just before she died her oldest son asked her if she could see Jesus. She bowed her head for yes, and sweetly passed away. O glorious thought that Jesus will lead his children through life, and to death he sweetly comes and bears their spirit to his eternal home.

She leaves a devoted husband, five children, a host of relatives and friends, to mourn her departure. We feel our loss is so great since one so good, useful and noble has been taken. A home that was once so happy is now sad and lonely, because mama is not there. But, cheer up, loved ones; we can meet her again. She's now with the angels before the white throne,
There waiting in glory to welcome her own.

ONE THAT LOVED HER.

HINES—Whereas, It has pleased God to remove from earth our beloved friend and co-laborer, Bro. H. H. HINES, who was for more than twenty years the efficient secretary of our Sunday-school; therefore, be it

Resolved, That while we are deeply bereaved in the death of our friend, we submit humbly to the will of our Lord concerning him, confidently believing that he has only been called to exchange "the pen for the palm," the toilsome service of earthly life for the higher service of God in heaven.

Resolved, That in the death of Bro. Hines the church has lost a tried and useful officer, his family a kind and loving husband and father, and the community a citizen who, in all the relations of life, lived "in the faith that makes the faithful."

Resolved, That we will cherish the memory of our dear friend as a precious possession, and strive to emulate him in the practice of those virtues which made his life so pure and beautiful.

Resolved, That we hereby express our deep sympathy with the bereaved family, and pray that the comforting love of our Savior in their's always, and that a copy of these resolutions be furnished them, and also to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication. R. S. RICKETTS, for Com.

WHARTON GREEN, Sec'y.

STRINGFELLOW—Dr. JOSEPH S. STRINGFELLOW was born near Okolona, Chickasaw county, Miss., Nov. 30, 1854. He was united in holy wedlock to Mrs. Joana Cell in Holmes county, March 3, 1883. He began the practice of medicine in 1876, in which profession he made a great success. At his death he held a regular practice in about one hundred families. He was a good, faithful, sympathetic physician, always ready to go to relieve the suffering, and never refusing either poor or rich when it was possible for him to reach them. He was a good citizen, a kind father, and devoted husband. He was converted about thirteen years ago, and joined the M. E. Church, South, under the pastorate of Rev. N. O. Augustus, in which he lived an acceptable member till the day of his death. He died in his home about fourteen miles north of Belzoni, Aug. 23, 1898. The funeral services were held at his home. A loving wife and three bright children are the family relatives left to mourn their loss. The writer feels that a personal friend has gone to heaven, as among his last words he said, "Safe in the arms of Jesus." J. H. BASS, Pastor.

WILLIAMSON—Whereas, The spirit of our beloved friend and sister, Mrs. J. C. WILLIAMSON, loosed from the bonds of flesh, has gone to its eternal home, and we shall claim her no more among mortals; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Ladies' Aid Society of Pleasant Hill M. E. Church, that while we are sad and bowed down in our bereavement, yet we look up and receive consolation in recognizing the loving hand of Providence in our dear sister's taking away.

Resolved, That we realize fully the loss our society, the church and community have sustained in losing her; yet, when we cast aside all selfishness, we willingly bear it, feeling that it was with her as with Paul, "To me to live is Christ, and to die is gain."

Resolved, That three copies of these resolutions be made, and one be sent to the family of the deceased, one to the county paper, and one to the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Pleasant Hill, Miss.

MORRISON—Whereas, It has pleased the Grand Master of the universe, in his infinite wisdom, to take from our midst our beloved brother, GEORGE MORRISON; And, whereas, We recognize in Bro. Morrison a Christian man, a true friend, a zealous Mason, and a good citizen; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Pine Bluff Lodge No. 428, A. F. and A. M., that the M. E. Church has lost a good brother and a zealous minister of the gospel, and that we recommend to the living the Christian character of our departed, so that when the Grand Master of the universe shall call us before his divine presence, that the trestle-board of our lives may meet his divine approval, and that we may hear the glad and welcome tidings that only come to those that remain faithful to the end, "Enter into the joys of the Lord."

DEAFNESS CAN NOT BE CURED
by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result; and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free

A COURAGEOUS PREACHER.

The Rev. W. H. Milburn, the "blind chaplain," has served for years at different periods as chaplain of the Congress of the United States. He is almost totally blind. His first appointment as chaplain is interesting, and shows that boldness for truth has its reward.

It was in 1845. He had been a "circuit preacher" for about two years, preaching nearly every day in the week and three times on Sunday, riding in the saddle two or three hundred miles each month to keep his appointments. At this time he was sent on a journey from St. Louis to Wheeling, Va. The journey was made by boat. On board were a number of congressmen on their way to Washington. The young preacher was shocked to discover that many of the nation's representatives "swore outrageously, played cards day and night, and drank whisky to excess."

Sunday came before the end of the journey was reached. The young minister was invited to preach. He gladly consented, as he had longed for an opportunity to speak his mind. At the close of the discourse he turned to the congressmen, who occupied seats of honor on his right and left, and, amid intense silence, trembling with emotion, said: "I understand you are members of the Congress of the United States, and, as such, you are, or should be, the representatives, not only of the political opinions, but also of the intellectual, moral and religious condition of the people of this country. . . . If I am to judge the nation by you, I can come to no other conclusion than that it is composed of profane swearers, card-players and drunkards. . . . Consider the influence of your example upon the young men of the nation—what a school of vice you are helping to keep up. If you insist upon the right of ruining yourselves, do not, by your example, corrupt and debauch those who are the hope of the land. I must tell you that, as an American citizen, I feel disgraced by your behavior; as a preacher of the gospel, I am commissioned to tell you that unless you renounce your evil courses, repent of your sins, and believe upon the Lord Jesus Christ with your hearts unto righteousness, you will certainly be damned."

The brave young preacher went to his room, thought over what he had said, and determined to stand by his words, and abide the consequences. It was in the days of stern action, and the young man knew not what the result would be. Just then there was a tap on his cabin door, and a gentleman entered, who said: "I have been requested to wait on you by the members of Congress on board, who have had a meeting since the close of your sermon. They desire me to present you this purse (handing him between fifty and a hundred dollars) as a token of their appreciation of your sincerity and fearlessness in reproving them. They have also desired me to ask if you will allow your name to be used at the opening election of chaplain to Congress. If you will consent to this, they are ready to assure you an honorable election."

In a few days Congress met, and, as a reward for his loyalty to truth, the blind preacher was elected as chaplain of the Congress of the United States.—Young People's Union.

It was said of an old Puritan that "heaven was in him before he was in heaven." That is necessary for all of us; we must have heaven in us before we get into heaven. If we do not get to heaven before we die, we shall never get there afterward. An old Scotchman was asked if he ever expected to go to heaven. "Why, man, I live there," was the quaint reply. Let us all live in those spiritual things which are the essential features of heaven. Often go there before you go to stay there.—Exchange.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

President McKinley is experiencing difficulty in procuring men of prominence to serve on the committee to investigate the conduct of the war.

The American army chaplains have instituted Protestant services in private buildings in Manila. Such services have never previously been held in the history of the Philippine Islands.

The American Tract Society has 400 publications in the Spanish language, and intends to put a Spanish primer and Testament in the hands of every Cuban family as soon as things are more settled.

General "Joe" Wheeler has accepted an invitation to deliver an address before an Atlanta audience for the benefit of the Atlanta Relief Association, whose good work for the sick and wounded has achieved widespread recognition.

The Chicago school census has just been taken. It gives a total population by races, as well as the school population. The figures presented in the Times-Herald show the following as to nationalities: Germans, 490,542; Irish, 248,142; Swedes, 111,190; Poles, 96,853.

The post-mortem examination of the remains of the late Empress of Austria, who was assassinated on Saturday last by an Italian anarchist, has revealed that the weapon completely transfixed the heart, penetrating three and one-third inches, and making a wound one-sixth of an inch wide.

President McKinley has so far heeded the voice of public opinion that he has decided to order an investigation of the blunders of the War Department. All that will be said is that Secretary Alger has asked for such an investigation.

Russell Sage, the New York millionaire, is connected with twenty-seven corporations, in which there are forty-three railroads. He is the only living original director of the New York Central Railroad, and the only living founder of the Fifth Avenue Bank. He has stood a cash run on himself in hard times of $9,000,000 in one day.

A proposition is being considered to call at Chicago, about Nov. 16 next, a convention or congress on the subject of the Nicaragua Interoceanic Canal. The object of the convention is to secure legislation by the United States Congress to the end that the canal may be constructed, controlled and operated under the authority of the United States.

One of the big questions of the week, which will receive the consideration of the President and his advisers, will be the organization of the army for the occupation of Cuba. It has been practically decided to have three military departments, forming one grand military division, with a major-general of the regular army in command, who will perform the duties of military governor.

The investigation to be made of the War Department by the committee will be broad enough to cover the entire conduct of the war and to get at the bottom of all charges of inefficiency and neglect that have been made. It is not to be confined to the complaints concerning the condition of the troops in the camps in the United States, but is to cover the administration of the army in the field as well in Cuba, Porto Rico and Manila.

Now that the Peace Commission, which is to frame a treaty between the United States and Spain, has been named on the American side, the possibilities of the treaty furnish an interesting subject for speculation. The only part of the programme which remains unsettled is the probable disposal of the Spanish East India Islands. It is generally understood that the United States will demand Porto Rico as a permanent possession, and that Cuba shall be made free and independent.

Lord Wolseley, commander-in-chief of the British army, recently celebrated his sixty-fifth birthday, and is still of extraordinary activity and youthfulness, both in appearance and character. Apropos of the canteen question, which has been troubling some of our army officials, he is opposed to the system, and declares that for fighting there is nothing like tea. He himself practices what he preaches in this respect, for he has been a total abstainer for the greater part of his life.

The announcement that Admiral Dewey considers the situation critical at Manila, and has asked for an additional cruiser and battle-ship, is significant. The Philippines are going to be the subject and the scene of very serious troubles. Either Spain will refuse to surrender them, and may, if it has not already been done, give Germany a mortgage on them, or is hoping for some sort of foreign intervention should the United States claim the islands.

The Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks of the United States Navy has advertised for bids for the construction of a naval dry dock at Algiers, La. Proposals will be received at the bureau until 1 o'clock P. M., Monday, Oct. 31. By the act of Congress the limit of the cost of the entire work is $850,000. This is to be a combined floating and graving steel dock, with shore connections and all appurtenances complete. It is to be capable of lifting vessels of 15,000 tons displacement and 27 feet draft of water.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

The Woman's Home Mission Society will observe Oct. 10-13 as a Week of Prayer and Self-Denial. The collections of the week will be devoted to the Cuban Mission School at Key West, Fla., for which $5,000 has been contingently pledged.

We respectfully ask our ministers to preach on the morning of Oct. 16 the annual home mission sermon. A Cuban Mission program for the night service has been prepared by Miss Mary W. Bruce.

To this especial Cuban program we call the attention of the Epworth Leagues, and other young peoples' organizations throughout our church, asking them to use the Sunday evening program, and contribute to this cause. Copies of this program can be obtained, free of cost, by applying to Mrs. R. K. Hargrove, West Nashville, Tenn.

All contributions should be sent to Mrs. W. D. Kirklund, 2301 West End avenue, Nashville, Tenn., stating specifically that it is for the Key West School.

MRS. R. K. HARGROVE, Gen. Sec.

THE ALUM HEART.

Many people are suffering from some form of heart disease who have no idea of the cause of it.

Any disturbance of the digestive organs affects the heart's action, and therefore every food which interferes with digestion is responsible where there are troubles of this character.

It has been discovered that the use of baking powder made from burnt alum coagulates the blood very rapidly, which interferes with its free flow through the arteries and valves of that organ. Formerly alum was used as a specific for children's croup, but owing to its tendency from causes named to produce heart failure, physicians no longer employ it.

In face of such facts, and in view of the overwhelming testimony of scientists as to the poisonous character of this drug when used for food purposes, can there be any excuse for the ignorance or unconcern which permits anyone to take from the grocer a package of alum baking powder, simply for the sake of saving a few cents in price?

It is a healthful sign that many States are limiting by law the sale of the alum baking powder. Very soon it will be prohibited in all States, or treated as a poison, as it should be. But for such laws, how are the alum powders to be known by consumers?

Where alum powders are not branded as such, nor their sale prohibited by law, it is better to avoid the use of any new or doubtful brand until it has been analyzed. The purity of all powders may be suspected if they are sold at a price lower than the price of the best standard brands. We know the Royal to be a first-class cream of tartar powder, and if consumers insist upon having that brand, they will be sure of a pure, healthful article. In view of a recently reported case of poisoning of a whole family living near Logansport, Indiana, from the use of alum powder, it behooves everyone to use extraordinary care in purchasing their supplies. We do not hesitate to recommend the Royal to all who are in doubt as to the powder they have been using, as the United States Government tests placed that brand at the head of all the tartrate powders.

PREJUDICE RUN MAD.

Nearly four years ago an officer of the French army was accused of selling plans of French fortifications to an agent of a foreign government. He was tried by a court-martial, behind closed doors, found guilty, and sentenced to life imprisonment on an island off the coast of French Guiana. All the incidents of the trial were worthy of the days of the Inquisition. The officer was a Jew. It has never been denied that he owed his conviction more to that fact than to any evidence against him. Less than two months ago the Secretary of War made a statement to the French Chamber of Deputies to the effect that he had discovered the one scrap of evidence needed to remove all question of the guilt of Dreyfus. The Chamber, by a practically unanimous vote, placed its seal upon the verdict. That was supposed to put an end to the matter. Last week it was discovered that this scrap of evidence was forged. All France has been thrown into a frenzy, and there is no doubt but that the government will be compelled to have the case re-tried with open doors. Guilty or innocent, the whole course of the French Government is the most flagrant disregard of all the principles of equity that has ever disgraced a modern nation.—Zion's Herald.

CHURCH DEDICATION.

The new Methodist Church in Magnolia, Miss., will be dedicated Sunday, Sept. 18, 1898. Rev. W. C. Black, D. D., editor of NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, will preach the dedicatory sermon, 11 A. M., after which the beautiful, commodious and convenient house of worship will be formally dedicated according to the ritual of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Dr. Black will preach again at 8 P. M. Daily services will continue in the new church.

J. A. B. JONES, Pastor.

LONG BEACH, MISS.

At this place we held a meeting from Aug. 14 to 21, inclusive. Heat and moisture interfered with fullest attendance. Some sickness had same influence. Bro. C. F. Emery, of Biloxi, did the preaching. His sermons presented the gospel in a strong and attractive light. The people were well pleased and edified. Socially, he was very pleasing to all, and specially to the young. We all owe him a debt of gratitude. Two dear lambs came fully into the fold of Christ, while all who attended were built up and made stronger.

Quarantine, etc., has prevented our holding any protracted service at "the Bay." We wait the opening of Providence.

NOTICE.

To the Preachers of the Opelousas District, Louisiana Conference, M. E. Church, South—

DEAR BRETHREN: As we will soon commence the fourth round of Quarterly Conferences, I wish to call your special attention to the statistics to be reported at the next Annual Conference. Be sure and get a new Discipline, so that you may be right in your reports. We have (besides the statistics of last year) to report indebtedness on parsonage, number of churches damaged or destroyed, amount of damage, insurance carried, premiums paid, losses sustained, collections on same; Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, Woman's Home Mission Society, amount collected for other purposes by Sunday-school. By careful attention to this matter we will have our statistical table correct when published. I hope every preacher will write to Barbee & Smith, and get the proper statistical blanks, and have them ready by the first of December, and mail me a copy. Please don't wait for the meeting of the Conference.

H. O. WHITE, P. E.

"That night," said President McKinley, in conversation with a Pittsburg gentleman, "after the day's duties were over, I was talking with Mrs. McKinley about our wonderful successes and God's evident participation in them. We then dropped on our knees and thanked God. Arising, I thought how many thousands there must be in the United States whose minds were turned in the same direction; and I sat down and wrote the Thanksgiving proclamation."—Exchange.

WIEN AND WEIN.

MR. EDITOR: I wonder how many readers of the ADVOCATE could guess the difference between the two words that make my caption. If it were not for the pity I feel for those who suffer the sultry heat of our August sunshine, I should put the riddle at a venture; but since it's too warm for such serious business as cutting Gordian knots and cracking hard-shell chestnuts, I'll let the secret out—if any there be.

In my college days, when I came within range of the stentorian voice of the German professor, and the attempt was made to drill a hole in the adamantine thickness of my brain-box sufficiently large enough to let in the idea that "ie" is "ee" and "ei" is "ii," I took it as a matter of course that there was a huge difference between "veen" and "vine," as these two words are pronounced; but now that I have been intimately associated with both of them for four full days, it seems as if that seeming difference has well-nigh disappeared, and the two words are practically synonymous. If any difference exists, it is one of relative import merely, and may be expressed on this wise: the people inhabit "veen," and "vine" inhabits the people; or better, perhaps: here men live in "veen" and on "vine." In fact, I don't see why the King's sagacious Society of Solomons—if he is so unfortunate as to possess one—doesn't come together and pass a decree abolishing all necessity for any difference in the spelling in these two words. 'Twould save a deal of pen-scratching—and head-scratching, too—for us who have to whisper the rule over ere we can make the transposition successfully.

Why, the other night I saw what purported to be a representation of the industries of Vienna, and fully nine-tenths of the program was devoted to the exaltation of the goddess of grape-juice. But there's more than wine in Vienna—there's some beer. For a wonder, it hasn't all been gulped down yet. Day and night the numerous cafes and beer-halls are filled, people—men, women, children—coming and going, swilling and swizzing at a rate truly astonishing. The wonder shifts into admiration as you behold the colossal capacity of these peripatetic tanks; so much so that Bacchus on a beer-keg would, it seems to me, be an abundantly sufficient substitute for the present elaborate coat-of-arms of this imperial city.

But not everything is liquid here; there are some solids, in the shape of the most imposing public buildings I've seen anywhere. The Rathhaus, the Reichsraths building, the University of Vienna, and, overtopping all in magnificence, the Royal Palace, are monuments in marble and granite to the artistic sense and architectural skill of Austrian workmen. Many gardens, and statues of famous poets and heroes, give a refreshing novelty to the eye unaccustomed to anything save the unceasing monotony of mortar and brick.

More than this, Vienna is a great centre for students by reason of her great museums, and the attention here paid to art in all its forms. Her opera houses vie with those of Paris, while among her treasures of painting and sculpture she counts many of the masterpieces of the world. Here it is that marble has spoken most forcibly to me, at least, and it did so because, touched by the master-hand of Canova in his celebrated "Theseus and the Centaur," it expressed the transcendent superiority of calm and confident wisdom over all the array that mere brute force could summon.

Marie Theresa—a name that will go down in history coupled for goodness and true greatness with Victoria's—is, of course, a central figure in the history of Austria. A great bronze statue of her has its place in a large and beautiful park of flowers and graded drives, flanked on each side by a great building of granite. These are gift of the present king, and are both museums—one of painting and sculpture, the other of natural history; one showing what man has made, the other—to some extent, at least—telling the story of what has made man. In the latter, especially, I have spent many an instructive and inspiring hour. Here are gathered the finest specimens of all forms of existence—a veritable epitome of creation arranged in orderly series, and giving a bird's-eye view of that one divine intent that started with a molecule of mud and was not satisfied till it had culminated in the mind of man. On the ground floor are all the forms that the mineral kingdom can boast, among some of which I met old friends in the shape of meteor stones from Pennsylvania, and still nearer home—Arkansas. "There was no speech nor language," yet, as I looked upon them here in the heart of Europe, they seemed to tell me tidings that brought cheer to my heart and a gladsome "How are you, old fellows; when did you come from America?" to my lips. They must have been the kind of stones that have sermons in them, I reckon. I've heard "rocky" discourses a-plenty, but never before one of such soothing sweetness. The novelty was refreshing, I assure you. The animal kingdom is, of course, on a different and a higher floor. All the acumen of the ages has not been able to reduce these two spheres of being to the same plane. The great gap has not been bridged, even by the scions of modern science; and as I climbed the stairway separating the dead crystal from the living cell, my inward thought was: "This is not a connection, but a chasm—a chasm ever yawning and teaching, by its mysterious depths and infinite width, the greatness and glory of Him who spanned it with a breath!"

It was my good fortune to stumble on an exposition of huge proportions going on here. This is the jubilee year of the king, and the celebration of this occasion is on a scale commensurate with regal splendor. The great time here is night; or, rather, it is not night, as all the gloom of darkness is dispelled by such a glare of gorgeousness as to well-nigh force one to buy blue goggles; arches and stars and electrical fountains all galore, enough to make the aurora borealis turn green with envy, and anything less than the rainbow blush for shame.

But, speaking of light, reminds me that it is getting dark, and in the hotels in Europe tallow candles are extra; so, as I'm in seeing distance of the exposition grounds, I'll have to say good-night.

THOMAS CARTER.

Vienna, Aug. 27, 1898.

LETTER FROM MISS KEARNEY.

MR. EDITOR: It is gratifying to know that the time has come when women can be immortalized in stone and bronze and marble, and other material forms, as men have been throughout the centuries. During a recent visit to Albany, N. Y., I visited its magnificent capitol, which cost nothing less than twenty-five million dollars, and is still in a state of incompleteness. The stupendous structure has been in process of erection for many years, but the sound of workmen's tools is constantly breaking upon one's tympanum, and in many directions piles of debris greet the sight. On the sides of the superb stairway leading from the entrance there are standing out in fascinating picturesqueness the heads of Frances E. Willard, Susan B. Anthony, Clara Barton, and Mollie Pitcher, carved from solid granite and imbedded in the massive walls. Around in the niches above are the busts of authors, statesmen, musicians and heroes galore, but these four women's faces are projected clearly in great space, with no mass of ornamentation near to lessen the force of their uniqueness. It is suggestive of the nineteenth century, in which have blossomed the grandest types of womanhood that the world has ever known.

After two days spent in Schenectady, the scene of horrible Indian massacres in the days of the early history of New York, but now lying quiet and prosperous in the heart of the beautiful Mohawk Valley, I went to Lake George. This lovely body of water is the astonishment of all who visit it for the first time; primarily, on account of its vastness; secondly, for its surpassing beauty and grandeur of environment. It is a combination of Alaskan water-ways, Yellowstone Lake, and Lake Geneva; nothing more could be said. In one day the entire length of Lake George was compassed twice by a round trip. The steamer passed continually between superb mountains and numerous islands that line its shores and dot its surface. On the latter, and upon the mainland, there are tremendous hotels and charming Summer homes for the entertainment and enjoyment of those who have money enough to abide in those delectable spots.

Saratoga was in full bloom. The season was at its height when I was there. The swells were out in force, either driving in their handsome rigs of every pattern "under the sun;" betting on the races, both men and women; taking dinner at the hotels in town, or out in some sylvan retreat, where the bills run always into the hundreds for a single spread; or disporting themselves in other ways peculiar to swelldom. A friend of mine, while waiting for a train, was at the Grand Union Hotel, one of the fairy palaces of Saratoga, one afternoon, walking up and down a long gallery that looked out on the interior grounds of the court. A hireling of the place, who was filled with a consciousness of the importance of his office, walked up to her and said loftily: "You can't be allowed to promenade on this veranda beyond ten feet. At the other end are people who are paying $50 a day for the privilege of being quiet." I do not wonder that the poor of this nation have become hardened and desperate in the face of such wicked laviahment of money on the part of the careless rich, who seem to vie with each other in spending the greatest amount for the most trivial hobbies. Saratoga is called a village, but there are 30,000 people who live there all the year around. It has every appearance of a city. For a long time it lost its prestige with the aristocrats as a Summer resort, because it was taken possession of bodily by the rich Jews, who went there to splurge; but those men and women "without a country" were finally pushed to the wall, and later made an exodus to other blest (?) abodes. Now the upperteudom of millionaire Anglo-Saxonism have complete swing. The scenery around Saratoga is very tame, but the springs, for which the place is so famous, are priceless in their healing powers. These "wells of living water" are to be found all over the "village," while others are miles out in the country. They vary in their mineral properties and in the form of reaching their level. One gurgles up from a cone-shaped solid rock of generous proportions, one springs into the air like a geyser, while others gently force their way to the surface of the ground. It would take a specialist to describe their qualities.

Narragansett Pier is another of the very fashionable Summer resorts of the East. Here surf-bathing is the charm. It is a fine place in which to watch humanity in its gay and careless mood, and to philosophize on life. Between ten and twelve o'clock in the morning is the time for bathing; it is also the time for promenading. Down upon the wet, dirty, sandy planks in front of the bath-houses come the "four hundred" of many States; the ladies dressed in white and light-colored silks and white shoes, and the gentlemen in white flannel and duck. Down through the drip and the grime they come like figures in a show; the women raining an elegant dress each day, and the men growing more blase with each passing hour. When the first cool breath of September is felt baggage, private coaches, horses and servants are started off, and a stampede is made for the mountains. There another round of gaieties is entered upon of a different order until the Winter season in the cities opens. On and on they go, smiling and chatting, driving and dancing, sighing and dying. It is the same old story.

BISHOP KEENER DISSENTS.

MR. EDITOR: I wish to place upon record my views of the Publishing House claim, as I think they are in accord with the views of a large majority of the ministry and the membership of our church.

The war claim of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, upon the government for the use and damage of our Publishing House at Nashville by the United States Army was estimated at the sum of $458,400. This considerable claim will be understood when we remember that the Publishing House was held by the United States Army from 1863 to 1865, and was highly serviceable for the use of the Federal Government.

Very soon after the close of the war the claim for its use and damage was presented by our Publishing Committee, and has been steadily pursued until its recent payment by Congress. During the agencies of Dr. Abbey, of Dr. Redford, of McFerrin & Palmer, and of Barbee & Smith, the Publishing Committee have had the matter in hand, making different contracts with different parties as attorneys to look after and advance this claim, offering them liberal and generally conditional fees upon their success.

During this long period since the war it was for years virtually ignored by the government, until twenty years ago the Senate Committee (1878) brought in a report which said: "The sum of $288,000 would be, as we understand the proof, a less sum than was saved the treasury in the use of the material, machinery, houses and appliances of this great Publishing House. This sum is much below the lowest estimate of any of the witnesses as to the loss actually sustained by the claimants, and would not be adequate compensation if measured by such a standard." After so favorable a report it will scarcely be credited that the Senate took no further action for twenty years, looking to its allowance.

War claims have met with but little encouragement when coming from the South. This came from a church which was largely exponent in name and in fact of the Confederate side of the Civil War. We can not wonder that a Federal Congress should feel no enthusiasm in this direction, or that many members should oppose its allowance at every stage conscientiously, not to say bitterly. But it is the impossible that happens, both in war and in peace. The claim has been recognized by the three parties constituting the government Legislature—the House of Representatives, the Senate, and the President—upon its merits, and has been paid, and we have the money rightfully in hand.

The government could grant this relief only upon the merits of the claim. It had no eleemosynary right in the premises, nor was any sought at its hands, in its prosecution. It could have been invalidated by any fraud attempted by its attorney which looked to the merits of the claim. If, for instance, he, or anyone authorized to represent the Publishing Committee, should have stated to the Senate that this fund is to be distributed to all alike—to the Northern Church, to the Southern Church, to the Republicans, to the Democrats, to the Populists and Prohibitionists all alike. Such a statement would have been fatal as affecting the merits of the claim, because false. Any misstatement in that direction would, by its fraudulent intent, have vitiated the action which proceeded only upon the true merits of the claim.

The government acted justly at the last, which was all he asked; not mercifully, which we did not ask. There was no secrecy, no cause for any, between the senators and Messrs. Barbee & Smith. To all their inquiries it was told them that Mr. Stahlman was the representative of the Publishing Committee, and they were referred to him, and he was instructed to seek them. As Mr. Stahlman was for three years in and about the lobbies and halls of Congress, it was to be supposed that he was no stranger to the members of either House.

Messrs. Barbee & Smith were carefully examined by the Lodge Committee and fully exonerated of any attempt to bribe or seek personal advantage by the prosecution of the claim, as they have also been by the opinion of the Publishing Committee of the General Conference, before whom this entire matter was fully ventilated. And as they were upon the face of the whole matter almost unanimously re-elected to the office of Book Agents, their character for personal and commercial integrity must be maintained by the church and the episcopal college. Should they be forced to resign, or even allowed to, it would go down in history as a confession of fraud by the church and by its agents. The same conclusion would be the result of returning this money to the government. It has been long pursued and justly obtained, and we can not by action afford even to imply otherwise. I do not favor, therefore, any action looking that way, either by Bishops, Conferences, or Book Committee. I am most truly yours,

J. C. KEENER.

WHAT IS AN EDUCATION WORTH?

In spite of the general impression that college men are not as practical outside the learned professions as those who, from boyhood, have grown up in their vocations, there seems to be a growing demand for college-bred men and women.

The manager of one of the largest manufacturing concerns in the country recently told the writer that he always tries to get college men for his business, and would take no others, unless compelled by necessity. This man declares that college graduates learn his business much more rapidly; that they seem to comprehend the situation much more clearly; that their ability to adapt means to ends is much greater than that of others; and that their superior intelligence, broader views, and greater power of combination, give them a great advantage.

Many of the large establishments throughout the country prefer to employ college men, especially for foremen, superintendents, etc.

Rev. Dr. Charles F. Thwing, in his latest work, "The American College in American Life," refers to the increasing proportion of college-bred men in the professional, political and intellectual life of the country.

Forty-two of the fifty-six signers of the Declaration of Independence had a liberal education. Three of the five members who drafted the Declaration—Jefferson, Adams, and Livingston—were college-bred. Twenty-nine of the fifty-five men who composed the convention of 1787, which framed the Constitution, had a classical education. Three were educated at Harvard, four at Yale, nine at Princeton, five at William and Mary College, one at Oxford, and one at Glasgow. Edinburgh and Aberdeen were also represented. Sixteen of the thirty-two Speakers of the House of Representatives have been college men; twelve of the twenty-four Presidents of the United States have been liberally educated. Twenty-three of the thirty-six men who have filled the office of Secretary of State have been college graduates, and five others were in college for a longer or shorter period. The highest positions in the courts of the United States, or of individual States, are usually filled by college graduates. Every chief justice, except John Marshall, has been a college graduate, and Marshall was a student at William and Mary College till the outbreak of the Civil War. Two-thirds of the associate judges of the Supreme Court and two-thirds of the present Circuit Court judges are college graduates.

A large proportion of the members of the Cabinet have been liberally educated. It is interesting to note, however, that of President McKinley's Cabinet, only one member—Secretary Long—is a college graduate.

Bishop Vincent declared that, if his son were to be a blacksmith, he would send him to college.

The fact is, there are some things in the world worth more than money, and education is one of the most important.

What material advantage can compare with mental wealth? Who would not prefer to be an intellectual millionaire, or a large banker of character, rather than a mere hoarder of great treasures in silver and gold? Can anything else compare with the development of one's self? Can the gaining of money be favorably measured with the expansion of the intellectual powers, the unfolding of the soul's infinite possibilities? It seems sacrilegious to even suggest that a boy can make more money by going into business without devoting years to gaining an education. Those who advise this course evidently consider money as an end rather than as a means. It is the view of the miser rather than that of the character-builder.

There is no real success except in growth. He who has ceased to grow, to increase his individual wealth, has ceased to be successful, however many millions he may be able to count.

The success of an acorn is in becoming an oak. No other success is possible to it. But it is not to become a scrub oak; not an oak with a single branch, even if enormously developed; but a full-rounded, symmetrical oak, which will furnish not only shade and beauty of contour, but stalwart timber for a ship or a building.

Even a cobbler with a college education, we contend, would be infinitely better off than one without it, for the chances are that, with it, he will possess himself of books, periodicals, works of art, even though they be few and simple, and with other means of self-culture which he would not otherwise obtain.

Is a liberal education worth nothing to a farmer? Is it worth nothing to know the laws of chemic forces, to be able to analyze the soil, to know the laws of alternating crops, to be able to bring out the latent possibilities of apparently sterile land, to understand the laws of heredity in stock-raising, the possibilities of tree and vine?

Is it worth nothing to be able to look into the mysteries of nature, and to intelligently appreciate its marvelous beauties? Is it worth nothing to be able to read "books in the running brooks, sermons in stones, and good in everything?" What is wealth if this is not? Can anyone conceive of greater riches than an intellect well stored, well disciplined?—than a broad, deep, full-orbed soul?—Success.

THE CHARIOTEER.

BY AMOS R. WELLS.

O God, take the reins of my life!
I have driven it blindly to left and to right.
To mock of the rock, in the chasm's despite,
Where the brambles were rife,
In the blare of the sun and the deadliest black of the night.
O God, take the reins of my life!

For I am so weary and weak,
My hands are a quiver and so is my heart,
And my eyes are too tired for the tear-drops to start,
And the worn horses reek
With the anguishing pull and the hot, heavy harness's smart,
While I am all weary and weak.

But thou wilt be peace, wilt be power,
Thy hand on the reins and thine eye on the way
Shall be wisdom to guide and controlling to stay,
And my life in that hour,
Shall be led into leading and rest when it comes to obey;
For then wilt be peace and all power.

Now, Lord, without tarrying, now!
While eyes can look up and while reason remains,
And my hand has yet strength to surrender the reins,
Ere death stamp my brow
And pour coldness and stillness through all the mad course of my veins—
Come, Lord, without tarrying, now!

I yield thee my place; which is thine,
Appoint me to lie on the chariot floor;
Yea, appoint me to lie at thy feet, and no more,
While the glad axles shine,
And the happy wheels run on their course to the heavenly door—
Now thou hast my place, which is thine.

THOUGHTS ON EDUCATION.

Herbert Spencer, in his essay on this subject, which has had such a profound influence on modern methods, says, "To prepare us for complete living is the true function of education." The time-honored analyses of man into physical, mental and moral, is comprehensive, and must have, in order to his complete development, its counterpart in educational instrumentalities. In the gymnasium, the school, and the church, representative in their several departments, we have a sufficiently definite statement of the correlated energies looking to this full-orbed education. Right here there seems to be a good deal of misapprehension. The word "education" has become almost identified with the work of schools and colleges, and the moral evolution of mankind, as well as the effort to accomplish it, is measured by the work done in them. The church, whose sole aim is moral elevation, is put in the background. This is misleading, false, and unfair. It is like getting the circumference of a tree by measuring one of its branches. Let us not minimize the religious work of our colleges, but let us repudiate this slanderous idea that finds so large a place among us.

Each of these agencies is supreme in its own sphere, and there must be no intrusion upon this supremacy by either of the others. If there is, the result will be a misshapen man. When athletics trespass upon the province of study, the result is a physical giant, but a mental dwarf. No matter which of these agencies is the trespasser—the gymnasium, school, or church—the result of the intrusion will be a one-sided character. Develop the moral to the exclusion of the intellectual, and very likely a fanatic is your product.

* * * * * * *

One aim of education is to make a living. This is its first and most important object, if not its only one, with a great many of the people. They look upon it as simply a means of making money—a commodity exchangeable for gold. It is valued in dollars and cents. To fit a man to get on in the world is the lowest aim of education. The evolution of manhood—the drawing out of all native possibilities—is its highest and comprehensive end. To make a living is simply to secure the physical bases of life. Surely life does not end here, but is only begun. We do not live to eat, but we eat to live. The development of those powers which are rooted in the physical, to their greatest extent, so that man may correspond with the largest possible environment, and live the completest life, is education's ideal.

* * * * * * *

Many advocates of Christian education take the position that education (mental) apart from moral training is a positive evil—that it increases immorality and crime. I do not believe this. In fact, I believe the opposite. Education, even apart from moral teaching, decreases immorality and crime. Following are some reasons upon which I base this belief. (1) Idleness in youth is a prolific cause of lawlessness and crime. Education gives occupation and tends to cultivate habits of industry—hence it acts as a prophylactic. (2) Education by giving a legitimate means of making a living takes away from the so-called necessity of criminal practices to this end. It relieves the pressure of that environment which would influence a man to crime. The fact that one has this lawful means of livelihood is in itself an inducement away from illegitimate means. (3) Intellectual development is in harmony with God's purposes. Surely, God does not stultify himself by making increased immorality and crime a result of obedience to this implicit command. If it is contended that a man's aim may put this development in discord with God's purposes, as when he trains his body in order to a prize fight, I maintain that in general there are no ulterior or sinister motives prompting education. Children have no very definite purpose, if indeed they have any at all. They do not aim, but are aimed. (4) But you say, "Education increases power, and an educated criminal is more dangerous for this very reason." Certainly this is true, but it must be remembered that while education increases the power, it decreases the tendency to misuse that power. Educated criminals are rare as compared with illiterates. Now, I would not be misunderstood. I do not say that education will eliminate sin, that it is regenerative; but that its effect is restrictive rather than stimulative.

* * * * * * *

The difference between the secular and religious school is not in their primary aim, for this in both is mental education. Nor is the essential difference to be found in the curriculum of studies, for there are only minor differences here. The essential difference is in the moral atmosphere. The best that can be offered by the non-religious school is thus expressed by President Johnston, of Tulane University: "Our part is to have a care that no foul contagion prevails to poison the young souls under our charge." This is merely negative. The church school is the ideal one, because it cultivates the mind in an atmosphere, not only free from contagion, but pregnant with positive, definite moral influences. The State school is good, the unsectarian school is better; but the denominational school, whose work is defined and accentuated by its distinctive characteristics, is best.

"JACK-KNIFE AND BRAMBLES."

MR. EDITOR: I have just finished a second reading of "Jack-Knife and Brambles," by good Bishop Haygood. Five years ago I first read this book, but it is fresher, stronger and richer to me now than it was then. In my judgment this book has never been as popular as its merits justify. To a man earnestly enquiring after the truth, and desirous of knowing the simple meaning of the Christian religion, I could not recommend a more helpful book—one calculated to throw more light on some of the vexed "questions" of the day. It is in Bishop Haygood's own style. One well acquainted with the sainted Bishop's way of expressing himself would know the work had he used a nom de plume. The book has revived a picture made on my mind in 1890. I was then at the Southern University, and the Bishop came to preach the sermon at commencement. It was among his first services after being elevated to the bishopric. This was the only time I ever saw the gifted Georgian, but I will carry to the grave a distinct impression of his appearance. Short and stout, somewhat bald, with a face that would induce confidence anywhere, a head well poised and evidently full of sound sense, he looked not so much like a great orator as like a great man. His discourse made a lasting impression upon one student's mind, the story of the "Fiery Furnace" being the foundation of his sermon. He advised the boys to hold on to their mother's religion; not to be led off by every wind of doctrine, but to stand firm to the teaching of the true religion, though it carried them through the fires. He demonstrated the fact that a preacher does not have to condescend to the arts of sophistry, or depend upon high-sounding rhetoric, to be popular. His common sense was in evidence that day. So in the book under discussion, it is saturated with good, consecrated common sense.

This is a day of "problems" and "questions" in the church, and in some quarters there is a growing tendency toward intolerance. It was to rebuke this spirit that the Bishop dropped a paragraph here and there, but this is not the main purpose of the book. The whole book is an unanswerable argument against extremism in religion, and an exhortation to use common reason in the interpretation of God's Word. Higher criticism, evolution, and religious bigotry all receive his compliments. The chapter on "The Devil's Theory of Virtue" is worth tenfold the price of the book. If a man is hungry for something strong and refreshing, let him devour "Meats and Herbs," and he will feel better. His rule for honest-hearted Christians is: Attend with all your might to the fundamentals of religion; as to God, substituting his will for your own; as to man, living by the Golden Rule, and keeping out of small disputes and mere side issues with conscientious purpose, tireless persistence, and unfailing charity. This is a good rule to live by.

The chapter on Procrustes deserves to rank as a classic on the sacred rights of conscience. He says: "The instinct of personal freedom, stronger in the sphere of religion than anywhere else, is God-given. In this right is conditioned a man's chance to be a man." He quotes a fine phrase from Dean Aiford, "The end of God's work in a man is the man." He says in another chapter: "What a man's conscience is worth is not determined by sincerity alone; a good and safe conscience commands or forbids in the light of the truth. The sphere of conscience can not be wider than a man's knowledge of God's truth concerning rights and wrongs." So he concludes by saying that a man who does not know the truth has an unsafe conscience.

My apology for writing these lines is the hope of stimulating a wider reading of this really great book. Bishop Haygood was one of the most noted men of the South, and of all his many and varied gifts, his good, sound sense was by no means secondary in importance. He was a stalwart man, and had the courage to attack anything he thought was wrong. He loved his church, and did not hesitate when the occasion arose to use his jack-knife in her defense. There are hundreds of young men all over the South who rise up to-day in the strength of their manhood and call him blessed. His works do follow him.

"REX" REVIEWED.

MR. EDITOR: In the ADVOCATE, of Sept. 1, I note a communication from "Rex" entitled, "Some Things That I Object To." It is to some statements made by him that I wish to utter a protest. It seems that the gentleman is hard to please on the subject of evangelists, for in a former article he tells us that he wrote for one to help in the Sam Jones Camp Meeting, but found him too costly an article. I note that he objects to certain kinds of preaching at camp meetings. I suggest that a time-card (as railroad men would say) be submitted to him, and secure his approval of every subject. In the name of more than five thousand itinerant preachers, I unqualifiedly deny what is intimated by "Rex:" Listen at the language: "I wish to inquire why it is that at the present time nearly every station and circuit in Methodism is annually dependent for a revival, not on God, as in early and spiritual days, but on the advent of an evangelist. Where is the fault? It can not be with God! That it is not with the laity is relatively true. Hence we must look elsewhere for a solution of the problem. It must be, therefore, that something is wrong with the clergy," etc.

"Rex" would shout, "Eureka!" By one bold stroke of his pen he has settled the question. To make such a statement as the above is to draw from a morbid mind. I suppose "Rex" knows how large the church is, and is conversant with every "circuit and station in Methodism," and knows what the preachers are doing. He must be an extensive reader, for he has found out that whatever troubles exist, are traceable to the clergy.

If "Rex" were a member of my church, I would have him treated for dyspepsia at once; his symptoms are bad. The church of to-day is spiritual ("Rex" to the contrary, notwithstanding); her ministers are devoutly consecrated to God. We do have in stations sometimes, so I have heard, members who think it no harm to take a social glass, or play a game of cards, just to teach the boys, you know.

"Rex" complains of too much "Greek and Hebrew" in preaching. I suppose his preacher got him mixed up. Listen at the "King." He says: "So entirely is this true in many instances that the closet is seldom entered," etc. The knowledge of "Rex" is to be admired. How does the gentleman know these things? I am sure he makes a good church member; just the kind the preacher wants—always at church, Sunday-school, and prayer meeting. Of course, he holds family prayers, too. He commences his article by arraigning nearly every "circuit and station preacher," but later turns his attention to the station preacher, and says that "they are too lenient with people's faults." Just last week, in the ADVOCATE, he was greatly displeased because some preacher at Sam Jones Camp Meeting hit too hard.

I thought at first that "Rex" must be a lawyer, but his reasoning leads me to suppose that he is just "Rex," and nothing more. After having said that nearly every circuit and station preacher depended on the evangelist, he next says, "It is gratifying to know that among our preachers there are but few of this sort; but there are some."

Now, is not that reasoning? First he says, "nearly every preacher;" second, a reason for the failure of the station preacher; third, gratifying to know among our preachers there are but few of this kind. He closes by saying it is also a fact that this evangelizing business has ruined the people (he changes again); at first the preacher, now the people—"ecce homo." Now, he says, "The only remedy for this sort of people is for preachers to ask God to reconvert them, and put in a little common sense with the dose of religion."

In a former article "Rex" tell us what great things were done by an evangelist at Sam Jones Camp Meeting. He closes by asking the preachers to pray for those who thought that they needed evangelists; that when they were reconverted, that a little common sense should be added. He writes for an evangelist; he praises the evangelists; he must be one of those who want evangelists. Let all of the preachers pray that his request be granted; common sense added with reconversion.

The sixth District Meeting of the W. F. M. Society, and fourth of the Home Mission Society of Corinth district, North Mississippi Conference, convened at 8 P. M. in the M. E. Church, South, at Iuka, Miss., Aug. 27, 1898.

The exercises were opened by choir singing 149 in Hymnal. Mrs. S. A. Dean, our gifted former secretary of this district, led in the devotional exercises. The Iuka Juveniles then gave a suggestive representation of "The Light Bearers," after which Mrs. Pyle delivered the address of welcome to the adults, and Miss Minnie Robinson to the juveniles. These were responded to by Miss Rugg, of Booneville, and Miss Sadler, of Corinth. Mrs. E. A. Neblett then held a short consecration service.

Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan, of Corinth, preached the annual sermon on Sunday morning. "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few. Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers." His sermon was truly inspiring. Sunday afternoon the Junior Missionary Society held a special service. Rev. McGruder Sullivan, from Centenary College, and Mr. Robt. Neblett, who has recently consecrated himself to the foreign work, made interesting talks to the children. The "Ruth Neblett Memorial Society" held its annual meeting on Sunday night. The hour was replete with good music, papers and reports, showing that this body has done good work for the foreign fields.

On Monday morning the Home Mission Society met, with Mrs. Geo. Bynum presiding. After a song Mrs. Bynum read the Scripture lesson and prayed a very earnest, fervent prayer. Reports from the societies showed an increase of last year's work. Several interesting papers were read, written by Mrs. Helen Worsham, of Corinth; Mrs. Ann Bynum, of Booneville. Interesting talks were made by Mesdames Dean and Neblett, after which Mrs. Bynum read a paper on "The Duty of Woman in the Home Mission Work." Mrs. Dean then organized a local society with thirteen names.

Monday afternoon the W. F. M. Society was called to order by Mrs. T. B. Clifford. After reading of the Minutes, Mrs. Clifford called for reports. While few delegates were present, written reports were received and read. Mrs. Hammersly read an excellent paper on "Importance of Reading Missionary Literature," also one from Mrs. Dean on a "Model Lady Manager." At the night session Mrs. Sadler read a well-written paper on "My Duty as a Christian to the W. F. M. Society." Mrs. Clifford then made a farewell talk full of kind encouragement. After a fervent prayer by Bro. Shumaker the congregation was dismissed to meet in Corinth, Miss., one year hence.

NOTICE.

To the Auxiliaries of the Home Mission Society, North Mississippi Conference—

DEAR SISTERS: Let me urge you to send delegates to the Annual Meeting at Cleveland, Miss. Especially do we hope for and expect a full representation from the Delta districts. We expected to have the meeting early in October; but in view of the general anxiety on account of fever, the date will not be announced until circumstances justify it; but with God's help we can make all our plans and preparations, praying that he may soon remove the plague from our State, and give us renewed zeal and courage to go forward with the work he has given us to do, remembering these words, "Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord of hosts."

I wish also to beg that the annual Week of Prayer be observed through out the Conference. Oct. 10-16 is the time set apart by the Woman's Board of Home Missions, and the program for same will be published in October number of Our Homes. This can be made a time of spiritual refreshing, and it is to these special services and offerings that the general work looks for help to carry on its undertakings.

I hope to see many of you at our Cleveland meeting, and pray God's blessings upon you and this work we are helping to carry on.

The Christian Life.

THE JOYFULNESS OF BELIEVING.

The conception which some people have of religion and the religious life, a joyless, solemn, painfully restrained state, full of crucified natural desires and impulses, seems so little borne out, either by Scripture or human life, that one can not help wondering how it ever came to get such a hold upon the average mind.

As a matter of fact, there are no people in the world quite so evenly and perennially and supremely happy as are Christians. There is a rapture and a peace in having something to believe that the unregenerate heart knows nothing of.

"These things have I spoken unto you," said Christ, "that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full." Is it thus that the world's Redeemer strikes the keynote of a faith of sad self-denials and compulsory gloom? The first outcome of his teaching, as he looked back upon it, was the joy, the personal happiness, of the believer. How significant! Christ might have said that he had spoken his words of life that the Christian might have wisdom; that he might have sobriety and seriousness of mind; that he might have a supreme hatred of evil. But, no; the first thought of Christ is the happiness of his followers—not the mere surface pleasure, but the great, deep-down, blessed joyfulness of knowing, and believing, and living the grandest moral and spiritual principles ever uttered by human tongue.

The world knows better, nowadays, than to honestly and seriously believe that Christians are a mirthless, joyless, sombre folk, concerned only with the great, tragic experiences of life, the mystery of death, and the mist-enveloped problems of the future. In all that makes life rich and sweet and lovely; in all that elevates and charms and humanizes the race; in every form of innocent enjoyment; in all sunshine, laughter, music, friendship, enterprise, love; in the best things, the truest things, the happiest things, the Christian, in accordance with the joy-bringing purpose of his Master, takes, and forever will take, the lead of all the world. Shrink not from Christianity, young man, young woman, because you fear it will curtail the legitimate joy of life! For instead of casting so much as a hand's-breadth of shadow upon your soul, it will so flood life with the very sunshine of God that you will seem to have risen into a new world, a new atmosphere, genuine as light and beautiful as dreams.—Zion's Herald.

BEWARE OF MISJUDGING.

Perhaps it were better for most of us to complain less of being misunderstood, and to take more care that we do not misunderstand other people. It ought to give us pause at a time to remember that each one has a stock of cut-and-dry judgments on his neighbors, and that the chances are that most of them are quite erroneous. What our neighbor really is we may never know, but we may be pretty certain that he is not what we have imagined, and that many things we have thought of him are quite beside the mark. What he does we have seen, but we have no idea what may have been his thoughts and contentions. The mere surface of his character may be exposed, but of the complexity within we have not the faintest idea. People crammed with self-consciousness and self-conceit are often praised as humble, while shy and reserved people are judged to be proud. Some whose whole life is one subtile, studied selfishness get the name of self-sacrifice, and other silent, heroic souls are condemned for want of humanity.—Ian Maclaren.

The true idea of the rest of paradise is not that of a long, lazy dream. An old Christian painter once painted a series of pictures in the life of a saintly scholar. One represents him in his study, hard at work with books and pen; another shows him, old and weak and ill, receiving his last communion; another depicts his death, and then the artist paints the saint in paradise. But when you look at it, he is back in his study, going on with his old work! Only the lines of age and sorrow have gone out of his face, and with great skill the painter has suggested that the difficulty and trouble of his labor have passed away, that the toil is no longer painful, but pure joy.

This is a very beautiful thought. God's garden of rest is no place of slothful ease and pleasant, useless dreams. The rest consists in the removal of pain and difficulty of work, not in having nothing to do. It may even be possible, as the painter fancied, to go on with the work which interested us on earth, but without its labor and sorrow: to work like Adam in Eden, with neither sweat of brow nor weariness of brain.—Prof. Shuttleworth, in Sunday Magazine.

In life's battles discouragements must come. No life is free from some dreary days; your life can not be all sunshine. But the man who has the patience and trust of Job will come off conqueror at last, and will enter that home where life is a treasure sublime and days of adversity never come.

Envy is one of the foulest of all the brood which finds origin and shelter in the unregenerated heart of man or demon. It is defined to be "selfish ill-will toward another because of his superior success, endowments, or possessions; ill-natured grudging in view of what another has or enjoys."—Standard.

Wherever souls are being tried and ripened, in whatever commonplace and homely ways, there God is hewing out the pillars for his temple.—Phillips Brooks.

A PREACHER'S REPORT

Interesting Statement by Elder Joel H. Austin of Goshen, Ind.

"I was a victim of catarrh and had almost constant pain in my head. The trouble was gradually working down on my lungs. I was weak and irresolute. My wife had the grip and Hood's Sarsaparilla cured her. After this I had the same disease and resorted to Hood's. In a short time the aches and pains were relieved and I also saw the medicine was helping my catarrh. In six weeks I ceased to have any further trouble with it and I am now a well man. The pains and bloating I had in my limbs are gone and I am relieved of a heart trouble. I am thankful for a medicine so intelligently compounded and so admirably adapted to the needs of the system." ELDER JOEL H. AUSTIN, Goshen, Indiana.

THE MIKADO PRESENTED WITH A BIBLE.

BY REV. H. LOOMIS, YOTSOHAMA, JAPAN.

About three years ago the Agent of the American Bible Society received from the Prime Minister of Japan an assurance that a copy of the Bible would be received by the Emperor in case the Bible Society should wish to make such a gift. It was arranged that the three Bible Societies who are co-operating in Japan should unite in such a presentation, and a suitable copy of the Scriptures was duly prepared. Owing to various changes in the government, and other circumstances, the book did not reach his Majesty until about a month ago.

A letter of acknowledgement was received from the secretary of the Prime Minister, dated July 16.

The acceptance of such a book by His Majesty is an indication that the ruler of Japan is not unfriendly to the teachings which it contains, and it is practically an indorsement of the work of the societies that are supplying his people with the Word of God.

The President of the House at the last session of the Diet is an elder of the Presbyterian Church, and a very consistent and earnest Christian.

After the dissolution of the Diet he invited all the Christian members of the House and some of his friends from Tosa and Tokyo to the official residence for a prayer meeting. About forty persons were present. The Rev. Uyemura Masahisa led the meeting. Mr. Kataoka said that when he was first approached by his friends and urged to accept the nomination for President, he positively refused. But upon further reflection and prayer he felt that it was perhaps God's will that he should accept the position, and he ought not to refuse, as God would give him the help that he needed. Having such faith in God, he accepted the office, and he trusted that on account of the divine guidance he had been able to fill it without discredit. On taking his seat in the House it was his daily custom before the business of the day to offer up a silent prayer to God for help, and to ask his blessing upon the assembly. He felt that such a meeting of Christian men was a matter of rejoicing and thankfulness. Other addresses and prayers filled up the rest of the evening.

The country is now for the first time in the control of a Cabinet that has been chosen by the representatives of the new party which was formed by the union of the former Liberals and Progressionists. The new party was organized and is controlled by a General or Executive Committee consisting of two representatives of each of the two former organizations. Mr. Kataoka has been chosen as a member of that Committee. Another member is Mr. Ehara, of the Canadian Methodist Church, and the head of their educational work in Tokyo. Thus one-half of the Committee are men of pronounced Christian character, and the government is very largely under the control of these four men. It is a most remarkable fact, and one that should call forth gratitude and praise to God.

DIED IN THE FAITH.

On the thirtieth of August, Mrs. Henrietta S. Kearney, wife of my uncle, J. K. Kearney, of Canton, Miss., died. She was a sister of William Henry Pipes, formerly State treasurer of Louisiana. She was a devoted wife and loyal friend. She inherited considerable wealth from her father at the close of the war, and has always lived in affluence. She was a woman of unusually strong mind, but of the gentlest, most lovable nature. Her hospitality was boundless. She led a Christian life, and died the death of the righteous. BELLE KEARNEY.

FROM THE WORK:

Rev. W. J. Roberts, Alexandria, La., Sept. 9, 1898: "Our church this year has chronicled nothing exceedingly marvelous or miraculous. We have endeavored to faithfully carry on the ordinary routine of work and worship. The pastor has been abundantly cared for; twelve members have been received into the church; the Sunday-school and congregations are both good; while during the first six months the church paid upwards of $80 for missions. Notwithstanding what some of the saints may think, be it hereby known to all men that Alexandria Methodism is making progress in spite of the devil and difficulties."

Rev. J. S. Sanders, Many, La., Sept. 13, 1898: "We have just closed a glorious meeting here at Many of thirteen days. Rev. J. L. Morrill, of Cartersville, Ga., preached ten days with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven, and God set his seal to the preaching. We had between fifty and seventy-five bright conversions, two sanctified and some reclaimed. Many of the converted went to work in the meeting, leading their friends to the altar, and praying in public whenever called on. Thirty-seven joined the Methodist Church, and three the Baptist; a number of family altars were erected, and Many is not the same town, spiritually. Among those who joined were the leading people of the town, and all but four were grown. The parish treasurer and his wife were past fifty. We baptized twenty-three. There were eighteen young men of our leading families. I have had fifty accessions to the church up to date, and two meetings yet to hold. God is with us converting, reclaiming, and sanctifying the people."

Rev. Robt. W. Vaughan, P. C., Downsville circuit, Louisiana Conference: "Have just closed the last of my Summer revivals. In recounting the Summer's work there is much to praise God for. Have held five revivals on my work with following results: Ninety accessions, a new organization that promises to be one of the strongest on the circuit. They have secured the land, bought the lumber and employed workmen for the erection of a new church, which we hope to report finished and dedicated at next session of Conference. Have organized new prayer meetings, and expect to organize two Epworth Leagues this month. Have secured part of collections. We have had a gracious uplift along every line, for which we are very grateful to God. We have had a great amount of sickness that has hindered us no little in our work. My sister has been six weeks confined with slow fever. We owe a great deal to the efficient aid of Revs. W. F. Henderson, C. F. Staples, W. A. Clark, B. H. Sheppard, A. J. Notestine, and our presiding elder, B. T. Crews. The Lord has graciously overruled differences that have long held our people apart. All praise to our God!"

MARTINSVILLE CIRCUIT.

I have four churches on this circuit and three school-house appointments. It extends over a considerable territory, but is not a strong work, and will probably be changed somewhat at the coming Annual Conference. I have missed but one appointment, that being filled by a local preacher.

In my pastoral work I find there are comparatively few subscribers to the ADVOCATE. While I find some families that have "family altars" who are not subscribers to the ADVOCATE, yet the two go hand in hand to a considerable degree. I made efforts early in the year to raise the collections ordered by the Conference, but we have a good per cent. yet to raise.

My first protracted meeting was held at old Tabernacle Church, eleven miles west of Hazlehurst, which was a strong church at one time, but has been on the weak list for a number of years. Bro. W. M. Williams, of Gallman, assisted me there, doing faithful and earnest preaching. The church, we trust, was revived, but no accessions.

At Union Chapel Bro. H. D. Howell did the preaching. We had a splendid meeting. One applied for membership. Everybody, both Methodist and Baptist, who attended the meeting were delighted and benefited by Bro. Howell's preaching.

Revs. George Hively and Milton Ferrell assisted me at Pine Grove. The meeting was well attended, and the members made stronger in the faith, though there were no accessions. Bro. Hively did the preaching on Saturday and Sunday to the delight of the hearers. Bro. Ferrell came on Monday. He preaches with power and great zeal. Many of the hearers were moved to tears under his preaching.

At Pleasant Ridge we had our presiding elder, Rev. J. M. Weems, with us on Saturday. After that time Rev. V. V. Boone did the preaching. His preaching was strong, pointed, and with power. The members were revived, and I am sure lasting good was accomplished. The preaching was such as would send conviction to saint and sinner, and not merely a playing on the emotional nature.

There were four accessions to the church. While we are encouraged in our work by seeing the fruits of our labors, yet there is a great work to be done, even among the members of the church. May the Lord give success to the ADVOCATE and its labors!

L. E. ALFORD.

FROM ELLISVILLE.

On the crest of a gently sloping hill, in the busy town of Ellisville, stands a lovely church, and in the shadow of its tall, imposing spire nestles the itinerant's resting-place, the parsonage. How well I remember my first glimpse of my new home, the pretty, convenient cottage, built, as an enthusiastic visitor said, "with an eye to beauty." The rounded gallery, surmounted by turreted dome, the bay windows, and all the modern adornments, are calculated to present a dainty exterior. The interior newly furnished throughout; large, well-lighted parlor, opening into the cosy dining room, whose double windows glance out on wide expanse of noble pine trees. My thoughts fly backward to the faces of Bros. Johnson and Gunn, who so cordially met us at the train; our drive to the parsonage in the carriage of the former, and the hearty welcome accorded us by the elect women in waiting; then the delicious breakfast, warm as the welcome, to enhance our comfort.

I recall my first visit to the beautiful church, which you, Dr. Black, had the honor of dedicating during the pastorate of our predecessor, now Chaplain Keen. I remember my first glimpse of the Sunday-school, under the capital supervision of an old Meridian boy, Mr. H. S. Gunn. By the way; our presiding elder said, at his last visit, that our average attendance exceeded that of any Sunday-school in the Seashore district, and we are justly proud of our work. In my own interesting class of young men I have three promising nephews of our Epworth League Secretary, Dr. DuBose. Writing of him reminds me that we have a flourishing League, manned by that gallant young captain, W. A. Holloway, and that the members are capital helpers in our church work.

On July 2 the pastor's family was vigorously "pounded" by good things to tempt the inner man, from substantials in the grocery line to the delicious froth of a dainty ice. A visiting cousin (not a follower of John Wesley) was greatly interested in the loaded table and package-covered floor, and departed, greatly impressed, as well he may be, by the generosity of Methodist Ellisville. The pastor's Ellisville salary is collected and paid monthly by that noble young steward, Mr. Gus Cooley, a son-in-law of Bro. Downer, of our Conference. By the way, we have literally reaped the fruit of Bro. Downer's labor when he served as pastor here several years ago. The plums, peaches and figs which he planted then have yielded us an hundredfold. I have not yet had the pleasure of meeting our flock at Laurel, but am sure I would find good, thoughtful Methodists there, as at every other place where my "lines have fallen."

The spiritual condition of our charge, and the good meeting at Laurel, followed by the blessed "Harmon-Knickerbocker revival" at Ellisville, I will leave to the pastor's descriptive pen, hoping that this little tribute, so deserved by our parishioners, is not too lengthy for the dear ADVOCATE columns.

(MRS.) JULIET HOWE HARMON.

Cupid is usually pictured as a frolicksome, playful little fellow, always smiling or laughing, but with just a trace of malice in his make-up.

This is the artist's ideal. In reality, Cupid in these days is a matter-of-fact little chap. He is beginning to learn that life is not all a summer holiday. He is fast learning that sick men and unhealthy women have no right to tamper with love or matrimony. It is best for themselves and best for the human race that they should not. It is not a hard matter for men and women to preserve their health if they wish. It is far from impossible for them to restore it after it has been lost. That being the case, the modern Cupid is right in looking with disfavor upon matrimonial matches between sick men and unhealthy women. Ill-health in a woman is generally the result of some weakness or disorder of the distinctly feminine organism that is slowly sapping her vitality. At first, a little pain and slight indispositions which seem to her quite unimportant. They grow steadily worse until she suffers all the time from burning and dragging sensations, and occasionally has to take to her bed. Finally they completely unfit her for wifehood and motherhood. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is an unfailing remedy for ailments of this kind. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in maternity and makes them well and strong. It transforms weak, sickly, nervous invalids into healthy, happy wives and mothers. Medicine dealers sell it. No honest druggist will recommend a substitute.

"Since I wrote you we have had a baby girl born to us," writes W. R. Malcolm, of Knobel, Clay Co., Ark. "My wife took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription during the expectant period and until confinement, and she had no trouble to mention. A stouter, healthier child was never born. Our child will be one year of age on the 8th inst., and she has not been sick a day. Has not had so much as the colic."

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers. New Type. All Proper Names. Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Every body is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangment for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to September, '99. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

SELF-PRONOUNCING

S. S. Teachers' Reference Bible.

Text Conforms Exactly to the Oxford Teachers' Edition.

The self-pronouncing text enables the reader to pronounce all proper names at a glance.

This Bible is printed from Large, Beautiful and Clear New Type. All Proper Names are Divided into Syllables and Every Vowel is Marked and the Syllables Inflected, showing the Sounds and Accents as they are given in a Dictionary, thus enabling the reader to properly pronounce every word. This feature is a great improvement and a strong recommendation for this Bible over others.

This Bible contains the celebrated Oxford Teachers' Helps together with a complete series of New Maps illustrating the geography of Palestine and the surrounding countries from the earliest times, and embodying the most recent discoveries, makes this Bible especially desirable to teachers and students of the Holy Scriptures.

Imperial Seal Binding, Tuck Edges, known as "Divinity Circuit," Linen Lined, Round Corners, Red under Gold Edges, Price, $4.00.

This book in Bourgeois type will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price ($4) to any address; but to that select class who read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, we furnish it on the following terms: Pay your subscription one full year in advance, viz., to September, '99, and we will send it to you, postpaid, for $1.75. (A little later you will have to pay to October, '99.)

The same Bible in Minion type will be sent for $1.55; in Emerald type, for $1.15, to those who pay a full year in advance.

For fifty cents additional we will send Bible with index. For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved on the outside in gilt letters.

A spirit that from earth had just departed
Lingered a moment on its upward way,
And, looking back, saw, as though broken-hearted,
Its friends and kindred weeping o'er its clay.
"It seems they loved me dearly. Had I known it,
My life had been much happier," it said.
"Why only at our parting have they shown it—
Their fondest kisses keeping for the dead!"
—Margaret Eytinge, in Harper's Magazine.

The sweet singer of Israel often had occasion to complain of the wicked reproaches of his enemies—the Doegs and Ahithophels of his age—men whose tongues cut like razors, and wounded like swords; but he turned all their maledictions into matter of music and song, and played them off upon his harp.—Selected.

Every day of meeting sorrow superbly makes the life more grand. Every tear that falls from one's own eyes gives a deeper tenderness of look, of touch, of word, that shall soothe another's woe. Sorrow is not given to us alone that we may mourn. It is given us that, having felt, suffered, wept, we may be able to understand, love, bless.—Anna Robertson Brown.

TAKING THE WORLD FOR CHRIST.

The gospel is universal in its scope and mission, or it is nothing. Unless we utterly misconstrue and falsify the teachings of the New Testament, Jesus did not come to establish merely a national religion, to preach a gospel meant principally for the Jews, or any other race. His love swept beyond the barriers of race and country. His purpose transcended the limits of time and space, and embraced the people of every age and nationality. His mission to earth was not to bring light and immortality to a part of the human race, but to save the world—to set in motion agencies and influences that should extend to earth's remotest bounds and embrace every class and condition of men.

As Bishop Hendrix has strikingly said, "Only a Christian brain can conceive of a God great enough to save the world." Nowhere among the heathen religions do we find such a truth taught or hinted at. The greatest and best of the heathen moralists were far from conceiving of a religion whose benefits should extend widely beyond their own nation. The Greeks and Romans worshiped deities who, it was supposed, had no concern for the people of other nationalities. The Jews, though worshipers of the true God, and though professing to believe the promise made to Abraham that through his seed all the nations of the earth should be blessed, held the most exclusive views with regard to their religion, and practiced the most rigid intolerance and selfishness. The Gentiles were looked upon as dogs whose very touch was defiling, and who were beyond the reach of God's mercy unless they became Jews. Says Bishop Wilson: "The Jew was self-centered. He had the notion that he was the special favorite of God, and that whatever was given to the world must first be given to him, and through him by piecemeal and in part to the rest of the world. And the gospel took the same direction in their thought that all else did." Even after the day of Pentecost the majority of Jewish Christians, the apostles among them, seem not to have understood the world-wide mission of the gospel, and wanted to dole it out through ceremonial ordinances and limitations. It was not until after God had poured out his Spirit upon the Gentiles in the house of Cornelius that Peter and the rest realized that the gospel was for them as well as for the Jews. Even after the lapse of nineteen centuries, amid the full glory of gospel light and conquest, there is much practical skepticism as regards the duty of the church to Christianize the world. How difficult it is for us to realize that God is no respecter of persons, that he loves the souls of the Chinese and the degraded Hindoos as much as those of the people of Europe and America! How hard it is for us to rid ourselves of the notion that we in this land have a peculiar right to the gospel, that we are God's favorites! Yet, if the Word of God be true, Christ died as much for the most degraded savage in Africa as for the most cultured in any land. The worst outcast is as much entitled to the benefits of the gospel as the most respectable anywhere; for it is not declared that Christ died for the wise or the great, or the civilized or the wealthy, but that he offered himself to save sinners.

"He comes to make his blessings known,
Far as the curse is found."

When the Master speaks our sins forgiven, does he say to any of us, "Son, thou needest not to use thy influence, thy voice, or thy substance, for the propagation of the gospel?" Does he say to any believer: "Thou hast no part in this work. I intend to convert the world without thy aid?" Nay, instead of such instruction, he says to his followers, "Ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth." "Ye are the light of the world"—the light that is to shine into dark places and dispel the gloom of superstition and despair. When we ask our Lord what we shall render to him for all his benefits to us, back comes the answer: "Publish the story of salvation over land and sea. Tell the perishing millions of earth of the Redeemer who stands ready to save all who come unto him." The answer to the question, "How much do we love Christ?" is to be found in the record of the love that we show to our fellow-men, in the efforts we make for the spread of the gospel.

In proportion as we have the Christ-spirit, just in that proportion will we become interested in the salvation of people in foreign lands. Our Lord's chief concern when he was upon earth was to save men. Hence, if we take little interest in the fate of the heathen, we show that we are almost strangers to his constraining love. It is a selfish spirit that causes us to care only for the spiritual welfare of our relatives and neighbors. "If ye love them that love you, what thank have ye? Do not even sinners the same?" Almost the sole concern, however, of many professing Christians is for themselves and their families. Provided these are partakers of the gospel, it matters little to them that millions perish. Many are like the old man who once prayed, "O Lord, bless me and my wife, my son John and his wife—us four and no more."

There is strong prejudice against the claims of foreign missions because missionary enterprise runs counter to selfishness and covetousness, because it calls for large liberality, for love that overleaps the bounds of country and race, for sympathy that looks upon other destitution and degradation than that just at our doors. It bids us send the glad tidings to those that are in the greatest need, to the nations that are in the "gall of bitterness and the bonds of iniquity." After a missionary in South Africa had finished a sermon, a chief arose and said: 'Teacher, these good things you have said make my heart warm and glad, but why did you not come sooner and tell us? When you had the honey, why did you sit down and say, 'O, how good this honey, how sweet,' and keep it all to yourselves, when God showed that there was plenty for all?"

The whole civilized world is to-day wondering at and landing the people of the United States for their humanitarianism in waging a war for the relief of the oppressed and starving Cubans, who for so many years have been in bondage to Spain. It has been a war unprecedented in history. Hundreds of thousands of the goodliest young men in the land readily volunteered to fight for the deliverance of these sufferers, cheerfully leaving home and all that was dear to obey the call of sympathy. Yet, with all the readiness of our people to respond to the calls of distress, how few are the sacrifices they are willing to make in order to relieve spiritual destitution! How amazingly little is the interest shown in the emancipation of the heathen world from the chains of error and degradation! Hundreds of lives have been sacrificed and millions of money poured out in order to deliver the Cubans from physical want and oppression; yet how few of those who enlist under the banner of the cross are ready to make any sacrifice in order to spread the glad tidings of salvation! New fields are open to us. In Cuba, Porto Rico, and the Philippines there are providential opportunities for mission work. In every land where we have planted stations God has wonderfully blest our work. Let the church awake to her tremendous responsibility and go forward to conquest. The great Captain of our salvation expects every soldier of the cross to do his duty.

THE RELIGIOUS PAPER AS AN EDUCATOR.

It is not in the range of possibility for types to put anywhere else so much of value to the mind, soul and body as in a religious newspaper. To begin with, the children are fed from it.

The religious newspaper contains information from foreign lands, often of thrilling self-denials, of good in close contest with evil, and the young heart readily forms affinities with martyrs and martyrdoms, in the contest between Christianity and heathenism. There was nothing in our young manhood so absorbing and thrilling as the account of the mutiny of the Sepoys in India, and of the terrible slaughter of men, women and children, and of the suppression of the rebellion by the Indian government, with its modes of action and sometimes cruel penalties, as reported by the missionaries to the religious papers.

The story of the self-denying work and unconquerable love of missionaries can be found only in the religious newspapers.

When manhood and womanhood are reached, and the Sabbath is all the time left for reading to the busy workers, what furnishes such varied themes, such inspiring stimulus, as the religious paper which was read in childhood? The family friend, loved and read by father and mother, comes each Sabbath to visit their children in their new homes, breathes upon them the family benison of peace of those who have gone to heaven, and thus becomes the coupling between those who have crossed the flood and those who are on their way.

What is the value of the religious paper to the business man? The good religious paper deals with the ethical in the various relations between man and man. Multitudes are disposed to reform their lives, but how can they do it without instruction as to how life can be lifted from the low secularities of mere business expediency. The fact by multitudes is not taken into consideration that men may get even with each other in trade, but lose far more than any values to be obtained in injury to themselves. It is not possible to overreach a neighbor without overreaching self. There is to be found in religious papers much helpful thought on political economy, because the high tribunal where equity can be obtained, is that which is acknowledged in these papers, recognizing their responsibilities to both God and man.

If society is to be reformed, the inspiration must come from the religion of Jesus Christ, and whatever may be said in criticism of religious papers, no other printed source is to be so much relied upon. The difference between the religious paper and the best literary and political journals is very apparent. Then, again, where can firmer support and better guidance of the Sabbath-school army of teachers and school during the moulding years of childhood be obtained than from our church papers?

The same is true in regard to all the long lists of benevolent agencies which derive from these sources of information, stimulus and life. The same may be said of our great educational systems. The moral tone, poor as it often is, without such bracing, would be absolutely bad. When we come to the church, the utility and helpfulness of these agencies are beyond computation. The church would be a paralytic but for the tonics and moral supports furnished by these mediums, through which heart-beats are felt from the centre to the extremities. What would a church be which knew no more of the extension of Christ's kingdom than what could be gained by hearsay or through secular sources?

That church in which are no religious papers of its own denomination is dead. It has no intelligence, no pulse and no directing force. After all, church life and progress are the product of denominationalism. The "fad" now is to assail it as being shallow, stupid and unphilosophical. When denominationalism ceases, there will either be no church left, or the denominations will all be in heaven. As well start a crusade against Roman or Greek noses in order to bring all faces to the same proportions and expression! That denomination does the most for God and humanity which reads and studies most its own denominational papers. We do not say that other papers ought not to be read for general information, but the family likeness and the "esprit de corps" will come from the inspiration of the hereditary faith.

The benevolence of any particular church is as the religious papers of its own order circulates among its people. Those who do not read them are proverbially stingy and ignorant of the progress of Christ's kingdom. Not long since, one who had been spending a Summer in a certain church in a suburb, said, "There is in this church of more than two hundred members only one denominational paper taken, and that by the pastor; and being curious to see the amount of contributions to home and foreign missions, found that to the foreign work was given eleven dollars and seventy-five cents, and to home thirteen dollars.—The Presbyterian.

We present the article above from The Presbyterian, as the basis of an appeal to our preachers in behalf of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE. In our patronizing territory a very large percentage of our Methodist people read no church paper at all. Is it to be wondered at that they are opposed to foreign missions, and that they have no interest in church extension, or any other great connectional enterprise? Four cents a week is all that is needed to pay for the ADVOCATE. There are very few of our people who are not able to pay that sum, if convinced that it would be a good investment. Can not our preachers show them that it is one of the very best investments that could possibly be made? Who can tell what such a paper is worth in a family? We have never seen the time when we would have been willing to do without a religious paper for five times the cost of the ADVOCATE.

Now, how is the circulation of the Conference organ to be increased? The work must be done, if at all, by our preachers. The people who are not subscribers can not be reached in any other way. That this requires labor we know full well; but is there any work that would be more prolific in good results? We invite attention to the following utterance of Bishop Candler on the subject, clipped from the Wesleyan Advocate:

"'The children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light.'

"The politicians know the value of an organ. Some of the Methodists know the value of an organ, and these Methodists constantly push forward the subscription list of our paper.

"All the Methodists would quickly realize the value of our organ if its publication were suspended for a year. Every interest of the church would instantly and visibly suffer. Missionary sentiment would begin to die. Our church schools would suffer. The Christian life of thousands of our members would be less rich and earnest. The zeal of many of our ministers would be less ardent.

"If all our preachers would reflect upon the opportunity thus afforded, they would embrace it and make the most of it. But some think themselves too great for such small work as extending the circulation of their Conference organ. Meanwhile they waste time and energy on much smaller matters. The preachers of Wesley's day and of Asbury's time were wiser. Hence their success. Hence the great church to which we belong.

"If we fail to circulate good literature in our day, will the next generation have as good reason to think well of us as we have to think well of our Methodist fathers? Will our church grow in strength as it has grown through the wisdom of the fathers? Let us think on these things and bestir ourselves."

THE CANADIAN METHODIST GENERAL CONFERENCE.

The General Conference of the Canadian Methodist Church is now in session. As most of our readers doubtless know, Canadian Methodism is now an organic unit, the several different Methodist organizations having united a few years since. The union has been prolific of good results. The friction and strife of former years have passed away, and Methodism presents a united front from the Atlantic to the Pacific. As a result of this union, all branches of church work have flourished—missions, education, publishing interests, etc. Methodism is relatively stronger in Canada than in any country in the world, comprising, as it does, one-fifth of the entire population. In Ontario one-third of the people are Methodists.

The address of Dr. Carman, the General Superintendent, is spoken of as a statesmanlike document. It touched upon every phase of church work. Its utterances in condemnation of the liquor traffic were thunderously applauded, and one hundred thousand copies of that part of the address were ordered printed for gratuitous distribution. The significance of this action is found in the fact that the question of national prohibition will be decided at the ballot box on the twenty-ninth of this month.

A resolution was adopted expressing great gratification on account of the victory of the United States in the war with Spain. A resolution was also passed with great enthusiasm hailing with joy the manifesto of the Czar of Russia in favor of peace among the nations of the earth.

In a few days our fraternal delegate, Rev. A. Coke Smith, D. D., of the Virginia Conference, will be heard, and we have no doubt that he will prove himself worthy of the high honor conferred upon him.

From idleness springs most drinking habits. It is the direct cause of nine-tenths of the gossip and slander that disturb and divide neighborhoods. Jealousy, envy, hatred, are the sure results of idleness and pampered luxury. How sadly the rich suffer, observes a writer in the Epworth Herald. Permitting their children to follow their natural inclination to idleness, they have allowed to develop unchecked a whole nest of vipers which not even curfew bells will overcome. To quote again from Burton: "As in a standing pool, worms and filthy creepers increase, so do evil and corrupt thoughts in an idle person; the soul is contaminated." John Wesley's words on this subject should become a motto for parents, and young people everywhere, "Never be unemployed; never be triflingly employed."—Christian Herald.

All God-like things are joyous. They have touched God, and so they carry with them an irresistible gladness everywhere.—F. W. Faber.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Booneville, Miss., EDITOR.

The fonrth International Conference of Epworth Leagnes will he held in the City of Indianapolis dnring the Snmmer of 1899.

The programme of the Meridian District Epworth Leagne Conference reached ns in dne time. It is a very neatly printed pamphlet, and shows much thonght in its arrangement. We hope the Leaguers had a pleasant and profitabie time.

The Epworth Era has a circnlation of nearly ten thonsand. Let the Leaguers and friends everywhere enlarge the snbscription list nntil soon it shali donhie its present circnlation, and thns mnltiply its power for good.

Recently, in the same periodicai, we read sketches of the lives of two men—Gladstone and Prentiss. What a contrast! What an object-lesson to the young men of to-day! Prentiss, when only forty-two years of age, having been "overtaken in a fanlt," went down into the grave without God and without hope. Gladstone, having seen more than fourscore years, passed trinmphantly "over the river," leaving a name of which the world will ever be prond.

We know of no more valnahie book to pnt into the hands of the yonng men and women of to-day than Bishop Galloway's, "Christianity and the Nation." Particnlarly it is fitted to stimulate and inspire the yonng people who are nndecided as to the qnestion of an edncation.

As the Epworth League is so closely connected with the work of Christian edncation, we make no apology for quoting several paragraphs from the closing pages of the book.

"The State has no worse enemy than the small politician who, nnder the plea of gnarding the institntions of the commonwealth, wonld embarrass hy hostiie legislation the schools of learning fostered hy the Christian church."

"Christian edncation is not narrow. It does not fetter thonght, hnt emancipates mind. It does not impede investigation, bnt flings wide the doors of the largest mental hospital ity, and gives the broadest commission to 'intermeddle with all knowledge.'"

"It is not the nnmber, hnt the character of onr schools; not how many children attend, hut who teaches them, and what they are taught, that type and measnre their influence for good."

"Correct prinoiples sown in the soil of the yonng mind, onltivated hy wise, well eqnipped teachers, and ripened by the snn of a gracions Providence, will prodnce a manhood and womanhood that will sacredly preserve the past and gnarantee the glory of the futnre."

LEAGUE NOTES.

We have been instrncted by the Board of Missions that all Leagues giving as much as $10 for missions are entitled to The Review of Missions, free of charge. The Leagnes at Greenville; First Chnrch, Jackson; Holly Springs and Carroliton, having already paid two shares to onr mission and Orphans' Home fnnd, will have this splendid magazine for their libraries. What Leagne will be next to pay two shares?

Let us hear from the jnniors on the mission and Orphans' Home fnnd. As yet only two Jnnior Leagnes have fallen into line. The Macon and Landerdale Juniors are now entitled to be called the banner Jnnior Leagnes of the State. The Macon Juniors came up with their share in May, and the Landerdale Jnniors followed in Jnne.

LESSON XII.

REVIEW.

1. Reread the volume we have been studying for the past three months, and coliate the names of the workers, their homes, and the denominations they represent.

2. Arrange in alphabetic order the connntries where we have stndied mission work, and give the general location of each.

3 State in yonr own words three reasons why the stndy of the hook has strengthened your faith in the divine anthority and power of the gospel.

4. Let every leagner ask the qnestion, "Am I doing my dnty in the light of the nohle example and heroic sufferings of the men and women whom I have met in these stndies?"

EAST MISSISSIPPI FEMALE COLLEGE.

The E. M. F. College will open on time—Sept. 21. The health of Meridian and snrronnding conntry is fine. Pnpils from non-infected points can come without tronhle. Bring health certificates so as to show qnarantine officers on trains that yon are from no infected points. We hope the qnarantine will be so modified as to permit pnpils to change cars at Jackson. Pnpils from Lonisiana, Texas and places west can come hy Vicksbnrg or New Orleans without any difficnlty. Some from Arizona, New Mexico, North Mississippi and Alabama have already arrived, coming early to avoid being cnt off hy qnarantine. We have more hoarders engaged than ever before We are now wrestling with the prohlem of more room, which we have enconntered every year. It has always been solved satisfactorily, and we expect again to fnrnish room for all who come. The fine talent and excellent advantages we offer are certainly attracting a large attendance from all over the Sonth.

If any pnpils are delayed on acconnt of qnarantine, we ask them to come the earliest opportnnity, and we will give them special attention to help them np with their classes. We have a large facnity, plenty of teachers, and can give all the help necessary. J. W. BEESON, Pres.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE OPENING

The session of 1898-9 opened Wednesday, the seventh instant. A greater nnmber of pnpils matriculated at this opening than at any previons term for years, and many more girls are daily expected. Indeed, a more promising ontlook for onr college has not heen in evidence for qnite a nnmber of years.

An era of greater prosperity seems to be dawning upon this historic institntion of Christian edncation, whose alnmnæ are adorning society and occnpying honored stations in the Southern and Northern States.

Onr indefatigahle and progressive President T. S. Sligh, and his accomplished wife, spent the entire vacation season canvassing for the college, with resnlts most gratifying to the friends of onr institntion. They have proven themselves worthy and eminently fitted for the grand work entrnsted to their keeping. Their scholariy attainment and Christian demeanor commend them to the most favorahie consideration of all good people. Onr facnity compares favorably with that of any other college of the kind in the Sonth, in every sense of the word. In it the best talent obtainahie, combined with experience and adaptability, is employed; hence President and Mrs. Sligh are snccessfnlly meeting all the high demands made npon them hy the edncational commnnity, and we hespeak for Mansfield Female College, nnder their skilifnl management, a greater degree of nsefnlness.

The Methodists of Lonisiana shonld rally aronnd this, their only female institution in the State. Onr banner no longer trails in the dnst of depression and disappointment, bnt prondly floats in an altitnde of increasing prosperity nnder the leadership of veteran edncators of enviable repntation.

We call npon all who have danghters to edncate to send them to Mansfield College, patronize home institntions, and hnild np yonr own schools.

Parents, in the name of Christianity, we appeal to yon to send yonr girls to Mansfield Female College, and thereby answer the demand of this oventfnl age; edncate yonr danghters, and fit them for this enlightened age of glorions possihilities. Onr college is located in the hills of North Lonisiana, and in a section of conntry noted for its healthfnlness. It is an ideal college home for the training and edncation of yonng ladies, where the most wholesomo influences prevail for the development of the highest type of Christian womanhood.

A. F. JACKSON, Scc'y.

A LIBERAL OFFER.

We pnrpose extending the cironiation of the Review of Missions nntil it reaches a snbscription list of at least ten thonsand. To do this we are making an nnnsnal offer. Until Aprii 1, 1899, on the payment of twenty-five cents, we agree to send the Review for one year to each new snhscriher. While this is far below the cost of pnbiishing, it is done in order to secnre a wider dissemination of missionary information and to hring it within the reach of all our people. The Review of Missions has been prononnced one of the best missionary pnblications in this country. It contains 64 pages of the choicest matter, both original and selected, and is the prodnct of the rich experience, wide observation, and literary ability of many writers both in this conntry and in foreign iands. WALTER R. LAMBUTH,
J. H. PRICHETT.

Nashville, Tenn.

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT OF THE E. M. F. COLLEGE.

We have decided to arrange a thorough bnsiness conrse in connection with onr college for next session, where yonng ladies can take snch a course and not come in contact with the mixed attendance of a Bnsiness College. Besides, many yonng iadies wonld like to take a bnsiness conrse in connection with their literary stndies. This can be done by having both in the same bnilding. So we have employed a teacher at the head of this department who has not only stndied these hranches theoretically, bnt who has had considerahle experience both as a bookkeeper and as a stenographer in a large wholesale honse in Nashville. She is a carefnl bnsiness woman, and a thorongh, painstaking teacher. The conrse will consist of Bookkeeping, Stenography, Typewriting, commercial nsages, and correct and practical applications of bnsiness principles. We will nse the same system of bookkeeping as that used in the Queen City Bnsiness College, and the price will be the same. The system of stenography nsed is one of the finest in nse in the United States to day. Pupils can take the whole conrse or a singie branch, as they choose.

Within recent years, the doors of the bnsiness world have been thrown open to women, and there are nnnnmbered opportnnities every year for those who are thoronghly prepared. Many do not care to be honsekeepers, all can not be teachers, for there are now, perhaps, five teachers for every position that is open. Bnt bookkeepers are wanted; typewrltists are wanted; stenographers are wanted. It is nseless to ask whether you can obtain a situation; the main point is, can yon qualify yonrself to fill a position? Competent hookkeepers and stenographers are rarely ont of employment. There is an ever-increasing demand for expert workers in these fields. Make yonrself thoronghly competent, and you need have no fears abont securing a position. If yon want a bnsiness conrse or know of one wanting snch a conrse, write ns ahont it. J. W. BEESON.

Meridian, Miss.

THAT BOOK!

A reader of Dr. Hnnnicntt's Essays says: "The Essay on The Former Days and These is partionlarly fine in matter and style. The whole hook is good reading—was sorry when I reached the end, and shali read it again—two things I can say of no other book." Send 50 cents. to Barbee and Smith, Nashviiie, Tenn., and get the hook.

We have heen reqnested to pnblish onr editorial on "The Gospel of Giving" in the form of a tract, and have done so. We will send it, postpaid, at the following prices: 25 copies, 50 cents; 50 copies, 90 cents; 100 copies, $1.75.

CENTENARY COLLEGE.

MR EDITOR: Upon my arrival at Centenary College, I was both surprised and pleased at the great change in the hnildings and campns. Little did we think, when we left college last Jnne, that this September wonld find ns here again with all rooms full, and the grand old bnildings repaired and made to look like new. When we left last year it was with the belief that Centenary wonld never reopen as the school of the Southern Methodist Church of Lonisiana. Bnt a pleasant snrprise awaited ns, and now we have ahont one hnndred boys, all of whom are in good spirits, and willing to do anything for the old college. From present indications we have just cause to believe that, in the near fnture, Centenary will again take her old place as one of the leading colleges of the Sonth.

We invite and expect every Methodist boy who wants a thorongh Christian edncation to come to Centenary. We invite not only the Methodist hoys, hnt all.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To the Members of the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences:

For forty years I have been a pastor in the Mississippi Conference, having entered the work in Novem ber, 1857. The Lord has hlessed me in this service, hnt I am growing old, and still have several children whose ednoation is not compiete. Onr Conference is weil snpplied with yonnger men, and still they come. Under the circnmstances, I have consented to take charge of one of the boarding honses at Millsaps College (Williams Hall). We can accommodate twenty five, or more, hoarders. We propose to give them the best of care, and make the honse a "home" to them in the best sense of the word We have long tried to maintain a Christian home of the pnrest type in which to rear our own children, and we will spare no pains to keep the standard high for the benefit of the yonng gentlemen who may be intrusted to our care. At present address me at Carthage, Miss.

BOTTLE THE SUNSHINE.

BY LIZZIE D. ARMOND.

Bottle the sunshine up, my dears,
And lay it safe away,
Hammer the cork in good and tight.
Keep for a rainy day.
For clouds will come and showers will fall,
And earth and sky look sad;
Then fling the cheery rays about,
And make the whil world glad.

Bottle the sunshine up, my dears,
Sweet temper lay away;
Carry through life a smiling face,
And let your heart be gay.
There's sorrow plenty in the world,
And strife and bitter pain,
So line the clouds with golden beams,
And sing a glad refrain.

THE SACREDNESS OF APPOINTMENTS.

There is one thing that is almost as sacred as the marriage relation—that is, an appointment. A man who fails to meet his appointment, unless he has a good reason, is practically a liar, and the world treats him as such.

"I give it as my deliberate and solemn conviction," said Dr. Fitch, "that the individual who is tardy in meeting an appointment will never be respected or successful in life." "If a man has no regard for the time of other men," said Horace Greely, "why should he have for their money? What is the difference between taking a man's hour and taking his five dollars? There are many men to whom each hour of the business day is worth more than five dollars."

"It is not necessary for me to live," said Pompey, "but it is necessary that I be at a certain point at a certain hour."

When President Washington dined at four, new members of Congress invited to dine at the White House would sometimes arrive late, and be mortified to find the President eating. "My cook," Washington would say, "never asks if the visitors have arrived, but if the hour has arrived."

When his secretary excused the lateness of his attendance by saying that his watch was too slow, Washington replied, "Then you must get a new watch, or I another secretary."

Franklin said to a servant who was always late, but always ready with an excuse: "I have generally found that the man who is good at an excuse is good for nothing else."

On the eve of Nelson's departure on a famous cruise, his coachman said that the carriage would be at the door punctually at six o'clock. "A quarter before," said the admiral; "I have always been a quarter of an hour before my time, and it has made a man of me."

Napoleon once invited his marshals to dine with him, but, as they did not arrive at the moment appointed, he began to eat without them. They came in just as he was rising from the table. "Gentlemen," said he, "it is now past dinner, and we will immediately proceed to business."—Success.

HOME-MAKING.

There is an ocean of difference between housekeeping and home-making. One is a business, the other is an art. Many women make great successes in the business who fail absolutely in the art. Their houses are perfectly kept. Every department is run with care and exactness. There is never a failure to meet demand; but it is not a home.

A home exists for the comfort, happiness, and health of the family. There is no department of housekeeping that is not made to yield to the needs of any member. There is never a crisis of temper if a meal is late or the convenience of a member demands a change in the hour. A few minutes—yea, even a number of minutes—spent in kindly converse in the morning, the call of a friend, or the sudden desire for an hour's outing, never seems to the home-maker a violation of the moral code. Dust does not cause a nightmare, or disorder a display which love and charity agree to call nervousness. Not things, but souls, are the objects of a home-maker's care. She values peace more than system, happiness more than regularity, content more than work accomplished. Yet, with it all, her house, when she touches perfection, is the essence of regularity, order and quiet. It is this that makes home-making an art. And she alone is a home-maker who has a true sense of proportion.—The Outlook.

IN AN IDOL'S TEMPLE.

That was an odd mistake an old negro preacher made when he put "saints" for "sense," and read,

"Judge not the Lord by feeble saints."

Sometimes I am almost tempted to wish that the change in the hymn might become permanent. The world is always judging the Lord by the saints, and hence is the view so distorted. The "feeble saints" are the most numerous, and these are they whom Paul is seeking to protect when he advises the Corinthians not to be seen in an idol's temple. A man with the knowledge spoken of by Paul might sit unharmed in an idol's temple; but the weakling passing by might be tempted to enter and worship. Hence the apostle warns believers against being seen in such a place. The great principle underlying this ought to be the Christian's guiding policy. What does not harm me may bring another into sin. Self-denial for my brother's sake is my duty.

Avoid the idol's temple. In the days of Tiberius it was thought a crime to carry a ring stamped with the image of Augustus into any mean or sordid place. Real reverence for Jesus is quick and sensitive. Let it remain so. The moment we begin to venture upon doubtful measures, pleading that there is no danger, we begin to lose our hold upon our Lord. The eye soon becomes gross, and we can not discern evil.—C. C. Brown, in our Young People.

IF YOU PLEASE.

When the Duke of Wellington was sick the last thing he took was a cup of tea. On his servant's handing it to him on a saucer, and asking him if he would have it, the duke replied, "Yes, if you please." These were his last words. How much kindness and courtesy is expressed by them! He who had commanded great armies in Europe, and had long been used to the throne of authority, did not despise or overlook the small courtesies of life. Ah! how many boys do! What a rude tone of command they often use to their little brothers and sisters, and sometimes to their mothers! This is ill-bred and unchristian, and shows a coarse nature and a hard heart. In all your home talk remember "If you please." Among your playmates don't forget "If you please." To all who wait upon you and serve you, believe that "If you please" will make you better served than all the cross or ordering words in the whole dictionary. Don't forget three little words—"If you please."

Life is made up, not of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things, of which smiles and kindness and small obligations, given habitually, are what win and preserve the heart, and secure the comfort.—Sir Humphrey Davy.

TEACHING POLITENESS.

A mother noticed a remarkable change in the deportment of her six-year-old son. From being rough, noisy and discourteous, he had suddenly become one of the gentlest and most considerate little fellows in the world. He was attending the kindergarten, and his mother naturally inferred that the change was somehow due to his teacher's instruction.

"Miss Smith teaches you to be polite?" she remarked, in a tone of interrogation.

"No," said the boy, "she never says a word about it."

The mother was puzzled, and all the more when further questioning brought only more emphatic denials that the teacher had ever given her pupils lessons in good breeding.

"Well, then," the mother asked, finally, "if Miss Smith doesn't say anything, what does she do?"

"She doesn't do anything," persisted the boy. "She just walks around, and we feel polite. We feel just as polite as—anything."

That was all he could tell about it, and his mother began to see through the mystery.—Educational News.

HE WATCHED AND LEARNED.

Recently a small boy, a real boy, who chases cats and wears out his clothes and slams the door, showed that he had rare ability in solving the problems and answering the questions that so frequently come into a boy's life.

Near the house was a tall maple tree, and the boy announced, late in the Summer, that the tree measured thirty-three feet. "How do you know?" he was asked. His answer was, "I measured it." "Did you climb it?" "Why, no," the boy said, with surprise; "I measured the shadow."

Some one near made the comment that shadows differ in length. He said: "Yes, but twice a day the shadows are just as long as things themselves. All Summer I have been trying to get the height of that tree. I drove a stick into the ground, and when the shadow of the stick was just as long as the stick I knew the shadow of the tree would be just as long as the tree. I measured it, and it was thirty-three feet."—Outlook.

One day the conversation at the dinner table turned upon a lady who was so unfortunate as to have incurred the dislike of certain members of the household because of some little peculiarities. After several had expressed their views in no gentle terms, the married sister added:

"I can't endure her, and I believe I will not return her call if she comes here again."

Her husband, who had hitherto remained silent, replied:

"She will not trouble you again, my dear; she died this afternoon."

"You do not mean it. Surely, you are only punishing us for our uncharitableness!"

"She is really dead. I learned it on my way to dinner."

Overwhelmed with shame, the little group realized for the first time the awful solemnity of such sinful conversation. Let us take warning, and speak of those about us as we all wish we had done when they are dead.—Advocate and Guardian.

A bank official, speaking of the defalcation of one of the clerks, recently made this suggestive remark: "Had I known he had not a happy home, I would not have kept him in so responsible a position." There is involved in the remark a truth of widest application. The home is the basis of all life. A happy home is essential to safety and success in every department of life. Occasionally a man or woman is strong enough to endure discord at home without flinching at any point of duty. But the majority are not so; they become discouraged, lose heart, and at last break down. Many of the sudden and surprising lapses are to be traced to this cause.—Christian Guardian.

Children are imitative. They observe and do. They take their cue from their surroundings. They are the product of the moulding forces in the home and in society. Into their character enter the traits of father and mother, pastor and teacher. This is no new thought, but it is ever a suggestive one, and starts such searching and practical questions as these: Am I making right impressions upon the young? Am I what I should be in their eyes? Am I pure, noble, true, just, kind, forbearing, charitable, truthful and loving to a degree that will quicken, strengthen and develop in them corresponding virtues?—Presbyterian.

Hygiene.

THAT WHICH INSURES LONG LIFE.

He who would live to a good old age, who would carry youth and freshness, symmetry and beauty of mind and body, into ripe years, must have a cultured heart, an educated mind, and a well-kept body. He must be temperate and virtuous; he must not defile the temple of his soul with vice or imbrute it with sensuality. The mind is the natural protector of the body. There is a divine remedy placed within us for many of the ills we suffer. If we only knew how to use this power of will and mind to protect ourselves, many of us would be able to carry youth and cheerfulness with us into the teens of our second century.

No one thing contributes more to health or success than a strong, vigorous will. It is a perpetual health tonic, physically and mentally. It braces the system, enabling it to endure hardships, disappointments and disease. It is a balance wheel; it unifies and steadies all the movements and functions of the body and mind, and wards off the destructive shocks which often wrench unbalanced minds from their orbits, and produce discord instead of harmony. The will is the great executive in the republic of the brain; and if this ruler be weak and vacillating, there will be no order or harmony in mind or body. This executive rules with an iron hand, with a grasp upon all the faculties which secure regularity and order and harmony in the physical, the mental, and the moral realm. A weak ruler can not execute even good laws, and uncertainty and anarchy must ever reign in his dominion.

Every physician knows that courageous people, with indomitable wills, are not half as likely to contract contagious diseases as the timid, the vacillating, the irresolute.

There are many ways of ruining the body besides smoking or getting drunk. Running for the train may injure the heart more than the tobacco habit. The lack of self-control, yielding to vulgar indulgences, and illicit imaginings, often injure lives infinitely more than the things which are popularly denounced. A sulky dog and a bad-tempered horse wear themselves out with half the labor that kindly creatures do. An ugly cow will not give down her milk, and a sour sheep will not fatten. Truly the great Hebrew seer enunciated a wonderful chemistry when he said, "As righteousness tendeth to life, so he that pursueth evil pursueth it to his own death."

REV. GEORGE MORRISON.

George Morrison was born in Londonderry county, Ireland, April 17, 1825 and moved to America in early manhood. He lived in Alabama until 1857, when he removed to Kemper county, Miss., and engaged in teaching, which was ever afterward his profession. He was also licensed to preach about this time. In 1859 or '60 he removed to Copiah county, Miss., and this was his permenent abiding-place except for about a year, when he was in Texas. He was one of the most scholarly men in the State, and was so recognized among scholars. He was a typical Irishmen, and was proud of his nativity. He was bland, courteous, jolly, good-natured, generous to prodigality, high-tempered, aggressive, when aroused, and as brave as Julius Cæsar.

When the war between the States was declared, Morrison, like every true son of Erin—who, it is said, has fought every battle save his own—immediately enlisted in Company D, Twelfth Mississippi Regiment, which was brigaded in Virginia under Gen. R. E. Rhodes. It has been told by his chaplain that Morrison carried a horn hung around his neck during the entire war, and it made no difference how long the march, how adverse the circumstances, or how late the hour, whenever and wherever the army struck camp, the toot of Morrison's horn calling the soldiers to prayer immediately followed, and then and there he went to hold a prayer meeting in spite of the devil or the Yankees. His kindness to the sick and wounded, and his fearless devotion to every duty, however hazardous, made him a great favorite in the army, notwithstanding his many eccentricities.

All during the war he worked hard during his spare hours on his books—Hebrew and Greek Testaments, as well as all sorts of works on "higher mathematics." I have never known any other man so passionately fond of books. They became to him friends and associates, and, in fact, a part of his life and being.

After the war he taught school and preached, as he had done before. He continued to teach until he became too old to adopt modern methods, and was a local preacher at the time of his death.

It must be confessed that neither his teaching nor his preaching produced the most satisfactory results. He had an impediment in his speech which added to his Irish brogue, and peculiar gestures prevented him from being readily understood by the people and his pupils, and militated in a great degree against him. While this is true, there are many men and women in Mississippi, and more especially in Copiah county, who owe much of their education to Morrison, one of whom I am. He was faithful, and thoroughly competent to teach, and those students who remained with him long enough to become accustomed to his peculiarities always succeeded well. He was an intense worker. I have known him to carry unsolved problems in his mind for years without giving them up, and none of them were abandoned unsolved.

He possessed a remarkable familiarity with the Hebrew, Greek and Latin authors. Mathematics seemed to present to him a charm which nothing else possessed, and the more difficult and abstract the matter in hand, the better he was pleased with it.

He was always considered a crank about books, and he had certainly gathered together the most curious and unusual selection of books ever seen in one library. Among his books were to be found the most difficult and abstract works on higher mathematics; all of the best authors on the ancient languages, various works on theology, some of the poets, many of the classics translated, and almost all of the curiosities in literature and theology published in recent years. He told me himself that he had hunted as long as forty years for some of these books, thirty years for some, twenty for others, and ten years for many of them. He had written over twenty thousand pages of what he called "Our Formula," which consisted of working out various problems in arithmetic, algebra, geometry, trigonometry, calculus, philosophy, mechanics, astronomy, etc., the most of which I now have in my possession, and it looks like the work of a life-time. There was hardly a book in his remarkable library which was not marked from beginning to end with the blue and red pencil which he used at all times to mark significant passages, thus showing that he was no skimmer, but that he read his books thoroughly. So great was his love for books that he would go hungry, if necessary, to buy them.

A few years since, when his land was sold to the State for taxes, two of his friends gave him the money to go to Jackson and redeem the same, and incinded enough money to pay his railroad fare and hotel bill. Upon his return he was showing me some books which he had bought, and of which he was very proud, and explained to me that he had walked to Jackson and back, a distance of sixty miles, and saved his railroad fare and hotel bills, and had bought these books. I have known him to do many other as curious things to get possession of a book he wanted.

He sent for me to visit him before his death, and I then learned what I had already expected—that he wished to give me a portion of his books, and have me to deliver others to persons whom he desired to have them. I found him very low, but his mind was firmly set on remembering, as far as he could, those who had been kind, and aided him in his poverty and old age. He had me to go through his voluminous and curious library—which was all he had of this world's goods—and, as I would call the name of a book, he would comment on its merits or peculiarities, and have me write the name of the donee of the same in it.

He died as he lived—in the perfect confidence of the saving power of his risen Lord, whom he had worshiped and trusted with the pure and simple faith of a little child during a long and eventful life. Without a cloud upon his faith he went down in the "valley of the shadow of death," in full hope that there was light and life beyond. "A truer man to his friends, his country and his Lord never lived."

J. S. SEXTON.

CHEEK—MRS. FANNIE CHEEK departed this life at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. J. McKay, Utica, Miss., on Aug. 6, 1898. She was a native of Copiah county, being born on the twenty-eighth day of February, 1830. She was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. K. Cheek, Jan. 1, 1857, with whom she happily lived until his death, some twelve years ago. She united in early life with the M. E. Church at Bartonton, of which she ever lived a faithful and devoted member. Her character was such as adorned her profession, everyone acknowledging her Christian virtues. She was singularly free from the common infirmities, and possessed in a rare degree the Christian graces of patience, kindness, sympathy and charity, adorned by a meekness as beautiful as the soft radiance of a Summer sky. She was a loving disciple of the Master, and submissively answered the summons to depart and be with Christ. Her remains, attended by her three surviving daughters and many sorrowing friends, were laid on a peaceful Sabbath morn in the quiet family burying-ground at the home of her youth, there to await with the loved ones gone before the glad day when they shall awake with power and in the likeness of her glorified Savior.

DEAFNESS CAN NOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result; and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Many good people connected with our churches have a morbid and almost hysterical fear of what they characterize as "feeling" and excitement in connection with revival services. They would be glad to have conversions, but want to see the convert commence his new life in a very quiet and orderly way, and with no unusual display of emotion. That type of converts may exist, but they are exceedingly rare. Drummond puts this matter with characteristic truth and force in his sermon on "Penitence." He says: "If there is little emotion in a man's religion, it is because there is little introspection. Religion without emotion is religion without reflection. Let a man sit calmly down to think about his life. Let him think how God has dealt with him since ever he lisped God's name. Let him add to that how he has ever dealt with God since he could sin. And as he turns over the secrets of the past, and forgotten sins come crowding one by one into his thoughts, can he help a strong emotion rising in his heart and shedding itself in tears? Yes, religion without emotion is religion without reflection. And, conversely, the man who gives himself to earnest thought upon his ways will always have enough emotion to generate religious fervor in his soul."—Zion's Herald.

FOR OVER FIFTY YEARS

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Very often the man who has no religion talks the most about it. The infidel is forever prating about it, not that he cares for it, but because he must thus whistle up his courage on account of his lack of it. His infidelity would soon ooze away if he ceased to rail at holy things. His fears would get the better of him if he did not keep up a hot fire upon Christian dogmas. He is never so happy or confident as in the heat of controversy. He is then most fully persuaded that there is no God, no Bible, no hereafter. He is ready, in his judgment, to meet all comers, and if they are not forthcoming, he is compelled, for his own security, to go out and hunt them up. His stale and effete arguments lose their force, even with him, through silence.—Presbyterian.

Every time you make a new Christian you make a new argument, that nothing can overturn, for the truth of the gospel. Each new believer becomes an original witness to the truth of Christ's gospel. Each man can say, "I know whom I have believed."—G. S. Barrett, D. D

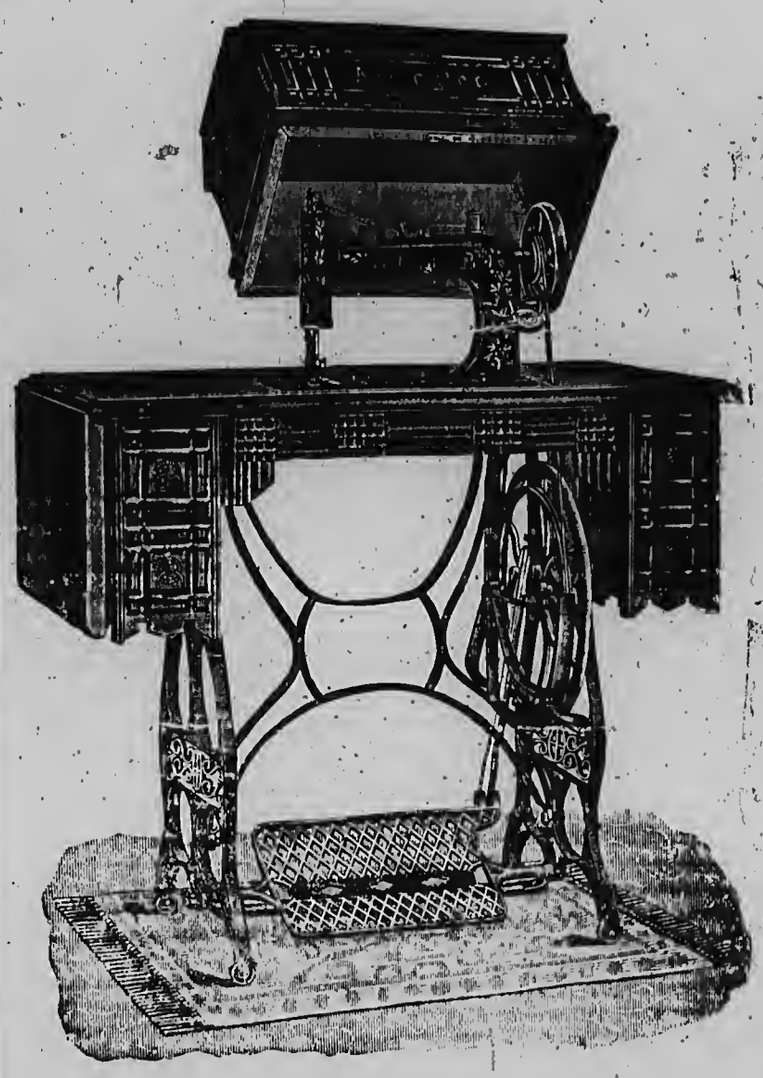
Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc.



The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take-up, convenient foot rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one gauge, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearing polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—The "Arlington B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light to heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great length; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell, without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless and are very durable.

OUR OFFER.

To anyone, not now a subscriber to this paper, who will send us $12, we will send the machine and the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE one year. To old subscribers we make the following offer: Pay your subscription to December, '99, and send $17 additional, and we will send you the machine. This price does not include freight.

We allow purchaser to test the machine for ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

TO AGENTS:

We will send this machine free to any preacher or other person who will send us twenty new subscribers with the cash—$40. Address

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Press dispatches from Washington announce the appointment of Colonel J. R. G. Pitkin as postmaster of New Orleans, to succeed Hon. Frank A. Daniels.

Winnie Davis, youngest daughter of Jefferson Davis, died at Narragansett Pier, R. I., on the eighteenth. She was a very bright, accomplished woman of most loveable character, and was exceedingly popular throughout the South.

A long conference has been held between Senor Sagasta, the premier, and Senor Montero Rios, the president of the Spanish Peace Commission, which resulted in the decision that the Peace Commission shall strennously defend the retention of the Philippine Islands by Spain.

Sagasta, having entirely routed his enemies and, as Romero Robledo says, dispersed them, at once proceeds to nominate his Peace Commission, whose instructions will be clear and decisive. Above all, the commissioners will be instructed that their mission should be completed with the utmost possible promptitude.

The Island of St. Vincent has been swept by a terrific hurricane and an immense amount of damage has been caused by floods and landslides, as well as by the wind. There has also been great loss of life. The governor of St. Vincent has cabled to the governor of Jamaica imploring the latter to send prompt assistance to the sufferers.

General Kitchener has absolute authority to claim Fashoda as Egyptian territory and to expel the present occupants forcibly if necessary. Fashoda, the correspondent says, will then be occupied by an Egyptian garrison. The Daily Telegraph's Cairo correspondent says that General Kitchener intends to present an ultimatum demanding that the French expedition under General Marchand quit Fashoda forthwith.

The solitary imprisonment for life to which the assassin of the Austrian Empress will probably be sentenced, because capital punishment is forbidden in Switzerland, will seem to most people to be worse than death. He will be placed, when sentenced, in a small dark cell from which he will never emerge while alive and will be fed just enough to support life. This treatment generally results in a complete loss of reason.

Figures compiled in the departments in Washington show that expenditures for the army amount to $78,500,000 since March 1, and for the navy $36,000,000. In the land forces 264 men were killed in battle, 1450 were wounded, 1500 died of disease. In the navy and the marine corps 14 men were killed in battle and 38 were wounded. There were no deaths in the navy resulting from the conditions of the service such as there were in the army camps.

The report that a French force has captured Fashoda, an important place on the White Nile, in the extreme southern portion of the Sondanese province of Kordofan, is a serious bit of news which promises complications between Great Britain and France. The presence of the French at Fashoda is entirely unlooked for, as the recent amicable arrangment of the matters in dispute with respect to Central Africa made it appear that all differences as to spheres of influence had been satisfactorily settled.

According to recent advices from Washington, the plans for reorganizing the army have about been perfected. The number of volunteers to be mustered out has reached about 100,000, which is the limit that the President believes it is safe to go in the process of reducing the volunteer army. The balance of the volunteers, to the number of 125,000, will be retained in the service for the present, and, together with the regular army, will comprise a total armed strength of about 170,000 men.

When all the vessels now building or authorized for the naval service are completed the fleet will be practically double the size it was previous to the war with Spain. Within a comparatively short time there will be added to the active list five first-class battleships and a new cruiser of the same size and type as the "New Orleans." There are a number of torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers building and soon to be commenced, while the last Congress authorized three additional battle-ships and four coast defense monitors.

Paymaster General Stanton has turned over to the President all the papers relating to the recent unpleasantness growing out of the refusal of a Texas regiment to receive pay from Major Lynch because he is colored. The President has taken no definite action beyond pressing approval of General Stanton's course in sending a sharp dispatch to the commanding paymaster of that department stating in effect that as Major Lynch had been regularly commissioned by the President as an army paymaster, the troops must take their pay from him or else go without pay.

The Frankfort (Germany) Gazette, of August 22, cites some of the figures that illustrate the strength and productive power of the United States. It notes that, by the census of 1890, the property of the United States was valued at $62,000,000,000, while the property of the whole world was estimated at $290,000,000,000. The American people, who number 70,000,000 souls, or one-twentieth of the population of the globe, possess, therefore, more than one-fifth of the entire wealth of the human race. The Union has 182,000 miles of railways, half as much as the remainder of the world entire.

NOTICE.

To the Patrons and Friends of Epworth College:

After advising with our resident patrons and friends, as well as the Board of Health, we have decided to open school at the appointed time—Sept. 14. It is now an assured fact that the fever in North Mississippi is confined to the closely quarantined communities of Orwood and Taylors.

Taylors is a small village forty miles south of Holly Springs, on the Illinois Central railroad, and Orwood, a mere postoffice, is eight miles west of Taylors. No passenger trains are permitted to enter Holly Springs from this division, and the strictest quarantine on all roads, private and public, leading in to Holly Springs, is being enforced.

The health of Holly Springs was never better than it is at present.

We have not had even a suspicious case of yellow fever here during the Summer, and our local physicians say there is no reason to fear, as there are no exposed persons within our borders.

Pupils can enter without detention over the Kansas City, Memphis and Birmingham railroad, or the Illinois Central railroad, from points north of this. We trust that the quarantine regulations will, at an early day, be so modified as to admit pupils from and through Memphis, that our pupils from the Delta, and points west, may not be long delayed in reaching here.

To those who may be detained a week or two we wish to say that we will, by imposing a little extra labor on our teachers, enable you to recover fully all that has been passed over prior to your arrival, so that, while your expenses may be a little less by the detention, your accomplishments will be the same as if you had entered at the opening.

We have incurred a heavy expense during the Summer in moving here, in advertising, in canvassing, in repairing, and in the purchase of necessary apparatus, etc., and we have employed a faculty comprising young ladies of verified ability, and we ask our patrons who are not hindered by fear of fever to bestir themselves in the interest of the college. Come and bring the children; bring them all, from four to twenty-four years of age, excluding the boys above the primary grade, next Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, and submit them to our care and discipline for nine months, and we promise you that no effort shall be spared in their education and development.

Pupils coming in on trains will write us or wire us for any special information; but our agent will meet all trains for the next thirty days, and hence mere notice of arrival will not be necessary. When you get off the cars call for Epworth College secretary.

Yours respectfully,

E. T. KEETON.

Holly Springs, Miss., Sept. 10, 1898.

The Missouri Conference, at its recent session, adopted the following resolution:

Resolved, That we indorse the action of our Bishops, looking to the return of the $288,000 to the United States Government, and that we hereby authorize them, in so far as we have a voice or right as an Annual Conference, whether in calling an extra session of the General Conference or otherwise, to take such steps as are necessary, at the earliest possible moment.

A resolution was also passed giving it as the sense of the Conference that our regularly constituted authorities ought to take the proper steps looking to the removal of the Book Agents.

THE VICTORY rests with America's Greatest Medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla, when it battles against any disease caused or promoted by impure or impoverished blood.

FROM BRO. ELLIS.

"I thank God that the thought of everlasting death has passed from me. I believe that it is his blessed will to save all his creatures. If it were not for the unspeakable bestowment of immortality—a happy, peaceful, glorified immortality—I would think most certainly that the gift of life is not only a tragedy, but a crime."—Miss Belle Kearney, in N. O. ADVOCATE, of Sept. 9.

Does the gifted author mean to avow her disbelief of the doctrine of future punishment in the above quotation? It is hardly possible to give it any other construction, and yet I am not willing to believe that is what she means. If the infinite perfections of God require a "happy, peaceful, glorified immortality" for all his rational creatures, then I can not see why these same perfections do not require that they should be exempted from suffering in the present existence.

Whoever attempts to construct a Theodicy founded upon the infinite goodness of God, leaving out of view other attributes of his nature, will find it difficult to explain the dark problem of moral and natural evil as it exists in this world. To seek relief from the "thought of everlasting death" at the expense of the logical faculty may be natural, but not wise.

D. G. W. ELLIS.

[We read Miss Kearney's manuscript very hurriedly, and thus overlooked the scope of the sentences quoted. Bro. Ellis' position is unquestionably correct.—EDITOR.]

TO THE PASTORS OF THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

DEAR BRETHREN: Let me call your attention to the fact that the last General Conference made several changes in the form of "pastors' report to the Annual Conference." We are this year called upon to report some things that we have never reported before. If we are to report intelligently on them, it is imperative that we immediately provide ourselves with a copy of the blanks. They can be had for 5 cents from Messrs. Barbee & Smith, and there is little likelihood that you will be able to get them at Conference; so provide yourself with them before you go there.

Bear in mind also that reports will not be received on the old blanks, for the simple reason that the report can not be put on them in such a way that it could be entered upon the permanent records without endless trouble to the secretaries, who are unsalaried men.

If our statistical reports are to be reliable, it is in your power to make them so by being careful to report exactly on all matters that the church requires reports upon. So let us take pains to know what is required of us, and then comply as loyal men with the law of the church. I am,

Your obedient servant,

WM. G. EVANS,
Statistical Secretary.

MEMBERS OF MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

All brethren who purpose bringing their wives to Conference will please inform me at once, and also all brethren who will be unable to come. The presiding elders will please send me the names of their lay delegates, so we shall be able to put those of an advanced age as near the church as possible. They will please send the names of those for admission or ordination. Brethren who purpose coming by private conveyances will please let us hear from them at once.

ISAAC L. PEEBLES.

A "LITERARY" TIGER.

BY BISHOP CHAS. B. GALLOWAY.

The organization of "literary" and social clubs was becoming popular in the city of Jackson until a few days ago. Charters were applied for by persons without great reputation for love of books, and as this is a "dry" town, some suspicion was awakened as to the real purpose of the organization. It was feared that the club was to be a "literary" tiger, where liquors could be dispensed to the members and their friends, in defiance of the State's laws. At least Gov. McLaurin had a little wholesome skepticism on the subject, and by a very clever flank movement stampeded the whole "club" business. When the well-written charter for certain "literary" privileges was presented for executive approval, he added the following section, and then affixed his name and the great seal of the State:

"Section 12. No spirituous, vinous, or malt liquor, nor any other intoxicating liquor, nor any kind of cards or dice or device used in gambling, shall be carried upon or permitted upon any real or personal property of the corporation, and a violation of this section by any person—the corporation being responsible for its enforcement—shall ipso facto forfeit the charter, and all the property of the corporation shall thereby belong to the State, and the sheriff of Hinds county, or such other person as the governor shall designate, shall immediately take possession thereof for the State, without waiting for the legal proceedings to decide the charter forfeited. And any officer of the State, or of Hinds county, or of the city of Jackson, shall at any and all times have access to any and all of said real or personal property for inspection, and a refusal or failure or neglect to admit any such officer shall be conclusive evidence of the violation of this section. The organization under this charter will be an acceptance of these conditions."

This harmless section occasioned no little indignation, and there were threats of a purpose to insult the governor of the State. Indeed, it is reported that there was an attempt to treat him with indignity. And it is said that the charter was torn to pieces in the corridor of the capitol. The claim was that forty-five members had been insulted by the added section. And some lawyers (?) are reported to have questioned the governor's legal right to amend any charter presented for his approval.

Now, upon this affair I have indulged a few reflections:

1. If there was no purpose to make that "literary" club a tiger, the members had no occasion to be insulted at the governor's "Section 12." They would prefer really to make a chartered declaration that the good name and influence of the club should never be questioned by the permission of intemperance and gambling, or anything that would lead thereto. Above all things, "Literary Clubs" desire to be noted for morality and sobriety. Instead, therefore, of being offended at the governor, they ought to thank him for his thoughtfulness, and apologize for their own oversight.

2. If they really did intend to make of that club a tiger with a "literary" tail, they have also no occasion to be insulted at the governor's "Section 12." While somewhat disappointed that under the cover of a charter they could not run a tiger and violate the plain statutes of the State, they ought to commend the Chief Executive for his ready discernment of their scheme and his firm adherence to the law which he had sworn to impartially execute. And they ought also to thank the governor for an act of official friendship. It is better to kill a tiger, even with a "literary" tail, than to remit a fine or release a convict from the county farm.

3. "Section 12" is not to be regarded as gubernatorial disapproval of "literary" institutions. Nor is it an expression of executive disregard of the educational and "literary" needs and demands of the State. The governor is supposed to be in hearty sympathy with the educational and literary progress of Mississippi. All true friends of education and literature, however, are in accord with "Section 12."

4. All patriotic people who desire the highest moral, intellectual and industrial welfare of the State will approve the course of Gov. McLaurin in this matter. It was a timely interposition in behalf of sobriety and the good name of our commonwealth. Should this act of the Executive decrease the number of literateurs, it will not affect unfavorably the progress of literature.

5. Of all tigers, deliver us from the "literary" variety. In handsomely furnished rooms, with spectacles on his nose, and a few magazines and Police Gazettes on the table, he is more dangerous than when blind and hid in a back alley.

Jackson, Miss.

FACTS AND FIGURES.

From the Fifty-second Annual Report of our Parent Board of Missions, May, 1898, the following facts and figures are culled:

In the "General Review" the secretaries say: "While the burden of debt has for years placed an additional strain upon the Board and its faithful missionaries, it has never resulted in a backward movement. The work has gone steadily on. In some fields it has expanded, and in all there is an outlook of increasing hopefulness. The opening and successful maintenance of the Korea Mission in the midst of our financial embarrassment gives added emphasis to the growth of missionary conviction. . . . The spirit in which the missionary debt was secured has been a benediction to its secretaries, an inspiration to the whole church, and is a prophecy of greater things in the future.

"During the quadrennium we have added 10 missionaries to our force in the foreign field, while the growth in membership has been 2,177, giving a total of 8,928. There is a total of 8,483 scholars in attendance on our Sunday-schools, or an increase of 1,141. Epworth Leagues to the number of 38 have been organized, with 1,225 members. Some of these have been specially active in Bible study, tract distribution, and in soul-winning.

"The growth in church extension is indicated by the number of church-buildings having increased from 82 to 100, with an addition of 18 parsonages. The attendance upon our boarding-schools is 753, as against 576 at the close of the last quadrennium; but the number of day-schools has dropped from 63 to 32, with a decrease of 394 pupils. This contraction is largely due to enforced economy under limited appropriations. The number of patients treated in our four dispensaries and hospitals in China during the past year is 18,201, or 1,186 more than in 1893-4, while 53,240 is the number of patients treated during the quadrennium.

"The amount collected for all purposes on the foreign field in 1897-8 was $17,533.09, United States currency, as against $5,875.24 in 1893-4—an advance of $11,655.85 during the four years. This is largely the outgrowth of the policy of self-support adopted by the Board, and its faithful application by our missionaries. Brazil is worthy of special notice in this particular, having outstripped all the other fields."

The importance and the clearness of these statements must excuse the length of the quotation. From the references to our various mission fields the following items are taken:

CHINA.

"A professing Christian, Mr. Wu Ting Fan, was appointed envoy and minister plenipotentiary to the United States." . . . "During the last week in January the Emperor sent a written order to the book-store of the American Bible Society, not far from the east gate of the palace, for 160 books, 30 of them distinctly Christian." . . . "Confronted, as our missionaries are, with the heaviest demands ever made upon them, we regret the necessity of reporting a diminished force. In 1894 we had 16 missionaries—including wives, 30; to-day, after a lapse of four years, we have only 15, or, including wives, 27." . . . "The present membership is 791, giving an increase of 354 for the quadrennium. Two churches are reported self-supporting. There are 670 pupils in the 16 day and boarding-schools. The 9 Epworth Leagues have been organized since the last General Conference (1894). Not a few of the 292 members have proven most efficient in soul-winning. The treatment of 53,240 patients during the four years speaks volumes for the possibilities wrapped up in personal work in the dispensaries and by the bedside." . . . "Aggregate collection of $866 for all purposes."

JAPAN.

"In thirty years she has run the gamut of the externals of Western civilization." . . . "Losing sight of the fact that moral character is as essential to the integrity of national life as it is to the life of the individual, they adopted a system of education absolutely colorless as regards morals." . . . "Now the spirit of commercial conquest is rife." . . . "The native church has been severely tried and its membership purged." . . . "Our own church has stood its ground." . . . "At the beginning of the quadrennium there were 507 members; the number this year is 559. One church and two parsonages have been built. Two churches are self-supporting. The attendance on our 3 boarding and 9 day-schools is 520. The 54 Sunday-schools are attended by 1,554 scholars, or an attendance nearly equal to three times the church membership. Collections for all purposes this year, $980.69."

KOREA.

"Two years ago we entered Korea. Last year the superintendent of the mission reported 14 probationers. He now reports 48 native members, 156 probationers, 2 chapels, and $50 contributed by the natives for church extension. The work grows apace, and our missionaries feel that unless re-enforced at an early day, their ability will fall far short of the demands." . . . "Missionaries are treated with universal courtesy and addressed in terms of highest respect."

BRAZIL.

"During the past four years the membership has grown from 944 to 1,729—a greater increase than in any other field save Mexico. Five churches have become self-supporting, and this year the total collections for all purposes amounts to $11,943—an advance since 1894 of $7,672. Best of all, there has been a special outpouring of the Holy Spirit during the past few months."

MEXICO.

"There were 4,863 members four years ago, while the number reported this year is 5,801. The number of Sunday-schools has diminished from 147 to 123, but the attendance has grown from 3,241 to 3,604 scholars. The increase in collections for all purposes from $1,661 to $3,654 is one of the best indications of a healthy and substantial advance."

But, let our preachers and laymen send six cents in stamps to Dr. W. R. Lambuth, 346 Public Square, Nashville, Tenn., and get a copy of the Fifty-second Annual Report of our Board of Missions, and read the many other striking and suggestive and gratifying facts. And let all the brethren secure as many subscribers as possible to the Missionary Review, which can now be had by new subscribers at twenty-five cents per annum.

Missionary Secretary, Miss. Conf.

NEEDS WATCHING.

Roman Catholicism is ever keenly alive to its immunities. It has no notion of forfeiting any property upon which it has once laid its hands, or of foregoing any State privileges once possessed. In our country it has shown a grasping propensity in our cities, and has used its political power to gain special favors. It is a notorious fact that in New York City it has acquired some choice locations and exceptional advantages at the public expense. But it has never yet acquired with us the peculiar governmental recognition which it enjoys in lands where it largely or wholly dominates. Spain especially has been the pet child of the papacy, and its churches have long enjoyed pecuniary support from the Spanish government, not only at home, but in colonial administration.

This fact is undisputed, and has special significance just now for Americans, in view of the territorial changes to be effected as the result of our victory over Spain. Rome has evinced great concern about the outcome of the pending transfer of power in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines to the American Republic. It knows that the transaction means, if our government is true to its genius and history, the curtailment, if not the extinction, of certain pecuniary advantages which it has hitherto claimed and enjoyed. It has been the legalized church of the Spanish possessions, and has been supported out of the public funds. Valuable tracts of land have been appropriated and used for the maintenance of its priesthood and institutions. But now Porto Rico becomes an American acquisition, and will be subject to our laws and principles of government, and the Romish clergy will have to give up State support and depend upon voluntary contributions. But matters in Cuba and the Philippines are yet open to adjudication by conference, though these islands will for awhile pass under an American protectorate. In this condition of things Romish intrigue and influence will be exerted to the utmost to get all possible recognition of ecclesiastical immunities, either temporarily or permanently. Priestcraft never voluntarily relinquishes privileges without a struggle. Our Peace Commissioners must be on the alert, and grant no dangerous concessions at the outstart or during the present transition period. They will encounter a wily diplomacy, and may be tempted to yield considerable in return for Romish influence in the settlement of difficult and perplexing problems. It will not be surprising to find, for the sake of saving its interests, the priesthood playing into our hands and pledging itself to favor the policy of an early annexation of Cuba to the United States, or even of the Philippines, if our government insists upon retaining them.

But neither American statesmanship nor American Protestantism must be caught napping at this juncture of affairs. There are indications that Rome's dignitaries on both sides of the Atlantic are already moving in the matter. Archbishop Ireland has been in close touch, politically and personally, with President McKinley, and his movements excite suspicion. Enough influence was exerted to secure a special Roman Catholic representative on the Peace Commission as first constituted. Public opinion ought to be sufficiently pronounced to demand that its members shall not commit the government to any un-American ecclesiasticism, and that they shall confer no Romanish concessions that may be bones of contention or sources of trouble in the future. Romanism must be placed upon the same level with Protestantism. Religious equality and toleration before the law are all that any church can rightfully ask or demand within American jurisdiction.

Canada has had considerable experience with a shrewd and grasping Roman Catholic priesthood, and we would do well, as a people, to learn a lesson from what she has passed through. The Canada Presbyterian, in a recent editorial upon the subject, lifts up a warning voice for our benefit. It says: "The matter, of course, is one to be determined by the government and people of the United States; but if the experience of Canada is of any value, we would advise them to watch any such movement with suspicion, as one that might cause serious embitterment for centuries to come. The church knows how to make the most of such stipulations, and to find in them an excuse for all sorts of demands. More than a century and a quarter has elapsed since the capitulation of Quebec, when the British authorities readily granted the application for the free exercise of the Roman Catholic religion, and they have not yet ceased appealing to that as a plea for immunities such as the government never dreamed of at the time. It is true, their own people are the chief sufferers, but they have suffered grievously, and the church has retarded progress to a degree which has made Quebec Province a perpetual drag on the prosperity of the country. The American people would do well to watch their politicians in dealing with this matter, for politicians are everywhere only too willing to pay a heavy price for the support of the Romish hierarchy, when they think it can be paid without detection."

There is sound sense in these words, and they ought to be heeded. The Romish vote is courted in our country by those seeking political preferment, and neither of our great political parties wish to antagonize it, and so scheming managers are disposed to grant favors to Romanism upon every occasion where they think it safe to do so; but at such a time as this patriotism ought to rise superior to partisanship.—The Presbyterian.

THE PHILIPPINE QUESTION.

We are not unaware that the government of remote colonies, with very diverse populations, and strange and difficult problems, will call for such quality of responsible officials, and such statecraft and horizon, as may well give any people pause before it be assumed. But if such qualities are not to be found in America, where would you have God look for them? Here are eight or ten millions of semi-barbarous, undeveloped peoples who must be put under civilized and Christian tutelage, if ever they are to come to the full possession of themselves and their fair islands. If America is to be persuaded to turn away from this difficult and perplexing task, where is the civilizing agent to be found? Who is there better qualified? Would you return these people to Spain?—to three more centuries of repression and stagnation? Is there not in the mere thought a suggestion of national cowardice, of unwillingness to undertake an arduous duty, because it is arduous? What if we seem to traverse our own professions? What if we began this war with no thought of conquest? Is not life always larger than logic, and events constantly thrust upon individuals and nations larger program than any they had honestly designed? In the integrity of our souls we know that if we keep these islands, it will be because we see no other way in which the lofty purposes of the humanitarian spirit of America can be accomplished among these repressed and wronged peoples. Not greedily, with lust of conquest, but with a pressing sense of high responsibility before God and the bar of advancing civilization, we urge that the Philippines be retained. Difficulties there will be in any disposition made of them; the greatest, probably, in the attempt to return into the enfeebled guardianship of Spain a people who were on the whole more than a match for her before the Americans appeared upon the scene, and who, with increased contempt for her military prowess, will continue to annoy and harass her, and make peace and prosperity impossible.

The retention of the islands will mean for the people a stable government, domestic development, increased riches, education, civilization. Even Spain, apart from her wounded pride, will be vastly the better off for being relieved from a protracted struggle with the insurgents. The United States will be given an opportunity to take the full fruitage of a high civilization into Asia, and though the difficulties may be great and the stress and strain be heavy, we would be unworthy our high place were we to meekly or fearfully decline a great responsibility to leaven a thronging continent with the pregnant truths of which God has made us inheritors and custodians. We are perfectly aware that we lay ourselves open to the sneer that our pious view of Providence leads us to what looks like a breaking of the nation's word and a besmirching of the national honor. In reply, we would briefly say to Europe: "You must interpret our action in the light of the compelling events that have come upon us, and whether our action coincides exactly with words spoken before we knew the high trusts that were to be committed to us, judge ye who are 'pure in heart and see God.'"

Some of us would add a final word. We believe it not to be debatable that the God who gave such signal and unexpected victory in the far East designs through us to give these islanders freedom of religious opinion and belief. Whatever may be the final political arrangements for the islands, we will be derelict if we fail to secure religious liberty for them. How will we guarantee this? Shall we take the word of priest-ridden Spain? Are we to believe that a sixteenth-century Catholicism can be religiously tolerant? Are Protestant missions to be permanently excluded, or subjected to the endless annoyances and petty persecutions endured by our brothers of the American Board in the Caroline Islands? Hear the American missionaries. Nobody will accuse them of lust of conquest, or undue commercial zeal or inflated jingoism, and yet so far as they have been heard from they cry una voce, "We believe it to be God's will that we keep these Asiatic islands." No devotion to a petty literalness of words, which later events thrust aside, must prevent us from what has been jestingly called, but what many of us with bowed hearts and awed souls believe really to be, "Manifest destiny."—W. F. Oldham, D. D., in Central Christian Advocate.

About the time a man learns how to treat his enemies most of them usually turn to friends.

When a man really wants to do wrong it is never hard for him to find an opportunity to sin.

IN SERVICE.

BY HORATIUS BONAR

Make use of me, my God
Let me not be forgot—
A broken vessel cast aside,
One whom thou needest not.

I am thy creature, Lord,
And made by hands divine,
And I am part, however mean,
Of this great world of thine.

Thou uest the high stars,
The tiny drops of dew,
The giant peak and little hill—
My God, O use me, too.

FOLLIES AND FLOWERS.

MR. EDITOR: It wouldn't take long to tell how I came direct to Frankfort-on-the-Main, though it did take the "Fast Express" just sixteen hours to make the transfer. I had minded to linger a bit in some of the old "stamping-grounds" of Luther; and, my! how he could stamp that foot and shake that heavy fist of his! Long time have I studied that wonderful character and been fascinated by the marvelous output of his life. A glance at some of the scenes that formed the material shell of his existence could not, I thought, fail to be of interest. But something I saw at my last stopping-place took all the edge off of my appetite for curios, even those in the ecclesiastical category. It was—antiquitas antiquitatum!—forgive the dog Latin, but it'a enough to make even a cur seek to contend with Cicero—the tooth of John the Baptist! Of course, in going to and fro in the land, I've seen many wonderful things. Enough pieces of the cross, for example, to frame a house, and nails sufficient to put it together withal; the place where the body of St. Mark is said to lie; the opaque door, on the other side of which are certainly the bones of the chief apostle, for is it not written in the Book of the Popes?—almost the veritable key given to St. Peter; and so on through the whole extent of ecclesiastical extravagances. But in all these I had no personal interest. Here, however, in this tooth of the great Forerunner was something that caught and held my attention. From a boy there has been a perpetual perplexity in my mind as to what became of the head that formed the grand finale to that infamous birthday party in Machærus. But from the first reading of the narrative down to the last there has been but one answer, "and she brought it to her mother." And there on that charger it has lain in gory grimness throughout the centuries, staring vengeance into the face of the wicked woman who instigated the dire deed. Here was a clue, at least, in this tooth. Which one the catalogue sayeth not. From the emphatic "the" one would infer that there was but one, in which case there is afforded right here a thoroughly Germanistic explanation of the prophet's propensity for the easily masticated diet ascribed to him by his biographers. And also on the same method this tooth may be fashioned into a peg strong enough to sustain a chain of evidences proving the direct connection of the House of Hapsburg with the line of Herod. Here all this was suspended in a little glass case by a silver thread, attracting multitudes, just as in olden times the rugged utterances of the real second Isaiah caused men to flock to the wilderness of Judea. And as I stood and looked I seemed to hear with a new emphasis the old time rebuke of the Master: "What went ye out for to see?—a reed, a fop, a leathern girdle, a tooth, or a man in whose soul blazed a transcendent zeal for godliness, and whose heart was strong to dare and do the right?" And as I felt its pertinence for our times, my cry was: "Away with molar myths! More truth and less tooth in our theology!"

But I mustn't let the follies of one place make me forget the flowers of another. First impressions are always the strongest, and on this principle I shall ever hold Frankfort in sweetest remembrance. After my long and tiresome ride from Vienna I sought a resting-place in the hotel, but found none. Soon, however, getting hold of a map of the city, my eye fell upon a spot of luxurious green designated the 'Garden of Palms." How refreshing even the sound of the name! The memory of many an hour spent under the cooling shade of the palmetto in home-land far away came over me with such power that I could not resist the temptation to board a train at once and make my way thither. And when I arrived at the gateway such a display of horticultural art met my gaze as to well-nigh daze me with its wealth of beauty. It was as if I had suddenly come upon Flora herself in the capital city of her kingdom. Flowers of every hue, fountains sparkling in the clear light, trees in great profusion and arranged with exquisite effect, great banks of herbs of rare worth representing every region of the globe where fragrance and beauty flourish, deep caves and tortuous grottoes, cascades and winding streams whose gentle murmurs were a constant challenge for the birds to do their best at singing, a circle of gorgeous green-houses centering about the great glass dome which protected vast areas of palms—add all these elements together, and, with the graceful carelessness of nature, fling over the whole a gossamer veil of gently falling rain—just enough to settle every mote of dust and bring into perfect vividness every tinge of green and gold—and you will have a faint idea of what went to make up the scene that carried my mind back to the first glimpse the old Book gives us of the earth. The people—myself among them—were the only thing that marred the picture, else it had been a paradise. The sight alone was solace. It was a place where one could worship in the "beauty of holiness." "The womb of the morning" had delivered to her spouse his rightful expectations, and all Nature was glad with joy for her new-born sons. Here it was I sat and strolled, and strolled and sat betimes. Here was a place where one might meditate. "The Philosophy of Paradise" was the subject most suggested. Questions come in quick succession. Why does the Bible begin with Eden—a flower garden—and reserve all its descriptions of heaven for its last pages? Why does man begin so low—a grubber in the ground? Was it that, being of the earth a part, he would soonest take to that which reminded him of his primal origin? Or was the beauty of the flower and richness of the fruitage to serve as a constant incentive to that rarer beauty of the soul and far richer fruit of the Spirit? If so, were these helpful in influences lost with the place that contained them? Rather, is not that great love for the flower world so universally met with an indisputable proof of man's memory of his first love, and, at the same time, a perpetual prophecy that there shall ever linger a longing for innocence and goodness—a longing that shall find no satisfaction aside from that vision of God which is to be the portion of the pure in heart? But I soon found that these were queries for the theologian, and not the tourist; so I shall simply state them as they came to me, and turn them over to the contributors to the column devoted to Conference Committee Censorship for final adjudication, as these gentlemen affirm that they have exhausted themselves on their former theme.

PEACE.

"Lamb of God, who bearest the sin of the world, give unto us peace," chants the priest in one of those noble litanies that has come down to us from the early church. "Peace on earth," sang earlier choristers, even the heavenly, while the universe was thrilled with light and music. The sword should turn the soil, and the spear prune the branches, was the glorious vision of the Prince of all the prophets. Across brawling centuries, filled with crime and war, here and yonder speaks a seer, or sings a poet of a redeemed earth clad in universal Summer from pole to pole, and swinging like a great emerald cradle in space, kissed by the rays of peace, lightened with the benediction of the Father, God. Amid the clash of arms, and colossal preparations for defensive and offensive wars, another voice catches up the refrain, and prays the nations be at peace among themselves.

Nicholas, Czar of all the Russias, pleads for a general disarmament of the powers. Strange that this note should rise from a nation where autocratic power and miserable serfdom so long existed together. Strange, too, that it should come from a nation whose geographical position, population and boundless resources renders it the mightiest in the world. What does it all mean? Is this the first faint note of the millennium song? Will the eyes of this generation see the fulfillment of the pledge made to the church in that elder day? Undoubtedly, from the standpoint of political economy, it is the very best thing that could come to pass. That a nation's manhood is wasted, its wealth diminished, its morals corrupted by war, is a truth so patent that none can successfully controvert it. Politically, it would be for the best, some of the wisest statesmen say; others think it an idle dream.

But are the times ripe for this ideal condition? I do not think so; I wish I might think otherwise. If righteousness and truth prevailed more among the nations, so that there were no need of the chastening, scourging rod of Jehovah, the Czar's hope voiced in his universal ukase might find full fruition. Human selfishness, greed, and unholy ambitions are fearful forces at work in all the strata of modern life. Who can tell when a mighty upheaval may come! On the other hand, there are at work in the world to-day more agencies for those things that make for peace and righteousness than ever before in its history. There is no doubt in the mind of the believer in Scripture as to final issue of this mighty moral conflict; but is this the time of victory for these moral agencies? That's the question. I think no man on earth can answer. If one has a revelation mentally, spiritually, or otherwise, let him speak. From the historical view little comfort can be gathered by the lover of peace; from the present status of the world no bright day-star of hope burns in the horizon, but, as the Orientals say, "God is great," and we will wait.

THE FIAT OF FATE.

For the second time in the last three years our county has suffered defeat in striving to drive out of its bounds the demon, Drink. First, the Prohibitionists won by a small majority, but the courts set aside the election and declared it void. The last time money and wrong prevailed, and it went "wet" by a majority of nearly one hundred votes!

Recently I had a "gentleman" to tell me: "What difference does it make to you if whisky is sold in the county? You prohibitionists are a set of fools and fanatics; whisky can not harm you in any way, for you do not drink." A young lady, a consecrated Christian, said to me during our conversation about the election: "Yes, but the trouble with this curse of curses is: it not only ruins the present man, but it casts its shadow upon future lives, and the drinker by bending to this lord of crime binds to evil the souls of yet unborn men and women. That is the worst of it: the love of drink is hereditary." How true this is. The man who drinks to excess binds in the fetters of habit the lives of his posterity.

Is not the law of "Cause and Effect" laid down in God's own inviolate word? Does he not tell us, that what a man soweth that will he also reap? If we sow wheat, shall we not reap the same? Can the thistle, when planted by the hand of nature, bring forth the lily, or the violet bring forth the deadly nightshade? Are not the laws governing nature governing the spiritual kingdom also?

If we sow the golden roses,
Will we not the roses reap!
If we sorrow bring to others,
Will we not in sorrow weep!

If we, calmly and deliberately by so voting and so encouraging, license the sale and use of drink, and though we may not ourselves be drinkers and wine bibbers, yet place the temptation in a brother's path, are we not responsible to God for our brother's conduct and life?—yea, for his future eternal welfare?

I can not see how any professing Christian can calmly and deliberately cast his vote and decide for the sale of intoxicants. The law of Cause and Effect, if nothing else, should prevent one from ever touching even a glass of the cursed stuff; for it seems to me that when he raised the glass to his lips he would almost hear the cry of unborn hearts upbraiding him for the act. Is this not the meaning of the words, "Visiting the iniquities of the fathers upon the children, unto the third and fourth generation?"

A man, when he raises the glass of intoxicating beverage to his lips, clasps hands in those of Habit, weaves a fetter around his soul, and touches, by the act, a chord of woe and sin and shame that will vibrate in the brains and hearts of his children and children's children. Would to God that everyone now a devotee at the shrine of Drink could see the horrible results of the drink habit. Then there would be fewer drunken husbands, fewer broken homes and hearts in this world.

God help us to do all in our power, aided by the power of Heaven, to burst off of the souls of others the fetters the strong hand of Drink has woven around them. Let us not, by word or thought or deed, place a stumbling-block in the pathway of our brother.

OAKLAND MEMORIES.

Will some kind friend give a word-picture of the cemetery at Port Gibson, Miss., and of the tomb of Rev. Dr. Zebulon Butler, the pastor for thirty years of the Presbyterian Church in that little gem city, seated among her Claiborne hills, and of the two Spencers, for so many years supporters of old Oakland, and of the College Cemetery close by the college, including the tomb of the loved and venerable Jeremiah Chamberlain, D. D., for twenty-one years the first president? It is forty years since the writer used to go and look upon that tomb, and upon the Alumni Monument near by, and read the ivy-bound, moss-encased names of other sleeping ones.

Similar contributions are solicited from any friends who may possess relics of any kind of the old Oakland days, men and women and affairs—Rerum Oaklandarum—lying, stored away, especially sketches, portraits, or pictures of any kind, of David Hunt, Jas. Archer, Wm. Grafton, Mrs. E. Grafton, Wm. Silliman, Esq., late of Clinton, La.; W. H. Lambdin, Esq., of Adams county, Miss.; of Israel and H. N. Spencer, Dr. Zebulon Butler, and others of the founders and friends of the old Oakland College.

Brethren of such friends and alumni and of their descendants, the aim of your historian will be to recall and reanimate those old ante-bellum days, if possible, just as they were, as we thought and lived and acted in them, in that ideal condition of social, literary and scholastic life in Mississippi and Louisiana, with its varied associations so dear to many, of which the old Oakland College was a classical type and center.

Brethren, tempora mutantur, et nos mutamur in illis. Let us reanimate and preserve all of the true and beautiful and good that we can. Prompt attention to these requests is hopefully solicited, as the author of the "Oakland Memories" desires to begin the composition of the MS. at the earliest possible day, in the hope of publishing the work not later, if possible, than December next. He would emphasize the fact that this is pre-eminently a labor of love, though it is believed by many that the volume will pay for itself. All materials, of whatsoever kind, will be carefully preserved and used, and returned to their respective owners in the condition received. Special thanks are rendered to our brethren of the Southwestern Presbyterian for their marked kindness in bringing the writer into communication with so many friends, and also to the Rev. Dr. W. C. Black, of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, for similar aid.

OUR MISSIONARY GIRLS.

Nettie Peabody, an intelligent Christian girl, born and reared in Minden, La., having an earnest desire to devote her young life to missionary work, made application through the Louisiana Conference Society for admission to the Soarritt Training-school.

Mrs. W. H. LaPrade, president of this society, went to Minden to see Miss Peabody. After questioning her closely, and finding that she met all the necessary requirements, recommended her to the Woman's Board as a very desirable candidate for the course of study at this school.

Having no scholarship for Louisiana, her expenses must be met by voluntary contribution. Her Minden friends paid $78 35 on the $180 needed. The Shreveport society added $45 to that amount as she passed through, en route for Kansas City, on the fifth of September. Nearly $60 more will be required for the year's training. Can we make up this amount from the societies in the State, remembering that no regular fund of the society can be used for this purpose? Will not somebody else feel a quickening interest in this consecrated young girl, and help her? She needs your prayers, your counsel, and your money. She is "our" girl, and each member of the missionary society should feel a personal obligation and a privilege to give something towards her education.

Mrs. S. B. McCutchen, treasurer, will receive any money that you will be kind enough to give Nettie Peabody, and she will forward it to Miss Gibson, of the training-school.

Helen Johnson, whose name was mentioned at the annual meeting as a probable candidate for this school, will spend another year in Mansfield College before she is ready for admission.

May God bless our missionary girls, and enable them to fully measure up to the opportunities given them—these tender, human agencies, who are to be "witnesses for Christ!" Won't you help them?

A SECRETARY'S THERMOMETER.

212°, boiling—Brings all correspondence of importance before society, and demands immediate action. Keeps the society in touch with all departments of work. Scatters sunshine! Alive! Wide-awake! Enthusiastic!

98°, blood-heat—Answers most correspondence, is awake, and keeps fully informed as to date of conventions, etc., and lets the society know about it. Puts sunshine into letters.

60°, temperate—Answers very urgent calls, but very seldom reads them before the society. Don't believe in too much enthusiasm.

32°, freezing—Occasionally answers letters when stamp is inclosed, but always very discouragingly.

0°—zero—dead—never corresponds under any circumstances.

Wouldn't it be well for all our corresponding secretaries to study this lesson and see just the state of their thermometer? I doubt not many district secretaries could testify to the fact that many, many corresponding secretaries might be registered 32°, and a good many 0° zero.

How many could be registered 212°?

What a wonderful help to the president of a society would a 212° corresponding secretary be, or a district secretary to have a dozen or more of such!—Selected.

DARK DAYS.

Many of the darkest days in history have borne the choicest fruit to the glory of God and the good of man.

It was a dark day when Israel groaned in the bitterness of the Egyptian bondage. But if the bondage had been less bitter, Israel would have been content in Egypt; out of the bondage came the exodus, the Messiah.

It was a dark day when the ardent, brave, eloquent Stephen, hope of the early church, was stoned; but out of that day came Paul.

It was a dark day when the persecution that arose about Stephen ravaged the disciples; but out of it came the world-wide preaching of the gospel.

It was a dark day when the Puritans, finding no rest for the sole of their feet, sailed from the Old World; but out of it came America.

Darkest of all days was that on which the sun hid his face from the divine man expiring on Calvary; yet all our hopes and all our happiness come from that day.—Selected.

Why was Mary herself, the chosen mother of the Son of God, doomed to the lowliness of the manger and the great final grief of the cross, and why was the redemption of the world wrought out through such pain? Why does all that is best in our lives come through struggle, agony, disappointment? We can not fully understand it, but we see what the divine law is, in this sin-cursed earth. Without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sin, and without pain and sacrifice there is no moral elevation. The way of the cross is the way to the crown; what we lose we gain; by dying we live; by giving up life we save it to life eternal. Bethlehem and Calvary are one in their disclosure of God's infinite love, his willingness to suffer for us and with us. Blessed be the light which hath shined out of darkness, the day-spring from on high which illumines our journey from the cradle to the grave! And blessed are they who, having learned the secret of the life of Jesus, can meet with calm and joyful, with hopeful and loving hearts, whatever God may send them, while the divine love constrains them to do whatever God commands.—J. H. Barrows, D. D.

I do not know what joy in service there can be to those who do not believe that one transcendent and divine man has appeared on earth to bind the hearts of those who aspire to live worthily and nobly to himself. I do not know what joy there can be to any who reduce the grandeur of his claims, the validity of his powers, to the level of ordinary humanity, and walk henceforth without devotion to any historically real and unique Savior, who contemplate the gains and losses, the joys and sorrows, the victories and wrecks and noble deeds and crimes of this life, and see in them all only the inevitable outcome of the inviolable and inexorable law of conflict and survival. I know not what, in hours of temptation and tempest, he shall cling who finds behind the intricacies of human life only an unknowable force, or believes that the all is the manifestation of God.—President Carter, of Williams College.

One who lives at a distance from God never reads the warnings of the Bible without feeling that sin and its consequences are out of proportion. It seems to him an incredible thing that such fearful evils should result from a mere matter of disobedience. The world has always laughed over what it calls the huge joke which represents our first parents as losing Eden for eating an apple. But one who lives at a distance from God has no clearer conception of sin than he has of God. It is when we begin to get acquainted with God that we begin to understand the meaning of sin. It is only in the light of God that it is shown up in all its hideousness. When we have come to look into God's face we no longer wonder at the awful consequences of sin; we only wonder at the long-suffering of God.—Exchange.

When I recall the joy of my forty-four years of public ministry, I often shudder at the fact of how near I came to losing it. For very many months my mind was balancing between the pulpit and the attractions of a legal and political career. A single hour in a village prayer meeting turned the scale. But perhaps behind it all a beloved mother's prayers were moving the mysterious hand that touched the poised balance and made souls outweigh silver, and eternity outweigh time.—Cuyler.

There are people who are always complaining that God does not answer their prayers, that have never stopped to think whether they have fulfilled the conditions upon which God has promised to answer prayer.—Selected.

'Quit your meanness" is not repentance, though it may be a part of it. The man who quits making money by a dishonest method after he has amassed a fortune does not usually repent.—Exchange.

There is nothing in the universe that I fear except that I may not know all my duty, or may fail to do it.—Mary Lyon.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. C. C. Griffin, P. C., Hiram, Miss., Sept. 17, 1898: "We have just closed up our round of revival meetings on the Wilkinson circuit—in all, five. The Lord has been with us in great power in convicting and saving men. We have had quite a number of conversions, one accession, and reclamations. Our members are now in fine working condition. To God be all the glory. Pray for us."

Rev. W. M. Young, Grenada circuit, Sept. 13, 1898: "I send you a report of my meetings. We had real spiritual revivals in each of my churches. I have four churches, but held five meetings. One we held at Jefferson, in a Baptist town and community. Had the hearty co-operation of the Baptist people. Held the meeting in the Baptist Church, and had eight accessions to our church and one to the Baptist. We have had thirty-eight accessions as a result of our meetings; one young man who is called to preach, and will most likely go to Millsaps College to make preparation for his life-work. We have nearly all of the collections ordered by the Conference in good subscriptions. We will present your recent offer of the ADVOCATE to the people."

Rev. J. F. Wynn, East Feliciana, Sept. 15, 1898: "We have held four protracted meetings on this charge, and had some conversions at each appointment. Robert Wynn was with me at Oak Grove nearly eight days; W. W. Drake at Olive Branch, F. N. Sweeney at Independence, and A. S. Lutz at Gilead. It rained through the four meetings, but we reached every appointment, and the Lord was with us every time we met. During the Gilead meeting we buried Sister Pipes Higginbotham, who had been sick about five years. The change for her was, no doubt, a glorious one. Last Tuesday evening we laid away Sister Lee, grandmother of Bro. J. P. Haney. She was nearly eighty-seven years old; had been a member of the Baptist Church for more than fifty years. She expressed herself as only waiting for the Lord to take her home. The writer, in his visits, found her a sweet-spirited Christian, and expects to see her again in the bright world above."

Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan: "Corinth station has been blessed with a very gracious meeting, a true revival in the church. The work was deeply spiritual, and drew all hearts together and to Christ. All denominations took active part in the work and all services were blended in this meeting. A beautiful spirit of harmony prevails, and a strong heave towards better Christian living. The meeting began on Sunday, Sept. 4, and continued with increasing interest till Friday night, Sept. 16. My helper—the brother who did such effective preaching—was the Rev. Thos. Copeland, a member of the North Alabama Conference, and pastor beloved at Leighton. Bro. Copeland is a man of gentle, persuasive temper and speech, chaste, earnest, spiritual; his preaching is sound, practical, clear. The Christian people of Corinth feel that a great blessing has come to this community through the ministry of this servant of the Lord. Some sinners were converted, but the chief work was in moving members forward."

Rev. J. C. Ellis, P. C., Middleton, Miss., Sept. 14, 1898: "Energy Mission.—We are glad to report two good protracted meetings. The first was at Mt. Carmel; was ably assisted here by Rev. F. G. Price, of the Alabama Conference; also Rev. T. J. O'Neil, L. P., of this charge, who is an applicant for admission on trial. Bro. O'Neil has assisted me all the year by preaching three times, each month acceptably. Six persons were added to the church at Mt. Carmel. The next was at Manassas, where we were delightfully assisted by Bros. C. D. Cecil and Henry G. Hawkins. Indeed, the large congregations and the attention throughout the meeting was pleasant to behold. In fact, I don't believe better attention can be found anywhere than on Energy charge. Why, the people even give the preacher in charge fine attention. Bro. Hawkins, who served this charge seven years ago, though now acceptably serving South Side charge, in Meridian, was not embarrassed, or thought it condescending to do his best for the salvation of souls, though they be in the 'piney woods.' We were all agreeably surprised. Bro. Hawkins has improved so much that it don't seem like him; but I know it is Bro. Hawkins. He looks about the same, and acts like he used to act. He is kind, humble, and loyal. There were four applicants for membership at Manassas. We think we are slowly, but gradually moving upward."

BLUFF CREEK CAMP MEETING.

The ninth annual camp meeting of Bluff Creek Camp Ground began Aug. 25, 8 P. M., with a strong sermon by Rev. R. W. Tucker, P. E., of the Baton Rouge district, Louisiana Conference, and closed Sunday evening, 8 P. M., Sept. 4, with a good sermon by Rev. J. P. Haney, of the Bunkie charge. The preaching during the meeting was above the average. While visible results were not what would have been desired, yet good was accomplished. There were a number of conversions and accessions. The membership of the supporting charges was revived and strengthened; good resolutions were formed.

The preaching was done by the following brethren: Revs. R. W. Tucker, F. M. Sweeney, J. P. Haney, J. L. McManus, G. D. Anders, J. A. B. Jones, D. E. Kelley, J. H. Montgomery, A. S. Lutz, H. D. Roberts, W. R. Harvill, J. F. Wynn, G. P. White, C. W. Carter, C. C. Miller, Newton Brown, R. H. Merrison (Presbyterian), and Chas. W. Crisler.

Rain interfered some with the services, yet the attendance was good throughout the meeting; everybody attentive, and the order was excellent.

Viewed from every point of view, the meeting was a success. The association has succeeded in getting out of debt and is better prepared for the work of the future. May God's richest blessings crown the efforts of his servants for many years to come in their annual encampments at Bluff Creek!

A FRIEND.

FRENCH MISSION.

Our hearts were made glad last night as we came together to worship God for the first time in our new church, and my heart melted within me as I listened to the expressions of gratitude in the prayers which were offered to our heavenly Father in a tongue unknown to a great many Methodists. Our church is not finished inside, but we are going to use it as it is until God provides the means for us to complete it. It is built of good cypress lumber, and is 28 feet wide by 38 long.

Some 20 years ago the lumber was hauled and some of the timbers even cut out to erect a church here, but through the cunningness of the devil the scheme fell through, and some of the lumber was used to build a dancing-hall, which the devil is still using to the advancement of his kingdom. But those who remained faithful have never ceased to knock at the door of him who said, "Knock and it shall be opened," and "Ask and it shall be given," "Seek and ye shall find," and pray that he would grant them the means by which a house could be erected to the honor of his name, and now they are beginning to thank and praise God for the realization of prayers offered so long ago.

We have had no protracted meeting on our work yet, but our membership is a great deal farther advanced in spirituality than they were when I came on to the work.

At our third Quarterly Conference, held last week, we licensed to exhort a young Creole who says that God has called him to preach. He is very promising as a worker in the advancement of God's kingdom among the French.

We have a great many difficulties in the way of our work, and the greatest obstacle is not what you may suppose—the Catholic Church, but the drink and dance habit. We would have no trouble winning members if only we would tolerate drinking and dancing. But we are waging war, however, having on the armor recommended by St. Paul, and as we march on under the banner of the Captain of our salvation, we trust ere long to see Satan's fortifications crumbling before us, and a great many of his subjects flying for refuge to the arms of Jesus, who died to redeem them. Our work at three other points is purely missionary, and while we have not had many visible results, we have had good congregations, and are prayerfully sowing seed, knowing that God will water; and, if not, some other will reap a harvest, and we shall all have a reward. Brethren, pray for us.

CARROLLTON CIRCUIT, NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

This is the third year of my pastorate on this charge, and only about two and a half months of the year remain, and the preachers will turn their faces toward Aberdeen, to make reports of their ministries, transact the business of the Conference, and get their appointments for another year. This charge has made substantial progress, both in material and spiritual ways, during this year.

Rev. W. T. Bolling, D. D., of Columbus, came on Friday, the twenty-ninth of April, and spent the night with us at the parsonage, and the next day attended our second quarterly meeting at Eden, and preached an able sermon for Bro. Stone, and the next day, Sunday, May 1, preached a great sermon, and dedicated our new church at McAnerney, and then came back to Carrollton and preached a strong and delightful sermon for the good people of this place. His preaching was a treat to all who heard him. Dr. Bolling is truly a great preacher. He will soon close his second year at Columbus, and surely that station has prospered in his hands. The church-building has been greatly improved with a beautiful metal ceiling, and other improvements, until it is one of the handsomest buildings in the State. He has also built a new parsonage of modern style, and the other conveniences of a good home. When he leaves Columbus his successors will feel under many obligations to him, and they will see that he has not been idle in the Master's cause. He has also stirred and quickened the spiritual life of the church, and all departments of the charge are prospering in his hands.

We, of the North Mississippi Conference, are proud of Dr. Bolling, and realize that we have a great, good man in him, and we hope he will remain in our Conference until the great, good Bishop of all souls will transfer him to his final charge in glory.

Bro. Bachman was with us in two of our protracted meetings, and did all the preaching at one, and preached twice at the other. He rendered good service in singing and preaching, and sold many good books. Bro. Bachman's is a great work, and may the Lord bless him and prosper the labors of his hands!

Our Irishman and "graveyard" preacher of Ebenezer, Rev. R. T. Nolen, L. P., spent part of one week with us, and did some good preaching.

Bro. Frank Marshall, of the Alabama Conference, attended one of our meetings, and preached an able sermon on Sunday, at 11 A. M. Bro. Marshall was raised in the bounds of this charge, and we feel like that he belongs to us, and would like to have him come back to us and work in the North Mississippi Conference.

Bro. H. P. Crowe, of Arcola and Hollandale, spent two weeks with us, and did some good, able preaching, and moved many sinners to repentance, and caused them to accept Christ by faith, and greatly stirred the church to a higher life. Bro. Crowe is an able preacher, and his work is lasting, and will tell in the future.

Bro. N. G. Augustus came to help us at our last place of protracted meetings, and preached a few times for the people; but I was kept from that place on account of the sickness of my wife, and failed to see him.

All these preachers did good work, and so did the local brethren on the charge give great help.

We have had forty accessions to the church this year, and the other interests of the church are fairly well up.

Bro. Stone, our presiding elder, is closing up his fourth year on this, the Winona, district, and he has been faithful to the charge committed to him.

Bro. G. W. Gordon and Sister Gordon, of the Sidon charge, are now living with us at this parsonage.

W. H. SANDERS, P. C.

If Death had to sign the warrant for every victim that he claims as his own, there would be fewer premature deaths. In the majority of cases, men and women sign their own death warrants.

Neglected health means death. A man or woman may not realize it, but the little ills that they neglect are simply the danger signals that warn them of the approach of big and serious maladies. A well man or woman gets up in the morning happy and clear-headed and alert, both mentally and physically. They have a hearty appetite for breakfast. They go about their work with alacrity, and a sense of pleasure. The day's end finds them tired, but not fagged out. They still have the energy for an evening's enjoyment. At night they find sound, refreshing slumber. They do not have frightful dreams during their sleeping hours, nor are they drowsy during their waking hours. They are not ill-tempered or fault-finding. When men or women find their condition the opposite of this, they need a course of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It strengthens the weak stomach, corrects the impaired digestion, invigorates the liver, and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It strengthens the muscular system, gives bloom to the complexion, regulates the functions of every vital organ and imparts both mental and physical elasticity and energy. Medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing "just as good."

"I had been troubled for several years with spells of liver complaint," writes H. N. Dransfield, Esq., of Centennial, Monroe Co., W. Va., "and about two years ago my health gave way. I tried a doctor and got worse all the time. I had a weakness in my left side and limbs, palpitation of the heart, cramping pains in the stomach after eating; nerves weak and no energy. I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and began to mend from the start. I soon felt like a new person. I am now enjoying good health."

Best Edition of the World's Best Book,

—THE—

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers. New Type. All Proper Names. Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Every body is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangment for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to October, '99. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

SELF-PRONOUNCING

S. S. Teachers' Reference Bible.

Text Conforms Exactly to the Oxford Teachers' Edition.

The self-pronouncing text enables the reader to pronounce all proper names at a glance.

This Bible is printed from Large, Beautiful and Clear New Type. All Proper Names are Divided into Syllables and Every Vowel is Marked and the Syllables Inflected, showing the Sounds and Accents as they are given in a Dictionary, thus enabling the reader to properly pronounce every word. This feature is a great improvement and a strong recommendation for this Bible over others.

This Bible contains the celebrated Oxford Teachers' Helps together with a complete series of New Maps illustrating the geography of Palestine and the surrounding countries from the earliest times, and embodying the most recent discoveries renders this Bible especially desirable to teachers and students of the Holy Scriptures.

Imperial Seal Binding, Tuck Edges, known as "Divinity Circuit," Linen Lined, Round Corners, Red under Gold Edges, Price, $4.00.

This book in Bourgeois type will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price ($4) to any address; but to that select class who read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, we furnish it on the following terms: Pay your subscription one full year in advance, viz., to October, '99, and we will send it to you, postpaid, for $1.75. (A little later you will have to pay to November, '99.)

The same Bible in Minion type will be sent for $1.55; in Emerald type, for $1.15, to those who pay a full year in advance.

For fifty cents additional we will send Bible with index. For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved on the outside in gilt letters.

He may not in His mercy grant
The very thing you ask or want;
Still, in this comfort rest—
His power, His wisdom, and His love
In bright and boundless concord move:
He'll do the thing that's best.

If souls are to be saved, men must be pointed directly to Christ.—J. C. Ryle.

Remember that there is one thing better than making a living—making a life.—Gov. Russell.

First keep thyself in peace, and then thou shalt be able to pacify others.—Thomas a Kempis.

When the heart is full of God, a little of the world will go a great way with us.—Samuel Rutherford.

If a young man is going to avoid evil habits, he must first have some good ones to hold him.—Wm. R. Campbell.

There is small chance of truth at the goal where there is not a child-like humility at the starting-post.—S. T. Coleridge.

Goodness is that which makes men prefer their duty and their promise before their passions or their interest.—Sir W. Temple.

True goodness is like the glow-worm in this, that it shines most when no eyes, except those of heaven, are upon it.—J. C. Hare.

Don't expect much from the man who is always talking about how much he would give if he had some other man's purse.—Exchange.

The pattern of all mercy, who is God, has not loved us with a life which cost him nothing. Sacrifice is the life-blood of service.—Alex. Maclaren.

There is a marvelous want of savor in our piety. It is a flower of Autumn, colored as highly as it need be to the eye, but destitute of fragrance.—Horace Bushnell.

Good hearts can not be so solicitous for anything under heaven as for removing those impediments which lie between them and their Savior.—Bishop Hall.

All the men and women who have made their mark in this world and have achieved the best results have kept the eye clear and single toward one noble purpose.—Theodore L. Cuyler.

Precept freezes while example warms. Precept addresses us, example lays hold on us. Precept is a marble statute; example glows with life, a thing of flesh and blood.—W. E. Gladstone.

The whole range of skeptical literature from Hume to Huxley I have let severely alone. Why swallow poisons, and then run the risk of the antidotes or the stomach-pumps?—Theodore L. Cuyler.

We are not writing in the sand. The tide does not wash it out. We are not painting our pictures on the canvas, and with a brush, so that we can erase the error of yesterday, or overlay it with another color to-day. We are writing our lives with a chisel on the marble, and every time we strike a blow we leave a mark that is indelible.—Lyman Abbott.

A WORD ABOUT THE ADVOCATE.

This seems an eminently fitting time for our pastors to look diligently after the circulation of the ADVOCATE. During the season of revivals and ingatherings the weekly church paper should find its way into many new homes, and return to others from which it had been expelled by spiritual coldness and neglect. The "reclaimed" and the redeemed alike need the wholesome "food convenient" of the ADVOCATE in order to their spiritual growth. It is little less than pastoral criminality to allow our flocks to go unfed, or to be fed on poisonous food. Should we not be as much concerned about the gospel our people read during the week as that which they hear on the Sabbath? If not, the one may discount or displace the other. I make an earnest plea, therefore, for an increased circulation of the ADVOCATE and of our connectional organ.

We need also to do this as Methodists. The NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE from its initial issue under the editorship of Holland N. McTyeire has stood for Connectional Methodism. By that baptism and blessed mission it should ever stand. There is occasion for an emphatic restatement and pronounced advocacy of the connectional principle. Upon the integrity of that idea and the emulation of its spirit depend our continued triumphs. He has read Methodist history to little profit who has not discovered that in our intelligent and loyal connectionalism is the true secret of Methodism's marvelous growth. We ought, therefore, jealously to guard and sacredly preserve that vital principle from injury or desecration. To do this we need to circulate our authorized journals that put honor upon the perpetuity of Connectional Methodism, and are devoted to the exposition of its doctrines and the dissemination of its sacred teachings. Our great church has written a wonderful history, and our toilsome, self-denying fathers have handed down to us a heritage of apostolic devotion and achievement, that command our emulation and should be taught diligently to our children.

There is some ecclesiastical agrarianism abroad in the land. Though not numerically strong, it is busy and noisy. It makes a virtue of undervaluing church membership and counts it high courage to make house-top assertion of personal and ecclesiastical independence. Such a spirit, under whatever guise or pretext, and however holy in tone or phrase, can not be defended by any true doctrine of Christian ethics. To inculcate the principles of a higher life, and a diviner conception of the holy obligations of membership in the church of God, is one of the sacred functions of the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. Next to the support of the living ministry, at home and abroad, an enlightened Christian will sustain his church paper and church school. A distinguished layman, in a recent communication, makes this strong statement: "God forbid that I should ever become so narrow and prejudiced as to stop my church paper because it does not reflect my individual views upon every phase of church doctrine or policy." Methodism has always allowed large liberty of individual opinion and expression. Its air is free, its spirit is hospitable and fraternal, and its marvelous machinery adjustable to all conditions. Let us support its institutions, attend upon its ordinances, honor the functions of its ministry, preserve its history, conserve its connectionalism and push forward its evangelism. And as helpful thereto, let all Methodists in Mississippi and Louisiana take the NEW ORLEANS and Nashville Christian Advocates.

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY.
Jackson, Miss.

A GOSPEL THAT SATISFIES ALL.

One of the most convincing proofs of the divine origin of Christianity is its marvelous adaptation to the spiritual wants and needs of men everywhere. It strangely and adequately satisfies the longings and aspirations of every human heart, whether civilized or savage, bond or free, great or small. On land and sea, in the bleak and barren regions of the north, where the ice-king reigns supreme, and in the sunny tropics, where Nature dispenses her blessings with prodigal hand; in the wilds of savagery as well as in the centers of population, among peasants as well as princes, the gospel of our Lord produces the same glorious results, causing righteousness and peace to spring forth and flourish, and making the hearts of men rejoice with a joy unspeakable.

If in any country, or among any class of people, Christianity had been found inadequate to satisfy man's religious nature; if anywhere it had failed to bring hope to the heart and righteousness to the lives of men, then we might be justified in saying that missionary effort is unnecessary and unprofitable. But what say the heralds of the cross in the various parts of the earth? From every quarter comes the response: "The gospel is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth." With one voice the answer is given: "Christianity is the only religion that teaches the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man; that unlooses the shackles of sin and gives the guilty conscience peace; that inspires a hope that nothing can destroy." From every land the testimony comes: "The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul."

The United States Census Report for 1894 states that Christianity is doing more to keep the natives of Alaska within peaceful pursuits than all the combined forces of military and civil government, and adds that too much can not be said in praise of the men and women who are laboring to bring these people to a higher plane of civilization. One missionary testifies that "Alaskans who were given to drunkenness, rioting and sensuality have been transformed by the power of the gospel into sober, orderly and pure-minded Christians, observing the Lord's day and enjoying the means of grace."

In the Review of Missions, for September, Rev. J. W. Tarboux, of the Brazil Mission, gives the following cheering account of a great revival at Juiz de Fora: "Special services were begun on the morning of the twenty-second of May, and continued until the night of the nineteenth of June. Sunday morning, June 12, was a red-letter day and hour to the church in Juiz de Fora. God opened to our hearts the treasures of his grace and the wonders of his salvation in a most royal manner. We were overpowered and carried away out of ourselves by the glorious vision that the Word and Spirit put before our eyes. In English and Portuguese and German we praised our Savior; we laughed and cried, sang and prayed, and shouted together for the space of an hour or more. Such scenes have never been witnessed in Brazil before, and perhaps never before in South America. . . . The whole church was revived, many entered into the joyful assurance of salvation, and twenty-one persons were happily converted and joined the church."

The Review of Missions also states that similar glorious scenes have recently been witnessed at an interdenominational convention of Young People's Societies and Sunday-school workers, held in Tolnoa. Says Rev. F. S. Onderdonk of this convention: "It was a splendid success, and will give an impetus to Protestant Christianity over the entire Republic. These meetings were simply glorious. I have never seen grander demonstrations of power anywhere in the United States. Men and women prayed, wept and rejoiced in God. During calls for sentence prayers, perhaps four or five would pray at once. Presbyterian women prayed aloud in the congregation. . . . Many received the witness of the Spirit. The Mexican people had never seen or been in such a wave of glory. They said, 'Surely Jesus hath come to dwell among men.' Dr. Graybill, who has been here as a missionary of the Southern Presbyterian Church twenty-four years, said he had never seen the like."

From every land to which missionaries have gone there come the most encouraging reports of progress and of interest in the gospel story. Let us thank God and take courage. Since the redemption of the race cost the precious blood of the Son of God, co-operation with God in evangelizing the world is the grandest work that can engage human hearts and hands, and is worthy of the most heroic effort, the sublimest devotion, the noblest sacrifice.

"ALL WOOL AND A YARD WIDE."

During the election for Epworth League Secretary, at the late General Conference, the tellers were somewhat amused when they came across a ballot which read as follows: "Reverend Horace Mallard DuBose, D.D.—all wool and a yard wide."

In this way some delegate who was evidently familiar with the terminology of the dry-goods trade expressed his views as to the superior merit of his candidate. The logic of events has vindicated the fitness of the mercantile phrase. Both as editor and secretary Dr. DuBose has shown himself to be pre-eminently "the right man in the right place." The Epworth Era grows and grows, and keeps on growing. It is a paper worthy of the great church which it represents, and one whose circulation among our young people can not fail to be prolific in good results.

"THE LITERARY TIGER."

Our readers will peruse with great interest the communication of Bishop Galloway anent "The Literary Tiger." In every dry town "lewd fellows of the baser sort," who desire a return of the saloon regime, try to devise some scheme to circumvent the prohibitory law so as to give plausibility to their hackneyed slogan, "Prohibition does not prohibit." The literary society scheme is only one of many. It is said that even the sacred name of "missionary society" has been used by blind-tiger clubs. Society has no more dangerous foes than men of this stamp.

Gov. McLaurin deserves, and will receive, the thanks of every good citizen in the State, along with the curses of the whisky ring. In this case he is to be congratulated upon the enemies he has made.

A NEW BOOK.

WHAT WOULD JESUS DO? By Rev. H. Walter Featherstun, D. D.

The above is the title of an eight-page pamphlet which lies upon our table by courtesy of the distinguished author. It is a sermon from the text, "He that saith he abideth in him ought himself also so to walk even as he walked." It is an excellent discourse—"good to the use of edifying." If the ideal of life here presented could be actualized, or even approximated, what a leap this world would take Godward and heavenward!

CIVIL SOCIALISM.

The advance of the socialistic principle in public administration, says the Montreal Gazette, is as marked almost as it is silent. Not very long ago the carriage and distribution of letters was almost the only service the State did for the people. In England the telegraph has been added to the postoffice, and a decided step taken toward bringing the educational machinery of the country under complete governmental control. It is under such control practically throughout America. It is in municipalities, however, that the greatest advances have been made, and in some British cities the water, gas, baths, libraries, and hospitals are all under municipal direction. They are all embodiments of the socialistic idea, which, briefly put, calls on the public to do for the individual what it can do better for him than the average individual can do for himself. The recent hot spell in New York led to some novel applications of this principle. The suffering of the people in the poorer districts was most severe. The city authorities felt called upon to act. The parks were opened for people to sleep in at night; the streets were flushed with water to cool the atmosphere; free ice was distributed by the ton, where it was deemed necessary for the comfort of the sufferers; medical men were on duty at the city's expense to meet the call of sudden emergencies. These things were generally commended as proper, but all of them are invasions of the realm of individualism, and an advance upon the theories of the socialist, who is a very different character, it must be remembered, from the anarchist. What was done at the time of the last heated spell, with additions, when next the city suffers from a visitation of heat, and what then attracted attention from its novelty, will henceforth be the rule. So it will be seen that the collectivist has time working for him, and, in cases such as New York's, for humanity also.—Self-Culture.

A GREAT SHIRK.

"Our president is a great shirk."

So said a young woman in one of our assembly training-classes this Summer. Everybody was temporarily surprised. Then she explained that while the president of her chapter was most industrious and faithful, he did no work which the members of the chapter should do "for their own sake." He planned the activities of the chapter with the utmost care, and then encouraged others to work the plan. Wise official!

A pastor once said to us: "We have two hundred official members in our church."

"Astonishing!" we replied.

"Not at all," said he, "we have simply studied human nature. We have discovered that even Christian men and women work more abundantly if they feel that they are held responsible personally for certain definite duties. They like 'official' recognition. So we have almost no privates. But there is a host of majors and colonels and captains and lieutenants and sergeants and corporals." Wise pastor!

The pastor and chapter president who break their own backs carrying burdens which should be borne by others are on the wrong track. They do themselves an injustice. They do their members an injustice. And they do the cause an injustice also.

Major-generals are to map out the campaign, direct the forces, and infuse enthusiasm and courage throughout all the ranks. The army is to do the fighting. Blessed is the church leader who works hard to get others to work hard, and who, in the best application of the phrase, is "a great shirk."—Epworth Herald.

THEY NEED THE GOSPEL.

The Catholic papers of this country are scoffing at the arrangements now being made by Protestant Churches to put missionaries at work in the Philippines, in Cuba and Porto Rico. A meeting was recently held in New York of the Missionary Boards of the leading Protestant denominations to arrange for a plan of harmonious action, and this gathering is made the subject of very invidious comment by the Catholic press, the editors of the Catholic journals pointing out that for hundreds of years these islands have been the objects of most careful attention on the part of the church of Rome. The statement is true, and by the side of it may be placed a few of the results. In the Philippines, the friars and priests are so hated that all classes of the population seem to agree on their expulsion as preliminary to the new order of things. In Cuba, the hold of the church upon the people is so slight that persons who have had opportunities for extended observation declare that there is no religion on the island except among the women and the children. Facts like these fully justify the establishment of missions among a people, even when, as in this case, they have been under the control and domination of a church for four centuries.—St. Louis Advocate.

A tribute to his memory will appear in our next issue.

The recent massacre of several hundred Cretan Christians by the Turks has brought about a demand from the powers for the evacuation of the island by the Sultan. Suppose the Sultan should see fit to defy the powers, then what? If all the powers were united, of course, the Sublime Porte would never think of defiance; but as that international envy, jealousy and greed have so often saved "the Sick Man" in the past, may he not count on their efficiency in the present emergency? These are questions which can not be answered at present.

The Woman's Board of City Missions of this city held its third quarterly meeting at Parker Memorial Church last Sunday night. The opening prayer was made by the pastor, Rev. P. H. Fontaine. The president, Mrs. W. W. Carre, presided with her characteristic dignity and grace. There are eight auxiliaries in the city. The reports showed that while meetings have not been so regularly held, or so well attended as during previous quarters (many of our people being absent from the city), yet the work is established on a firm basis. The report of the city missionary, Mrs. L. Meekin, gave a gratifying account of her work. The recently appointed organizer, Miss Susie Lyons, also gave a very interesting and cheering account of her work. The report of the recording secretary, Miss Wasson, was read by Mrs. F. E. Rusa. The editor of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE made a few feeble remarks, after which a collection was taken. The State president, Mrs. F. A. Lyons, was an interested spectator of the proceedings. At some time not far distant we purpose saying something concerning the importance of the work of the Home Mission Society.

JUNIUS ORGANS. 1001-1003 Canal St. PIANOS. HART.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Booneville, Miss., EDITOR.

Rev. H. M. DuBose, D. D., has recently attended the Missouri and West Virginia Annual Conferences.

In each of these Conferences the League flourishes, "and the face of its hope is set to the future."

Saturday night of the Conference was set apart by the Missourians for the Epworth League anniversary. Rev. C. Grimes, chairman of the Conference League Committee, presided. He is the wide-awake presiding elder of the Hannibal district.

Rev. W. F. McMurry, presiding elder of the St. Joseph district, was formerly president of the League Conference of the great State of Missouri.

Bishop Warren A. Candler, who is presiding over the Western Conferences, is president of the Epworth League Board.

Rev. J. A. Randolph, president of the Mississippi League Conference, has recently been appointed chaplain of the Third Mississippi Volunteers. From a letter recently received from him we quote the following: "I desire you to say through the League Department that I have no idea of giving up my connection with League work in Mississippi on account of my appointment as chaplain of the Third Regiment, unless my regiment is sent out of the country. I have made a trip to Louisville to see the assistant general passenger agent for the I. C. R. R. about rates for our next State Conference, and I feel sure we will get a low rate."

The Leagues in Mississippi and Louisiana can greatly assist the pastors at this particular season of the year. The Annual Conferences are near at hand, and every pastoral charge ought to report "everything in full." We trust that every Leaguer will contribute liberally, and then assist the pastor and the stewards in collecting from the entire membership the amount which they undoubtedly owe the Lord.

Don't forget that your pastor is your representative at Conference. He loves you and is greatly interested in you, which fact he has demonstrated by his labors in your behalf. Be sure, then, and see about the condition of his wardrobe and see to it that your preacher looks as well at Conference as any member of that body.

True it is that "tis not the clothes that make the man, but the deeds through life that follow him;" nevertheless it will reflect credit upon you for having thus shown your love for your pastor, and he will surely look better and feel better in a new suit than in an old one.

All of the foregoing suggestions have doubtless occurred to those members of the church, both young and old, who appreciate the apostle's exhortation as found in I. Thess. v, 12, 13: "And we beseech you, brethren, to know them which labor among you and are over you in the Lord, and admonish you; and to esteem them very highly in love for their work's sake."

The following we clip from the Epworth Era, of Sept. 15, with the hope that it will be read and re-read by every Epworth Leaguer:

MEDITATIONS.

"All for Christ." What a grand motto! To be an Epworth Leaguer means something. It means that we have enlisted in the army of our Lord, to do our part in taking the world for him. So many beautiful thoughts come rushing to my mind when I read the words "Epworth Leaguer." I think of Christ, whose life was all purity and holiness, "going about doing good," and then I think of the Leaguer, with all the freshness and possibilities of young manhood and womanhood, filled with the spirit of Christ, with hearts all aglow with love, walking by faith in his footsteps; what is more beautiful?

O what glorious privileges are ours! Let us never grow discouraged, but let us, by earnest consecration to the service of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, seek to know more of his will, knowing that whatever we ask in faith shall be given us.

Let us pray earnestly for a baptism of the Holy Spirit upon our Leagues, that we may be filled to overflowing with the love of Christ, so that we may scatter sunshine wherever we go, and the sweet influence of our Spirit-filled lives may be felt by all with whom we come in contact.—An Epworth Leaguer.

CANCER AND TUMORS CURED BY ANOINTING WITH OIL.

The friends of Rev. S. W. Jones will be glad to know of his wife's recovery from what seemed certain death, as the following statement indicates:

PITTSBURG, TEX., AUG. 11, '98.

DR. D. M. BYE, Indianapolis, Ind.

This certifies that my wife, Mrs. S. W. Jones, has been afflicted for several years with something we did not know what. She gradually grew worse and took medicine all the time. In the fall of '97 she became almost helpless. Her physician informed her that she had an ovarian tumor and that an operation would have to be performed to save her life. She was badly swollen. He said the tumor was about the size of a child's head. She was sixty-one years of age and we did not think she could stand an operation, therefore we sent for her children and relatives to consult together for the best. Rev. G. R. Bryce of Waco, being a brother of my wife, was sent for, and all concluded it best to not have an operation and just wait on her and let her die in peace. January, '98, I found an advertisement in the Texas Christian Advocate, printed at Dallas, Tex., saying that Dr. D. M. Bye, of Indianapolis, Ind., could cure tumor by absorption. With but little hope of doing wife any good, I wrote to Dr. Bye. He wrote me what he could do. I sent at once and procured one month's treatment. The first month's treatment did not reduce her size, but stopped all pain. The second month's treatment reduced her to almost natural size. The third month's treatment reduced her to natural size, and to-day she is in better health than she has been for four years. The tumor is now almost entirely gone and she suffers no inconvenience from it whatever and is able to help do the housework, go buggy-riding and is enjoying life better than for years past, therefore we cheerfully recommend Dr. D. M. Bye to all ladies suffering with the same disease, and say to the public that we believe if it had not been for Dr. D. M. Bye, wife would to-day have been in her long resting-place. We will cheerfully answer all questions asked us by those afflicted by letter or otherwise. S. W. JONES.

P. S.—I am a member of the East Texas Conference and I am serving the people on Musgrave Cir. this year. We live 3 miles and a half southwest of Pittsburg, Camp Co., Texas. S. W. JONES.

Persons afflicted with Cancer or Tumor may address DR. D. M. BYE, Lock Box 25, Indianapolis, Ind., and he will send them a book and papers free, giving prices of treatment, and hundreds of letters from the afflicted in every part of the United States and Canada who have been cured; also half tone cuts from protographs showing facts that can not be questioned.

QUARANTINED.

We are shut up in Jackson; can't get out without leaving the State, which we do not purpose doing at present, at least. For the first time in a ministry of over forty years I have been hindered in my work by yellow fever. Bishop Galloway, Rev. W. W. Simmons, my presiding elder, and my Board of Stewards all tell me to remain in Jackson with my family, until all danger of fever is over. I try to obey "the powers that be." Two of our sons, John and Henry, are in Carthage, looking after and taking the best care of my charge they can. I hear through one of my stewards they are doing well. We have our boarding house, "Williams Hall," well furnished, and will be ready, when school opens, to receive and take care of the young gentlemen who may be intrusted to our care.

There is but little, if any fever in Jackson at this time. We do not apprehend any danger here on the college campus. We are over a mile from where the fever was. No fever there now. If there be no new cases within the next few days, we shall feel pretty safe. I hope all the young men who purpose boarding with us will be ready to come when school opens.

H. P. LEWIS, Sec.

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 23, 1898.

INDEPENDENT VOTERS.

One of the healthful signs of our time is the rapid increase of the number of men who will not consent to surrender their independence to party bosses; who are ready to vote for the party while it stands for sound legislation and good government and selects men of purity and integrity as its standard-bearers; but have the courage and independence to repudiate it when it stands for political corruption and commits itself to the leadership of bad men. There will never be any decided reformation in our political methods while intelligent and upright citizens hold party above principle; or allow themselves to be beguiled into the folly of voting for good men to enforce bad laws, or for bad men to make and execute good laws. Nothing is more sadly needed just now than the infusion of some genuine religion into our politics. Christian citizens should vote, and vote like Christian citizens; vote with their parties, if their parties are right, but against them when they consent to do wrong for the sake of victory. If the church members of the United States stood as solidly for purity and righteousness in politics as the saloon keepers do for the interest of the rum traffic, there would soon be a complete revolution in our political methods. Parties would cease to pander to the baser element for the sake of gaining votes; would cease to nominate for office men of contemptible character and to stand for official corruption and bribery. Let the independent vote increase. It is the terror of the machine everywhere.—St. Louis Advocate.

A TEMPERANCE VICTORY.

Not at the polls, nor yet by resolutions or arraignment, but by the simple device of putting ice in the public fountains. Boston's water commissioner, not having the fear of the liquor dealers before his eyes, surprised the city, and materially reduced the saloon traffic, by putting seventy-five cents worth of ice in a fountain, not long since. Several fountains are thus supplied, and their increased patronage is an object lesson to all lovers of temperance. The few saloon-keepers, whose diminishing trade angers them, are alone in their opposition to a simple and just contribution to the cause of temperance. Watching the iced fountains for a single hour, almost any day in the week, will convince the most skeptical that cold water is as eagerly sought as cold beer by a very large proportion of men of all ages. Here is a hint that should be sufficient for other cities and towns where the saloon is regarded as a necessity.—Zion's Herald.

We have been requested to publish our editorial on "The Gospel of Giving" in the form of a tract, and have done so. We will send it, post paid, at the following prices: 25 copies, 50 cents; 50 copies, 90 cents; 100 copies, $1.75.

HOW MRS. WM. HENRY MAKES MONEY!

I have been so successful in the past few months that I feel it my duty to aid others by giving them my experience. I have not made less than $18 any day for the last five months, and have not canvassed any. I put a notice in the papers that I am selling the Iron City Dish Washer, and people send for them by the dozen. They give such good satisfaction that every family wants one. Dishes washed and dried in two minutes. I think any person can easily clear $10 a day, and double that after they get started good. I don't see why anyone should be destitute, when they may just as well be making lots of money if they try. Address the Iron City Dish Washer Co., 145 S. Highland Ave., Station A, Pittsburg, Pa., and they will give you all instructions and testimonials necessary to succeed.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To the Members of the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences:

For forty years I have been a pastor in the Mississippi Conference, having entered the work in November, 1857. The Lord has blessed me in this service, but I am growing old, and still have several children whose education is not complete. Our Conference is well supplied with younger men, and still they come. Under the circumstances, I have consented to take charge of one of the boarding houses at Millsaps College (Williams Hall). We can accommodate twenty five, or more, boarders. We propose to give them the best of care, and make the house a "home" to them in the best sense of the word. We have long tried to maintain a Christian home of the purest type in which to rear our own children, and we will spare no pains to keep the standard high for the benefit of the young gentlemen who may be intrusted to our care. At present address me at Carthage, Miss.

H. P. LEWIS.

THE DUTY OF MINISTERS.

I want to impress upon the clergy that should be made a part of their ordinary teaching that they should lead their people, by all means in their power, really to feel for mission work, and to care for it as a part of the work which the Lord Jesus Christ has called upon everyone of us to take his share in. I want the clergy to be aroused to their duty in this matter, and to be constantly bringing it before their people, but time after time in the course of the year as a matter of Christian instruction.

The people should be instructed that this is a part of the work which is essential for their own Christian life. It is not merely a duty which they owe to perishing heathen, or to those of their own countrymen who in the colonies are running a risk of forgetting all that they learned at home, but it is a duty which they owe to their Lord, and which they can not disregard without very certainly falling short of the standard of true Christian life.—The Archbishop of Canterbury.

There is nothing more important than for a man to know himself. A right estimate of a man's own powers and capabilities is essential to his comfort and success in life. A man who over-estimates himself is always dissatisfied, because he does not receive from others the consideration he thinks he deserves. In addition to this, he is always aspiring to positions he is not competent to fill; and his failure to secure them, or if by some means he does secure them, his failure to perform their duties properly, involves him in trouble. But a man who knows himself, and has a proper conception of his capabilities, does not claim more than is due him, nor does he aspire to positions which he is not qualified to fill, so that he is not disappointed in his expectations. If a man errs in this matter, it is better for him to under- rather than over-estimate himself; then he may be pleasantly disappointed in receiving greater honor than he claims, or by being placed in positions of honor and trust to which he did not aspire.—Recorder.

DEATH IN THE FAMILY.

Ere sin could blight, or sorrow fade,
Death came with friendly care,
The opening bud to heaven conveyed,
And bade it blossom there.
—Coleridge.

Faith builds a bridge across the gulf of death,
To break the shock blind nature can not shun,
And lands thought smoothly on the farther shore.

I MAKE THE BEST OF YOURSELF.

A man can make himself about what he wishes to be, provided he is willing to bestow the necessary labor on himself. Gardens which are not carefully tilled are filled with weeds, which become so dominant that the flowers are choked. Souls that are left to themselves become filled with spiritual thistles. A great life is the result of skilled workmanship, and if you are ever to be a nobleman in the sight of God, you must needs bestow a good deal of labor on yourself, for, while the peerage of earth is a matter of inheritance, the nobility of heaven is made up of men who have earned their prominence.

* * * * * *

The habit of looking for clouds even when the sun shines, of expecting evil even when no evil is visible, of grumbling because you have not had the opportunities which you think you ought to have, will grow very rapidly, and if you indulge in that habit, you will not merely make yourself miserable, but will lose the power to straighten out the crooked things of life. You are a very pitiable object if you have reached the conclusion that you are not properly appreciated on earth because you have been neglected by high heaven.

On the other hand, if you will cease your criticism of your environment, put aside with a strong will your antagonism to God because he has not given you what you boldly declare you had the right to expect, and set about making the best of what you have, you will discover that the weather is not so stormy after all. When you have a rainstorm in your heart it makes very little difference whether the sun shines out of doors or not, and when you have sunshine in your heart the rain out of doors will not seriously disturb you. It is not the weather outside, but the weather inside, which determines the happiness or misery of life.

Many a man has been happy amid doleful surroundings, and many a man has been wretched in surroundings which have excited the envy of his neighbors. It is the outlook which decides these matters, and if that is cheerful, you will find more pleasure in a daisy than another can find in whole fields of flowers.—Dr. George H. Hepworth, in New York Herald.

STRENGTHENING THE MEMORY.

How to strengthen the memory is an interesting question. I think the best way is to use it constantly, making it serve you by giving it definite facts and events to carry, as a pack-horse might on a journey. There are many phases of the problem, some people finding that they can not fix dates in their minds, others forgetting the faces and names of friends, and others still having great trouble in committing anything by rote. Devices of rhymes and associations help some persons, and others simply depend on memoranda, and do not tax their memories at all. As a rule, the more we give the memory to do, however, the more quickly and faithfully it will respond to our wishes. In little children memory is very retentive, because their minds are at the stage when impressions are easily made. You know the line which says that in childhood our minds are "wax to receive, and marble to retain." So that we should be very careful, indeed, about what we say, what we do, and what we teach, where the interests of dear little ones are concerned.

Some girls have a great deal of trouble in remembering the rules of syntax, the Latin conjugations, and the pages of history which their teachers require to be recited exactly as they are in the book. Try the method of studying aloud. Go away by yourself to commit your lessons to memory, and then, over and over, slowly, carefully, and your mind and attention fixed on what you are doing, read phrases, sentences, and formulas, and by and by you will have them by heart.—Selected.

WOMAN'S OPPORTUNITY.

Wherever your life touches another life, there you have opportunity. The finest, the most delicate, the most irresistible force lies in the mutual touch of human lives. To mix with men and women in the ordinary forms of social intercourse becomes a sacred function when one carries into it the true spirit. To give a close, sympathetic attention to every human being we touch; to try to get some sense of how he feels, what he is, what he needs; to make in some degree his interest our own—that disposition and habit would deliver anyone of us from isolation or emptiness. There is but one sight more beautiful than the mother of a family ministering happiness and sunshine to them all; and that is a woman, who, having no family of her own, finds her life in giving cheer and comfort to all whom she reaches, and makes a home atmosphere wherever she goes. Though she have not the joy of wife and mother, she has that which is most sacred in wifehood and motherhood. She shares the blessedness of that highest life the earth has seen, of him who, having no home nor where to lay his head, brought into other homes a new happiness, and who spoke the transforming word, "It is more blessed to give than to receive."—Dr. George C. Lorimer.

BE READY.

What I mean by our little verse to-day is, Be on hand, Be punctual. I will tell you a story that will illustrate it. In the place where I live they call ministers Dominies. One day a man said to his minister, "Dominie, that coat of yours is well worn; you had better get a new one." Said his friend: "There is a tailor around the corner. He used to do a good business, but somehow he has been running down, until he is very poor. I wish you would let him make the coat." The minister called on the tailor, and he agreed to have the coat, ready by Saturday. Saturday the minister called for it. "Oh, that coat!" said the man; "yes, it ought to have been done to-day but I have neglected it; but I will have it for sure on Tuesday." The minister did not call until Wednesday. The coat wasn't done yet, and now it was promised for Thursday. On the Saturday following the minister went after it, and found that the tailor had moved. He hunted him up. Said he, "I have been moving;" and that was his excuse. By that time the minister saw why that man didn't get on in the world. What was the matter, children? What did he lack? "Punctuality." He wasn't prompt.—Selected.

FUN AT HOME.

Do not be afraid of a little fun at home, good people. Do not shut your houses, lest the sun should fade your carpets; and your hearts, lest a laugh should shake down a few of the musty cobwebs that are hanging there. Young people must have fun and relaxation somewhere; if they do not find it at their own hearthstones, they will seek it at other and less profitable places. Therefore, let the fire burn brightly at night in Winter, and let the doors and windows be cheerfully thrown open in Summer, and make the homestead delightful with all those little arts parents so well understand. Half an hour of merriment within doors, and merriment of a home, blots out the remembrance of many a care and annoyance during the day, and the best safeguard they can take with them into the world is the unseen influences of the bright little home sanctum.—Home Doctor.

ARE YOU DOUBLING YOUR TALENT?

"Destiny is not about thee, but within—thyself must make thyself."
The elect are whosoever will, and the non-elect, whosoever won't.—Beecher.

Michael Angelo wore, over his forehead, fastened to his artist's cap, a lighted candle, in order that no shadow of himself might fall upon his work. It was a beautiful habit, and one that taught an eloquent lesson, for the shadows that darken our lives—how often they come from ourselves! While some people seem to radiate sunshine, others enshroud themselves in gloom.

One man will turn the most uneventful life into poetry, while another will change the most poetic surroundings into the dullest of prose. The man who puts his soul into his task, however lowly that work may be, transmutes labor into pastime.

While the power of observation is naturally greater in some persons than in others, it is capable of much cultivation in all. Parents can not begin too early to develop it in their children. It is largely a matter of cultivation. Circumstance and education have much to do with its formation and development. It ought to be given the widest scope. Some men observe closely and fully within their own sphere of life, but never, or rarely, go outside of it. The world is wide, and all ought to be able to see everything on an enlarged scale, as well as to utilize what they see to the highest advantage. Thus broad-minded, acute, wide-awake and useful men and women are made. They keep ear, eye, mind and heart upon the alert, and draw information, hope, cheer, pleasure, satisfaction and stimulus as they survey persons and things from time to time. They are fresh and vigorous, according to their measure and degree, in society and in the church, blessing and enriching all with whom they come in contact by the results of their observations and reflections.—Presbyterian.

Good books are public benefactors. They not only preserve the holy thoughts, noble impulses, and wise suggestions of the great and good who have lived and wrought for man's civilization and mental and moral elevation, but they place these priceless treasures within the reach of the coming generations to appropriate and profit withal.—Selected.

I know nothing can make up for such a loss as yours. But you will still have love on earth all around you, and love is not dead. It lives still in the next world for you, and perhaps with you. For why should not those who are gone, if they are gone to their Lord, be actually nearer us, not farther from us, in the heavenly world?—Charles Kingsley.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

Nervous prostration is very rarely the result of overwork. The writer does not remember having met more than half a dozen cases of nervous prostration in the course of a medical practice of more than a quarter of century in which the condition was really the result of overwork. It is more often the result of deficiency of exercise, bad eating, and deficiency of sleep. These are efficient causes of nervous exhaustion. The exhaustion which comes from work is cured by rest. Rest is a perfect antidote for work. There must be added to the work, even if it be excessive, some other condition which prevents the body from restoring itself through the natural process—sleep. This condition is either failure of the digestive organs to supply the proper amount of nutriment for the repair of wastes, or the production within the body of poisonous substances which paralyze the vital powers and effectually prevent the natural processes of assimilation. In the treatment of so-called nervous prostration, it is necessary to carefully look into the probable causes which may be in operation to prevent repair. We would suggest the following plan:

(1) Spend two hours daily in vigorous out-of-door work. More mental work can be accomplished if this is done than if the time is all spent over the desk or in study, and the quality of the work will be greatly improved.

(2) Adopt the plan of eating but twice a day. Take nothing after 4 P. M. Especially avoid eating when tired and exhausted after an evening service, and just before going to bed, a practice which is very common with clergymen. If faint and hungry at bed-time, drink freely of water or take a little fruit juice. A bunch of grapes or an apple might possibly be allowed at supper-time while getting accustomed to the two-meal plan. The meals should be arranged so that there will be seven hours between breakfast and dinner. Adopt a rational diet, which means to exclude flesh foods, animal fats, sugar in excess, condiments of all sorts, tea and coffee. Take dry food, and make the food consist of fruits, grains, and nuts, using the latter freely so as to secure a proper amount of fat for replenishing the supplies of energy. Be sure to secure eight hours' sound sleep, if possible. If impossible to sleep for eight hours, stay in bed just the same and keep quiet. If eight hours is not sufficient, then remain in bed ten hours, and even add one or two hours' quiet rest in bed in the middle of the day. Do not allow the energies to be frittered away with visiting, worrying, or dealing with trifling matters. The out-of-door exercise should never be exhausting.—John H. Kellogg, M. D., in The Voice.

SLEEP WARM.

I know a family, one of whose members is dead, and another almost disabled, and both dated their ill health to nights spent in damp beds in cold rooms.

It is not well to sell a life so cheaply as that. Better arouse the family; better walk the floor all night; better examine the bed at the outset, and if it is damp, secure a blanket and wrap up in it; better lie down without undressing; better never put a guest into a bed until you know it is thoroughly aired and free from all dampness.

The old-fashioned, out-of-date "warming pan," which, filled with coals and embers, and moved up and down between the sheets and blankets of the "spare bed," made it dry and warm and comfortable, was worth a ton of the fancy work and bric-a-brac which adorn some chilling rooms.

Life is too precious to be fooled away by a little neglect or thoughtlessness about a spare bed. See to it that your beds are healthful and comfortable, free from damp and with plenty of covering, and then your guests will bless your care, and their Master will say, "Ye did it unto me."—The Safeguard.

IN MEMORY OF "MAMIE."
Died Sept. 7, 1898.

BY JAMES F. DORRAH.

As soft as the dews kiss the roses,
As tender as zephyrs may blow,
As gentle and light as reposes
On the leaf of the holly the snow;
Oh! as sweet as the waters heard falling
In the desert by traveler hold,
Was the voice of the Savior heard calling;
Aye, calling his lambs to his fold!

Go, list to the song of the lover,
As he sings to his lady-love dear;
At midnight in heaven discover
The planets and pleiades clear;
But sweeter than song most endearing,
And brighter than stars (sight is cold),
Her spirit in rapture was hearing
Jesus calling his lambs to his fold!

With the sweet Summer day in its glory,
With the glad songs of birds in her ear,
Like the close of a poet's love story,
She "passed" to a happier sphere;
And sweeter than voice of her mother,
On her ear, growing icy and cold,
Fell the voice of her great Elder Brother,
Calling softly e lamb to his fold!

What a death! what a glorious dying!
With the voices of nature around,
With a song of her spirit replying
To the songs of the legions who crowned
Her soul with love's flowers immortal,
She entered the city of gold,
And heard, as she entered the portal,
Jesus calling his lambs to his fold.

While we drank of the waters of Merah,
And beat 'neath our burdens of woe,
Like the rain on the arid Sahara,
Or the kiss of the beautiful snow
On the desert in tenderness falling,
Her spirit, triumphant and bold,
Caught the voice of the dear Savior calling,
Gently calling a lamb to his fold!

Oh! dear is the kiss of devotion,
And tender is womanhood's arm,
And dear to the sailor at ocean
Is the quiet that follows the storm;
But sweeter, aye, sweeter and dearer,
Than all we may feel or behold,
When dying, the Savior drew near her,
And welcomed her home to the fold.

Madison, Miss.

JOHNSTON—Mrs. CATHERINE S. JOHNSTON was born in Sparta, Ga., Dec. 5, 1821, and died at her home in Coldwater, Miss., Sept. 12, 1898. Her maiden name was Cobb. She was married to Mr. M. D. Johnston in 1844. They moved to Mississippi in 1873. Her husband died the same year, leaving her the responsibility of rearing a young family, which task she has most admirably accomplished, leaving four devout Christian daughters, whose tenderness and devotion to their mother was beautiful to behold.

Sister Johnston gave her heart to God in early life, and joined the Methodist Church. For many years the light of her Christian influence has blessed her home and her church. She was faithful in the observance of her religious duties; loved her Bible. With a seeming premonition of her death she marked this Scripture a short time before her departure: "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." While she lived to a ripe old age, it was truly touching to witness the grief of her children, and hear how they wished to keep her longer with them.

May the Holy Spirit apply the balm of Gilead to their aching hearts! is the prayer of their pastor, P. E. DUNCAN.

GILLEN—THOMAS T. GILLEN was born in New Orleans in 1875, and died at Waveland, Miss., Sept. 4, 1898. His parents were of the Roman Catholic faith, and educated their son at a Catholic school, and he was brought up a member of the Roman Catholic Church.

Two years ago he married Miss Grace R. Frierson, of Amite City, La. To them were born one child, who, in early infancy, was taken from them to a better home.

In December of last year Bro. Gillen joined the M. E. Church, South, under the ministry of Rev. E. T. Denson. He was ever after this very devoted to the church of his choice. He loved her simple forms of worship. He loved her songs and prayers. His growth in grace was steady. This was to be expected, as he was faithful in his attendance upon the services of the sanctuary, and diligent in his study of the Holy Scriptures. His was a practical religion, and one of its fruits was the faithful performance of duty at the family altar.

When the end came he expressed himself as being resigned to the will of God. He has gone home, and the faithful will meet him there. To the bereaved we extend our heartfelt sympathy. J. I. HOFFPAUIR.

Amite City, La.

GILES—Bro. JOHN J. GILES, of Attala county, Miss., was born in Leeds county, Canada, in 1822, and departed this life July 17, 1898, at his home near Hesterville, Miss. He was converted and joined the Methodist Church in 1840, and lived a consistent member of the same till God called him to his reward. He was loyal to his church, and trained his children for God. His first wife and six children have crossed the river of death, while his second and six children remain to mourn his loss. He lived to see all of his children converted except one, who has been converted since his death. I visited him a short time before he "passed away," and he assured me that he was ready and waiting for the Master's call. His loved ones and friends are sadly bereaved, but we realize that our loss is his gain. God doeth all things well. We bow in submission to his will, praying that the Holy Spirit may comfort the sad hearts, and lead them safely where parting will be no more.

BEATTY—On the night of ——, God's hand plucked from the garden of earth the little budding flower of humanity, MATTIE JOSEPHINE BEATTY, aged sixteen years. There is a shadow over the home, and yet it is not all dark and cold and lonely, for in the shadow is the dim outline of a human form, a strong arm is stretched to help, a voice of mellow sweetness speaks, "Those do always behold the face of my Father." "Pray moderately," says an old saint, "for God's children." "We may want them on earth, but Christ may need them in heaven. So he calls them home." On this side we call it death. It means reaching the Father. It is not departure, but arrival; not sleep, but waking. And so it is better that the little one has gone to the Father.

WALLACE—LILLIE IMOGENE, daughter of Emmett and Vida Wallace, departed this life Aug. 21, 1898, about one A. M., aged four years. ELWOOD followed his little sister the same evening, aged seven years. Lillie was sick two days with congestion; her brother was sick about four days with same disease. It was sad to see two out of three children so suddenly removed, but we are satisfied that God took them for the good of the entire family. May father and mother now give their hearts to the Savior, and go up to meet their little ones again! M. F. WYNN, P. C.

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result; and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

CHINA NEEDS KNOWLEDGE.

China needs knowledge. What a parody on the name of education is the system now in vogue in China! A young man, having spent fifteen or twenty years in hard study, reaches the goal of his ambition and becomes a Sin Ts'ai, or, it may be, a Ku Jen, and what is the net result of his attainments in knowledge and mental training? He has simply learned how to read and write; he has obtained a knowledge of some of the ancient history of his own country; and he has learned those precepts about personal conduct, family government, and political economy, which make up the sum of the moral teachings of the Four Books and Five Classics. He has learned nothing of nature or of nature's God; no geography of his own or other countries, no history of other nations, no science, no mathematics, no astronomy, etc. He knows nothing, in short, of those most common facts concerning the world about him that a ten-year-old boy in Christian lands has long since learned at his mother's knee.

The Chinese need improved educational methods. Their system, while it develops the memory in a wonderful manner, and indeed leaves nothing to be desired in the mere power of retaining words, yet it dwarfs the other powers of the mind, rules the reasoning faculty, destroys the imagination, prevents independence of thought, checks original investigation, and is altogether vicious and totally inadequate to develop the God-given powers of the human mind.—Chinese Recorder.

The man who takes a familiar text which people have often heard expounded is bound to do something more with it than simply utter stale religious commonplaces which almost any exhorter might repeat by rote. If the Scripture to be unfolded is a well-known passage, so much the more reason exists for a fresh and vigorous putting of the truth which lies in it. To dole out pious platitudes, and then call the process "preaching the simple, old-fashioned gospel," is a misuse of terms as well as a waste of opportunity.—Central Advocate

In Albany, N. Y., when the cholera prevailed in 1832, there were 5,000 members of the temperance society there, and only 2 of them died, while there were 334 deaths among the 20,000 who were not members, or more than 80 for every 5,000—forty times as many as among the temperance people. "Vitality depends largely upon habits; good habits increase it, bad habits waste it."—Selected.

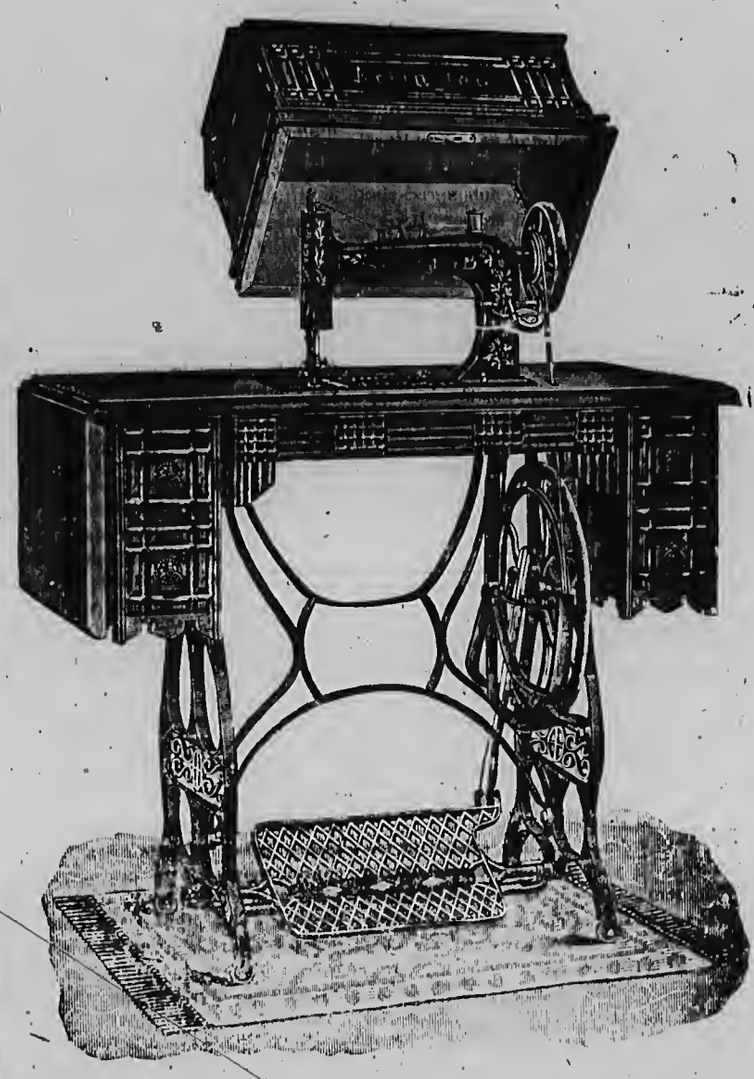
Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc.



The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take-up, convenient foot rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one gauge, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearing polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—The "Arlington B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light to heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great length; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell, without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless and are very durable.

OUR OFFER.

To anyone, not now a subscriber to this paper, who will send us $19, we will send the machine and the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE one year. To old subscribers we make the following offer: Pay your subscription to December, '99, and send $17 additional, and we will send you the machine. This price does not include freight.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

The toll on an ordinary ship passing through the Suez canal averages about $4000.

A Tacoma flour mill recently received a single order from China for 100,000 barrels of flour.

The commission to investigate the conduct of the War Department has been completed and will consist of nine members, as first announced.

Theodore Roosevelt, who was in command of the Rough Riders in Cuba, has been nominated for the office of governor of New York by the Republicans.

The president of the Board of Education in Philadelphia says that at least 2500 children in that city will be limited to half sessions this year owing to lack of school accommodations.

It is announced that 10,000 Spaniards residing in the Island of Porto Rico have refused to live in the island under the American flag, and have demanded that they be returned to Spain at the expense of the government.

On Monday, the twenty-sixth, the remains of Christopher Columbus were removed from the cathedral at Havana, where they have been for ninety-six years, preparatory to their removal to Spain.

At a meeting of the French Cabinet, all the ministers being present, a decision was taken in favor of a revision of the trial of former Captain Dreyfus, and documents in the case will be sent to the court of cassation.

Ex-Secretary J. Sterling Morton, of Nebraska, has been invited by the President of Argentina to spend the coming year in that country as an adviser of the government in matters of agriculture and the organization of an Agricultural Department.

It has been definitely announced that the Spanish armored cruiser "Infanta Maria Teresa," the flagship of Admiral Cervera, has been finally floated and safely towed into Guantanamo Bay. The recovered ship will there be put in condition to proceed to the navy yard at Norfolk under her own steam.

The International Commission appointed to consider various subjects in dispute between this country and the Dominion of Canada is soon to reassemble at Quebec. The principal subjects to be discussed are the Behring Sea controversy, the Alaskan boundary dispute, the fisheries question and the trade relations of the two countries.

Tea culture in South Carolina, it is claimed, has passed the experimental stage. The Pinehurst garden, which produced 56 pounds to the acre in 1892, is now giving the substantial return of 1000 pounds per acre. The cost of cultivation is 27½ cents per pound, and it is claimed that this cost can be reduced to 16 cents.

If any doubt actually existed in the minds of the American people during the continuance of the war with Spain as to whether or not it was proposed to retain the conquered territory, that doubt is being rapidly dissipated. It is now evident to all that there is no alternative left but to hold and govern the territory conquered.

After great difficulty in securing nine men willing to serve on the investigating committee, the President has finally succeeded in completing that body, and the work of examining the acts of the War Department in the conduct of the war has commenced. At the initial meeting of the committee the President instructed the members to go to the bottom of things, and investigate impartially, without fear or favor.

The more the startling and unlooked-for coup d'etat in China is considered, the more important does it appear. Certain European intrigues were behind the dethronement of the Emperor, for that he was dethroned now admits of little doubt. It is freely admitted that the Emperor was removed because he favored a more enlightened and progressive policy, and alliances with those nations most likely to guarantee the integrity of Chinese territory.

It is now reported from Europe that Great Britain, Russia, France and Italy have entered into an agreement to finally settle the troubles existing in Crete. It is reported that an ultimatum will be sent to the Sultan, notifying him of the purpose of the powers, and informing him that, unless he complies with the demand for the prompt removal of Turkish troops from the Island of Crete and the recognition of an autonomous government in the island, the combined fleets of the powers will make a demonstration at the entrance to the Dardanelles.

Sir Herbert Kitchener, the commander of the Anglo-Egyptian expedition, has arrived at Fashoda, four hundred miles south of Khartoum, and has found the French expeditionary force already installed there, as had been reported to be the case. General Kitchener informed the French commander that Fashoda was held to be within Egyptian territory, and that the French were expected to withdraw. This the Frenchman refused to do, whereupon the British commander established a garrison and hoisted the British and Egyptian flags.

Owing to the interest which has centered in the war between this country and Spain, but little attention has been given to the very brilliant and successful military achievement of the Anglo-Egyptian army in the Soudan. The whole affair has been an unbroken record of successes, unmarred by a single untoward incident, and interspersed with just sufficient fighting to emphasize the formidable nature of the obstacles to be overcome. The reconquest of the Soudan opens up to civilization and commerce a vast and fertile region. By means of the railroad which has been constructed, Khartoum will be within a few days' journey of the Egyptian capital. This facility of communication will make it easier to govern this vast empire than was formerly the case.

JOHNSTON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, GREENSBURGH, LA.

It is time our brethren were hearing from this institution through the columns of the dear old ADVOCATE. This school received its name from one of the veterans in the Methodist ranks, Rev. P. A. Johnston, who has now retired from active work. It is located about the center of the Baton Rouge district, of which Bro. Johnston was presiding elder when the institution was founded. This institution is designated to be a District High School under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and as soon as relieved of a small indebtedness will be turned over to the Conference. It is now in the hands of a Board composed of men loyal to the cause of Christian education.

The President is A. R. Ladner, a graduate from Centenary College, which is of itself an advertisement for the school. The faculty is thorough and of high moral and religious principles. The curriculum is above the average, being only one year below that of Centenary or Millsaps.

Those who patronize this school need not have any fears as to the physical and moral healthfulness of this place. Let our people bear in mind that this school is recognized, acknowledged, recommended, and endorsed by the Conference, as may be seen by referring to our Conference Minutes.

I am employed as agent of this school, and will, perhaps, labor in this capacity till Conference. I conceive this to be the Master's work, for Christian education is indeed the hope of our country.

Let all our brethren speak of this school and send us their boys and girls, where they may secure a first-class education at prices to suit the times.

We desire the prayers and support of all those interested in this Christian enterprise.

J. M. ALFORD.

AT DAVIS SPRINGS.

A few weeks ago I assisted in a series of meetings at Davis Springs, Natchitoches parish. There is a fine new church, painted inside and out, and supplied with a new organ. Congregations large, day and night. The finest singing that I have heard in Louisiana, and more happy people than I have seen. Methodists, Baptists and Cumberland Presbyterians all sang and shouted together. Miss Edna Pitts, an elegant Baptist young lady, was the first to lead the ladies' grove prayer meeting. I preached on Thursday, at 11 o'clock, on "Methodism, or Noisy Religion." There was a storm brewing before the close, and at the close a Baptist preacher (Rev. Ben Jones) threw his arms around me, and said "that was his kind of religion." Rev. Sam Howard, a Cumberland Presbyterian minister, did some of the preaching, and he is a power. Bro. Purcell, P. C., of the work, is serving his first year on trial, and he seems to be all right. Some conversions and accessions. Not much crude material there.

BOOMERANG.

We saw an angry little child the other day pursuing a companion and striving to pelt him with handfuls of dust clutched from the street. The little one harmed only himself, for the wind blew the dust right back into his own eyes and face, and yet, notwithstanding the inconvenience he suffered, he kept on throwing dust and blinding himself, until, his rage exhausted, he stopped to wipe his eyes and regain his breath. Poor little perturbed spirit, he was a type of many a child of larger growth. Abusive epithets, retaliatory conduct, angry utterances, and usually all forms of a tit-for-tat policy, return to plague the inventor. There is more than mere proverbial phraseology in the old maxim, "Curses, like chickens, come home to roost."—Central Advocate.

THAT BOOK!

A reader of Dr. Hunnicutt's Essays says: "The Essay on The Former Days and These is particularly fine in matter and style. The whole book is good reading—was sorry when I reached the end, and shall read it again—two things I can say of no other book." Send 50 cents. to Barbee and Smith, Nashville, Tenn., and get the book.

AT HOME—WAITING.

I have been at home for over thirty days, nursing my wife who has been confined to her bed with slow fever for nearly six weeks. She was at one time very near the river. But for careful nursing, skillful treatment by our family physician, Dr. Scruggs, and the many prayers of good friends, she could not have stood the long protracted spell of slow fever. While she is able to sit up but very little, she is decidedly on the mend.

I feel sorry that on account of our sickness and the present quarantine, that I have not been able to meet some important engagements. However, if the brethren will be a little patient with me, will try to help them in their meetings later. I have found great comfort in reading the twenty-seventh Psalm during these weeks of trial and anxiety. It is hard to lie still under fire when the battle is going on. But this absence from revival work has been very restful to my tired body, and I doubt not it will prove a great blessing to me in the end. It has been very sweet and restful to my soul during these long weeks of anxiety to know that there is a loving Christ to whom all is committed, and who doeth all things for our good.

Bro. Lewis has been quite sick also. He has not been able to preach in the past five weeks. He is now up, but still very weak. Bro. Lewis has done us four years' fine work, and we regret that the time will soon come when he must leave us.

Bro. Malone is very anxious to see the quarantine regulations removed, so that he can open school. So far we feel safe, and we believe if our pastors will do their duty, we will be able to hold all our patronage. Surely every pastor of the North Mississippi Conference will exert his utmost in helping Bro. Malone at this critical crisis. One that has been as faithful to the interests committed to him by the church as Bro. Malone has to Grenada College deserves the sympathy and co-operation of every loyal Methodist in the Conference.

We have specially enjoyed the pleasant visits of the ADVOCATE during our long stay at home.

W. M. MCINTOSH.

AN OMISSION.

By oversight my write up of the Opelousas District Camp Meeting did not include Rev. George Jackson among the ministers that did the preaching. I beg his pardon for the oversight, and would say his service was highly appreciated by the people and the preachers.

R. M. BLOCKER.

THE STAR OF CUBA'S HOPE.

BY EMILY M. ALLEN.

Thy lone star strangely gleams on lurid red,
The background of a sad and blood-stained past;
Star of thy hope—what star, O suffering land,
Can rise to give thee radiance that will last?

It is not found upon the star-sown field
Of our dear flag late borne o'er Southern sea
In hands of men who knew what freedom is,
And fought grim Death that they might set thee free.

'Tis true its stripes are not so rich and red
As heroes' blood poured out upon thy ground;
Its white not purer than the holy love
Of human rights in patriot bosoms found.

Its field of blue is taken from heaven's deep calm—
God's benediction o'er since earth began;
And every star that shines in splendor there
Proclaims the ever-widening hope of man.

"Old Glory's" stars brought gleam of hope to thee,
O Cuba, weeping in oppression's night;
But think not human strength can make thee free,
Or human hands redeem thy land from blight.

Thy star of hope is Star of all men's hope;
It yet must shine on every land and sea;
Serene it rises for each human soul,
And self and sin in every man must flee.

The Day-Star from on high—it shines to bring Good-will on earth and peace to men. O see
Its light! Lift unchained hands in praise and prayer—
'Tis Christ, the Truth, alone can make thee free.

BISHOP GALLOWAY ON THE YELLOW FEVER SITUATION.

In an interview published in the Times-Democrat, Bishop Galloway discusses the best means of preventing these annual panics over the appearance of yellow fever as follows:

"Our condition demands that we study the larger questions involved, and make some other and wiser provisions for the exigencies of the future. To this study we must bring not only scientific research, but the broadest statesmanship and the purest patriotism. In it is involved the very life of several great commonwealths. Only one supreme purpose should inspire this diligent and patient inquiry—the best possible security for the lives and property of the whole people. Every other consideration should be eliminated; personal, professional and political ambitions should be annihilated. Political theories or vagaries, however ardently embraced, should be subordinated to the higher claims of human life and national prosperity.

"It is folly—next to criminality—to wrangle over the doctrine of State's rights when the health of the people and the values of the country are in peril. And the fear that some citizen of another State should be appointed the health guardian of another section is too narrow and selfish to rise to the dignity of a decent objection. What we want is protection from disease and the protection of individuals.

"Of one thing the country is convinced—present policies do not meet present conditions, which conditions will become more perilous with an increasing population. It is a sad spectacle when one case of sickness will panic a community and stampede the whole State. The medical profession yet stands helpless before the disease, and acknowledges its impotency by advising the people that their only safety is in flight. Depopulation is the only remedy suggested, and an annual hegira toward the frost line is the only security promised. But the patient can not long survive the drastic remedy; the country can not carry the security. There must soon be a change of treatment, or there will be a State funeral.

"I have the profoundest respect for the medical profession, and from my birth have been united to it by the tenderest of ties. For the magnificent progress made in some branches of the profession during the last quarter of a century the world is deeply grateful. But the most distinguished representatives of that noble profession have admitted that little has been done in arresting the progress, or in the successful treatment of yellow fever. They put more confidence in quarantine stations than in all materia medica.

"And there is another factor in the problem. State and local quarantines, however vigilant and rigid, have demonstrated their inefficiency. True, protection may be given to small communities—to a few square miles here and there—but this has been secured at the expense of human life in other exposed localities. I have no doubt that the cruel grave in Edwards contains noble victims that would be alive to-day had it not been for the folly and frenzy of other excited communities and their inhuman quarantine restrictions.

"And, furthermore, such quarantines are an impeachment of the humanity and the broad brotherhood of man. It is little less than barbaric to consider only our own household or small community when others are in imminent and great peril. Patriotism and humanity, to say nothing of our holy Christianity, demand that we care for the whole body of the people—the poor, who are compelled to stay, as well as the rich, who are able to fly.

"Another serious complication is the want of personal and professional confidence between the State Boards of Health. The Mississippi Board has publicly announced its skepticism of the Louisiana health authorities, and, further, gave evidence of refusal to accept their reports by sending an expert representative to New Orleans to make personal and independent inspection, and report the same to Jackson. The Louisiana health guardians felt affronted, and declined to give Mississippi permission personally to inspect their sick, and it is reported that there was a personal altercation between the medicos growing out of this interstate misunderstanding. This sad state of affairs has destroyed public confidence. When doctors disagree, what are poor laymen to do? But while the Esculapian war between the States goes on the disease is introduced, panic spreads, commerce is prostrated, values decrease, men are bankrupt, and general demoralization ensues.

"The suggestion, as a sure safeguard, that a quarantine against New Orleans should be established the first of May and continue until frost, is not complimentary to the medical profession, and means the commercial degeneracy of Mississippi. The plain English of that system is, that Mississippi quarantines against the deceit and conceit of Louisiana doctors. And then it is no sure protection. Not all our microbes come from the Crescent City. As a matter of fact, there was an epidemic of fever in Memphis, and another in Shreveport, when there was no infection in New Orleans. So, while we are guarding the front door, the germs may creep in by a rear or side entrance. No. If the State Boards can not establish a condition of perfect amity and confidence, making quarantine lines of State lines will be almost worthless as protection from disease. It may provide work for a few unemployed, but, in so doing, there will be a destruction of public confidence.

"If, therefore, our only protection is in a quarantine, then it seems to me it will have to be national and under stern Federal control. It must be a part of the nation's coast defense, and for its maintenance the Federal government should be held to rigid account. Any measure of divided responsibility will, in my judgment, be limited in its efficiency. No co-operative scheme between independent State and Federal authorities will work harmoniously. That fact has already been demonstrated to our country's sorrow. If the national government is held solely and strictly accountable for the incoming of yellow fever, there will be no occasion for expensive machinery maintained by the several States, and the work will be efficiently done. The recent loud outcry against the national authorities on account of so much and such fatal illness in the American army, and the readiness of the President to search out and locate the responsibility therefor, indicate the efficient service that will be demanded. Men can not be held to rigid account when the responsibility is too much divided. The Hon. James G. Blaine contended that we ought to own Cuba in order to keep the yellow fever out of the United States. Now that it is practically under our control the national government should be held responsible for the introduction of infection from those fever-breeding parallels. I would not contend over matters of mere detail in any measure that may be drafted, but for the principle of a national quarantine under Federal control I am an earnest advocate.

"Some things we have learned from the history of this disease: 1. It is not indigenous to the United States, it is an importation from the tropics. 2. All parts of our Southern country below a certain altitude, however reputed their local health conditions, are liable to the infection if the disease is imported. Certainly no community in Mississippi can claim immunity because of boasted salubrity. Holly Springs, one of the highest and healthiest points in the State, suffered a scourge in 1878. 3. There is a tendency in the disease to assume a milder type. The history of 1897 is most suggestive. 4. Our people are still afraid of the yellow fever of 1853 and 1878. If the physicians would only change its name, there would be less occasion for alarm."

LESSONS OF THE WAR.

This is an impressive fact for our schools: it was educated Germany which triumphed over ignorant France in the Franco-Prussian war. Over ninety per cent. of the soldiers of her army could read and write, while the reverse was the case in the French army. Not avalanche charges of brute savages have achieved the grand successes in the Spanish-American war; the common school, the high school, the college, superior discipline, the finer training, scientific precision in gunnery, in drill, in naval practice, and every other knowledge pertaining thereto, have won these grand victories. Spain failed, not from lack of valor, but from lack of education, sobriety, discipline and enlightenment. Behind the exploits of Dewey and Hobson were years of grinding study and practice at the naval school. Their success was no haphazard thing; it was the scientific result of advanced education, the product of a higher civilization. Spain has entirely missed the spirit of the higher civilization of the nineteenth century. Wrapped up in bigotry, in ignorance, superstition, cruelty, and her own self-sufficiency, she has not caught the spirit of the finer mental culture of our times, and is still living back in the middle ages.

Schley's calm and quick decision to sail for the headland without the loss of a single minute, while the Cristobal Colon was skirting the shore, decided the battle. This was more than learning; it was cultivated good judgment, downright horse sense. Dewey, in the East, forced to rely upon his own judgment in difficult situations, with rampant insurgents and encroaching Europeans, in conditions where calmness and wisdom were of vital importance to himself and his country, and where a single mistake might have meant very serious misfortune for America, showed that he had grown wise, shrewd, and tactful, as well as learned, in his great school of experience.

Not only have great character-qualities been exhibited by the heroes and managers of this war; they have been conspicuous. Hobson's studies at Annapolis, and his clear judgment, were the water in the boiler, but fire was necessary to generate the driving steam. Courage, daring, tenacity of purpose, grit, self-reliance, presence of mind, fertility of resource, fortitude, endurance—these have been exhibited during this war on a hundred occasions still fresh in memory. Dewey not only knew what to do, and what his guns and vessels could do, how to maneuver, and how to shoot scientifically, but he had the example of his great master, Farragut, urging him to push forward in spite of torpedoes and mines.

The importance of a sound body has been emphasized. The astonishing number of young men who thought they were able-bodied enough to go to the war, but who were rejected, will give the teacher a grand opportunity to emphasize the great importance of developing a strong, robust physique. Six months ago nearly every man on the street probably fancied the government would think him a prize as a soldier; but thousands of youth were mortified to find that their bodies had been so weakened by smoking, drinking, careless living, and dissipation, as to render them totally unfit to serve their country in time of need. The medical examiner emphatically repeats what all history, sacred and profane, has always taught: that they who strive for the mastery must be temperate in all things—as true in the successes of peace as in the march and onset of war.

At one time it appeared doubtful whether there was the stuff in our young men to give us a Havelock or a General Gordon; whether the American youth were not to be perverted by the glorification of vindictiveness, swaggering and profanity; but that mood, wherever it existed, passed away, and the American school-boy who has read of Washington's prayer at Valley Forge, and Macdonough kneeling on his deck before action, can now recall similar scenes in these three months. Hobson's prayer on the "Merrimac," Captain Philips' call to thanks on the deck of the "Texas," and the proclamation by our President, will go down in the memory of the people, even if not glorified in song or bronze. The compassion and humanity of our soldiers and sailors are as conspicuous as their heroism.

Great disasters and wars break up that dream of mankind that "a man's life consists of the abundance of the things which he possesses!" In the vast, expanding material prosperity before the American people, the memory of such deeds will remain an inspiration to every youth. Millionaires and multi-millionaires are numerous, almost common; we do not complain of that. We are glad that these heroes have certain "prize moneys" awaiting them. But Hobson and Schley and Dewey and Roosevelt shine, and will shine, because of their achievements, and not because of prize moneys.

Not achievement for self arouses this applause, but achievement for country and humanity. "Pro bono publico" is the motto. Achievement for the common good, the general welfare, the "good citizenship" of which we have been making so much, in peace or in war, in good voting as well as good fighting—this, the American teacher from ocean to ocean, from lakes to gulf, will be quick to teach, and American youth will not be slow to learn.—Success.

WEALTH.

Many thoughtful persons, in studying our social and economic laws, find reasons for believing that materialism and the heedless, mad rush after wealth, which is characteristic of a vast portion of the American people, is pre-eminently the peril of American civilization as well as of its institutions. They see a tendency in materialism to dominate the city, and point to reasons for inferring that the city is destined to dominate the nation. This class of thinkers believe that the large city of America is a menace to itself, and as the dominating influence in the land it is a peril to the nation.

While we hope that this view of the situation is somewhat overdrawn, there can be no doubt that the rapid growth in wealth and population of our cities is a real peril. The new civilization of this country is certain to be urban.

At the same time that the massing of wealth may be made a power for evil, there is abundant proof that a wise and intelligent administration of wealth is also a source of great and lasting benefit. The holder of wealth stands in an eminently responsible position in relation to his kind, and where such an individual feels, or a number of individuals feel, their responsibility and possess the intelligence and humanity for the wise direction of their power, there need be little fear that the capitalist will be a dangerous element in the community. We see no good reason for finding serious fault with the millionaire or capitalist. If he gets his wealth, even his superabundant wealth, honestly, and, as is the case with most of our present millionaires, creates his wealth under the highest brain-pressure, he has as much right to it as any workman has to his furniture or to his modest home. He is, however, in duty bound to make good use of his millions, and not to give himself up to the heaping of money which he can not use for any enjoyment, except, perhaps, for a purposeless and, we should say, intolerably wearisome ostentation. Accumulated wealth, without the proper spirit used in directing the distribution of it, is of poor use to a community. As with the individual, so with the city. A city is not necessarily materialistic because it is rich and magnificent; it is materialistic, in the sense intended, when its intellectual development is not commensurate with its physical growth. The possession of wealth makes demands on the higher intelligence. It is not so much wealth in itself, which is the occasion for the view held by writers in regard to social conditions in this country, as it is the unequal distribution of large portions of it. The production of wealth and its more equitable dissemination, we believe, should be stimulated.

The too prevalent notion that poverty, ignorance and crime must always exist, originated long before the present gigantic productive or factory system had brought about a complete change in human conditions. The multiplication of millionaires and the rapid spread of wealth reveal the potentiality of human industry, and the social and moral possibilities of the future. The church can help the productive process by doing all in its power to render the relations between man and man more amicable, by being an institution for the prevention of cruelty and injustice between man and man. The State can assist the productive process by advocating with equal warmth the interests of organized labor and organized capital, by legislative regard for the wage-earners as well as for the profit-earners. Society, moreover, should regard it as one of the most sacred of its duties to open the doors of opportunity to the masses.—Self-Culture.

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH IN THE NEW POSSESSIONS.

This is what Archbishop Ireland is credited with saying:

"There will be no commission from America to investigate the church in Cuba, Porto Rico, or the Philippines. Any statement that there will be is false and unfair to the clergy in our new possessions. The Spanish priests will not be requested to retire, for the reason that they, better than anyone else, know what is needed under the new conditions, and can bring about a change much more easily than any commission that might be appointed. The clergy in the islands is made up of men of intelligence and tact. They will attend to their own work, and do it well. You may say that the priests of Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines will be in accord with American ideas and progress, and that they will be left to bring about the necessary change in their own way, and it will be the best way."

That is optimistic enough, and it sounds well. But it is not dust in the eyes; rather cobblestones thrown in the face of the hearer. We are informed by Cubans of the best intelligence that there are not a dozen native Cuban priests in Cuba; nearly all are Spaniards. The same is true of the Philippines. The general information is that the priests are not "men of intelligence and tact," and that they do not "do their work well." It is a matter of universal knowledge that somehow their conduct has so lost them the confidence of their own flock in the Philippines that they are hated by the people, that their lives are not safe, and the Pope has had to appeal to the United States to protect them against the natives of the islands.

To say that they "will be in accord with American ideas and progress," and that they should be left to "bring about the necessary change in their own way," is preposterous. It evades the evident facts. Their whole history opposes the statement, and they can not fulfill the confident archbishop's prophecy except as, by means of an ecclesiastical commission or by methods less formal, they are taught what to do.

As to the status of the Catholic Church in our new possessions, whatever they may be, we may say that, of course, we should protect the religious orders in the possession of their property. It would be confiscated under Aguinaldo and his rebels, but it would not by us. Annexation is their only safeguard. But it will be a very serious question to decide what are the rights where the claims of the orders are contested, as in the case of land once confiscated and then restored after seventy years, or of rentals claimed. But our courts could be trusted to do justice to both sides. And, further, all support of clergy or churches would immediately cease. They would have to depend on the income of their enormous estates, and on voluntary support.

It should be understood that Protestant missionary work in these Catholic lands will be just as legitimate as Catholic work in this country.—The Independent.

SUNSHINY CHRISTIANS.

God never meant that chronic gloom should be an ingredient of Christian character. The hearts of his followers should make sweet music every hour, and their faces should shine with happiness, the outward expression of inward joy. To be sure, it is a much easier task for some persons to be optimistic than for others. Those who are of a sanguine temperament have less difficulty than those whose natural feelings are sad. Yet the grace of God will overcome the most inveterate case of mental darkness and spiritual gloom if one will but let it have its way. It is a reflection upon the virtue of Christianity to go through life as though the skies were clothed in black. A dyspeptic Christian repels worldlings and makes their conversion more difficult. They get the impression that the church is as cold and gloomy as a cemetery, and shrink from contact with it.—Central Advocate.

Keep yourself right with God, and nothing else will be wrong.—Exchange.

YOUTH AND AGE.

There's not a joy the world can give like that it takes away,
When the glow of early thought declines in feeling's dull decay;
'Tis not on youth's smooth cheek the blush alone, which fades so fast,
But the tender bloom of heart is gone ere youth itself be past.

Then the few whose spirits float above the wreck of happiness
Are driven o'er the shoals of guilt, or ocean of excess;
The magnet of their course is gone, or only points in vain
The shore to which their shrivered sail shall never stretch again.

Then the mortal coldness of the soul like death itself comes down;
It can not feel for other's woes, it dare not dream its own,
That heavy chill has frozen o'or the fountain of tears,
And though the eye may sparkle still, 'tis where the ice appears.

Though wit may flash from fluent lips, and mirth distract the breast,
Through midnight hours that yield no more their former hope of rest;
'Tis but as ivy-leaves around the ruined turret wreathe,
All green and wildly fresh without, but worn and gray beneath.

Oh could I feel as I have felt, or be what I have been,
Or weep as I could once have wept, o'er many a vanished scene;
As springs in deserts found seem sweet, all brackish though they be,
So, midst the withered waste of life, those tears would flow to me.

—Byron.

HANOVER ON HER HIGH HORSE.

MR. EDITOR: As I'm just about to leave for England, and shall have little use for them there, I'll dump all my "h's" down on you; but, really, all joking aside, I can think of no title more expressive of what I saw in Hanover than the one given above. It seems that wonders will never cease. Europe has just been set agog by the appeal of the Czar of Russia for steps looking to a partial riddance from the heavy incubus of militarism. Coming from the source it did, it necessarily aroused a good deal of attention. Just on the heels of this manifesto—as if in rebuke for not being consulted beforehand—comes the grand parade of the German Army. Glad I was to get a chance to see the Kaiser—the etymological, if not lineal, descendant of the great Julius himself. So, when he entered this capital city, I was present in full force. Young America is always in the front when it comes to viewing a procession, and when the Emperor came sweeping down the broad avenue, I was close enough to shake hands with him—if he had only put his out; but somehow he seemed to be in a hurry.

The next day 40,000 men—about one-fifteenth of the whole force of Germany—had their dress parade. For hours and hours they marched and counter-marched; shining helmets, glittering trappings, gleaming bayonets—one continuous panorama of military splendor marching by in columns of infantry, cavalry, and artillery, made a sight to stir the multitude to the highest pitch of enthusiasm. And when the Kaiser himself wheeled from his position of review and rode forward to lead his Uhlands down the field on a grand charge, the excitement was intense in the last degree. Cheer after cheer went up, and one's mind was carried back to that wonderful power to inspire his men that characterized Napoleon, who, with no other lever than a look, wielded an army that made the heart of Europe flutter every time it took a step.

Sunday morning the scene shifted. From the field of battle I went to the castle chapel. The Kaiser was not present, as a little later in the day he was to attend the army service in Waterloo Place; but the Kaiserin, his wife, was there, and a more reverent and attentive auditor I never saw. She occupied, with her ladies in waiting and chamberlain, a lodge just to the left of the pulpit, and high enough for all to see. The whole party joined in the service with a heartiness in their singing and responses that was truly refreshing. The preacher was the celebrated Uhlhorn—great as a student of church history. Having read from his books I was doubly interested in hearing him preach. I found him simple, dignified, and earnest. Quite an impressive figure he was up in his high box—balcony-like—with black robe and bent figure enforcing the lesson of the "one thing needful." In spite of the German in which it was couched, the gospel could not be disguised, and I found myself captured by the spirit, if not altogether by the letter, of the discourse. There was a great proportion of music—well-nigh all vocal. The organ was for the most part dispensed with, and God's instrument used with wonderful effect. The whole congregation launched out on a great sea of sacred song, whose successive waves, beating incessantly against vaulted ceiling and resounding throughout the naves and arches, seemed to storm the skies themselves, securing, as their coveted trophy, the consciousness of answered prayer accompanied by that solemn solace which always characterizes true worship. I felt that though I was in a strange land, I could yet sing the Lord's song, and that my going to his house had not been in vain.

That night was a gala occasion. The place where the royal family dined had been brilliantly decorated with electric illuminations. It faced a great open square, and in this square was packed a mass of humanity as dense as clothes and hats would permit. Here the national air was sung time and time again, and at frequent intervals the Kaiser and Kaiserin—in gold and bright jewels decked—would come out on the portico beneath the beautiful canopy and wave their salutations to the multitude below. It was a sight to make a scion of Republicanism quake; the doom of Democracy seemed to be sounded at every hurrah.

This roar that royalty makes is well calculated to cause one to muse on the tenacity with which men cling to their conservatism. Over in America we think we've taught the world a few things on the subject of popular government, and, perhaps, we have, but let one give but a passing glance at things in Europe, and he will be forced to confess that "royal blood" is still at a premium, and always capable of inspiring a following. I suppose it will ever be thus; at least as long as there are castles and palaces to live in, and sons and daughters born to inherit them.

What my next will be I know not; but, as I expect to be in Amsterdam at the coronation of the Queen, it will, doubtless, be something on the worship of Wilhelmina.

THOMAS CARTER.

CENTENARY COLLEGE.

We now have an enrollment of over one hundred students. Some that we were sure of having have been detained by quarantine. Let the students from all uninfected points secure health certificates, and come on. We will use the best efforts to bring them up in their studies; so, come as soon as possible. Our faculty is giving great satisfaction. We have twelve young ministers and nine sons of ministers.

WHITWORTH COLLEGE.

In my young manhood I patronized Whitworth, or rather Rev. H. F. Johnson, for he had been my pastor, and I loved and trusted him. I gave into his charge for four years, for educational purposes, my two oldest children (girls). Now, in my old age I am sending my two youngest.

What great changes have taken place. Then Dr. Johnson commenced in the old building, which needed repairs. His indefatigable energy, business tact, suavity of manner, pleasing address, personal magnetism, with firmness and decision that was never offensive, but drew toward him with respect and love all persons, parents and pupils included, soon built up an institution of learning second to none in the State. One building after another arose, and stand to-day as monuments of the purity of his heart for the education of this and other generations.

After the Doctor's death I doubted if his place could ever be filled by another so competent as he. When Dr. Chambers was elected to the presidency of the college, I had seen enough of him to know that he was not deficient in piety and brawn and cultivated brain-power; but, as to other necessary qualifications, I awaited developments. For two years, owing to quarantine regulations, we have been compelled to go overland a distance of forty-eight miles to reach the college. These trips gave me an opportunity of seeing the improvements made upon the property, the table-fare, and, to some extent, the work performed in the institution. First, after supper we were regaled with music and some choice songs by four of the music teachers. The next morning, breakfast and chapel exercises being concluded, on account of stress of business, Dr. C. put me in charge of one of his best teachers, Miss Marshall, who conducted me through the Art Department, accompanied by the affable and pleasant teacher of art, who explained, as best she could to my uneducated eyes and ears, many of her specimens arranged upon the walls and elsewhere about the large, well-lighted room. As I understand nature much better than art, and finding many of her specimens corresponding to nature, I concluded she is an artist, and will do her duty by the art pupils. Next, I was conducted to the recitation-room of one of the professors in mathematics, where I found a class of twenty young ladies reciting in geometry. The instruction was thorough, the class was made to think and reason aptly and quickly.

And now, Doctor, the conclusion of the whole matter is this: At last we have for president a man as near the counterpart of the late Dr. Johnson as could be expected. He has a full complement of teachers, with nearly sixty young lady pupils, and more looked for by dirt-road daily. Every facility needed for a good education is here; but one thing is wanted to make the college a success—125 more young ladies. Send them on, parents; you can't make a mistake.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION.

This has been a busy, happy year with me. I have read several excellent books. One of which allow me to mention—"The Quillian Lectures," by Bishop C. B. Galloway; subject, "Christianity and the American Commonwealth; or, The Influence of Christianity in Making This Nation." The words that branch out from this wisely selected subject, under the direction of the gifted man, are like "apples of gold in pictures of silver." Such a production is worthy of much consideration and frequent perusal. An earnest and honest reading will enable one to appreciate the struggles of our forefathers when they began the settling of this wonderful country. It will vividly show the burning desires in their patriotic breasts to launch noble principles for the creation and establishment of a great nation for real, apostolic brotherhood, righteousness. The studying of this very instructive and suggestive book forcefully reminds us of what a rich inheritance we have fallen heir to. Hence, as sons and daughters, how respectfully, with a true, intelligent appreciation, with a single aim and unified heart, should we regard the wish, the purpose and labor of those who laid the foundation and designed the building of American civilization. It is a book that ought to be read thoughtfully by old and young. It should have a place with the chief books in every family, in every library, and in "our course of study."

I have assisted in six meetings—including my own—in which we had about thirty conversions. The Son of man has power on earth to forgive sins. I am impressed that we need to stress the development of Christian character upon the part of all church members and the immediate salvation of sinners. Let us all know and advocate that Christ came to seek and save the lost. He is not the source of disturbance or the authority for fault-finding. Our united wisdom, strength and love should be on "fire" for the grandest success and highest joy of mankind. A realizing want of Christian character and soul-saving will bring this to pass.

Again, Christian education in the common schools and colleges should be more enthusiastically and liberally looked after. So many children, young men and young women, would seek the "pearl of great price" if they had a better education; if they were practically taught in the home and in the school-room concerning the life that can be lived. It is a lamentable fact that a large number of children and youths have such meagre mental training that they are not prepared to grasp the truths of Christianity. They may be somewhat advanced in some things, but not properly in those which will in beautiful usefulness lead on to success and happiness forever. The church is doing a grand work in her efforts to "educate." What she has done and is doing should inspire us to enlarge our plans and a hundredfold increase our efficiency. More means should be gladly, willingly given to small and larger schools and colleges and universities. No believer in the Holy Bible, it does seem to us, can afford to suffer his child to go uneducated or send to any school where Christ is not presented by precept and example.

How can parents live in this country that belongs to God, where the church is our protection and prayer is our preservation, and where it is self-evident that mental culture after the pattern of the Man of Galilee is the only safety for our perpetuity, as a nation whose God is the Lord, and neglect giving their children a Christian education, is one of the insolvable problems. Every home can educate its children. Oh! that every house—used as a residence—was a home. Then thought, prayers and money would be put into the virgin soil of childhood from which would naturally spring splendid character that would be lovely in citizenship. It would effectively fill and beautifully adorn the calling of the farmer, merchant, mechanic, statesman and ministry of the gospel. This world is a superbly equipped school-house in which every creature made in the image of God has the precious privilege of accepting and living the life that is worth living. This life energized by the Holy Ghost, and sublime in usefulness and cheerfulness, consists in awakening, stimulating and helping others.

THE PRESIDING ELDERS' DISTRICTS UNDER THE NEW DISCIPLINE.

The fact that the General Conference passed a law giving the Bishop the authority to enlarge the presiding elder's districts by one-half is, to my mind, evidence sufficient that the majority of the people called Methodists are in favor of such an enlargement. Personally, I have long believed in the removing of all the limits, and I would not care if the Quarterly Conference did not meet but twice a year. It is not my purpose to discuss the merits of the case here, however, but rather to suggest a plan for the re-districting of the Louisiana Conference.

My plan is to reduce the number of our districts from seven to five, and I would do it in this way: Let the New Orleans district embrace its present territory, except the appointments along the Valley and the T. and P. railroads, together with all appointments along the Southern Pacific to the vicinity of Lafayette, but not including that place.

Let the Baton Rouge district be enlarged by the addition of all appointments left out of the New Orleans district, and also all other appointments on the T. and P. railroad south of the Atchafalaya river.

Let the Alexandria district extend from Melville to Robeline on the T. and P., up the Iron Mountain to its present limits, and in addition to its present territory on the south, let it include all that portion of the Opelousas district not included in the New Orleans.

Let the remainder of the Conference, including the Arcadia district, be equally divided between the Shreveport and Delhi districts.

This would reduce two of the "beloveds" to the ranks; but as there would be no objection to that by any of the parties concerned, I hazard the expression that it would be a good thing for the Conference in general.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE WOMAN'S HOME MISSION SOCIETY.

We wish to call attention to the fact that only a few more days, and our Week of Prayer begins. We would urge its observance throughout the Conference. Remember, it will be a help and inspiration to each auxiliary, for the seal of the Divine Master has been stamped upon our work, and hence we ought to take fresh courage and work while it is called to-day, for the night cometh in which no man can work. Will the pastors who have auxiliaries "help those women who labor with them in the gospel"? Those having no auxiliaries please observe the week, and organize, if possible. Mrs. Hargrove requests that we secure an average of five dollars per auxiliary. Let the stronger ones contribute more, as some can not contribute the desired amount. Also let Conference and auxiliary officers, or those composing the Executive Committee of each, solicit among personal friends from one to five-dollar contributions.

We hope the president of each auxiliary will see that the programme is carefully prepared, thus instructing the membership of the church in the home mission work, and secure, by special invitation, the attendance of those women who know nothing of the work.

All information concerning the programme will be found in the twelfth Annual Report and the October number of Our Homes. Each auxiliary has been supplied with the former, and trust that all subscribe to the latter. So, do not fail to carry out the programme, even if not willing to contribute money. All money raised at this time must be reported as Week of Prayer collection. May God fill each worker with more zeal, more strength, more faith, more courage, more prayer!

Our Homes was founded by Miss Lucinda B. Helm in 1892, and until her death she was its sole editor and agent. She made the paper an expression of herself: gentle and tender, yet forceful and strong. Her sister, Miss Mary Helm, was her choice as successor—a choice which met with the endorsement of the entire society. Owing to her temporary ill-health, the place has been filled by Miss Emily Allen, who has most admirably discharged the duties of editor and agent pro tem., bringing to the work rare gifts and long experience in literary work, and who will probably be retained in connection with it as field editor. The society has undertaken to increase its subscription list to ten thousand as a monument to Miss Lucinda Helm, and to accomplish this, every member must press this canvass through the next fiscal year. Let our dear old Mississippi be not laggard in doing her part toward helping to erect this monument.

As our annual meeting has been postponed twice, I will say for the benefit of those who have applied to our Conference society for aid, and so anxiously await the result, that, by order of our president, the appropriations will be made by the Executive Committee as soon as possible, so the much-needed work can be done before the Winter season.

MRS. S. S. COPE,
Conf. Cor. Sec.

Paulding, Miss., Sept. 27, 1898.

A TRIBUTE TO MISS MARY HELM.

Miss Mary Helm for years has been known and loved throughout our church as a woman of rare gifts and deep religious convictions. In the beginning of the work of the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions, she was, as she is now, a power. When I first met her, at the annual meeting of the Louisville Conference Society, when the beloved Mrs. Sehon was president, I was deeply impressed by her earnest prayer at the close of the convention. She seemed to grasp fully the real vital principles and spiritual power that underlie all missionary work, and from that day to this she has been working to help answer her own prayers. With a clear head, an unusually wise and discriminating judgment, and a warm, sympathetic heart, she has been glad to give much time, thought, and labor to all church work. Cheerfulness, fine culture, loving tenderness, and intimate acquaintance with all matters of Church and State, make her a delightful, welcome guest in every home.

I have never known one more attractive to children. Her pen and tongue inspire them with high hopes and exalted ideals, and her loving heart renders her irresistible. "I love God and little children," said one whose soul linked the fatherhood of God with the whole human race; so it can be said of Miss Helm, she loves God and little children.

As the beloved secretary of the Louisville Conference Society for many years, she brought it to its present high place in the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions. In the effort to found and maintain the Scarritt Bible and Training-school for missionaries and other Christian workers she was a "strong right arm," and left no means unemployed to further its interests and to encourage Miss Bennett in her successful campaign in its behalf. When the office of a superintendent of the societies at home was created, she was the secretary, helpful and well beloved. I know her well, honor her highly, love her much, and could tell many things of interest in her life, but I forbear. She knows nothing of my writing this; was not consulted when Miss Emily Allen requested me to give the readers of Our Homes some tribute to Miss Mary Helm, the editor-elect. Doubtless she will bring all the gifts of her mind and heart into this work, as she has into everything undertaken in Christ's name, and I do not hesitate to commend her, feeling fully assured that the work of her gifted sister, Miss Lucinda B. Helm, of blessed memory, will not suffer in her hands. I pray that many years may be added to her life, that health and strength may be given, and the great good she has done during the past be the sure promise of the greater things she will do.—Mrs. S. C. Trueheart, in Our Homes.

The Christian Life.

THE CHRISTIAN IN ACTIVE LIFE.

Men are asking everywhere this question: "Is it possible for a man to be engaged in the activities of our modern life and yet be a Christian? Is it possible for a man to be a broker, a shopkeeper, a lawyer, a mechanic—is it possible for a man to be engaged in a business of to-day?—and yet love his God and his fellowman as himself?" I do not know what transformation these dear businesses of yours have got to undergo before they shall be true and ideal homes for the child of God, but I do know that upon Christian brokers and Christian lawyers and Christian men in business to-day there rests an awful and a beautiful responsibility to prove, if you can prove it, that these things are capable of being made divine; to prove that a man can do the work that you have been doing this morning, and will do this afternoon, and yet shall love his God and his fellow-man as himself. If he can not, what business have you to be doing them? If he can, what business have you to be doing them so poorly, so carnally, so unspiritually, that men look on them and shake their heads with doubt? It belongs to Christ in men first to prove that man may be a Christian and yet do business; and in the second place, to show how a man, as he becomes a greater Christian, shall purify and lift the business that he does, and make it the worthy occupation of the son of God.—Bishop Brooks.

DR. PARKER'S IDEA OF PREACHING.

The Rev. Joseph Parker preached the annual missionary sermon to young men during the Baptist anniversaries this year in London. In closing, he spoke a word to young men beginning their ministry. He said: "I have been forty-two years in the Christian pulpit. I have never faltered in my allegiance to the highest vocation known among men. I have lived in it, and I hope to die in it. The people will answer to such preaching, while all other attempts will dwindle away. During these forty-two years I have never preached about shipwrecks, murders, collisions, earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and Sunday demonstrations in support of diverse features and phases of imprudence and nonsense. I have tried to confine myself to the four corners of the Bible, and it has been no confinement. It has been the liberty of the horizon, the liberty of the heavens."—Exchange.

LIFE AND DUTY.

Life is not the mere living. It is worship; it is the surrender of the soul to God and the power to see the face of God; and it is service; it is to feel that, when we die, whether praised or blamed, whether honored or ignored, whether wealthy or destitute, we have done something to make the world we came to better and happier; that we have tried to cast upon the waters some seed which, long after we are dead, may still bring forth its flowers of paradise. The seed dies, but the harvest lives. Sacrifice is always fruitful, and there is nothing fruitful else. Out of the suffering comes the serious mind; out of the salvation, the grateful heart; out of the endurance, the fortitude; out of the deliverance, the faith.—Farrar.

A MISSIONARY'S WIFE

Interesting Letter from India—A Long Summer Season.

The following letter is from the wife of an American Baptist missionary at Newgong, Assam, India: "After living here for several years I found the climate was weakening me. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla every summer. This I found so beneficial that I now take one dose every morning for nine months in the year, that is, through the hot weather. My general health is excellent and my blood is in good condition. My weight does not vary more than one pound throughout the year. I find Hood's Sarsaparilla indispensable in the summer and recommend it for use in a debilitating climate." MRS. P. H. MOORE.

The above letter is similar to thousands received and constantly coming in.

Hood's Pills cure nausea, indigestion, biliousness. Price 25c.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. J. M. Wyatt: "We have moved on pleasantly and harmoniously this year at Ripley and New Albany. The health of our people has been and is quite good. We truly regret that we have not accomplished more for the blessed Master, but are very grateful for the advancement. Twenty-five persons have been received into the church—twelve of them on profession of faith. The Sunday-school work is doing well. One Epworth League is in an admirable condition. The missionary interests, with a willing mind, are receiving attention. It is gratifying to be fully persuaded that part of the membership of the church is living closer to God. This is a fine class of people we are serving."

Rev. Ben P. Jaco, P. C., Mount Pleasant circuit: "We passed the greater part of this year in meeting our regular appointments and doing what general pastoral work we could; but, owing to protracted illness of my family and of myself, have been very much embarrassed. Held two protrated meetings, and was in the midst of a third with better prospects for great revival than at any other place; but after preaching four days, all the time having fever, I was forced to close the meeting and submit to a month's battle with slow fever. Am at this writing able to preach some in a quiet way. Just as I was getting some better and entering upon the hungry stage of the disease, the good people of Early Grove Church and community sent us a wagon-load of such things as sugar, coffee, molasses, potatoes, chickens, hams, eggs, butter, meal and cash. Then New Salem followed, bringing things of like nature, so that as I leave off medical course I am well furnished with next necessary treatment, no parcel of which is labeled with 'directions.' We earnestly pray that the balance of the year shall be given us in health and strength, that we may work constantly and successfully."

Rev. E. C. Sullivan, Saltillo, Miss., Sept. 21, 1898: "I have just finished my round of protracted meetings. There are eight appointments on this, the Saltillo, circuit. As it is best to hold meetings in the country during the leisure weeks that come between laying by crops and cotton picking, we began the third Sunday in July, and continued for eight weeks, without vacation. The result of our meetings averaged up well. We began at Mooresville, where we were ably assisted by Bro. Bob Sargent. Had a good meeting, and took in five new members. Bros. T. L. Foster and S. B. Cox did us good service in our meeting at Oak Grove. We were glad to have with us Bro. Joe Garner at Oak Hill, for we were greatly in need of church workers there. We protracted from our third Quarterly Conference, which was held at Hebron. Our presiding elder, Bro. J. W. Honnoll, preached us two elevating sermons which gave the meeting a good send off. Bro. Turner, a Free Will Baptist, was with us there. We are very much indebted to Bro. K. M. Harrison, who did all the preaching in our meeting at Saltillo. His sermons were fine, and we had good results from his labors. Many thanks to Bro. Joe Raper and Bro. John McDugal, who came to our relief at Allen's Chapel, where we had a tolerable good meeting. Bro. B. R. East, our local preacher, did us good work at Center Star, where we had the greatest revival meeting that I have attended for several years. The church was greatly revived, fifteen souls converted to God, and sixteen added to the church. At the close of this meeting I took sick, and would have had to call in my next meeting, which began at Shiloh the next Sunday, Sept. 4, had it not been for Bro. East, who took charge of the meeting and ran it until I got able to go to his relief about the middle of the week. We had a good meeting there, which was our eighth and last one. We have had fifty-nine additions this year up to date, and hope to have more still. We have some good church workers on this charge. When I begin a revival service, and look around and see Bro. J. H. York, I. G. Young, D. H. Turner, and some of the good sisters present, I feel encouraged. Many thanks to our singers."

STATE CONVICT FARMS.

At the last session of our Conference, the North Mississippi, a resolution was introduced and adopted requesting those pastors whose works were in proximity to the State Convict Farms, to visit and preach at these places as often as practicable. In compliance with this resolution, I have visited and preached to the State convicts who are on the farms adjacent to my work. I wish to say that, as far as I am able to judge, I believe the Board of Control has done and is doing the very best they can under the present system for these poor, unfortunate creatures. On the R. N. Harris place, about two and a half miles from Clarksdale, Mr. Hatch, of Aberdeen, is the sergeant, and has immediate control and supervision over about 86 convicts. On the J. W. Cutrer place, 10 miles from this, Mr. Allen, of Canton, holds a like position. Both these gentlemen impress me that they have not only placed their time and labor in the hands of the State, but have also put their consciences into the trying and responsible positions which they hold. Their conduct towards the convicts impressed me as being eminently humane. The convicts themselves have every appearance of being well kept. They are supplied with an abundance of wholesome, well-prepared food, comfortably clad, and when one is disabled from any cause he is shipped immediately to the walls where best attention can be given him. I could not help but notice the absence of filth from the premises and sleeping apartments; also the cleanliness of their persons. Messrs. Allen and Hatch informed me that they demanded the free and frequent use of water by each convict. The warden, Mr. McNair, makes frequent visits to these camps to see that the prisoners are properly cared for.

What a wonderful improvement over former years! These sergeants and guards assure me that they appreciate my visits, and always give me a cordial welcome to the camps. All attend the services, and give respectful, attentive hearing to the "Word." I always feel better after having ministered to these people. As one poor fellow said, who is in for life, "I love for you to come; it makes me think of liberty." Thank God I am the herald of tidings that can make him "free indeed," even in prison.

CHANGE YOUR BAIT.

One of the rules of the successful fisherman is to use a variety of devices in order to assure success. He depends not on one appliance, but uses many. If he goes after trout, his "book" of flies may contain fifty alluring varieties, and his fishing tackle a dozen other sorts of artificial bait. If the trout will not snap at one of these, another is used, and another, until something that will catch fish is found. A grasshopper, a minnow, a fly, a worm,—these are used in succession until some successful device is secured.

To the ministry, to whom Jesus Christ says, "I will make you fishers of men," this principle is suggestive. They may wisely apply it in the effort to vary their old methods and invent new ones whereby to secure converts. If they have during a considerable period failed to achieve that form of success which registers itself in conversions, perhaps some other method may help to accomplish victory. A change of bait may be serviceable.

Let the argumentative preacher use more illustrations, and the man who has depended chiefly upon picturesque material employ his reasoning faculties to an extent untried before. It may expedite success in the case of the precise, methodical plodder if he will cultivate spontaneity and, in the language of the elder Beecher, "let nature caper" at times. Perhaps the man who has become a slave to his manuscript may secure larger liberty and better result by using occasionally extempore methods of speech; and once in a while it will surely be of service to the man of oratorical temper if he will descend from his stilted attitude and simply talk to the people.

In like manner, if the preacher who has been occupying his time almost wholly in his study, with the view of making the pulpit his throne, will cultivate his pastoral instincts, and sympathies, and habits, he may be able to get hold of men who at long range are beyond reach. Those who have built all their hopes and aims upon the single ambition of having every Fall "a rousing revival," may find it helpful to plan the "one-at-a-time" method, trying to reach people in private interviews, individually, and thus bring them to Christ.

These are but hints and suggestions, which illustrate the principle in view. A pastor in our age ought to be alert, ingenious, and inventive; fertile in expedients; full of resources; like a great general, he ought to be able in the face of emergencies and in the midst of the battle to change his plans to meet the new developments of the hour. It is a waste of time, strength, labor, and life for a man to keep pottering away at methods and plans which after a fair trial do not succeed in winning souls. Let him use enterprise and ingenuity, and thus become a successful fisher of men.—Central Advocate.

BRICKS WITHOUT STRAW.

The Bible is an old book, but it is no less a very fresh book—a book of to-day as well as of the ages before the flood. This business of compelling people to make bricks without straw is as old as Adam and as recent as this morning's newspaper, and is as universal, almost, as breathing.

Everybody wants his tale of bricks, but not everybody is willing to give the toiler any straw. The church-goer sits in his pew on Sunday morning, and he expects the minister to wake him up, and to interest him, and to warm him, and to make him feel good, and to lift him at least for an hour out of the ruts of business and put him on the way to heaven, and to make him hear the harps and the chorus. But all the morning, before going to meeting, he has been reading his Sunday newspaper; he has found just what stocks are selling at, and who has failed, and what steamer got in yesterday, and what is the local news, and who is likely to be elected, and all the rest of it. Thus he mortgages his mind and his attention; there is no space left in his mind. And he wonders why he does not feel interested in the sermon. But how is the minister, good man, going to make bricks without so much as one shred of straw?

It is much the same if the man has been at his store or at his club till the small hours, or if his wife, excellent woman, had company last evening, or was in company, and did not get to sleep till one or two, or after.

But, alas! these things are about as broad as they are long. The minister often exacts the bricks without giving any straw. He expects the people to listen, but he does not give them anything to listen to. He did not get to his work till Friday, and as for the evening sermon, that was begun on Saturday evening about nine o'clock, and finished as the last bell was ringing; or, perchance, the discourses were not written, but were born of facility of speech and lack of thought. Perhaps the day was stormy, and the minister wanted to save up for larger houses the sermon which had been prepared; and so he gave the congregation an hour of dish-water. Did he expect the people to attend, to listen? If he did, it was a clear case of demanding the tale of bricks, but giving no straw.—National Baptist.

Much of our veneration for the classics is a sham, due in a measure to our sheep-like unwillingness to think for ourselves. When Mr. Reed defined a statesman as "a successful politician who is dead," he voiced a sentiment very like that which rules many of our literary guides. In their minds, nothing is literature that was not written either in a dead language or by a dead man, and everything is literature which was written by a dead man in a dead language. They praise the old books which they either read with an effort, or do not read at all; and it rarely occurs to them to analyze the source of their pleasure in the new books which they read with joy.—Prof. Brander Matthews, in the Forum.

What infinite care and pride a woman takes in her wedding trousseau. How fine and fit every dainty gown and filmy bit of lingerie must be. But how about herself, her own fine and delicate physical organism? Has this most important of all considerations been neglected? Has she any weakness or ailment which is going to unfit and incapacitate her for happy marriage?

No woman is fit to marry who has any unhealthy condition of the special structure most intimately concerned in wifehood and motherhood. No modest reluctance should prevent her seeking immediate relief from such troubles. There is no need of the mortifying examinations so detestable to sensitive-minded women. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription is daily curing thousands of women of these troubles in the privacy of their homes.

The "Favorite Prescription" is the only proprietary remedy of its kind prepared by an educated, authorized physician. There is hardly a case so obstinate that it will not completely and permanently cure.

Mrs. Emma G. Clover, of Redkey, Jay Co., Indiana, in a letter to Dr. Pierce, says: "I can recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to anyone who suffers with any female disease. When I was in my teens I was always sick. I took your medicines before I was married, and now I am a well person. I am now twenty-three. I have also taken Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets,' and can recommend them all."

It is a druggist's business to sell you, not to tell you, what you want.

—THE—

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers. New Type. All Proper Names. Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Every body is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis; and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangment for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to October, '99. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

The smallest bark on life's tumultuous ocean
Will leave a track behind for evermore;
The lightest wave of influence, once in motion,
Extends and widens to the eternal shore.
We should be wary then, who go before
A myriad yet to be, and we should take
Our bearing carefully, where breakers roar
And fearful tempests gather: one mistake
May wreck unnumbered barks that follow in our wake.

—Sarah K. Bolton.

The first duty in life is to learn to drudge at something.—John Staples White.

No man is borne into the world whose work is not born with him.—Lowell.

God offers to every mind its choice between truth and repose.—R. W. Emerson.

Old truths are always new to us if they come with the smell of heaven upon them.—John Bunyan.

It is proof positive of a man's essential soundness if he improves as he grows old.—James Parton.

Riches should be employed for the getting of knowledge, rather than knowledge for the getting of riches.—Matthew Henry.

Drudgery is as necessary to call out the treasures of the mind as harrowing and planting those of the earth.—Margaret Fuller.

Solomon bids us "buy the truth," but doth not tell us what it must cost, because we must get it, though it be never so dear.—Thomas Brooks.

Conscience dies from neglect or abuse, not from a single blow. The man who has no conscience did not lose it in a single night.—Exchange.

Happiness is nothing but that sweet delight which will arise from the harmonious agreement between our wills and the will of God.—Ralph Cudworth.

Fulsome flattery is not so commendable as discriminate praise, but even a "little taffy" does more good than too much "Epitaffy." Emptying the green-house and blocking the thoroughfares in behalf of the dead will not compensate for the neglect of the living. Our generation needs to cultivate the expression of love in little ways.—Selected.

Time is never more misspent than while we declaim against the want of it; all our actions are tinctured with peevishness. The yoke of life is certainly the least oppressive when we carry it with good humor; and in the shades of rural retirement, when we have once acquired a resolution to pass our hours with economy, sorrowful lamentations on the subject of time misspent, and business neglected never torture the mind.—Zimmerman.

If the aim of a life be right, it can not in detail be much amiss. It may indeed be imperfect, but it can not be wholly wrong, and it can not be even partially false. When the aim of a life is right, rules and precepts are merely subordinate; when the aim of a life is otherwise, rules and precepts are utterly worthless. The ideal determines the character of the life. Ambition without character must ever prove fatal to its possessor. There is not an exception in history.—Success.

ETERNAL PUNISHMENT.

The Scriptures clearly teach the doctrine of eternal punishment for impenitent sinners. "These shall go away into everlasting punishment, but the righteous into life eternal." If the life is eternal, so is the death. If the death is not eternal, neither is the life. By no recognized principle of hermeneutics can the force of this and many similar passages be gotten rid of. If we take the Scriptures for our guide, we must either admit the eternity of future punishment, or we must deny the eternity of future blessedness.

The doctrine of eternal punishment, however, must not be confounded with the notion that the finally impenitent will be cast into a literal lake of fire and brimstone. All passages in which such phraseology occurs are figurative. "Where the worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched." Here we have two terms—"worm" and "fire"—used to describe the future punishment of the wicked. As both are in the same clause, they must be similarly interpreted. Either both are literal, or both are figurative. Will anyone contend for a literal interpretation in both cases? Will he insist that the wicked are to be tormented with real fire and also by the gnawings of a literal worm? Such an interpretation would be the very acme of absurdity. Again, in the Book of Revelation it is said that the wicked shall "drink of the wine of the wrath of God which is poured out without mixture into the cup of his indignation, and shall be tormented with fire and brimstone." Here again we must make choice between the two methods of interpretation. If the fire and brimstone are literal, then the wine is literal also. Just think of it—a human soul seething in a lake of liquid brimstone, gnawed by a literal worm as voracious as a hyena and as deathless as God himself, and quaffing some bitter, nauseous dose without cessation throughout eternity. Considered as an actuality, can a greater absurdity be conceived of? God never intended such language to be interpreted literally any more than he intended the oft-quoted words, "This is my body," to be thus interpreted. The Romish dogma of transubstantiation has as much foundation in Scripture as has this mediæval notion of a literal lake of fire and brimstone. Both are the result of a gross perversion of Scripture.

It would be an egregious error, however, to suppose that a rational interpretation of such passages robs endless death of its terrors. It is a very ignoble conception of the nature of man to suppose that the only suffering of which he is capable is physical suffering. Universal observation and experience proclaim with trumpet tongue that man's severest sufferings, as well as his most exalted pleasures, are mental and spiritual, not physical. How rarely does a human being commit suicide on account of physical pain! Yet suicide as the result of mental suffering is an every-day occurrence.

Viewed from the standpoint of materialism, Macbeth and Lady Macbeth should have been among the happiest of mortals. Throned, crowned and sceptered, all the pleasures which wealth, power and social position can give were theirs in the utmost plentitude. And yet they present to us the most appalling picture of human wretchedness known to the literature of the world. Macbeth imagines he sees the ghost of murdered Banquo haunting him unceasingly day and night, and the horrid vision so preys upon his mind that he loses his reason, and becomes unfitted for social functions and for the discharge of the duties of royalty. What a scene is that in the royal banquet hall when Macbeth finds his own seat at the table preoccupied by this horrid ghost, and speaks of the vision as "that which might appall the devil!" Hear his ravings, sometimes in soliloquy, sometimes in direct address to the ghost: "The times have been that, when the brains were out, the man would die, and there an end; but now they rise with twenty mortal murders on their crown and push us from our stools. This is more strange than such a murder is." . . . "Avaunt! and quit my sight! Let the earth hide thee! . . . What man dare I dare; take any shape but that, and my firm nerves shall never tremble." . . . "Hence, horrible shadow!" "It will have blood; they say blood will have blood." And who can gaze without a shudder upon Lady Macbeth so tortured with remorse that even in her sleep she rises and vainly strives to wash away the blood-stains which her guilty conscience sees upon her hands. She even smells the blood. Hear her as she looks and looks upon her dainty hands, and cries: "Out, out, I say. Who would have thought the old man to have had so much blood in him? . . . Here's the smell of the blood still. All the perfumes of Arabia will not sweeten this little hand. Oh! oh! oh!"

Thus does the matchless genius of Shakespeare, catching the spirit of "the Book of books," portray upon immortal canvas the capacity of the human soul for suffering from remorse. Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter," though less harrowing, presents the same truth with irresistible force. And remorse is only one of many forms of soul-suffering. He who supposes that man can suffer only through the body has yet to learn the alphabet of human psychology. With every conceivable avenue of physical pleasure open to him man may be so utterly wretched that he can truthfully adopt the soliloquy of Milton's Satan: "Which way I fly is Hell. Myself am Hell."

Not only is the doctrine of future punishment clearly taught in the Scriptures, but it is in accord with "the fitness of things." It is a corollary of the doctrine of divine justice.

Let us elucidate this. In this life violations of physical law are invariably punished. What pen is adequate to the task of describing the wretchedness that follows in the wake of inebriety? And not only this grosser form of physiological sin, but those of less flagrancy have each a penalty. Gluttony, no less than drunkenness, has its reward. And so of every other violation of physical law. Now, moral law is higher than physical law. To illustrate: Edward Everett brought on his death by a violation of physical law. By seating himself in a current of cold air at a time when he was overheated and covered with perspiration, he took a cold from which he died. Charles Gitteau fired a murderous bullet into the body of our beloved and honored President, James A. Garfield. Now, here are two acts which in one sense are the same—i. e., both are violations of law. But will anyone contend that the two acts are of equal turpitude? Was Everett as great a criminal as Gitteau? To such a question the intellect, the conscience and the heart of universal humanity respond with a most emphatic No. The one we revere as an ornament to American literature, oratory and statesmanship, while the other we so execrate that if we could, we would obliterate his name from the annals of our glorious country. Thus we see that moral law is universally regarded as higher than physical law. To deny this is to assert that the least excess in eating, or the least inattention to the multitudinous minutiæ of physiological law, is as great a crime as theft or murder.

Now, if it be true that moral law is higher than physical law, and if it also be true that God has provided a penalty for every violation of physical law, then, does it not inevitably follow that he must also make provision for the punishment of moral transgression? But this is not the case in this world. They who have languished in earth's dungeons and expired upon earth's gibbets and crosses: have they always been earth's greatest criminals? Who does not know that they have often been earth's purest and best? Even the immaculate Son of God expired upon a cross. They who have occupied earth's thrones and worn earth's crowns and swayed earth's sceptres: have they always been those most worthy of high honor and responsibility? Who does not know that they have often been earth's greatest criminals? Behold yon great military chieftain. Disregarding the rights of all individuals and all nations, ignoring all laws, human and divine, and recognizing no end in life save that of his own aggrandizement, he places himself at the head of an armed host of rapacious mercenaries and marches forth upon an expedition of conquest. Upon a hundred gory fields victory perches upon his banner, might triumphs over right, and virtue, liberty and patriotism lie crushed and bleeding beneath the iron heel of despotism. Thousands upon thousands perish solely because they dared to "Strike for their altars and their fires,

The green graves of their sires,
God and their native land."

In regal splendor and with imperial tread on goes the hero (?), armed with fire and sword, spreading devastation and ruin on every side, marking his pathway by streams of innocent blood, by the smoke of pillaged and burning cities, by the sighs of widowhood and the cries of orphanage, until many proud nationalities lie bleeding at his feet. Yet this moral monster, this greatest of all criminals, revels in wealth and luxury through a long life, dies a majestic death, is buried with imperial honors, and his name is embalmed "in story and in song," and in sky-piercing obelisk that defies the ravages of time. This is no fancy sketch. Scenes like this, though variant in detail, make up a large part of the history of the world.

Now, here is a problem to be solved. We are told that God is just. Yet we see that while even the pettiest violations of physical law are followed by a penalty, the most atrocious crimes not only are not punished, but are actually rewarded with all the pleasures that wealth and honor and power can procure. Now, of course, an omnipotent Jehovah could have so constituted this world that every violation of moral law would have been followed by a penalty commensurate with its turpitude. He might, for instance, have so arranged the world that murder or theft would as inevitably have been followed by an appropriate penalty as gluttony or inebriation. But he has not done so. Hence, if there is no future state of rewards and punishments, then it is impossible to vindicate the divine character and administration against the charge of injustice.

Imagine an earthly potentate attempting to rule his realm on the principle of punishing virtue and rewarding crime in direct proportion to its flagrancy! How long would such a government last? The people would rise in the might of a noble manhood and hurl the monster from his throne. Are we to believe that God has less regard for justice and righteousness than sinful man? Precisely so, if universalism be true. If the vilest criminal and the godliest saint are to enter upon the same celestial beatitudes beyond the grave, then the God of the universe is an omnipotent demon, sitting upon a throne of iniquity and swaying a sceptre of unrighteousness.

In the parable of Dives and Lazarus the Great Teacher paints vice rolling in luxury, while virtue languishes in hunger and rags. But to his vision "it is not all of life to live or all of death to die," and in the life beyond the grave the rich man lifts up his eyes in hell, while Lazarus dwells with angels and glorified saints in the paradise of God. Universalism paints a very different picture. It portrays Dives and Lazarus carried by the same band of angels to "Abraham's bosom" to be equally rewarded—the one for a life of self-denying, faith-inspired righteousness, the other for an ignoble career of selfishness and vice. Let God's Word be honored, whatever may become of human speculations.

This doctrine of Holy Writ, like all other revelations from on high, is revealed in mercy to our race. Amid the environments of the present life man needs above everything else, as an incentive to a life of virtue, faith in a supreme Power that works in the interest of righteousness—faith in a righteous state of rewards and punishments beyond "this vale of tears." In the language of our Savior, he needs to "fear Him who hath power to cast into hell." This hope of a blissful immortality beyond the grave and this fear of "the death that never dies" are appealed to in the Bible in endlessly varied form and phraseology from the beginning of Genesis to the end of Revelations. Blot out this appeal; convince mankind that in the life to come the most atrocious criminal will occupy as high a throne and wear as bright a crown as the godliest saint, and who that knows even the alphabet of human nature can fail to see the inevitable result?

If the interests of the present life are the only interests man has to guard, then why should he perform any righteous act if it involves the slightest sacrifice of interest, comfort or convenience? And why should he refrain from any conceivable crime if his temporal interests can thereby be promoted? So fallen humanity would reason: and the very worst passions of the human heart would break forth in their most flagitious manifestations. The flood-gates of iniquity would be lifted, and the world would be deluged with vice and crime.

In the vocabulary of inspiration life and death are eternal correlatives. Hope and fear, the two motives which are of all others most potential for the control of human conduct, are appealed to in the gospel in the most effective way that Omniscience can devise.

THE PULPIT NOT ALL.

The Jewish Messenger has the following thoughtful and suggestive words that Christian as well as Jew can endorse: "It is a delicate matter to criticise the pulpit—a preacher's life is no bed of roses—but frankly, the minister, to become a real permanent influence, must live and work among his people, and not simply preach to them as a part of a weekly performance. Ministers who leave fragrant memories never rely on the spoken word—it is the kindly deed, the cheerful presence, the smile of sympathy, the handclasp of affection, the treasured confidences, the goodness done in secret and never trumpeted forth, but sinking deeply, ah, how deeply, into the heart and life of the recipient; in short, it is the minister who administers in the synagogue of humanity, without thought of self—he, and he alone, can be called a divine. The rest are simple officials at so much a year. They wear broadcloth, but lack the broad soul."

BISHOP GALLOWAY ON QUARANTINES.

Bishop Galloway's article in this issue will be read with profound interest. Like the wise leader that he is, the Bishop has struck the right key on the quarantine question. We believe strongly in quarantining against infectious diseases; but in quarantines, as well as in everything else, science and common sense ought to play an important part. Many of the quarantine regulations now in operation are utterly senseless. We refer here not to quarantines against persons, but to those against freight. There are many articles of commerce that can not possibly carry infection. Then, there are many others that can be handled with entire safety after fumigation. This fact is recognized by the medical fraternity in the system adopted in the Atlanta Convention. Yet there are localities that make no discriminations. A bar of iron or a shipment of carbolic acid is excluded as rigidly as a case of woolen goods.

Quarantines of this sort have their origin sometimes in ignorance, and sometimes in the most execrable avarice. It is easy for a few shrewd, conscienceless tradesmen to manipulate a panic-stricken community in their own interest. The same spirit manifests itself upon the arena of national politics. Not long since a certain large mercantile firm in a Northern city wrote to a certain United States senator, urging him to work against all national quarantine laws, on the ground that the Kilkenny cat-fight quarantines now prevailing in the South turn to Northern cities a vast amount of trade which would otherwise go to Southern cities. We are heartily in favor of a national quarantine.

OUR HOMES.

Our Homes is always good, but the October number is superlatively so. Miss Emily M. Allen, who has occupied the tripod since the death of Miss Helm, is to be congratulated on the success she has achieved in her difficult and important task. She has acquitted herself most admirably. On our first page we present a poem from her pen. The new editor, Miss Mary Helm, is thoroughly equipped for the place. A brief sketch of her from the facile and vigorous pen of Mrs. S. C. Trueheart is given in this issue.

A QUERY.

MR. EDITOR: Will you be so kind as to answer the following question through the columns of the ADVOCATE: Should a pastor discontinue his weekly prayer meeting because he has no male members who will pray in public, when there are five or six women who will pray when called on? A FRIEND.

ANS.—Unless there are other reasons for discontinuance than the one stated, we think it would be better to continue the prayer meeting with the help of the devout women.—EDITOR.

ST. LOUIS LETTER.

MR. EDITOR: It may be of some interest to your readers to know something of our doings in this, the largest city in Southern Methodism. The fifty-first session of our Conference was opened on Sept. 21 in the beautiful little city of DeSoto, Bishop Candler in the chair. He kept a tight rein on the Conference from beginning to end, dispatching business without delay, and also without undue haste. His words of counsel, his earnest exhortations abounded in wisdom; his address on education and his talk to the class for admission were full of truth and practical suggestion; but his sermon on Sunday morning eclipsed every thing else. The one comment on every hand was: "It did me more good than any sermon I ever heard." Another expression often heard was: "Other sermons have made me think I could never preach again, but this one made me more determined to preach until death."

There were only two admissions on trial. One of them was William Henry LaPrade, Jr. There were several locations and one death. Dr. B. M. Messick was granted supernumerary relation. Thirteen were transferred, among whom were Dr. John Mathews to the Alabama, Dr. E. B. Chappel to the North Alabama, Dr. S. H. Werlein to Southwest Missouri, Dr. J. M. Moore to West Texas, and W. H. Lewis to the Mississippi Conference.

Some of the preachers who go to St. Louis churches are: Dr. J. H. Young, of Baltimore, to Centenary; Dr. I. S. Hopkins, of Georgia, to St. John's; Dr. R. D. Smart, of Memphis, to Cook Avenue; Dr. C. E. Patilio, of Little Rock, to LaFayette Park; Dr. T. E. Sharp, to Wagoner Place; H. R. Singleton, Jr., to Mount Auburn, and W. H. LaPrade, Jr., to Immanuel.

Resolutions strongly censuring the actions of Barbee and Smith and the Book Agents were almost unanimously adopted.

Dr. J. C. Berryman, one of the two survivors of the General Conference of 1844, and Dr. W. M. Prottsman, another pioneer of Missouri Methodism, were present and took part in the semi-centennial celebration. Both are blind and very old, but speak with power, and are always listened to with rapt attention.

The session of the Conference was a pleasant and profitable one, and many believe that the year we are now entering upon is the beginning of a new era in St. Louis Methodism.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

I had hoped that the quarantine regulations now in force in our State would be so modified, by this time, that I could name a day for the opening of our college session. I find, however, that this is yet impracticable. I trust our students will not become impatient. We will admit them just as soon as we can. If they were here, we could go on with our work without difficulty, as the few cases of fever reported in Jackson are too far from the college to cause apprehension in our vicinity.

Let it be understood that we will complete a full session's work, and the advancement of no student will be delayed as result of the postponement of our opening. When we can fix the day for beginning the session, due notice will be given.

IUKA NORMAL INSTITUTE.

IUKA, MISS.

The Institute opened Sept. 1st. Seventy-five pupils entered school. Quarantine prevented others from entering. This was the first opening of year 1898.

A second opening—Nov. 8, '98—has been selected for this. Classes in our courses will be organized, and pupils who enter on this date can still be in school nine and one-half months of this school year.

Free tuition, Nov. 8, '98, to June 3, '99, is offered to the first hundred pupils who apply.

OUR BELOVED BISHOP.

I would like to call the attention of the readers of the ADVOCATE to an article in the Methodist Review, for September-October, a brief biographical sketch of "Bishop Linna Parker, D. D., by Rev. Fitzgerald Sale Parker, of the Louisiana Conference." I do this that those who are not subscribers to the Review may secure and read an article which, as the record of a noble life, will make all who contemplate it nobler and better, "growing pure by being purely shone upon." To the "inner circle" who loved him as presiding elder, pastor, and friend, and, most of all, to "his little flock"—scattered now, but all under the loving care of the Good Shepherd, who gave his life for his sheep—to these it will bring a benediction as of precious ointment poured forth, filling the heart with thankfulness, and the eyes with tears of joy and sorrow, making a halo round a glorified saint.

As a portrait, the likeness is wonderful, drawn by a loving, painstaking and discriminating hand—a hand which seems not to have been hampered by circumstances which might have hindered its freedom of execution; and Bishop Parker, as his son sees him, stands before us. If there be touches which could be supplied only by those to whom he carried the glorious gospel of the Son of God; with whose darkened lives and desolated homes he brought the light of the Sun of Righteousness; with whose broken hearts he poured the oil and wine of the precious promises, bringing "beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, and the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness;" if his marvelous power to "comfort with the comfort wherewith he himself was comforted" seems to be absent from the picture, it is because it was known only to those who, in the depth of human anguish, have shared his priceless sympathy—a sympathy sometimes too deep for tears! This power was apparently unsuspected by himself. In the presence of sorrow he thought, as he once said, that he was "dumb, not knowing what to say." But by the pure gospel he preached, by his fervent prayers, by his firm reliance on the eternal love and goodness of the Father, whose chastening hand may indeed turn all our moisture into the drouth of Summer, but will nevertheless surely restore comforts to his mourners; by all these things he was more than conqueror, leading those to whom he ministered "from strength to strength," from victory to victory, till they, too, could "rejoice in hope of the glory of God."

As we think of him, we think of his favorite hymn, which his "little flock," led by his beloved wife, used so often to sing:

"While the angel choirs are crying,
'Glory to the great I Am!'
I with them will still be vying,
Glory! glory to the Lamb!
O how precious
Is the sound of Jesus' name."

A GOOD MAN GONE.

Rev. J. B. Ware is dead. He died on the twenty-eighth of September, twenty-five minutes after eight o'clock P. M. He passed out quietly in the home of Bro. Jim Ware's, near Walnut Grove. Bro. J. B. Ware was about eighty-five years old. He was the father of several children, among whom is Bro. J. N. Ware, of the Mississippi Conference. His obituary will appear soon. A good man is gone.

MUCH IMPROVEMENT.

Pearl River, La., Sept. 30, 1898.—Miss Myrtle West, of this place, states that she had no appetite, and began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. Her appetite is now good, and she is enjoying good health. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine money can buy.

NEW STATISTICAL TABLES.

To the Members of the North Mississippi Conference:

I have been requested to call attention to the fact that new statistical tables will be required this year. Ministers in charge of circuits, stations and missions can obtain them from Rev. G. W. Bachman, Conference colporter, Kosciusko, Miss.

J. S. OAKLEY,
Secretary of the Conference.

EAST MISSISSIPPI FEMALE COLLEGE.

This college opened with the largest number of boarders of any opening in the history of the Institution, notwithstanding the quarantine and yellow fever scare. New pupils are coming in every day. As soon as the quarantine is raised every nook and corner of the building will be filled, and the president is now planning to make arrangements for more room.

The new faculty proves to be the best the college has ever had. The new teacher of languages from Wellesley College is certainly fine. The teacher and assistant teacher of mathematics having studied in the University of Chicago this Summer, are now better equipped, perhaps, than similar teachers in female colleges. The teacher of English, who is an A. B. graduate of the University of South Carolina, will be hard to excel in her line. The same Director of Music and the same violinist are even more popular than ever before. Certainly no college in the South has better musical talent. The president is spending a great deal of money in employing expert talent in every department, which will pay in the end, as can be attested by the fact that pupils are coming from nearly every Southern State; also from New Mexico and Arizona, and Western States.

The student-body this year is the finest that has ever been in this institution. The raised course of study and the expert talent are drawing a better class of pupils—that is, a class that is better prepared for college work. They are coming from several different colleges to this one without any special effort made in drawing them, except the fine advantages. The president has done no canvassing this Summer, except a few little trips made by appointment, staying only a day at a time. His time has been occupied in attending to the correspondence.

The business course is furnishing an opportunity for those young ladies who want such a course, and yet who do not want to go to a business college, where there is a mixed attendance.

The health of Meridian is remarkably fine. A careful investigation shows a record up to date that can be shown by few States in the United States. Parents may rest easy, for their daughters are well cared for at this college in the way of health as well as intellect, religion, etc. It is hoped that those pupils who are quarantined away will come just as soon as the quarantine is raised. Special help will be given them to catch them up with their studies. There are plenty of teachers in this college to give pupils all the help needed.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To the Members of the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences:

For forty years I have been a pastor in the Mississippi Conference, having entered the work in November, 1857. The Lord has blessed me in this service, but I am growing old, and still have several children whose education is not complete. Our Conference is well supplied with younger men, and still they come. Under the circumstances, I have consented to take charge of one of the boarding houses at Millsaps College (Williams Hall). We can accommodate twenty five, or more, boarders. We propose to give them the best of care, and make the house a "home" to them in the best sense of the word. We have long tried to maintain a Christian home of the purest type in which to rear our own children, and we will spare no pains to keep the standard high for the benefit of the young gentlemen who may be intrusted to our care. At present, address me at Carthage, Miss.

July 23, 1898.

Dear Sirs:—I have used Brodie's Astringent Cordial in my family, and am using the third bottle. It always acts like a charm upon my children, correcting ailments of the bowels better than any medicine I ever tried. * * *

Yours, most respectfully,

INDIAN MISSION.

MR. EDITOR: Our protracted meeting at Talicholuk (pronounced Tullicholuke) was held the second Sunday and week following in August, last. Result: two applications for church membership—father and daughter. The father, if not the daughter, was a member of the Roman Catholic Church. At his request, I re-baptized and received him into full fellowship; but for some purpose he preferred that I postpone the baptism and reception of his daughter.

During one of our services the Holy Spirit came upon one good woman, who became helpless for several minutes, which was a wonder and cause of amazement to the Choctaws. One inquired of one of our white brethren, "if the Spirit ever made white man do that way?" On being answered in the affirmative, he seemed to be satisfied. The gospel has the same effect on them as on other people. There is no good reason why they can not be Christianized as well as others. Oh! that our Mississippi Conference fully appreciated the opportunity afforded it at this time to take all these settlements for God! May it be so! The following is my financial report for the quarter:

A DEATH-BED.

BY JAMES ALDRICH.

Her suffering ended with the day;
Yet lived she at its close,
And breathed the long, long night away
In statue-like repose.

But when the sun, in all his state,
Illumed the eastern skies,
She passed through glory's morning-gate,
And walked in Paradise.

DOES HE KEEP AT IT?

"The very reputation of being strong willed, plucky, and indefatigable, is of priceless value. It cows enemies and dispels opposition to our undertakings."

"I know no such unquestionable badge and ensign of a sovereign mind as that tenacity of purpose which, through all changes of companions, or parties, or fortunes, changes never, loses no jot of heart or hope, but wearies out opposition and arrives at its port."

Everybody admires the determined, persistent man. Success is not measured by what a man accomplishes, so much as by the opposition he has encountered and overcome; the courage with which he has maintained the struggle against overwhelming odds; by what he is believed to have inside rather than by that which he is known to have outside.

Tenacity of purpose has been characteristic of all great characters who have left their mark on the world. Grant, even as a youth, had this quality of persistence; when only sixteen, he had a conviction that to retreat was fatal. When he undertook anything, he was determined to follow it to the very end; when he said, "I can do that," he did it.

Persisteney has been characteristic of our army and navy heroes; they have never known when they were beaten: neither bullets, shells, torpedoes, mines, nor bayonets have been able to stay their progress. Like Grant, they would "fight it out on these lines if it took all Summer."

If a youth has not this quality of persistence in his nature; if he hesitates before obstacles; if he can not make difficulties bend to his purpose, or cause opposition to give way, he will, at best, make but a partial success in life. He may have shining qualities of nature; may be intellectual, intelligent, industrious, courteous; but, if he is wanting in persistence, that dogged determination which follows its purpose to death or victory, he lacks the one sure foundation for his life structure.

There is genius in persistence; when anyone points out to us a youth of remarkable promise, or a man of great ability, we always ask: "Does he keep at it? Is he doggedly persistent? Does he hold on when others let go? Does he persist in going ahead when others advise stopping? Does he stick to it through thick and thin when others give up? Is he the most courageous when others are afraid? Does he stiffen when others begin to weaken?" If so, he will succeed.

Even a natural genius will never accomplish anything if he lacks persistence. Stick-to-itiveness and dogged pertinacity are fundamental qualities in every profession as well as in every trade and calling, the solder which welds all the other virtues and capabilities together, and makes of them an invincible chain. They are to all the other qualifications what the string is to the necklace, that which unites individual jewels into an effective and beautiful whole.

Nobody has faith in a vacillating, irresolute person. There is, perhaps, no other thing which will advance youth so rapidly as to gain the reputation of being persistent, of never giving up. Such a reputation is a letter of credit which is honored of all mankind, and is of far more value than an inherited fortune in the hands of a weak-minded person.

There is a never-failing demand for the man who sees longevity in his cause, no matter what others see, or what others say; and who has the pluck and tenacity of purpose, amid ridicule and defeat, to await the issue. It is the home stretch that tests the man. It is he who possesses the ability to abide by his determination, whose staying power will not allow him to loosen his grip on his work, who insures permanent benefit. Not by sudden dashes or inspirational flashes is real success won. In the very exceptional cases where wealth or position is thus secured, these things very seldom mean, to the individuals to whom they fall, actual good fortune, for such sudden and unearned possessions bring with them neither the wisdom to spend wisely nor to enjoy rationally. It is not alone in the acquisition of money or power that the ability to keep at it is its own exceeding reward. In getting a living, it teaches, or may teach, one how to live.—Success.

MEASURE FOR MEASURE.

Love begets love. Kindness is won by kindness. It is very foolish for us to complain that nobody cares for us; such complaint is self-impeachment. The proper inference from it is that we have not cared much for others. Certainly in nine cases out of ten people are themselves to blame when they are not well treated. This is a matter mostly in our own hands. As a rule, we get all the attention and courtesy and consideration that we in any way deserve. If anyone claims otherwise, the burden of proof is on him, and he will find it a difficult task to persuade the impartial, unsympathetic public that he has been harshly used.

We wait for others to love us, and seek us, and begin to be good to us, when there is really no sufficient reason for them to begin. Unselfishness on our part is lacking, yet we have much to say about the selfishness of others. We count it extremely hard when we enter a new place that folks do not call on us or welcome us, yet we have never been in the habit of taking any pains about strangers. If we do not find sunshine where we go, it is chiefly because we do not carry it with us. If men do not smile at our coming, it is because there is no smile on our face. People can have love who earnestly desire it and really deserve it.—Zion's Herald.

THE SPIRIT OF GRACIOUSNESS.

It is the duty of all to cultivate a spirit of graciousness, to remember their friends in graceful ways. It is their duty to cultivate the kindly manner, which is the outward expression of the kindly heart. It is the manner in which the deed is done more than the deed that soothes the neglected one and brings her back to hope, which is life. There are cruel wrongs done every day, not by evil intention, but by actions that had the best intention. The rough diamond is a very disagreeable-looking stone, and the individual represented by this type is equally objectionable in these modern days, when quality is more sought for than quantity in all work, and gentleness and refinement more than gross forces. —Selected.

WHAT IS A NATION'S GREATNESS?

Whether it be great or little depends entirely on the sort of men and women that it is producing. A sound nation is a nation that is composed of sound human beings, healthy in body, strong in limb, true in word and deed—brave, sober, temperate, chaste, to whom morals are of more importance than wealth or knowledge—where, in short, men grow up and live and work, having in them what our ancestors called the "fear of God." It is to form a character of this kind that human beings are sent into this world, and those nations who succeed in doing it are those who have made their mark in history. They are nature's real freemen and give to man's existence on this planet its real interest and value. Therefore all wise statesmen look first, in the ordering of their national affairs, to the effect which is being produced on character; and institutions, callings, occupations, habits and methods of life are measured and estimated first and beyond every other consideration by this test. The commonwealth is the common health, the common wellness. No nation can prosper long which attaches to its wealth any other meaning; yet, as Aristotle observed long ago, in democracies this is always forgotten. They do not deny it in words, but they assume that, political liberty once secured, all else that is good will follow of itself.—J. A. Froude.

MOTHER KNOWS BEST.

No matter how clever a girl may be, how well she may have taken advantage of her opportunities, there are certain fine little distinctions which she only begins to see and understand after she has passed her twenty-first year. But her parents have passed that time of their lives long ago. They have found out by actual experience, by real living, what she has yet to learn and find out for herself. And one thing they have learned is that everything in the world is not divided between the wrong and the right. There may be nothing actually wrong about certain little actions; nothing actually bad about a company of people with whom a girl has been invited to go somewhere; nothing actually wrong about a young man in whose company she is often seen. And yet her parents object, and she rebels. She gives them no credit for knowing more than she does; for seeing things differently; for loving her and wishing to shelter her. She sees no wrong, therefore her action must be right. And just there she makes her mistake. She fails to see the fence between right and wrong, a fence that has been placed there especially for her own protection. —By Edward Bok, in Ladies' Home Journal.

A PERFECT HOME.

The most perfect little home I ever saw was a little house into the sweet incense of whose fires went no costly things. A thousand dollars served as a year's living for father, mother and three children. But the mother was the creator of a home; her relations with the children were the most beautiful I have ever seen; every inmate of the house involuntarily looked into her face for the keynote of the day, and it always rung clear. From the rosebud or clover-leaf, which in spite of her hard housework she always found time to put beside our plates at breakfast, down to the story she had on hand to read in the evening, there was no intermission of her influence. She has always been and always will be my ideal of a mother, wife and homemaker. If to her quick brain, loving heart and exquisite face had been added the appliances of wealth and enlargements of wide culture, hers would have been absolutely the ideal home. As it was, it was the best I have ever seen.—Helen Hunt.

We misinterpret each other because we do not fully know each other. A better acquaintance, a heart-to-heart knowledge of friend and friend, will give the fairer view. Let us train ourselves to look for this in the people we meet. Let us strive to put the best possible construction upon the actions of others. Our own hearts will be the richer for the charity given in this way. Our own lives will be the sweeter if we hold no thought of bitterness. —Unidentified.

THE AWFUL WASTE OF SIN.

A little boy led a policeman the other day to a house which appeared at first to be deserted, but at last a little girl appeared at the door and said she kept house for her father and two little brothers. She is only ten years old. "I am all alone to-day," said the child. "Papa is drunk and has gone away, and he has sold lots of the furniture." On examination it was found that the father was only a few years since a well-known Wall Street broker, and a member of the Stock Exchange. He married a beautiful girl out of a splendid family, whose parents gave her a present of ten thousand dollars on her wedding day. This money and her husband's fortune has been spent in the saloon. A month ago she died, and the husband has been drunk nearly ever since. Who can compute the waste that has gone on in that home! No wonder the prophet exclaims, "Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread, and your labor for that which satisfieth not?"—Homiletic Review.

Promises of amendment avail nothing unless there are strength and genuine effort to make the life new. Better not make resolutions than to make them only to be broken. Better never throw out of the window that dearly loved pipe unless there is resolution and strength of will sufficient to keep you afterwards from groping about on your hands and knees among the tall grass or shrubbery seeking for the discarded friend again. Every resolution made and broken weakens the will and saps the strength of moral manhood until after awhile both are in danger of being undermined and lost.—Recorder.

Hygiene.

FOR A LONG AND HAPPY LIFE.

A writer in one of our exchanges says that if he were asked for a recipe for longevity, beauty, and happiness, he would write: "Be well fed, well warmed, and well rested." He continued: "Many people are thoroughly wedded to the idea that it is just as well to sit down and work on, or that it is a sign of laziness to lie down in the daytime. There is just such ignorance in the world—for ignorance it is—of the simplest physical laws. If a woman is observed to rest often, she is soon regarded as 'lazy.' People who are adverse to exercise, or lag easily in their work, are sick. When people shun exertion, it is because the physical balance is weakened.

"Another old bit of bigotry stands like a lion in the way: Our grandfathers and grandmothers did not so, etc. In this case it is plain that they did not need the amount of rest that is required in these days. They had not a tenth part of the distractions of these hurrying times. Besides, perhaps, if they had not had such faith in their straight-backed chairs and long hours, their progeny might have been blessed with stronger nerves. Therefore, my weary, quick-tempered, cross woman, hasten to be 'healthy, wealthy and wise' by going to bed early and often, and not being too early to rise. Also invest in some sort of comfortable couch, which shall be installed in the post of honor in your sitting-room, and then—use it."—Michigan Christian Advocate.

ROBERTS—JAMES DUDLEY ROBERTS, son of Rev N. J. and Emma E. Roberts, was born in Amite county, Miss., Feb. 18, 1880; died in the Methodist parsonage, Franklinton, La., Sept. 13 1898.

When six years of age Dudley publicly assumed the vows of membership in the M. E. Church, South, during a revival meeting conducted by Rev. J. Wilson Brown at Mt. Carmel, Wilkinson county, Miss. From infancy he lived a consistent Christian life.

At a meeting in Fisher's Church, Franklinton circuit, in 1897, conducted by his father and Rev. George D. Anders, Dudley made an unreserved surrender and consecration of himself to God, and attained the rapturous experience of the joys of salvation, declaring most joyfully and emphatically that he would give to God wholly the remainder of his life. This vow he most surely performed. His death was sudden and very unexpected. He had been unwell several days, but his condition was not critical until midnight Monday, when symptoms became alarming. Two hours later this noble young Christian was numbered with the dead.

The past six years Dudley was a student in Greensburg, La.; was among the first students who entered Johnston Institute, which was founded in Greensburg, La., in 1895. At the closing exercises, last Summer, of this institution he was awarded the gold medal. The arrangements were all made, trunk packed to return to school, where he would have been among the first graduates, but, alas! alas! God called him.

All who knew Dudley speak of him in terms of highest commendation. His death produced a profound sensation. The suspending school work in Johnston Institute, the memorial services in Greensburg, the closed stores in Franklinton, and the immense concourse of people who participated in the funeral services and followed the lifeless body to its silent resting-place, testify, as human words can not, the deserved respect, esteem and love the noble, manly Christian conduct of this young man had secured. "Clouds and darkness are round about him; righteousness and judgment are the habitation of his throne." J. A. B. J.

ENOCHS—Died, Mrs. FANNIE P. ENOCHS, wife of Capt. J. E. Enochs, of Bathesda Church, Copiah county, Miss.

The subject of this brief sketch was born Aug. 16, 1845; married Capt. J. B. Enochs, Sept. 12, 1866. She was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, at old Sinai Church, in Rankin county, in the Summer of 1876, under the ministry of Rev. W. W. Hurst. She died Nov. 20, 1897, at her home near Bethesda Church. She was the mother of twelve children, and raised ten, all but two of whom are members of the church.

Sister Enochs was a very devoted wife and mother. She lived for her family. She was a faithful member of the church, but not demonstrative. She was kind to the poor and a good neighbor. Her temper was highly nervous, energetic, and aggressive, but always on the side of truth and justice. She died a triumphant death—calm, resigned, confident and happy. May her husband and children all meet her in heaven!

W. M. WILLIAMS, P. C.

ENOCHS—Mrs. SARAH CORNELIA ENOCHS was born Aug. 4, 1848, near Gallman, Miss. She was the daughter of James and Elizabeth Corley. She was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, early in life, and gave her whole life to the service of Him whom she so much loved. In 1864 she was married to Mr. E. Sanders, who died in 1868, leaving her with one child. (These dates may not be correct.) In April or May, 1874, she was married to Mr. James Bridges, who died in April, 1882, leaving her with three children to mourn their loss, all of whom are living, and are members of the Methodist Church, and, we trust, are the children of God. In 1889 she married Mr. J. F. Enochs, who died in July, 1897. Sister Enochs died in perfect peace Aug. 21, 1898.

We sometimes exaggerate one's virtues after he is dead, especially when it becomes our duty to write or speak of him publicly. But I don't think this can be done of the subject before us. I have known her as wife and mother, friend and co-laborer in the church of God, and of all the women I have ever known, I have never known one that was her superior. She was absolutely free from peculiarities or idiosyncrasies. She was even in temper, symmetrical in character, and sweet in spirit, every day, everywhere, and under every circumstance. She was devoted, energetic, and persevering in all her work. Her devotion and service to her husband (the J. F. Enochs) I have never seen surpassed. As a Christian worker, all she was and had belonged to the Lord. The service was rendered with gladness and the liberality with simplicity. Her family and the church have sustained a great loss; but she has gone on before us to her eternal reward. Let us thank God for her beautiful life and her triumphant death, and press on in the way she hath trod with renewed faith and purpose.

W. M. WILLIAMS, P. C.

TOWNS—Mrs. ELLA TOWNS (nee Hanson) was born March 14, 1879, in Lincoln parish, La., and died Sept. 10, 1898, aged nineteen years five months and twenty-six days. She was married to Mr. Walter Towns, ——, 1894. Their union was blessed with one child, now bereft of a mother's love and care, to mourn along with its father and a host of friends.

Sister Towns' life was one worthy of emulation; a Christian in truth and verity. She held on to the promise of her Savior with that steadfastness that characterizes a true Christian. She exhorted friends to a life of true devotion, and gave instruction as to the care of her child, from whom she was then being separated. We laid her away to rest on the Lord's day, Sept. 11, 1898, at Bear Creek Church, of which she was a faithful member. We commend her grief-stricken husband and friends to that Savior she so much loved.

BIGGS—Resolutions on the death of Miss MARY LEIGH BIGGS:

Whereas, We, the Beauregard Sunday-school, of which she was an attentive member, are called upon to chronicle the death of Miss Mary Leigh Biggs; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we recognize in this death the loss of a true friend, a dutiful and obedient daughter, and a good Sunday-school scholar.

Resolved, That we extend to her grief-stricken parents, two brothers and sister, other relatives and friends, our warmest sympathies and heartiest consolation in this, their great loss.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on our Minutes, and a copy be sent to the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE and Wesson Mirror for publication, and that a copy be sent to the grief-stricken family.

MISS ANNA MCRANEY, for Com.

WOOTEN—Your committee beg leave to make the following report:

Whereas, It has pleased God, in his all-wise providence, to send the death angel and remove from our midst one of our most regular and faithful Sunday-school members, IRENE WOOTEN; therefore, be it

Resolved, By Como Sunday-school, that we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

Resolved, That we tender to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy, and pray that this affliction may work for them a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, with request to publish the same.

STUBBORN PEOPLE.

There is not so much difference between horses and men as you might suppose. The road between mind and equine instinct is short and soon traveled. The horse is sometimes superior to his rider. If anything is good and admirable in proportion as it answers the end of its being, then the horse that bends in its traces before a Fourth avenue car is better than its blaspheming driver. He who can not manage a horse can not manage a man.

We know of pastors who have balky parishioners. When any important move is to take place, and all the other horses of the team are willing to draw, they lay themselves back in the harness.

First, the pastor pets the obstreperous elder or deacon on the neck, and tells him how much he thinks of him. This only makes him shake his mane and grind his bit. He will die first before he consents to such a movement. Next, he is pulled by the ear, with a good many sharp insinuations as to his motives for holding back. Fires of indignation are built under him for the purpose of consuming his balkiness. He is whipped with the scourge of public opinion, but this only makes him kick fiercely and lay harder in the breeching straps. He is backed down into the ditch of scorn and contempt, but still is not willing to draw an ounce.

Oh, thou foolish minister, trying in that way to manage a balky parishioner! Let him alone. Go on and leave him there. Pay less attention to the horse that balks, and give more oats to those that pull. Leave him out in the cold. Some day you will come back and find him glad to start. At your first advance he will arch his neck, paw his hoof, bend into the bit, stiffen the traces, and dash on. We have the same prescription for balky horses and men: for a little while let them alone.—Christian Herald.

Examine your words well, and you will find that even when you have no motive to be false, it is a very hard thing to say the exact truth even about your own immediate feelings—much harder than to say something fine about them which is not the exact truth.—George Eliot.

The word that once escapes the tongue can not be recalled; the arrow can not be detained which has once sped from the bow.—Metastasio.

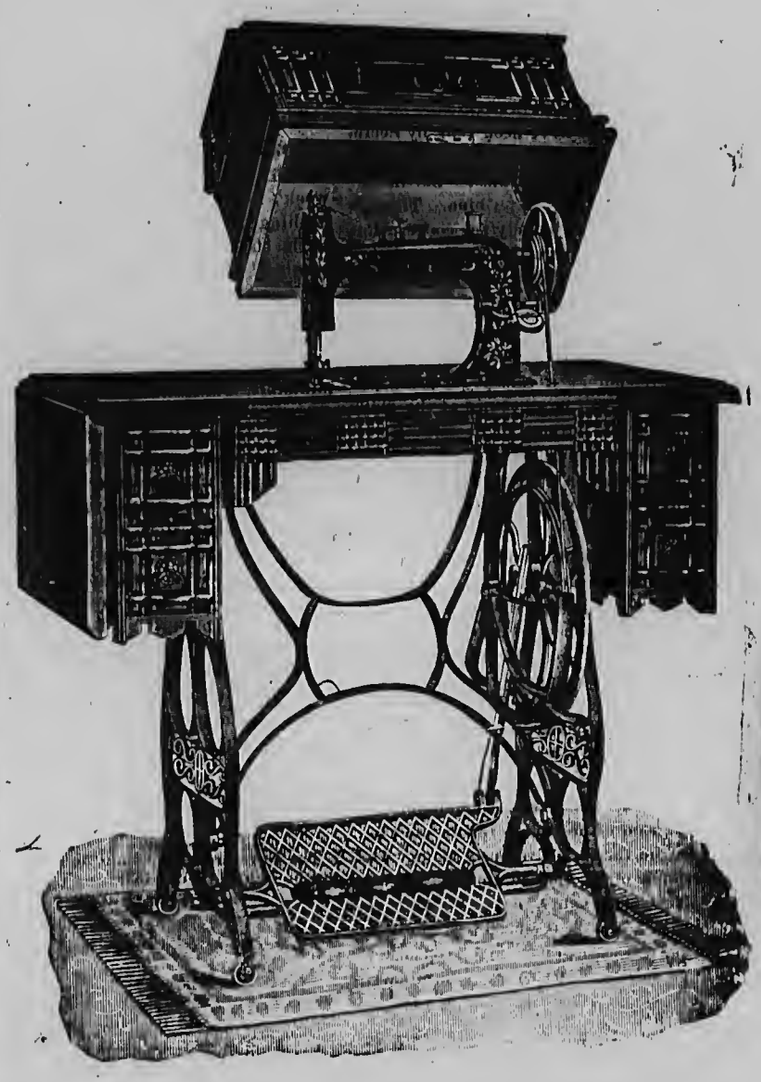
Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc.



The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take-up, convenient foot rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one gauge, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearing polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—The "Arlington B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light to heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great length; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell, without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless and are very durable.

OUR OFFER.

To anyone, not now a subscriber to this paper, who will send us $19, we will send the machine and the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE one year. To old subscribers we make the following offer: Pay your subscription to December, '99, and send $17 additional, and we will send you the machine. This price does not include freight.

We allow purchaser to test the machine for ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Queen Lonise of Denmark died on Sept.29, aged eighty-one years.

Judge A. C. Van Wyck has been nominated for the governor of New York by the Democrats.

Hon. T. F. Bayard, who had been a member of Cleveland's Cabinet, and ambassador to England, died last week.

The enrolled membership of the Methodist Church in Canada is 280,537, one-fifth of the entire population of the dominion.

The Salvation Army of the Pacific coast has enlisted the services of several Chinese converts to work among their countrymen.

Lieutenant-Colonel Brodie, of the Rough Riders, has been nominated for delegate to Congress by the Arizona Republicans.

The members of the United States Peace Commission passed a quiet first Sunday in Paris on Oct 2, some of them attending church.

The peace commissioners were brought together in Paris, on Sept. 29, by the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, who gave them an infernal lunch.

John Perry, of Kansas City, has given $25,000 to the Boy Orphans' Home in that city, to erect a building as a memorial to his wife and four children, who went down with the French steamer "La Bourgogne."

Gen. Leonard Wood, who has been appointed military governor of Santiago, is doing much work in cleaning up the city, one of the filthiest in Cuba. The schools opened Monday, and the attendance is compulsory. English will be taught in the schools.

Instructions have been sent by Secretary Long to Dewey, directing him to send the protected cruiser "Baltimore" at once to Tien-Tsin, China. This action shows conclusively the concern felt by the administration at the existing condition of affairs in the Celestial Empire.

The Chicago postoffice is to have a new permanent employee in the person of a physician at a salary of $1700 per year. He will be stationed at the main office for the purpose of examining employees who report themselves as being sick, and it is expected that he will make a large saving to the government in salaries.

The President issued an executive order Saturday creating Porto Rico into a new military department to be known as the "Department of Porto Rico," with Major-General John R. Brooke in command. The headquarters of the department will be at Ponce until after the evacuation of the island by the Spanish army, when it will be transferred to San Juan.

The Nicaragua Canal Commission will meet soon to prepare a report for Congress on the survey recently made. The estimate of the Ludlow Commission was $133,000,000, and Admiral Walker's estimate was $125,000,000, but the engineers will estimate on $100,000,000. It is claimed that $10,000,000 will be saved by changing the location of the Ochoa dam.

Since the raising of the Spanish cruiser "Infanta Maria Teresa," hopes have been revived of saving some of the other vessels, more particularly the "Cristobal Colon" and the "Reina Mercedes." It is even thought that the "Viscaya" may also be eventually raised and repaired. The salvage of these ships and their addition to the fleet of the United States will fittingly crown the magnificent war record of the navy.

Aguinaldo has formally declared the independence of the Philippine Islands. Speaking the native dialect, he declared he favored following the principle of the Monroe doctrine—Philippines for Filipinos. He called upon all loyal subjects to die, if need be, in defending their liberty and never to permit any foreign government to have control. He did not refer to America or the subject of a protectorate. The President of the Philippine Congress replied, and Congress ratified the declaration of independence. In even more aggressive terms they declared the Filipinos would die among the ruins of their country rather than submit to be governed by foreign laws.

There was launched, on Tuesday, from the ways at Newport News, Va., the sea-going coast-line battle-ship "Illinois," which is one of three similar ships now building for the government. The "Alabama," the first of these ships to reach the water, was launched some months ago, and the last of the three, the "Wisconsin," will leave the ways of the Union Iron Works, at San Francisco, within a very few days. These three ships, together with the "Kearsarge" and "Kentucky" (also building, but commenced a year earlier), comprise the five formidable battle-ships which are to be rushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

One of the most interesting elections ever held in Canada took place last week. In every election district of the dominion the electors voted upon prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicants. Never before has the question of prohibition been submitted to the people of so large a territory. Reports from all parts of the dominion indicate the vote for and against prohibition has been light. The heaviest vote against prohibition was in the province of Quebec, French clergy having advised against it on the ground that it would only make law-breakers, so that with the liquor traffic destroyed there would be no way for raising the $10,000,000 which annually comes to the dominion from the liquor trade. The indications are that prohibition has been carried by a large majority, but probably not more than one-half the registered vote of the dominion has been cast.

According to the recent advices from Havana, the Military Commission charged with the task of arranging for the evacuation of the island by the Spanish troops are making but slow progress toward the consummation of their task. It has developed that the evacuation is by no means the simple problem it appeared to be, and it is now becoming abundantly evident that much friction and annoyance are likely to be experienced before the Spaniards shall be completely superseded in the "Ever-Faithful Isle." The Spanish Commission has named April 1, next, as the earliest possible date for the final evacuation. This does not suit the American Commissioners.

A REPLY.

"Observer" had no just grounds on which to base his protest, in this week's ADVOCATE, as there is absolutely nothing in my article to which anyone of the 5000 itinerants, to whom he refers, would object who is not guilty in one or more points in my indictment.

I should regret extremely to wound the sensibilities of or be unjust to the humblest of the Master's duly accredited ministers, and nothing that "Observer" can say or write will make those of them who know me believe otherwise. If the game were worth the candle, I would take the trouble to analyze "Observer's" article and point out his numerous assertions and deductions not at all warranted by what I wrote; but when a "nom de plume" is used, and no address given, it is just to assume that the author of an article is ashamed of himself and wishes to remain in the dark.

I calculated when I wrote the letter in question, that some one would accept my invitation to put the coat on if it fit him, and rush into print, and so it has turned out! E. G. DELAP.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Booneville, Miss.
EDITOR.

The editor of this department is sick with fever; this will account for dearth of notes, etc., this week.

We publish two communications from Bro. P. O. Lowrey; one being treasurer's report of Louisiana League Mission Fund; the other refers to the paper recently published by the Leaguers of the Arcadia district.

MR. EDITOR: Please allow me space for a few words of explanation as to the rise and exit of the Epworth Leaguer, to have been published by the Arcadia District Leagues, the district council being the publishing committee. The following are some of the reasons why we went into the publication of such a paper; and it is a striking fact that both preachers and Leaguers took hold of the paper enthusiastically and loyally.

1. We realized the need of some periodical to stimulate literary effort in the way of writing. In our common schools this need is so recognized that pupils are required to write compositions. In our higher schools liberal prizes are offered to stimulate more mature students to develop their literary powers. In our League we have a Literary Department, but it provides for taking in—like the Dead Sea—rather than giving out. Now, since we all recognize that the well-rounded church worker, or otherwise a beneficiary of his race, must have both these elements combined in his make up, the question arises: Where is such provision made for our ordinary Leaguer? Surely you won't dare to suggest the column given us in our ADVOCATE; nor even the Epworth Era. They are for more mature writers, who must use the limited space. Were these papers to undertake the publication of all the things that their League constituents would like to write their convictions on—in religion, church work, church manners, social purity, practical exchange of thought among the Leaguers, etc.—it would almost equal John's sayings of Christ, "the world itself could not contain the books that should be written." This is especially true of the Era, which is connectional and in no way local. May many of the hidden editors and authors—the "diamonds in the rough"—yet be discovered and developed!

2. There is also a great lack of love for and provisions for reading matter among a large majority of our members. The Era, ADVOCATE, and reading course, furnish the reading matter, but would not a local paper beget in the dormant mind an awakening to see what members of our own League, circuit, or district have written? As the physical infant must be fed on milk before meat, so the literary infant must have "Mother Goose" stories before Mental Philosophy. So the home author, home thought, and home conditions would be the digestible pinel for the beginner.

3. Again, there is a sad lack of acquaintance among our Leaguers. We are secluded kingdoms within ourselves, often not having even district organizations. A local paper would soon remedy this largely. At least we could know the representative Leaguers in our district or State—were the paper carried thus far. This system of correspondence would apply equally to the junior as to the senior Leaguers. What would be nicer than to have them all corresponding, thus begetting the literary desire and becoming acquainted with each other personally, as well as in work and methods.

This is what we undertook in the Leaguer, and found that the people were convinced that it had a useful mission and showed their faith by patronizing it liberally in subscriptions and advertisements. We expected the advertising to pay the total expense of publication, and got the space about all taken for the first issue with but little effort. But at this juncture the General League Board passed the resolution discouraging the publication of local papers, and our Publishing Committee decided to discontinue out of loyalty to the above resolution. Whether they did right or wrong, whether the paper would have succeeded or not, is not now before us. The friends, subscribers, and advertisers will take notice that the paper will not be published, and your money will either be refunded or the Epworth Era sent in its stead.

As to the above resolution, we believe that the Book Committee has the same grounds for resolting against our Conference organs, as did they against the local League papers of the connection, and sooner or later such resolutions will be void. P. O. LOWREY, Manager.

The local preachers should all be present at their respective quarterly meetings to present written reports of their labors during the year on the passage of their characters.

The pastors will please insist on the Boards of Trustees preparing reports to be submitted to their respective Conferences in answer to Ques. 24 of Discipline, as the law directs.

Attention to these matters will be highly appreciated, and will very much expedite the business.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD.

TAXES.

The original charter of the company reserves to the State of Illinois, in lieu of taxes, 7 per cent. of the gross receipts of the 706 miles of railroad built thereunder. The sum so paid the State has this year been $658,623, which, if capitalized at 3½ per cent., would give $18,820,657 as representing the proprietary [illegible] the State of Illinois in the Illinois Central Railroad. The other portions of the railroad, both in Illinois and elsewhere, are taxed in accordance with the laws of the several States. The taxes paid in respect to them have this year amounted to $333,690.19, as against $448,348.89 in the year preceding, the increase being $185,341.30, or at 31 100 per cent. While it is true that the average number of miles of railroad operated, exclusive of the 706 miles specially taxed as above, has this year been 3,069, as against 2,424 in the year preceding, this increase of 645 miles amounts to only 20 61-100 per cent.

RESIDENT OWNERSHIP.

The number of officers and employes, other than directors of the corporation, registered on the books of the company as stockholders, has increased to 733, and their holdings amount to 2,536 shares. The stock is being gradually purchased by those resident on and near the line. In each of the ten States in which the company is operating railways there are a number of stockholders, varying from four in Indiana to 732 in Illinois. The total number of stockholders in these ten States is 1,115, and the number of shares held by them 23,630. There are resident in the United States 3,365 stockholders owning 237,500 shares; in Great Britain 2,836, owning 229,252 shares; elsewhere, 120, owning 57,983 shares. Exclusive of one large block of shares, held for more than thirty years past in trust by a Dutch syndicate or administration office, against its own certificates, good to bearer, which are widely scattered among hundreds of owners, the average holding of the remaining proprietors registered on the company's books is less than seventy-five and one-half shares. In the United States the average is but little over seventy and one-half shares.

All told, the books show eight holdings of 5,000 shares or over, fifty-one of 1,000 shares or over, eighty of 500 shares or over, 681 of less than 500 shares, but more than 100 shares; 301 of exactly 100 shares each, and 5,150 of less than 100 shares. The number of stockholders registered on the books is 6,381. Barely one-eighth of them own over 100 shares apiece.

A POEM BY MR. GLADSTONE.

Lord, as thy temple's portals close
Behind the outward parting throng,
So shut my spirit in repose,
So bind it here, thy flock among;
The fickle wanderer else will stray
Back to the world's wide, parched way.

Here, where thine angels overhead
Do warn the tempter's power away,
And where the bodies of the dead
For life and resurrection stay,
And many a generation's prayer
Hath perfumed and hath blessed the air.

O lead my blindness by the hand,
Lead me to thy familiar feast,
Not here, or now, to understand,
Yet even here and now to taste
How the eternal word of heaven
On earth in broken bread is given.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL IN HANOVER.

I attended service this morning at Christuskirche, a Gothic structure modeled after the Cologne Cathedral, though, unlike its celebrated prototype, it has but one tower. The ornate exterior is attractive, and promises a beautiful interior. But this, with the exception of a few handsome stained-glass windows, is plain. The lofty ceiling, and the two rows of stately columns supporting it, give the effect of grandeur rather than of beauty.

Like many of the churches built after the plan of the ancient basilicas, Christuskirche is not a good place to enjoy a sermon, because the voice of the preacher is lost amid the many columns and arches. The large choir, on the contrary, composed almost entirely of boys, had no difficulty in filling the remotest corner with beautiful music.

The service began at 9:30, the customary hour here. It usually lasts an hour and a quarter, but this morning the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered, extending the service to 11:15.

As I stepped out the front door I found the sidewalk filled with children, who, books in hand, were waiting to get in. This told me there was going to be a children's divine service, as it is called, and I concluded to remain and see it. Re-entering the church, I found the boys to the right and the girls to the left. They were from eight to fourteen years of age, and were divided into about twenty-two classes, with about fourteen scholars in each class.

Five minutes before the service began almost every scholar was in his place, and the teachers—in every case a lady—marked, I suppose, the attendance. Promptly at 11:30 the pastor—for they have no Sunday-school superintendents—rang a bell, which signalled the organist to begin. It was not necessary to announce the hymn, for the boards on the walls told the number. While the hymn was being sung the pastor walked through the aisles, and, as it closed, he took his stand before the altar, led the prayer, and chanted. This over, the lesson is taken up. Upon inquiry, I found that the children have a book containing the stories of the Old Testament. Each week a portion of this is assigned, as also a portion of the catechism. I could not but contrast the great interest they took in recitation with the drowsiness and aimless stare with which many of the children at home pass the recitation hour. The teachers speak in an undertone, and when a question is asked, immediately from two to a half dozen or dozen hands fly up, as a signal that the answer is known. But not a word is spoken, or sound uttered, not even the hissing sound that the small school-boy makes when he is sure he knows the answer to the question put to his neighbor, until the teacher selects one scholar and calls for the answer. Thereupon he rises and recites in low and rapid words. There is hardly a moment during the recitation period that a little hand is not up, and often a hundred may be seen. If everyone would scream at the top of his voice, as he shakes his hand in the air, an American might easily imagine himself in the New York Stock Exchange, in the Chicago Board of Trade, or the New Orleans Cotton Exchange.

At the end of twenty minutes the pastor again rings the bell, which is the signal for closing the lesson. This requires one minute, at the end of which the bell is struck again, the organ begins, and the children form in columns in the aisles, and march up to the altar, where they form a circle around the pastor, about ten persons deep. The pastor walks around in the little space left him, asking what appeared to be general questions on the Bible, and making comments on them, and the answers given by the children. Here again the little hands fly up, but not a finger is snapped, or a sound made, until the pastor makes his selection. This lesson also consumes twenty minutes, and after a concluding exercise conducted by the pastor at the altar with these three hundred children and twenty teachers around him, the school is dismissed, having consumed exactly one hour.

This service is not called a Sunday-school, but that is exactly what it is, for two-thirds of the hour is devoted to instruction. Moreover, there are no adult classes. The instruction received in these Sunday services, together with that obtained in the daily schools—for it must be remembered that there is religious instruction in these in Germany—prepares the children for their confirmation, which takes place when they are about sixteen or eighteen years of age.

HENRY BEACH CARRE.

Hanover, Germany, Sept. 18, 1898.

Selections.

CONDUCTED HIS OWN REVIVALS.

Dr. Peck was, doubtless, the greatest all-around symmetrical success in pastoral and pulpit work that American Methodism has ever produced. Had he lived, he would, doubtless, have been one of America's greatest Bishops. Early in his ministry he recognized the power of the press for good or evil. To prevent the presence and power of evil literature, his first effort, in every field in which he was called to labor, was to pre-empt and pre-occupy the ground with good literature. In the church paper he recognized such a factor and helper in the work that God laid on his shoulders and conscience that he spared no pains and left no stone unturned in his efforts to place such a paper in every home of his every pastorate. His methods were so plain, practicable and reasonable that we publish them on this page for the benefit of our pastors and preachers who really aspire to the very best results for God, for home, and for native land.

Dr. Peck, after getting the church paper into every home, then began to plan for a deep, broad, and lasting revival, which he led himself. In this way he got into the church very little driftwood, and with the church paper already in the home of these new converts, he succeeded in building up nearly all of them into abiding, working, and useful members.

New converts must know something about the church, and must do something for the great enterprises of the church at home and abroad, or they will drift into the service of Satan and the world.—St. Louis Advocate.

THE CHURCH PAPER, AND HOW TO CIRCULATE IT.

BY THE LATE J. O. PECK, D. D.

My work on the above topic is cut out for me. The editor does not want any of my "theories," but my "experience." How does he know that I have no "theories" that are worthy of his paper? But cheerfully I give up my experience on one of the most important collateral duties of the pastor. I did not dream, when I was making the historic experience, that I would so often hear of it, and be asked to give the repetition of it.

I did have large success in securing subscribers to the church papers within whose patronizing territory I was pastor for twenty-five years. I believe the church paper my best and most effective assistant pastor. I believe any other paper displacing the Herald or the Advocate (according to my locality) to be undermining of the Methodistic intelligence and loyalty of the members of my church. Hence to circulate the church papers became a conviction, a passion, a joy. I felt it a duty, a part of my legitimate pastoral work, as much as the conversion of souls and the building up of the saints in holy living. Yes, I conceive it to be a strong re-enforcement in effecting these results. Hence I threw my brains, soul, tact and enthusiasm into getting subscribers for the paper. I worked for it as I did for a revival, and on the same ground—that it was necessary to the highest success of my pastorate. And it was.

If you want it in a nutshell—I worked to get subscribers with all the tact and enthusiasm I could if I had owned the paper and received all the profits. There you have it. I was a partner in the concern. I received my dividends in a more intelligent and devoted membership. The modus operandi was as follows:

1. I took the paper into the pulpit. I opened it wide and showed it to the people. I expatiated upon its beauties, its benefits, its departments, its necessity to any member who would be an intelligent Methodist and know the current history of his church. I warmed with my theme and exhorted. I appealed to their loyalty. I excoriated the disloyalty that dropped the church papers and took outside papers, especially if they were cheap. I told of the bread they were taking out of the mouths of hungry superannuates, widows and orphans of our church, to put money in the coffers of outside publishers. I portrayed the fact that the paper was worth 5 cents a week—all it cost—to any family, in the prepared exposition of the Sunday-school lesson. I swept the whole key-board of incentive to take the paper. Then, when the iron had been made hot by striking, I struck to weld it by taking subscribers on the spot! I got all I could on Sunday as a religious work. I used blank cards often in the pews. I nailed their ears to the paper with a pencil.

2. I followed up this bombardment from the pulpit by a renewed attack at closer range in the prayer meeting. I repeated this effort in the prayer meeting at intervals. I always gained some at the close of a warm prayer meeting.

3. I next put a clean copy of the paper in my pocket and started on my pastoral visitation each afternoon. By this time I had made a list of all who ought to take the paper, but had not subscribed. With this list and the paper in my pocket, I began sharp-shooting at close range. I went to the house, the store, the shop, the factory. I pulled out my paper and my list. I submitted the question. Most surrendered at once when thus individually appealed to. The few that hesitated I stayed with till they "saw great light" and subscribed! Only here and there an obtuse or stingy soul escaped.

4. There were always a few poor people who could not afford to take the paper. On Christmas or New Year I would state this fact to the public congregation, and ask the well-to-do to send a Christmas or New Year's gift to these poor, that would come every week in the year. This always met with a quick response.

5. At the close of the revival each year I appealed to all new converts to take a church paper. I explained the benefit, and urged on them the duty of taking a church paper, as they were now to be Methodists.

6. Finally, I attended to this work personally. I no more allowed some indigent woman or aged preacher to do this for me than I invited them to lead the revival for me. When I found such agent (appointed by a predecessor for the revenue he got out of it), I always relieved him or her, and gave back the commissions quadrupled.

This is my "experience." It fills me with joy to recall it. Hallelujah! It was a good work for Christ. There is no patent on the experience. I ask no "royalty" on its use. It would be a good thing if the General Conference would pass a regulation that no person should be appointed a member of the Official Board who does not take a church paper.—Zion's Herald.

ANENT CUBA AND PORTO RICO.

Col. "Rough-Rider Roosevelt," who, since his return from Cuba, has been nominated by the Republican party for the governorship of New York, has this to say about the future of Cuba and Porto Rico:

"In ten years I think Americans will be spending their Winters at their Cuban estates, where they will have large plantations, with fine country houses built upon them. With all that filth cleaned out of the harbors of the cities, and new drainage systems introduced, there is no reason why Cuba and Porto Rico shouldn't become as popular as Winter resorts as the Bermudas and the Bahamas now are. The climate is salubrious, for the sea breezes are warm and healthful, and, as soon as changes are made in sanitary conditions, there will be an end to that enervating quality of the air. Many of the troops will remain and set up in small businesses, or, perhaps, go to farming. They ought to do well in most anything there, and especially farming. There are thousands and thousands of acres of the richest land going to waste—land which could raise tobacco, fruits, and many other things, for all of which there is a rapidly increasing market in this country. Then, as emigration from this country begins, there will be an opening for stores of every kind, for there are practically none there now. If a man wants clothing or anything fit to eat, he must pay fabulous prices for it.

"As soon as Americans ascertain the exact condition of things, they will begin to emigrate there in large numbers. There is no reason why they shouldn't, and every reason why they should. Of course, the stories about the climate will keep many away, but when conditions are improved, all that difficulty will certainly be done away with. I believe that these two islands will one day be two of the richest spots on earth, and Americans will certainly be there to take advantage of it. Those of our countrymen who are already there have become rich, and there is no reason why others shouldn't become so, too.

"We found numerous little places around Santiago that ought to make large cities some day, and under good government they will surely increase greatly in population and wealth. There are many towns that are practically dead for want of energetic men to boom them. Many of them are finely located, have railroads to Santiago, and from there communication with all the world. They are destined to become great manufacturing communities."

Gen. Joe Wheeler was also interviewed by the same reporter, and here is a part of what he said:

"All my life before I haven't seen so much rich, black earth, and such luxuriant growth as I found round about Santiago; and they say the same thing exists all over the island of Cuba, and in Porto Rico, too. Things seem to grow up there in one night, almost, and without any cultivation at all. If things grow so very luxuriantly without any care, what will they do when under the care of thrifty American farmers? There is absolutely no limit to the possibilities of farming there. Tobacco grows better than in almost any other place on earth, and fruits grow without being planted. Sugar cane is easy of cultivation, and there is no limit to the coffee plantations. Yet these are only a few of the products that can be easily raised in these superb islands. They are destined to become the garden-spots of the earth.

"The climate isn't half as bad as it's made out to be. Of course, there's malaria there now, and some yellow fever, in a mild form, but that is all owing to unsanitary conditions. Eventually the climate will be as healthy as in any tropical region—that is, when the Americans reform the sanitary arrangements. If I was a younger man, I should want to go there myself, for there is absolutely no limit to the opportunities awaiting young men, and old men, too, if they're not too old. There will certainly be a great exodus from this country in the near future. Many fortunes are sure to be made there in the next few years."

MISS BELLE H. BENNETT: A WOMAN NOBLY PLANNED.

Belle H. Bennett is a unique woman in Southern Methodism, and her marked individuality has manifested itself in every department of church work to which she has given her services. Possessing rare graces as a "womanly woman," she challenges admiration by the broad scope of her intellectual grasp; with the refined culture of a "born lady" she combines the swinging freedom of thought and speech of a reformer—the equilibrium of these contrasting powers being maintained by a consecrated spirit that finds Christ in all things a King to rule and reign over her whole being. Rejoicing in the freedom of the children of God that has emancipated her from all that would hinder the development of her own life, she respects the right of individual thought in others, and can be just and loving to those who differ with her—a rare virtue, especially when found during the intense pursuit of a definite object.

With all the allurements of society to hold her in thrall, she quietly put them aside, when still young, for the "King's business," and only rarely does she consider "social obligations"—never, if they conflict with the duty of the hour. Her early Christian service found healthy and ample scope in the little neighborhood church near her country home, where she and her sainted sister shone for Christ, as they did with their might what their hands found to do. Through the work of the local Union she was led out into the State councils of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and from the auxiliary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society she came into the larger field of the Conference work, of which she is now the president.

In 1877 the Woman's Board sent to the foreign field nine missionaries, the majority of them being young, untrained, untested women. Many of us saw the wrong done to them and the cause. It lay like a burden on Miss Bennett's heart, and she began to pray, alone and with others, for a remedy—the time, the place, the means for the needed preparation. Yet it was always for another to do the work—"Send whom thou wilt send." At last came the victory when she said, "Lord, here am I; send me." Then she received the anointing of power for the work that now stands an accomplished fact in the Scarritt Bible and Training school—a work that required large personal sacrifice, indomitable zeal, courage, patience, and executive ability.

Always interested in home missions, as well as foreign, she was led into a larger service in taking up, as a member of the Central Committee, her sister's unfinished plans for work in the Kentucky mountains. Again the whole force of heart, brain and influence were thrown into a "this one thing I do," and the Sue Bennett Memorial School, in London, Ky., sends forth its light upon all the regions about it. In 1896 she was elected president of the Woman's Home Mission Society, and, as its leader, holds up the banner high, around which our women rally to "rescue the perishing." Able to grasp great moral problems, she has patience to work out their solution and executive ability to make practical application. Absolutely fearless in advocating a principle, her frank aggressiveness in bold statements, direct questions and witty rejoinder may sometimes be misunderstood, but only until the woman is known, for time shows that it is principle for which she struggles, without a taint of personality. The wisdom of God is manifested in placing this brainy, devout woman at the head of a great enterprise, and while we render thanks unto him for her, let us hold up the hands of our Moses, that Israel may prevail against the Lord's enemies.—Miss Mary Holm, in Our Homes.

FRENCH PROTESTANTISM.

The Protestants of France have just contributed twenty-five thousand dollars toward the support of some of their best and ablest men who, thoroughly aroused by the necessities of the Protestant Church in Madagascar, have gone to that field. Recently at Nantes the third centenary of the famous Edict of Nantes was celebrated, and Protestants from all parts of the country were present.

These facts are interesting, but one can not but deplore the relative numbers of Protestants in France. At the time of the edict France had a population of fifteen million; one million and a half of these were Protestant. Unfortunately now, instead of one tenth of the whole population being avowed Protestants, they number less than one-fortieth.

It is common to say that this is a result of centuries of persecution. No doubt this has much to do with it, as it has compelled emigration; but the true reason that Protestantism does not make greater progress, is that the more numerous part of the Reformed Churches have lost faith in the evangelical, the only doctrines that ever did or ever can make Protestant Christianity a power. Its only hope is in the McAll Missions and the evangelical churches that are at work there. It should not be supposed that the McAll Mission is merely an evangelistic agency. It aims at preparing its converts for church membership, and encourages those whom it has brought to the knowledge of salvation to unite with the nearest Christian church.—New York Advocate.

WHERE SHALL I FIND HIM?
(Job xxiii. 3.)

BY J. M. CAVANESS.

God does not walk amid the stars
Or tread the milky way.
He dwells not in the sunset bars
That gleam at close of day.

He rides not in the Winter's storm.
Nor in the Summer breeze
Nor do we see his face or form
In mountains, skies, or seas.

These are but shadows of his power,
Faint traces of his skill—
The elements he doth endower
To work his sovereign will.

None but the pure in heart shall see
Jehovah face to face
And only hearts that love can be
For him a dwelling-place.

"WELKOM WILHELMINA!"

MR. EDITOR: It's a hazardous thing sometimes to choose your text before you see your crowd: but I find that the choice suggested in my last can not be improved on, for the worship of Wilhelmina is really what it amounts to here in Amsterdam I dare say this year of 1898 will go down as one long to be remembered in the history of Holland. It makes an epoch in the development of Dutch civilization whose importance can be measured only in the years to come. But the present, not the future, is the subject for consideration now.

I was here somewhat over a month ago, and fell in love with this beautiful city and its honest, frugal people. I learned the town pretty well, as I thought; but last Monday, as I came in at midnight, I seemed to be in a place never before dreamed of, much less seen. The whole city was arrayed in holiday attire. Everywhere I was confronted by the royal yellow—the emblem of the House of Orange-Nassau. Streets, canals, avenues and churches were all smothered with banners and lanterns. Gorgeous festoons and arches of candles in varied colors had transformed every path into a way for royalty to pass. Such a glaring array of color and light I never met before, not even in Vienna; but the most interesting thing was the people. Here they were in millions—a great surging multitude, given over entirely to fun, with an abandon that would shock even an average product of civilization well-nigh to distraction. Every barrier seemed thrown down; liberty had degenerated into the wildest license, and the spirit of unrestrained mirth held high carnival, so much so that when first brought into contact with it, I thought I'd have to change my theme and write a dissertation on a modern survival of the old Roman Saturnalia as illustrated by the action of the animals of Amsterdam. But the longer I stayed, the greater I found the provocation to be.

For years and years these people have been watching the moral and physical development of her who was the last representative of their royal house. Numberless prayers have gone up all over the land for her preservation to years of maturity, when she could take the reins of government and rule those who loved her name so well. "After many days" these prayers have been answered, and the long-wished-for time has come. Her eighteenth birthday brings Wilhelmina to the throne, and all the enthusiasm which has been gradually accumulating ever since her subjects began to watch the unfolding of their Queen's comely person, and no less beautiful character, has burst forth in great waves of popular demonstration of the most extraordinary type. History presents few examples of a sovereign combining such tender years, physical fascination, and mental and moral excellence. Add to this her deep devotion to the sacredness of her office, as evidenced in her recent proclamation, and her undeniable love for her people, and you can realize to some extent the originating cause of the many incidents of this gala week.

Monday, the fifth, was the day of preparation, and its events struck the key-note for all succeeding days. At 9 o'clock that day 76,000 children of the public schools were given a silver medal and piece of china suitably inscribed. A little after 2 in the afternoon the Queen and Queen-mother arrived at the state railway station, and were accorded a royal reception on the part of the city. A processional march was made through the principal streets, consisting of representatives of all orders, military, diplomatic, and civic, accompanied by detachments of foreign officials. At night a grand demonstration was had at the Crystal Palace in honor of the Trades Societies.

Tuesday was the great day of the feast. At 8 o'clock—very early for Europe—from the towers of the royal palace and all the principal churches music began to peal forth in soul-stirring chimes, heralding the joy and gladness of the day of coronation. The installation ceremony took place in the new church before the principal State officials, the diplomatic bodies, legal, military and civil authorities, and the members of Parliament. To the right and left of the throne the Indian princes had their positions, while a special box was reserved for the royal family. At a quarter to eleven the Queen-mother left the royal palace in a carriage drawn by eight horses, accompanied by cavalry and members of her household, and proceeded to the church taking her place on the left of the throne. At eleven o'clock, amid the booming of cannon and pealing of carillons and chimes, her majesty-to-be came out with a grand cortege, and proceeded to the church on foot. Of course, Young America was at the front, and had the best possible view of all this magnificence. At the entrance to the sacred building the committee from Parliament received Wilhelmina and attended her to the throne, where she took the oath of office as required by the National Constitution, and then for the people each member of Parliament swore allegiance to the new Queen. After this, the oldest Koning van Wapenen proclaimed her majesty duly installed, and called aloud three times, "Long live the Queen!" This took about half an hour, and then the Queen and her suite returned to the palace.

Never shall I forget the scene. The Dam—a great open square fronting the royal apartments—was one solid mass of humanity, straining and surging to get but one glimpse of their new-made sovereign; she a sweet-faced girl, receiving with dignity and grace all this magnificent display of national feeling, and returning each successive volley of salutation with a quiet calmness that bespoke the ruler born. For the first time in my life I understood what Virgil meant when he used those words that have been such a temptation and a snare to small boys, "She walked a queen." What the commentators have failed to do in all the centuries, Wilhelmina did in a trice—showed me the magical emphasis with which the foot of royalty treads the earth.

Passing through the entrance to the palace, the Queen quickly ascended to the balcony and, accompanied by her mother, greeted the assembled throng. It was a sight, one glimpse of which was enough to stereotype it in memory forever. The winning smile, the radiant countenance and, withal, the noble, brave purpose written on the face of Wilhelmina, caught every eye, and wave after wave of tumultuous applause broke forth. Scion of Democracy that I was, I forgot, for the moment, "all my raising," and joined with all my heart, hands and lungs in the general ecstacy.

But what shall I say more? Time would fail to tell of the royal procession in the afternoon, and the brilliant illuminations at night, when the Queen made her triumphal march through her capital city.

Wednesday opened with a serenade by the military bands; was continued by a noon-day pageant, representing the historical development of the Netherlands, and culminated in the evening with a display of fireworks in the harbor, when the whole expanse of water seemed to be aflame, and from every available point in the vast array of shipping twinkled miniature stars in yellow and gold and blue to add their brightness to the scene.

Thursday, too, was a great fete day, and Friday saw the departure of their majesties for the Hague, where, on Saturday, a grand floral carnival was tendered the Queen by the Dutch Cyclists' Union. This was a source of great entertainment to the public, doubtless, but I am curious to know how it affected Her Majesty. From what I've read I fear this last demonstration must have come with somewhat of the taste of bitter dregs. Strange irony. About the only thing the Queen is not allowed to do is to ride a bicycle. Caught in the whirl of fascination that has captivated everybody, she wants to—badly; but, no! no! no! the fiat has gone forth. Never!

"No Wilhelmina on a wheel for us." She has to obey, and finds her pleasure if she can, at viewing others ride, inwardly bewailing (as any sensible girl would) the fate that has given her a kingdom, and at the same time robbed her of the permanent pleasure of her times.

As I think of this, the vision of my good bicycle comes before me, and the memory of so many delightful "spins" rushes over me as to temper somewhat my enthusiasm for royalty, and make me quite content with my humbler lot. THOMAS CARTER.

"TAKE HEED TO THYSELF."

No sensible man can reject the gospel. This statement may grate upon the ears of some altogether too sensitive and cultivated free-thinker as a dogmatism of a prejudiced and slavish mind trained to believe, against light, in the dark and superstitious narrative of a mystical and senseless revelation. But truth is truth, and fact is fact, here and everywhere, now and forever, without addition or diminution, without the efforts of prating adherents or the aversion and slander of enemies. The truth is the truth for all of that, and no amount of speculation, or theorizing, or scientific fancy, or bombastic assumption, can revoke or alter the nature and laws of things. Truth is the eternal correspondence and fitness of things growing out of and inherent in their nature, so that they are related in precise and definite combination. Truth, like the north star, is high above the mists and darkness that enshroud the earth. It glistens and scintillates in its silvery socket, no matter how dark the world, nor how rough and threatening the maddened sea. We can not move or change the north star to accommodate our position and needs at will, but we can so adjust ourselves to it as to have its light and guidance through the dark and tangled forest of life. A man is created with correspondences to and dependencies upon the light and heat of the sun; hence the sun is necessary to the growth, development and fullest possibilities of life. Man without it would be a dwarfed imbecile. The sun without man would have no correspondence, and, therefore, no end. The man without the light and invigorating influence of the sun would be destitute of the essential complement of his being, and, therefore, an imbecilious enigma without design, purpose, or end, and, consequently, a reflection upon the author of its existence, for what is man without his essential correspondences, physical, mental and moral, but a monad in the scale of being, and a burning and eternal reflection upon the origin of its existence, whether you call it the Jehovah of Moses or the protoplasm of Huxley? Every thoughtful man will take things as he finds them, and not spend his life quarreling because they are not different. It is hard for a man to kick against the pricks, as many will testify besides Saul of Tarsus. A man would be excusable for complaining of darkness if he were either blind, or there were no sun to give light; but there is the shining sun, and he has an eye with which to utilize this part of his environment. Why will he not see? Surely a man can not hope to change his environment by a distaste of what is, or excite compassion by a blindness superinduced by years of willful wandering in darkness. In order to have a perfect life, "mens sana in corpore sano," we must adjust ourselves to our environment, and let the correspondences move upon each other.

We know the gospel is divine, and is the culminating truth of the universe, because it is adapted to man's nature and condition in the most marvelous manner, and in the minutest details and requirements of his vast embryonic entities and capabilities. It presents the only sensible and logical solution to the deep and mysterious problem of life. In the revelation of spiritual and eternal life a perfect environment echoes to the deepest longings of human consciousness. Truth is necessary to the development of a great life. No great life has ever been built upon false systems or false religions. If we were asked to give a psychological reason for this, perhaps we could not come nearer the mark than to say that it lies in and belongs to the nature of the truth itself. To produce a great life, well regulated, well ordered, well developed, symmetrical, deep, positive and strong, the truth in spiritual conception with God at the beginning, and Calvary in the middle, and heaven as the final end, must circulate through the heart like the red blood through the hearty body. Let a man do all he can to become wiser, all he can to become better, all he knows to be right and good, and pray daily for new supplies of wisdom and strength to be and do more and better, and the conviction of God's goodness and presence in his common daily life will become as real and undisputed a fact as the consciousness of his own being. All the infidels in the world could not uproot his faith in the gospel, or shake his strong and intrepid soul from its confidence and rest in the bosom of the Eternal.

SURVIVAL OF THE UNFIT.

Scientists have discovered that there is in both plant and animal nature a tendency on the part of the strong to crowd out the weak. In a grove of young trees, for instance, where they are too thickly placed for all to come to maturity, the smaller ones cease to grow and finally die out, leaving the larger and stronger to flourish. So among animals, where the food supply is limited, in the struggle for life the stronger survive, while the weaker are crowded out and die. This tendency has been aptly named, "The Law of the Survival of the Fittest."

Some shallow, shoddy, would-be scientists, like all other shallow people, fond of fads, have made a very great deal of this law, presuming by it to solve all the problems of social human life, as well as those of animal and plant life. They tell us that the fittest among men survive and thrive and prosper, while the unfit are crowded out. The poor, the unfortunate and the unthrifty are constantly retrograding, until they die out at last. They think that they find evidence of this in the fact that some families and some races—the North American Indians, for example—fade out before the onward march of others. These shoddy scientists have never faced the question whether or not the fading family or races are the unfit, and the surviving ones are really the fittest.

Christianity presents another law in a higher human realm; it is, "The Law of the Survival of the Unfit." The grand Founder of Christianity himself announced the doctrine in these distinct and striking words, "The Son of man is come to save that which was lost." Again, he said, "I am not come to call the righteous"—i. e., the fittest—"but the unrighteous"—i. e., the unfit—"to repentance." His life on earth was in perfect harmony with this, his creed. He sought the homes of not the rich, but the poor; the haunts of not the holy, but the sinful; the walks of not the prosperous, but the needy; not the feast-hall of the merry, but the bed-side of the suffering. He did not go before the Sanhedrim, the supreme church court, and announce his Christ-hood, but he sought out the vilest woman of out-lawed Samaria, and told it to her; and he called some toiling peasants of distant Galilee from their fishing-boats to discipleship, and taught it to them. He hunted up the half-dead lepers, and made them men again. He found the raving maniac of Magdala, and made of her the loveliest woman of history. He met the madman of Gadara, and transformed him into the best of the Gadarenes. He saw the ostracized publican, Zacchæus, and left him second to none in Jericho. The impulsive, boasting, cowardly weakling, Simon Peter, under his transforming touch became an apostolic saint and hero. The one grand thought and purpose that underlay and impelled his whole career and mission was the "Survival of the Unfit." The very plan of salvation had its ultimate inspiration in this one thought. It was to mend a broken world, redeem the lost and the hopeless, lift a ruined race out of its ruin. Had there been no broken world, no lost humanity, no hopeless hearts, no ruined race, there would have been no plan of salvation and no incarnate Christ.

Report of work from June 1 to Sept. 1, 1898: Number of visits, 157; visits to sick, 60; families prayed with, 70; garments given, 128; groceries bought for poor, 30 times; doctor procured, 6 times; prescriptions filled, 19; Bibles given, 8; papers and tracts distributed, 210; garments made by children in industrial school, 18; amount expended for medicine and groceries for poor, $7.65; given in money (to needy), $9.15; meals furnished to poor outside of mission, 214.

Owing to poor health during the month of June, we did little or no work outside; but we never so fully realized what it was to indeed "be all things" to those people than we have during the last two months. The work divinely pointed out has been so varied, so manifold—here a little, there a little—carrying the Word of God to a darkened soul, ministering to the body and to the soul at the bedside of suffering, soothing the aching head or the aching heart of another, drying a tear, cementing a breach in a broken home, a cup of cold water, a cup of tea, writing a letter for another, errands, messages for the Master. And so the days rush by; the time for work growing less. And as the work is each day planned for us—the dear Savior pointing and leading, we try to follow; and yet we are so prone to pause and sigh for visible results as we glance backward across the field, and see how little has sprung up where we have tried to sow. Yet we must withhold not our hands; but we long so to see these souls saved. We love them; we feel the kinship through Christ—our brothers, our sisters. We love the work so much; we are the richer in grace for it; we pray for the love that never faileth. May the dear Master continue to "empty hands and heart of any treasured store," and wash our feet from all "trace of earthly soil," as we seek to know more about him and his will concerning us.

Pray for me—oh! pray for me—my dearly loved sisters and co-workers, that I may be a better worker in this part of his vineyard.

RELIGION IN THE QUIET THINGS OF NATURE.

Nature acts directly on the imaginative and spiritual faculties.

There is religion in everything around us—a calm and holy religion in the unbreathing things of nature, which man would do well to imitate. It is a meek and blessed influence, stealing in, as it were, unawares upon the heart; it comes quietly, and without excitement; it has no terror, no gloom in its approaches; it does not rouse up the passions; it is untrammeled by the creeds, and unshadowed by the superstitions of man; it is fresh from the hands of its Author, glowing from the immediate presence of the Great Spirit which pervades and quickens it; it is written on the arched sky; it looks out from every star; it is on the sailing cloud, and in the invisible wind; it is among the hills and valleys of the earth, where the shrubless mountain-top pierces the thin atmosphere of eternal Winter, or where the mighty forest fluctuates, before the strong wind, with its dark waves of green foliage; it is spread out, like a legible language, upon the broad face of the unsleeping ocean; it is the poetry of nature; it is this which uplifts the spirit within us, until it is strong enough to overlook the shadows of our place of probation—which breaks, link after link, the chain that binds us to materiality; and which opens to our imagination a world of spiritual beauty and holiness.—Ruskin.

Sometimes it is wisest to stay and fight out a battle with temptation. Again, it is best to show a clean pair of heels and run; with a care, too, that no arrow flies and strikes the heel as we run. Nor is that to be a coward. We shall know very well when we are to be left in the wilderness. Let us not forget that then we are to have the ministry of angels.—Rev. Louis F. Baker.

TRUE TRUST.

You and I are tempted to run into some dangerous occasion, some injurious companionship, to gratify our curiosity by reading dangerous books which will soil our purity or damage our faith. We say: "God will give his angels charge over me to preserve me from harm." God will give his angels charge over you to preserve and keep you in all paths of duty. But God has never promised to give his angels charge over us to keep us in all the precipices of our own self-willed choice. We go into temptations in spite of warning or advice, and we find that God does not give his angels charge over us; we are trusting where he hasn't promised; we are presuming when we have no pledge on which to build real hope. —Bishop Hall.

A GOOD HEART.

It is said that Spurgeon and his deacons were examining a boy who wished to join the church, when a godly deacon tested the young applicant with this question, "Have you a good heart?" To his surprise the boy promptly replied, "Yes, sir." "How do you make that out?" was the next question. "Well, sir, when the Lord converted me he gave me a new heart, and I do not think he would give me a bad one." There was nothing further to be said. The simple faith of the boy had gone straight to the mark, and theological frameworks all fell away. The boy was gladly welcomed into the church. "Except ye become as little children ye shall"—lose yourselves in theological mazes and profitless reasonings.—Exchange.

TAKE TIME TO BECOME HOLY.

Beloved reader, take time to become holy. Hosea the prophet says, "It is time to seek the Lord till he come and rain righteousness upon you." Not during one or two services, not during a camp meeting, not during a so-called holiness meeting, but "until he come and rain righteousness upon you." Never relax your efforts until the crystal raindrops of immaculate righteousness fall sensibly upon your soul. The only limit put to your seeking exertions is the coming of the Lord in a shower. Not that the Lord is tardy in his approaches, still less that he has to be coaxed to come, but that you may have time to put yourself in a receptive attitude towards him.—Divine Life.

NOT RESPONSIBLE.

There is a good deal laid to God's responsibility for which he is not in the least responsible. Some of his promises are interpreted beyond all bounds of their legitimate application, and then God is ardently told that he is under obligation to fulfill those promises just as, of course, such interpreters of them want him to. Thus these people would make God responsible, not only for their interpretation of his promises, but also for the failure of their fulfillment. Of course, in so far as any promise is falsely interpreted, to that extent it must prove a failure; but the responsibility of both the interpretation and the failure rests on man and not on God.—Selected.

Dr. Lucien Clark, in a brief sermon recently on "Self-Denial," said: "Self-denial is not merely the law of the kingdom of God, but the law of all progress and of all life. Self-denial is necessary to excellence in all departments of life. He who does not deny himself the luxuries of the table must suffer physical pain. Intellectual achievements require self-denial, for the heights of learning can never be scaled unless the student denies himself luxuries, stimulants, leisure, and amusements. In social life self-denial is the key to success. He who seeks happiness usually plunges into indulgence. This is the greatest mistake in the world. You will never know happiness until you practice self-denial. There are persons who cut themselves off from the world, its pleasures and people, and delude themselves with the idea that they are obeying the will of the Master. What is meant by the divine command is that the passions and desires must be overcome, and that we must sacrifice ourselves for our fellowmen."—Christian Intelligencer.

A man on the fence has but little influence on either side.—Selected.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. W. A. Bowlin, P. C., Buena Vista, Miss., Sept. 29, 1898: "My work is in fine shape. Had a good revival at each appointment. Had sixty conversions and forty accessions to our church. We expect to make a full report at Conference. The Ladies' Home Mission Society at Buena Vista is doing a fine work; has supplied our parsonage with some needed furniture; has just received blinds for our church, which will add very much to the appearance and comfort. Old Father Spragins (M. E.), who raised three sons for the Methodist ministry, is greatly afflicted with paralysis. He received a second stroke a few days since, and is now very helpless."

Rev. Robt. W. Barton, P. C., Fuller circuit, Seashore district, Mississippi Conference, Sept. 26: "I have closed my round of protracted meetings (six), and feel so thankful to God for the rich feast of his love at each one. We had fifteen accessions to the church, with a great many bright conversions; some of the brightest I ever saw. Bro. W. J. Dawson assisted me in two meetings; did splendid work that was owned and blessed of God to the upbuilding of his people and the awakening of sinners. Bro. J. W. Burton was with me in three meetings; did good and effective work in pulpit and altar. His preaching reached the people, and a great many gave themselves to the Lord. I was by myself in one meeting, but the power and work of the Spirit was with us in convicting and converting power. The membership of Fuller circuit is fully alive, and the sacred fire is yet burning, and still have shouts of praise and seasons of rejoicing at each appointment, and new candidates for church membership. To God be the glory. Pray for us."

Rev. Thos. J. Martin, Sept. 29, 1898: "The Valley work is getting along moderately well. We have a nice, clever people to serve. The spiritual state of the church is very good. I have not heard of a case of immorality on the work this year. We have Sabbath-school at four out of five appointments; prayer meetings at two appointments that never go into Winter-quarters. Sickness has hindered us greatly. The major part of the people have been sick. I have only held one protracted meeting. We had a fine meeting. Some eight or ten conversions—mostly in the church. The meeting was crippled by sickness preventing the membership from attending. I will commence again in October, and will hold three meetings. We have had some accessions along through the year, and hope to have others. Our congregations are very good and orderly. I have learned to love the good people of the Valley charge, and have sympathized with them in the unprecedented scourge of sickness that has invaded every home, and carried away so many loved ones."

Rev. J. H. Foreman, Raleigh (Smith county), Miss., Oct. 3, 1898: "Raleigh charge.—We are moving along nicely over here. I have just finished my round of protracted meetings. We had some very fine meetings on the Raleigh charge this year. We have held 7 meetings in this charge this year, 4 of which were a success. Many backsliders were reclaimed, quite a number of conversions, 35 additions to the church by profession of faith and 9 by certificate. All praise to God, who must give the increase, though Paul preach and Apelles water. We have had some valuable help this year in our meetings in the way of preachers. The following-named brethren did us faithful service to the honor and glory of God, and to the salvation of souls and edification of believers: Rev. W. M. Sullivan, of Forest; Rev. Ira B. Robertson, of Montrose; Rev. P. D. Hardin, of Shiloh; Rev. P. H. Howse, and Lane, of Trenton; Rev. J. E. Williams, and J. M. Corley, L. P. All these brethren did us valuable service. Raleigh charge is in very good condition spiritually. We are doing all we can on our Conference collections, and hope to be able to make a good report at Conference. Pray for us."

Rev. D. W. Babb, Louisville, Miss., Sept. 29, 1898: "We are rounding up our round of protracted meetings, which, we trust, have and will result in much good to our work. The order of preaching has been of a high, practical standard, for which we are much indebted to Revs. Lagrone and Tyndin, of our church, and J. C. Arnett, of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. May the good Lord reward them abundantly! Our Sunday-school at this place is the best we have had since my acquaintance with the work. We are holding our own in Epworth Leagues and prayer meetings. Much rain and a great deal of sickness through the entire Summer, and up to this has militated greatly against our church work in all departments, and nothing more than the war interest up to the cessation of hostilities between the two governments. We hope to appear at Conference with collections in full. The ADVOCATE is on a boom. I have forwarded you twenty-seven subscribers (including one herein sent) in less than two weeks. You get better as you get older, both in the editorials and the Home Circle. God bless the paper and the editor! We have a P. and H. M. Society at this place, but it is subject to many ailments. Much doctoring and constant nursing is necessary, and then it is all we can do to keep breath in it. I hope it will soon convalesce. May God bless us with a happy meeting and a spiritual Conference at Aberdeen."

FROM REV. SAM. Q. BASS.

I preached last week at Bay Springs, Miss., for Rev. W. A. Woods, P. C. All things considered, it was a great meeting. I believe that my work there was a great benefit to the church. Some of the best families were reached and joined our church. The organ of our Conference will make its way into the hills of Tishomingo county, as you will please send it to the names given you in my personal letter.

On my return home last night I found wife in bed sick, and our little boy (Paul) down with slow fever. I know not what the results will be. Dr. Johns told me this morning that it would be at least two weeks before I could leave home again; but I leave it all with the Lord. This is the road to heaven, and, bless God, I look it all in the face and say, I am happy on the way.

One would think from a part of my good Bro. Buchanan's letter, published in the ADVOCATE, that there was something "behind," so please let me say to him that I am ready for an exposure of any evil he may know in me. "What I have written I have written."

May the Lord bless all good pastors! I am yours to work wherever the pastor of our church invites me.

PULPIT ABUSE.

We republish the following from the Nashville Christian Advocate, with our hearty endorsement. The cheap reputation for courage gained by pulpit abuse is not worth having. The love that "weeps o'er dying men" will prompt earnest, manly, and faithful rebuke of sin. But there is a vast difference between the love that sends the pastor to the offender with godly interest in his salvation, pointing out his faults, and showing the way of reformation, and the fierce denunciation that many approve as showing courage in the pulpit:

"This to pastors: If you have five hundred members in your congregation, and there are twenty-five of them that are not walking as becometh the gospel of Christ, what are you going to do about it? Will you rail at the whole congregation from the pulpit? That is the cheapest and easiest way in the world of dealing with the difficulty. In case you adopt it, some people will say that you are a very brave man. But it is much to be doubted whether you will thereby accomplish any thorough reformation. The true course, provided you have the courage, the gentleness, and the discretion to adopt it, is to go to the offenders face to face, and tell them what you think is wrong in their conduct. In a great many instances you can thus reclaim them. In case, however, they prove incorrigible you have no option but to apply the law of the church. One instance of real discipline, administered in the spirit of Christ, will do more to clear the atmosphere than all the pulpit talk that you can do in a year. You ought, of course, to give public instruction on all points of morals as well as of doctrine; but hardly to a fulminating tone." Ball-more Christian Advocate.

THE STATESMEN AND THE SABBATH.

It is not alone ministers and churchmen who emphasize the importance of Sabbath observance. Such a conviction has been expressed by men who were not open to the charge of fanaticism, or special zeal upon the subject.

Sir Wm. Blackstone said: "A corruption of morals usually follows a profanation of the Sabbath."

"The longer I live," said Daniel Webster, "the more highly do I estimate the Sabbath, and the more grateful do I feel toward those who impress its importance on the community."

Abraham Lincoln, during the stress of civil war, said: "The discipline and character of the national forces should not suffer, nor the cause they defend be imperiled by the profanation of the day of the Most High."

And Lord Macaulay once declared, in substance, that England would never have attained her greatness among the nations had it not been for her regard for the Sabbath.

These utterances are worthy of attention at this time when a strenuous and persistent effort is being made to break down the Sabbath. We owe it not only to our God, but to our country and to posterity to resist with all our might this attack upon the Sabbath. No greater calamity could befall our country than the downfall of the Sabbath institution.—Mid-Continent.

PATHETIC ORIGIN OF A HYMN.

Dr. Fawcett, author of the hymn, "Blest be the tie that binds," was the pastor of a small Baptist Church in Yorkshire, from which he received only a meagre salary. Being invited to London to succeed the distinguished Dr. Gill, he accepted, preached his farewell sermon, and began to load his furniture wagons for transportation. When the time for departure arrived, his Yorkshire parishioners and neighbors clung to him and his family with an affection which was beyond expression. The agony of separation was almost heart-breaking. The pastor and his wife, completely overcome by the evidences of attachment they witnessed, sat down to weep. Looking into his face, while tears flowed like rain down the cheeks of both, Mrs. Fawcett exclaimed, "Oh, John, John, I can't bear this! I know not how to go!" "Nor I, either," said he; "nor will we go; unload the wagons, and put everything in the place where it was before!" The people who had cried with grief now began to cry with joy. He wrote to the London congregation that his coming was impossible; and so he buckled on his armor for renewed toils in Yorkshire on a salary less by £10 a year than that which he declined. To commemorate this incident in his history, Doctor Fawcett wrote that hymn. He was converted at the age of sixteen under a sermon preached by George Whitefield, and at first united with the Methodist Church, but afterwards joined the Baptists.—Christian Herald.

HOW GLADSTONE TREATED HIS ENEMIES.

It was inevitable that a political leader of such force of character and conviction should in a public career of more than sixty years make bitter enemies. But even his enemies admit that he never betrayed personal resentment toward his adversaries. His condemnation of their political principles was unreserved; yet he never directed his wonderful power of invective against the personal attitude and character of his foes. Doubtless this was chiefly due to his strong religious principles; for religion was so much a part of his whole nature that it may be said to have colored all his political life. It was as a Christian statesman that he maintained his ascendancy with a large portion of the English people, and commanded the respect and admiration of the world. However bitter may have been the denunciations which assailed him in official life, the last few years brought him the immunity generally reserved for those who have passed off the world's great stage. In his retirement, friends and foes have been rivals in appreciation of the splendor of his character and the greatness of his achievements.—New York Observer.

Do not think about the sacrifices you have made for Christ, but think of the sacrifices he made for you. The sacrifices of which self is the centre will never be rewarded by our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. We should, the rather be like Paul: "Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended; but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."—Exchange.

A prairie fire moves faster than any horse can run. No matter how speedy your mount may be unless you have a good start of the fire it will overtake you. It is the same way with many diseases. Unless you get a fair start, you cannot possibly shake them off. The only hope for anyone who is threatened with serious disease is to start in time, and seek safety before the danger closes in about him.

The best thing for you, if you feel that your full bodily energy is lacking, is to seek the strengthening, power-producing help of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which confers upon the digestive organs that keen zest of appetite and assimilation which transforms the food into nourishing, health-building blood, active muscular force, nervous energy and rugged endurance.

Do not wait until dyspepsia spreads into "liver complaint" and that turns into bronchial trouble which finally verges into consumption. Do not rely upon the delusive stimulus of malt extracts and sarsaparillas and oily compounds; do not allow a designing druggist who seeks only his own profit rather than your health to foist any "boom" medicine upon you. Insist upon the remedy which is backed by thirty years of steadily increasing sales to attest its constant usefulness and popularity.

The experience of Mr. Val. Burkard, living at 65 Mohr Ave., Buffalo, N. Y., is given in his own words: "Five weeks ago I followed your advice and took two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and also two vials of 'Pellets.' I consider myself entirely cured, as there have been no eruptions since I finished the last bottle. I think it is the greatest remedy on the globe for blood and digestive disorders. My appetite increased wonderfully and I have also gained flesh. I would like everybody to know the true value of Dr. Pierce's medicines as I am confident by persistent use they will cure all ailments for which they are recommended."

Best Edition of the World's Best Book,

—THE—

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers.

New Type. All Proper Names. Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Every body is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to October, '99. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

SELF-PRONOUNCING

S. S. Teachers' Reference Bible.

Text Conforms Exactly to the Oxford Teachers' Edition.

The self-pronouncing text enables the reader to pronounce all proper names at a glance.

This Bible is printed from Large, Beautiful and Clear New Type. All Proper Names are Divided into Syllables and Every Vowel is Marked and the Syllables Inflected, showing the Sounds and Accents as they are given in a Dictionary, thus enabling the reader to properly pronounce every word. This feature is a great improvement and a strong recommendation for this Bible over others.

This Bible contains the celebrated Oxford Teachers' Helps together with a complete series of New Maps illustrating the geography of Palestine and the surrounding countries from the earliest times, and embodying the most recent discoveries renders this Bible especially desirable to teachers and students of the Holy Scriptures.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1898.

I asked the roses, as they grew
Richer and lovelier in their hue,
What made their tints so rich and bright.
They answered, "Looking toward the light."

Ah! secret dear, said heart of mine,
God means my life to be like thine,
Radiant with heavenly beauty bright,
By simply looking toward the light.

HUMILITY.

To the ancient Greeks humility signified "meanness of spirit," but to the Christian it signifies a grace of priceless worth—an attitude of soul well pleasing in the sight of God. Pride, the opposite, is one of the commonest sins, and has wrecked many a soul The cultivation of a spirit of humility is, we fear, a duty sadly neglected in these days, when wealth and honor and pleasure are so recklessly sought after.

Humility is indeed one of the chief elements of Christ-likeness. It is the soil, so to speak, in which all the Christian graces and virtues must take root and grow. St. Augustine being asked, "What is the first thing in religion?" replied, "Humility." "What is the second?" "Humility." "What is the third?" "Humility" To become poor in spirit is the only way to become rich in faith and pure in heart.

However good we may be in other respects, if we are proud and self-satisfied, God will be far from us. Has he not declared in his Word that "he hath respect unto the lowly, but the proud he knoweth afar off"? Not one promise is there in the Scriptures for the self-righteous, self-sufficient man. Not one blessing is offered to him. No man can walk in the light of God's countenance who is inflated with ideas of his own importance and superior goodness. God turns his back upon the proud because they turn their backs upon him, fancying in their folly that they can get along without him. Nothing so completely shuts God out of the heart as pride. But all the riches of the kingdom of heaven are declared to be the possession of the meek and the humble. "To this man will I look," saith the Lord, "even to him that is poor, and of a contrite heart, and who trembleth at my word." Many church members whose lives are fairly consistent in other respects are sadly deficient in the grace of humility. Not everyone who prays in public, not everyone who refrains from evil, not everyone who does good, not everyone who gives largely to the church, possesses that lowliness of mind and heart so essential to true piety and to acceptance with God.

Self-abasement is unpopular with the world and grievous to the flesh, but it is one of God's appointed means of preparing us to receive his blessings. Until we become poor and vile in our own eyes, we feel but little need of God, and hence do not rely upon him as our only hope. It is impossible for the proud to be strong in faith and rich in the grace of God. The proud, whether in the church or out of it, are self-centered and unteachable. Well does Solomon say: "Seest thou a man wise in his own conceit? There is more hope of a fool than of him." God will not open the store-house of his grace, or unfold the mysteries of his love to imperious demands.

How beautifully does the following incident illustrate this truth! When Wilhelmina, recently crowned Queen of Holland, was a little girl, she one day knocked at the door of the room of her mother, the Queen-regent. "Who is there?" asked the regent. "It is the Queen of Holland," came the impetuous reply. "Then you must not enter," said the mother. After a pause this response came through the key-hole in a softer tone, "Mama, it is your own little daughter." Then the Queen-regent gladly said, "You may come in." Such is the attitude we must assume before our Lord if we expect him to grant our petitions. "He that humbleth himself shall be exalted, but he that exalteth himself shall be abased."

The deleterious influence of pride is manifested among all classes, but especially does it appear among the wealthy and the cultured. In proportion as men acquire riches and position are they in danger of becoming self-sufficient and haughty. We do not have to go far to find people—among them professing Christians—who are unduly proud of their culture, their lineage, or their wealth, and who look down upon what they please to call "the common herd." Pride of learning has proven a snare to many a scholar, while pride of superior gifts has caused numerous others to forget God. Such is the weakness of human nature that all of us are in more or less danger of "thinking more highly of ourselves than we ought to think," of fancying that we are better than the rest of the world.

Pride often shows itself even among the poor, many of whom resent investigation of their misery, and resist measures for their relief and elevation. How frequently a false pride causes men of humble means to make a foolish effort to keep up appearances, and thus overwhelm themselves with debt, instead of accommodating themselves to circumstances!

Strangest of all, there is even a pride of religion, which, like all other forms of pride, is an abomination in the sight of God. Such manifests itself in the form of unseemly boasting of superior spiritual attainments, or of belonging to the only apostolic church. The Pharisee in the parable, who thanked God that he was "not as other men are," has followers in the church of to-day.

A celebrated writer justly remarks: "The only sin that invariably called forth the fiery indignation and unsparing censure of Christ was self-righteousness."

If we refuse to be humble in any other way, God may employ the rod for correction. He often uses adversity and affliction to humble men, and make them feel their absolute need of him.

Humility that obtrudes itself, that seeks notice, is as spurious and disgusting as that exhibited by Dickens' well-known character, Uriah Heep. True humility does not exhibit itself merely in external self-abasement, for it is possible to put on sack-cloth and ashes, and still be haughty in spirit, but it causes the soul to cry from its very depths: "What am I, that God should have respect unto me?"

Well has Mr. Spurgeon said: "The higher a man gets in grace, the lower he will sink in his own esteem." The meekest and humblest are usually the least conscious of being so. "What doth God require of thee but to do justly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly before God?"

THE PANIC.

The time has arrived when we conceive it to be our duty as a journalist to say something concerning the disastrous panic now prevailing in this section. Many towns are depopulated to an extent that is hardly credible by persons at a distance. In one town of three thousand inhabitants only 225 are left. Another place more than twice as large reports ninety per cent. of its white population gone. One case of yellow fever in a town is sufficient to send almost its entire population who can command the necessary means to some point in the direction of the North Pole. A similar state of things exists on a smaller scale in some towns that are uninfected. Many have fled in anticipation of infection. Now, it can be demonstrated by facts and figures that this panic has no solid foundation to rest upon. The trouble is that the people have in their minds the yellow fever of '53, '58, '67, and '78, when the death-rate was thirty per cent., or more. But there is an immense difference between the fever now prevailing and that of former years. The disease has so changed its type that it is difficult of recognition even by the medical profession. In almost every town in which the fever existed last year the local physicians protested against its being called yellow fever until overwhelmed by experts and quarantines and the logic of events. It is not necessary to draw the conclusion, as some do, that these physicians were playing a part in deference to local prejudices. Physicians in various localities who had large experience in treating the disease in former years find it difficult to believe that the fever now prevailing is genuine yellow fever.

Dr. Edmond Souchon, president of the Louisiana State Board of Health, in a recent official publication, says: "The disease is comparatively so mild that it stands to yellow fever almost like varioloid to small-pox. It ought to be called yellowlold fever." We invite attention to the following facts:

The total number of cases reported to the Louisiana State Board of Health up to Saturday night, Oct. 8, is 670. This report includes all points in the State at which the fever has been officially recognized except Alexandria—ten in all. The number of deaths is thirty. This gives a death-rate of only four and a half per cent. Now, every physician, and every man who has given any attention to vital statistics, knows that there is no other fever existent in this country that has anything like so low a death-rate. The death-rate from typhoid fever is very much greater. And so of scarlet fever and the ordinary malarial fevers. But we have not yet stated our case fairly, for the reason that we have left out Alexandria. As the fever had existed at Alexandria at least a month without its true character being recognized, it is impossible to give an exact enumeration of the cases. A published estimate puts the number at 200. Yet it is agreed that there has not been a single death. If we include these cases in our figures, the death-rate for the State is brought down to three and a half per cent.

Now, why should people become panic-stricken, and fly from their homes; why should the commerce and all the industries of great commonwealths be paralyzed, on account of a disease that stands at the very foot of the list as a life-destroyer? Can any good reason be given? People do not fly thus from other diseases, even though they are contagious; why should they from this? A recent issue of the Chicago Chronicle says that there are more deaths from diphtheria in Chicago in a single month than from yellow fever in the whole South during an entire year. Yet Chicago does not become panic-stricken and empty its population into other cities. Present conditions will not continue. The time is drawing near when our people will take counsel of reason instead of fear. They will remain at their homes and take the chances with yellow fever just as they do with other diseases, though, of course, they will continue to use proper precautions in the way of quarantines and other sanitary measures.

MISRULE OF THE MEDICOS.

The Mississippi State Board of Health has promulgated a decree that no railroad shall carry passengers from one point in the State to another. Passengers may be transported to any point outside the State, but to no point in it. We would be untrue to our convictions of duty if we should fail to utter a vigorous protest against such action. The right of the Board to prohibit travel from an infected to a non-infected point no one will dispute, but to prohibit travel between non-infected points is arbitrary, unreasonable and tyrannical. At the time when this order was issued, the fever existed at only about a dozen places in the State, and these places had been quarantined against not only by the State Board, but by the towns throughout the State. In the eastern half of the State there was not, when the order was issued, a single infected town with the exception of Starkville, and there was not a case south of Jackson, on the I. C. R. R., or on the Mississippi Valley R. R. above Port Gibson. Yet all travel in this vast section is prohibited. Even though a man may never have been within a hundred miles of a case of yellow fever, and although he may have the most urgent business to transact, the railroads can not carry him. Judges, attorneys and witnesses can not attend court, even though they may be immune, or though they may never have been near any infected point. Presiding elders of districts in which not even a suspicious case of fever has been reported must let their districts take care of themselves until frost. All this is done in the name of science. From such science, good Lord, deliver us. Such an arbitrary exercise of power as this is an absurd anachronism. It belongs to a past age. No governor of a State, no President of the United States would dare to promulgate such a decree. Neither would any crowned head of Europe, unless it be the Czar of Russia or the Sultan of Turkey. We predict that such a state of things will not long continue. Love of liberty is too deep seated in the breasts of the American people for them to submit always to such tyranny.

The absolute power with which the medicos have been invested will be taken from them, if they do not learn to exercise it with more wisdom.

THE REMEDY WORSE THAN THE DISEASE.

On Sunday, the ninth, the Board of Health of Terrebonne parish sent the following dispatch to Dr. Souchon, president of the Louisiana State Board of Health:

"Terrebonne Board of Health asks to have restrictions removed between this parish and New Orleans, and all parishes in communication with New Orleans as to freight and travel, excepting unacclimated Italian laborers now excluded by the State Board of Health. [This refers to a ship load of immigrants now lying at the quarantine station.—EDITOR] We have had a sufficiency of quarantine, and now prefer yellowloid.

"H. Jastremski, Health Officer."

To this Dr. Souchon replied: "Request granted."

Thereupon the Terrebonne Board made the following proclamation:

"Terrebonne parish open to the world. Both people and merchandise will be admitted."

A PROGNOSTICATION.

Although New Orleans is now commiserated throughout the civilized world as a pestilence-stricken city, we predict that there will be fewer deaths here than there were '96, when there was no yellowloid, and no epidemic of any sort. If Providence permits us to live until the thirty-first of December, we will give the facts in the case whether they sustain our prognostication or not. There is no man living who can say, "I was mistaken," with better grace than we can, when facts are against us.

UNCLE SAM DISPENSES CHARITY.

On Saturday, the eighth, the Mississippi State Board of Health, with the approval of Governor McLaurin, made application to the United States Government for sustenance for six thousand poor people, mostly negroes, who are thrown out of employment by the quarantine regulations and the depopulation of the yellowloid-stricken towns. President McKinley promptly gave orders for the distribution of supplies through the Marine Hospital Corps.

ROMEWARD.

It is said that there are one thousand seven hundred clergymen of the Church of England who are members of the Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament, organized to destroy the work of the Reformation. They are allies of the Church of Rome, and in belief and practice agree with that body. Many efforts have been made to prevent these clergymen from continuing their Romish practices in the churches of the Church of England, but with only small success. The Bishops of the State Church are apparently indifferent to the attempts to Romanize the Church of England. It is claimed that the large majority of the membership is opposed to the efforts of the Confraternity and allied societies, such as the Holy Cross and the Ritualistic Sisterhoods, but can accomplish nothing because the Bishops thwart their endeavors or wishes. There is unquestionably a decided tendency among the clergy of the Church of England toward the Roman Church. The other denominations of Christians in Great Britain have formed a Federation to oppose this endeavor to Romanize the Christian people of Great Britain. The membership of the churches of this alliance is now larger than that of the Church of England, and that majority bids fair to increase steadily. The prospect is that in a few years the Episcopal Church will cease to be the established Church of Great Britain.—Christian Intelligencer.

PANIC AND DEPRAVITY MAKE A BAD COMBINATION.

(Special to the Picayune.)

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 8.—An unknown white man, supposed to be a yellow fever patient, was burned up in a negro church in Leflore county to-day.

This news reached here to-night in a letter from Dr. T. B. Harrison, health officer of Tallahatchie county.

The man was found sick yesterday by negroes who had gone to prepare the church for divine services to-day.

The case was reported to Dr. Harrison, and he reported him as a suspicious case.

The doctor left, and when he returned he found the church in ashes and found a few charred bones to tell the awful story.

It is not positive that the poor fellow had yellow fever, and it is not sure that he was dead when the church was fired, but ungoverned fear suggested the deed, and Mississippi has to answer for it.

REVERSED.

When Drummond's "Natural Law in the Spiritual World" first appeared, a lawyer friend after reading it said: "Drummond has put the cart before the horse; he should have said, Spiritual Law in the Natural World. Then he would have come nearer the truth." We are reminded of this in noting the trend of scientific thought at present. Tyndall's famous declaration that he discerned in matter "the promise and potency of all life," indicating as it did the tendency of science to explain the highest facts of life in the terms of the lowest, is no longer tenable, and Sir William Crookes, president of the British Association, boldly says he would like "to reverse that apothegm and to say that in life he saw the promise and potency of all forms of matter." —Intelligencer.

Sydney Smith said that "Manners are the shadow of virtue." Certainly a man's behavior is, in large measure, the outward expression of thorough cordiality. Good manners are possible to everyone who is true, kind and considerate. The inward qualities need to be nurtured and their outward forms of expression cultivated. Study the characters of good people, and observation of their manners will do much to aid in acquiring a knowledge of the ways of really good society. Let the heart be right first, and the rest is easily learned.—Exchange.

NOTES.

We are pleased to learn that Sister Hunnicutt's health is still improving.

The public schools of this city will open next Monday, regardless of yellowloid.

Bishop Keener and family have returned to the city after a four months' sojourn at their Summer home at Ocean Springs, Miss.

We regret to learn that Bro. W. F. Henderson, pastor at Arcadia, La, is compelled to desist from work for a time on account of ill-health.

Rev. W. W. Simmons, P. E., of the Forest district, has been very sick, but he is now convalescent and hopes to be ready for work again soon.

Our editorial, of Oct. 6, on "Eternal Punishment," somewhat enlarged, has been published in the form of a 16-page pamphlet. It will be sent postpaid to any address on receipt of five cents.

Rev. B. T. Crews, presiding elder of the Arcadia district, writes that his district will probably report an increase along all lines at Conference. No wonder! The district has a live presiding elder, and is well manned in the pastorate.

Rev. W. M. Stevens and wife, of Lake circuit, Mississippi Conference, are very sad, on account of the death of their little babe, which occurred on the sixth. Brethren, please remember them in your prayers. The other little boy is very sick.

Rev. H. W. Knickerbocker preached the first of his series of sermons on "The Beatitudes" last Sunday night. As was to be expected, those who heard it speak of it in high terms. The series will be continued at the night service for several weeks.

We invite attention to the communication of Bro. Bachman on the seventh page, in which he gives the names of the Methodist itinerant preachers who have died of yellow fever and cholera in the United States during the last hundred years.

By a letter from Sister Hill we learn that Rev. W. H. Hill, of the Louisiana Conference, is quite ill with malarial fever. His son, Grover, is also sick. Neither of them has been in good health during the year. We hope and pray that our brother's health may be speedily restored, so that he may continue his loved employ of preaching the Word.

Rev. T. S. Randle and family have been greatly afflicted. Four of the family were in bed at the same time. His daughter, Sallie Jackson Randle, died Sept. 30. Sister Randle has been quite sick, but is up again. Bro. Randle is still in bed. We bespeak for our brother and his consecrated wife the sympathies and prayers of their numerous friends throughout the State.

FROM CENTENARY.

Parents and friends of boys at Centenary College need have no fear of yellow fever on our campus. In addition to the statements sent directly to the homes of our students, we wish to give notice through the ADVOCATE that doctors pronounce us beyond the danger line. More than a week ago some cases of mild sickness just out of the corporate limits of Jackson were declared suspicious, and we at once instituted a rigid quarantine on our campus extending over an area of about fifty acres. Members of the faculty all live on the grounds, and in addition several other families. A regular system of guarding is kept up day and night, and no person is allowed to leave the campus and return, nor are any persons from the town or country allowed to come in. Our college work has suffered no interruption, and students are well and cheerful. Those living in the town and neighboring country are not allowed to attend school for the present. Only one case of sickness in Jackson has been pronounced yellow fever, and that was very mild. The house where it occurred is still guarded. The disease as it has occurred about here need not be feared so much as a case of la grippe, and many hesitate to call it yellow fever.

Our students are making use of Saturday as wash day, substituting the wash tub for the athletic field. Clothes are not allowed to be passed to or from the campus, and our families have frequent applications for flat-irons. Dr. Cooper makes frequent visits to the rooms of students and is taking great pains to guard against any imprudence. We are greatly encouraged. There is a pronounced religious atmosphere on our campus as usual. The students conduct a regular evening prayer service for each dormitory. Four services were held last Sunday—Sunday-school, preaching, by Dr. Cooper, Y. M. C. A. service, and preaching by one of the students.

A more lengthy article with reference to our improvements and brightened prospects will appear in the ADVOCATE in due time.

The news of suffering and death in so many places stricken with the prevailing fever is received with great sorrow, and calls forth many prayers from sympathizing hearts that God may stay the pestilence and bring relief to the suffering. J. M. SULLIVAN.

FROM H. N. HARRISON.

MR. EDITOR: After spending some days at Chicago I took steamer up Lake Michigan to Mackinac Island. This is a historic island and a famous resort for tourists and people who have the hay fever. The air was delicious, and I soon felt it necessary to get into my overcoat. Catching a steamer here, I crossed Lake Huron into Georgian Bay, where I got abundantly seasick, and was truly sorry to discover, like Thomas Carlyle, that I had a stomach. I would have sold out for a doughnut. On landing it was really delightful to get into a train once again and bid farewell to the steamer "Majestic" that had rocked me majestically in the cradle of the deep, much to my discomfiture. I got off at Toronto. I understand that Canada is overrun with Methodists. This may explain the fact that the Dominion has just declared for prohibition by a nice majority, for, of course, every Methodist takes to prohibition as naturally as a duck does to water. A Methodist that is otherwise—well, there is a hot place for some folks.

After a week in Toronto, I crossed Lake Ontario to Lewiston, whence the electric railway brought me along the edge of Niagara River in arms' reach of the Rapids. I caught a glimpse, too, of the great Niagara Power House, where the rushing waters of the cataract are turbined into electric power. What a wonderful feat! From there I came by the trolley line to Buffalo, and thence, after a few days, to New York City. New York is the Mecca of most Americans. It is a great city, full of noise and bustle, and people, day and night, but Methodists are "scarce" hereabouts. They appear to have decamped, bag and baggage. I looked for him, and lo! he was not. However, I did see a few fine specimens on Sunday. I have been poking into the Missions, Volunteer, and Army Meetings, quite diligently.

A STEWARD'S REPORT.

MR. EDITOR: Have you ever seen a steward's report? If you have ever been a presiding elder, you may have seen a few; but they are not very common, especially in systematic written form. I send you a copy of one, which was presented to a Quarterly Conference. Omitting proper names, it reads:

STEWARD'S REPORT.

R—— M. E. C. S., H—— circuit, third quarter, ending Sept. 17, 1898: I have thirty-one names on my list; have called on and collected from eighteen members this quarter, and have made a collection of twenty-two dollars ($22). This, when added to amounts previously reported, makes seventy-five cents over and above our assessment for the year. We are going to pay more Respectfully,

J. E. C.

This steward seems to have been trying to do his duty; yet there are thirteen names on his list that are not credited with any payments. He does not state whether he failed to call on them, or, calling, found them unable, unwilling, or unready to pay. Perhaps half the members of the Methodist Church never pay anything for its support. This is owing, in part, to a lack of systematic and thorough diligence on the part of stewards in collecting. The work of the stewardship is fundamental in our economy. Unfaithful stewards discourage and embarrass the ministry very greatly.

It seems to me that stewards owe it to the church, to the pastor, to the Quarterly Conference, and to themselves, to report their work, in person or in writing, at each session of the Quarterly Conference.

W. L. C. HUNNICUTT.

GRENADA DISTRICT.

All the preachers in the district are at their posts doing what they can. Our churches in Water Valley have been closed five weeks and will remain so till after frost. We have nine cases of fever in town. The physicians expect to keep it within present infection. Fully three-fourths of our people are refugeeing. Those who remain are well organized and at work with the physicians, city authorities and preachers.

The presiding elder and family are at the district parsonage. He has not been exposed to the fever and is doing all he can for the advancement of the district.

The Orphanage is so happily located that it is in no danger of fever. Manager Burton is busily saving hay while the sun shines.

We favor postponement of Conference one month.

NOTICE.

To the Preachers of the Alexandria District Louisiana Conference—

DEAR BRETHREN: On account of the yellow fever scare in Alexandria, and the numerous quarantines resulting therefrom, it will be impossible for me to attend any Quarterly Conferences for awhile at least. When this scare is over I will come to you.

It is probable that our Annual Conference will be postponed, thus giving ample time for holding all our Quarterly Conferences. V. D. SKIPPER.

NOTICE.

To "The People Who Are Called Methodists," and Usually Are Residents of Mississippi, but Are Now Fled, Fleeing, or about to Flee from the Yellow Fever:

Don't fail to send a few dollars in money, or a few dollars' worth of supplies, to your pastor and his family who remain at the post of duty, especially if you are in arrears on your assessments for the pastor's support. He and his family will have inconveniences enough to contend with in a fever-stricken town. Don't increase those inconveniences by your thoughtlessness. This is not for any one place, but for all from which Methodists are fleeing and leaving the pastor unprovided for.

FROM MISS CUMING.

I am quarantined at this place, and haven't the remotest idea when I can leave here. In the meantime "old Time is still a-flying" and to win I must be up and doing.

I wish I could tell everyone of my dear parents' friends my object at their fireside. I feel assured I would receive every renewal and a great many new subscriptions to the Ladies' Home Journal, that has helped and is still helping more widows and orphans to secure an education and earn a living than any one thing in our Union.

I already have three hundred subscriptions. I need twenty-five hundred to win. I ask all who are subscribers to the ADVOCATE, especially former pupils of Whitworth College, to send me one subscription or a renewal at once. I will acknowledge receipt of each letter.

PROGRAMMES, ETC.

We have had it in mind for some time to say this word to those who are charged with the publication of announcements and reports of District Conferences, conventions, annual meetings, etc. Frequently we are in receipt of lengthy detailed programs in advance of the meetings, sometimes with and sometimes without a request to publish in full. Then in due time we receive reports of the same meetings made up almost entirely of a repetition of topics and speakers given in the already published program, the chief difference between announcement and report being that in the first it is announced that such and such topics will be presented by such and such persons, and in the second that such and such topics were presented by such and such persons. Two objections lie against this method. First, the interest of our news columns suffers; and, second, the usually crowded state of this department will not admit of this waste of space on bare repetitions. Now, from our position we are prepared to say what our readers want; and therefore the best plan in such matters is, a terse announcement of the meetings, with only such items of information as need to be published; then an early, spicy, boiled down report of the items of the Conference or convention which are of general interest.—Exchange.

5 DROPS' FRIENDS.

At least a million and a quarter of true honest friends, who having proven its never failed merit, are only too willing to shout its praises far and near. This must appeal to you. A million and a quarter people can not all be mistaken. 5 DROPS' FRIENDS are found in every State of the Union and in every clime. The Doctor, the Lawyer, the Banker, the Merchant, the Mechanic and the Farmer, all unite in one joyous JUBILEE OF THANKS for 5 DROPS. It may be just the Friend you have long sought. Given the opportunity, it will remove that BURDEN OF SORROW in your home. It is the Enemy of Disease, but the CONQUERING HERO for Health and Happiness. Help us to make better known this FRIEND and SAVIOR of the Sick and Suffering. If happily you are strong and well, let some poor suffering Friend know what 5 DROPS has done for others and will do for them. The letters published on page 8 must convince the most skeptical of the Marvelous Powers of this "THE GREATEST OF ALL HOUSEHOLD REMEDIES."

THE BRIGHT SIDE.

A really successful man must be optimistic; he must thoroughly believe in the good, the beautiful, and the true; he must not think that everything is going "to the dogs;" for everywhere, the world over, there is an upward trend, a tendency toward a higher civilization; the conditions of mankind are constantly being ameliorated and bettered. The successful man sees an upward look in the tendency of the world, and sees that the aspiration of mankind, as a whole, is toward the higher and the better, not toward the lower and the worse. A cheerful optimistic temperament is worth everything to one starting out to fight life's battles.

As a rule, we find the world is but a looking-glass which flings back to us only the reflection of ourselves; if we laugh, it laughs back to us; if we shed tears, it reflects but a sorrowful face. It is merely a whispering gallery; if we are bright and cheerful the echoes will be joyous and glad.

Learn to see things with your eyes, not with your prejudices.—Success.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To the Members of the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences:

For forty years I have been a pastor in the Mississippi Conference, having entered the work in November, 1857. The Lord has blessed me in this service, but I am growing old, and still have several children whose education is not complete. Our Conference is well supplied with younger men, and still they come. Under the circumstances, I have consented to take charge of one of the boarding houses at Millsaps College (Williams Hall). We can accommodate twenty five, or more, boarders. We propose to give them the best of care, and make the house a "home" to them in the best sense of the word. We have long tried to maintain a Christian home of the purest type in which to rear our own children, and we will spare no pains to keep the standard high for the benefit of the young gentlemen who may be intrusted to our care. At present address me at Carthage, Miss.

FAIREST AND BEST.

BY AGNES LEONARD HILL.

When I go to that beautiful country,
Away from this mortal unrest,
And am asked what I choose for my portion
By the angel who loveth me best;

I think I shall kneel by my angel
And, kissing the hem of her gown,
I shall whisper, oh, fair and beloved,
The harp and the glory and crown,

And all of the splendor awaiting
The pilgrims that heavenward roam,
Would oppress and appall me—beloved,
I ask of thee only a home.

One fair little spot unmolested
By even the barps of the blest,
Where sheltered and happy the children
Might grow in a quiet home-nest.

I have waited so long, blessed angel,
I may not be worthy a crown,
But if all of my travel-stained garments
I might for a moment lay down,

I would ask for the robe of a mother,
Who sits with her baby to rest;
For this is my dream, blessed angel,
Of all that is fairest and best.

A CURTAIN LECTURE.

My son, when you hear a man growling and scolding because Moody gets $200 a week for preaching Christianity, you will perceive that he never worried a minute because Ingersoll gets $200 a night for preaching atheism. You will observe that the man who is unutterably shocked because Francis Murphy is paid $150 per week for temperance work, seems to think it is all right when the barkeeper takes in twice as much money in a single day. The laborer is worthy of his hire, my boy, and he is just as worthy of it in the pulpit as he is upon the stump. Is the man who is honestly trying to save your immortal soul worth less than the man who is only trying his level best to go to Congress? Isn't Moody doing as good a work as Ingersoll? Was not John B. Gough as much the friend of humanity and society as the bartender? Do you want to get all the good in the world for nothing so that you may be able to pay a high price for the bad?

Remember, my boy, the good things in the world are always the cheapest. Spring water costs less than corn whisky; a box of cigars will buy two or three Bibles; a gallon of old brandy costs more than a barrel of flour; a "full hand" at poker often costs a man more in twenty minutes than his church subscription amounts to in three years; a State election costs more than a revival of religion; you can sleep in church every Sunday morning for nothing, if you're mean enough to dead beat your lodging that way, but a nap in a Pullman car costs you $2 every time; fifty cents for the circus and a penny for the little ones to put in the missionary box; $1 for the theatre, a pair of old trousers, frayed at the ends, baggy at the knees, and utterly bursted at the dome, for the Michigan sufferers; the dancing lady who tries to wear the skirt of her dress under her arm and the waist around her knees, and kicks her slipper clear over the orchestra chairs every night, gets $600 a week, and the city missionary gets $500 a year; the horse race scoops $2,000 the first day, and the church fair lasts a week, works twenty-five or thirty of the best women in America nearly to death, and comes out $40 in debt—why, my boy, if you ever find yourself sneering or scoffing because once in a while you hear of a preacher getting a living, or even a luxurious salary, or a temperance worker making money, go out in the dark and feel ashamed of yourself, and if you don't feel above kicking a mean man, kick yourself. Precious little does religion and charity cost the old world, my son, and when the money it does get is flung in its face, like a bone to a dog, the donor is not benefited by the gift and certainly should not be grateful. He is insulted.—Burdette.

The want which we vainly proposed to relieve soon looks up at us with reproachful face from the still graves. The tears we failed to wipe away dry upon the cheek, and leave us in the presence of the averted features of distrust, instead of the eye of sweet reliance. The just expectation which we have disappointed can not be recovered; there must be a long undoing, before you can weave again, in even lines and pattern fair, the tangled web of life.—James Martineau.

LIFE IS A FINE ART.

Life is a fine art. Character, conscientiousness, will transform discord and deformity into harmony and beauty. Some women will make a delightful home in a house without a picture, a carpet, or a piece of bric-a-brac. They have the secret of compelling order and sweetness to live with even bare floors and pictureless walls. Other women could not make a home with a million dollars. There may be plenty of books, costly tapestries, superb furnishings, elegant pictures, but no warmth, no harmony, no love, no sweetness, no contentment, none of that indescribable charm which beautiful natures cast upon everything about them, that atmosphere of harmony which surrounds noble souls, and in which grows all that is beautiful and uncramped, is wanting.

We have been in the houses of millionaires whose forbidding coldness chilled us to the bone; where there was no fitness of things, no sense of proportion; where nothing appealed to the higher life, or touched the finer sensibilities; where everything savored of money and smelled of the shop; where suddenly acquired wealth had brought nothing of finer culture to uncouth and uncultured minds; where everything seemed to partake of the vulgar dollar. We have been in the homes of poverty where an air of refinement and sweet culture rested like a benediction upon every member of the family, and clung to every piece of furniture. High thinking went with the plain living; an ideal simplicity pervaded the very atmosphere, and the soul rejoiced in the absence of all constraint.—Success.

"IT PAYS."

Boys, the writer knows this to be true: Several years ago a young man in the interior of Iowa wanted to go into business. He had the money for part of the goods needed, and wanted to buy as many more on short time. The wholesale man he wished to buy of had the reputation of being a difficult man to deal with. He visited him and laid the matter before him.

"Well," said he, "I shall have to consider that before giving you an answer, but let me offer you a drink," pointing to a sideboard filled with the choicest selection of wines and other liquors kept in his private office.

"No, thank you," said the young man, "I never drink liquors of any kind."

The gentleman frowned and urged him to taste especially nice wine. The young man replied, "I dislike very much to offend you, sir, but I have promised my mother never under any circumstances to touch wine, have never broken my word to her, and can not now."

"Young man," said the merchant, turning and embracing him to his great astonishment, "you can have all the goods you wish, and need pay no money down if it is not convenient."

It is needless to add that the young man was prospered in his business and has led a happy, useful life. It pays!—The Gatling Gun.

PRAISE TO THE FACE.

I once saw a father walk up to a map his little boy had made and pinned on the wall. He stood before it a long time in silence, and in silence walked away. The little fellow was sitting in the room, and his father knew he was there. He was watching with his eager child's eyes, waiting anxiously for a word of approval. As none came, his poor little face fell unhappily. Straight into the next room walked the father, and said carelessly:

"Robert has drawn a very clever little map in there. Look at it when you go in."

"Did you tell him it was clever?" asked a judicious listener, following him from the room where little Robert still sat.

"Why, no. I ought to have done so. I never thought to mention it."

"Well, you ought to be ashamed of yourself," was the deserved reply. "Go back now and tell him."

We ought all of us to be ashamed of ourselves a dozen times a day for like sins of omission. It costs so little to say nice things, and the result in another's pleasure is out of all proportion to our trouble.

Praise to the face: open disgrace.

No such thing. The proverb is wrong. Praise to the face is one of the sweetest things on earth, and there is no disgrace in it unless untruth enters, or unless the praise is undeserved. It is the more grateful because no one may ask for open praise and receive by asking. When it comes thus at call, it is not praise; its fine flavor is quite gone, and it is but flattery.—Harper's Bazar.

A MISSIONARY HEROINE.

At Rangoon I attended a service at the chapel of the American mission. Over 1,000 adults were present, and the preacher, twenty-two years of age, who had arrived at Rangoon the day before, preached with marvelous fluency. He was a missionary's son. As a child, he lived with his father and mother in the jungles of Burmah, where it was the business of the father to follow the Karens, who were nomads, on their wanderings. Cholera came, and the missionary died. It seemed the plain duty of the widow to return to America with her only child that he might be educated. But the thought came, "If I leave these Karens, who is going to look after them?" She saw it to be her duty to let her son go home by himself while she remained in the jungle to carry on the work. For seven years and a half she toiled, doing herself the full work of a missionary all alone. She preached, baptized, buried the members when they died, administered the sacrament and saw a great harvest. All the time she prayed, "God save my boy." One day a letter came. He was converted, and wrote, "I think I will be a missionary." She replied: "That is what I want; come and take up your father's work." The day before she had welcomed her boy, and now sat hearing him preach. I said to myself, "If ever Christ had a heroine, this is one!"—Rev. Henry Haigh.

MINDS.

Minds, like other measures of capacity, when they are full can not be any fuller of that which they are full of. One more drop of water will cause the brimful glass to overflow. But that same brimful glass may have packed into it more than its bulk of loose raw cotton without spilling the water. Similarly, one may have one's mind so full of one flow of thought or care that one drop more would be disastrous; but a wholly different kind of thought can, like the raw cotton, be packed into it without seemingly making it any fuller. This is one of the secrets of accomplishment. It includes the secret of true recreation.—Great Thoughts.

Prince Albert lay dying in Windsor Castle. "Victoria, sing to me." "What shall I sing, Albert?" "Sing 'Rock of Ages, cleft for me, let me hide myself in thee.'" So amid her sobs she sang those words while the soul of Albert was going out.

The bitterest tears shed over graves are for words left unsaid and deeds left undone. "She never knew how I loved her." "He never knew what he was to me." "I always meant to make more of our friendship." Such words are the poisoned arrows which cruel death shoots backward at us from the sepulchre.—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

Hygiene.

COFFEE AND HEADACHE IN SCHOOL CHILDREN.

Prof. A. R. Spade, of Wilmington, Del., writes in the Journal of Education that "poor ventilation is not responsible for all the dullness and headache among school children. In our school of 200 pupils, at least 170 were found to be tea and coffee drinkers, with the habit so strongly fastened upon some of them that they could not well do without coffee for one day.

"If we only knew how much headache and even heart trouble the use of tea and coffee produces, a mighty crusade would be made against their use. They are positively injurious to children and young people, and many persons past middle life would be much better off without them. An experienced physician, who has spent many years in a great hospital, declares that over 70 per cent. of the cases classed under nervous diseases, that came under his personal observations, were caused by tea and coffee drinking."

How parents who have the welfare of their children at heart can allow them to use tea and coffee is a mystery. Would it not be better to banish it from their tables so there could be no excuse because father and mother use it. Both tea and coffee are poisonous to the young in a greater degree than to those in the prime of life, because then they throw it off more easily, and their brains are less sensitive, but those drink poison to a certain extent all who use them.—Journal of Hygiene.

VENTILATING THE BEDROOM.

The ventilation of the bedroom at night, as well as when it is occupied through the daytime, is of much importance. It is said that the body emits about one and one-half pounds of poisons in twenty-four hours. Much of this is carbonic acid gas, which is odorless, but a small proportion is of a much more deadly character, and is called organic poison. It gives to the room that fusty odor which one often notices on going into an ill-ventilated bedroom early in the morning. At every exhalation three cubic feet of air are rendered unfit to breathe, and if the room is small, it takes but a short time for the air to become very impure.

Patterson, Bible Agent, Caracas, Venezuela, Aug 19, 1889.

CHOLERA VICTIMS.

John Ullin, Ohio Conference, July 13, 1833; Barnabas McHenry, Kentucky, June 16, 1833; Marcus Lindsey, Kentucky, July 27, 1833; Thomas Drummond, St. Louis, Mo., June 14, 1835; Alexander Talley, Vicksburg, Miss., ——, 1838; Wm. Tosstrick, New Orleans, La., March, 1849; Isaac Boring, St. Louis, Mo., May, 1850; Samuel D. Baldwin, Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 8, 1866; Robert W. Lambuth, Canton, Miss., July, 1867; L. C. Dauby, Garnettsville, Ky., July 27, 1873.

Dr. Boring, above mentioned, died at St. Louis while attending the General Conference as a delegate from the Georgia Conference.

There may be a few omissions in the above lists, as in some instances the cause of death was not noted in the published memoir, which, probably, it was yellow fever; and I could not have access to the published Minutes from 1840 to '44, inclusive.

"When the roll is called up yonder" we expect to meet and greet those heroic brethren of the Christian ministry

"Where sickness, sorrow, pain and death
Are felt and feared no more."

OBITUARIES.

Obituaries of 200 words published free. For all words in excess of that number send one cent per word.

RANDELL—Miss HATTIE L. RANDELL, only daughter of David and Vishti Randell, was born Feb. 28, 1879, at Roseits, Miss., and died Sept. 21, 1898, at the home of her parents. They had only two children born to them—one son and daughter. Hattie was the baby. Hattie was good, of sweet disposition, passionately fond of her parents, to whom she yielded a cheerful and affectionate obedience. She was devoted to her parents and brother; she was loved by all that knew her; she was a favorite of her schoolmaster and teacher. It seemed hard when the ruthless hand of death should claim for his own one so lovable; and why the Lord should call away one so young is more than we mortals can understand; but we know that he makes no mistakes—he doeth all things well; and in her loss we feel that the tenderest ties that bind together all humanity are not severed by the grave, or even death. But, as our fondest and esteemed are often passing from this world to the realities of the world to come, we humbly bow ourselves in submission to the dispensation of God's providence, and that our loss is his eternal gain. She was a faithful and obedient daughter, sister, and friend, and she possessed those rare traits of character, such as gentleness, meekness, and modesty.

We tender our deepest sympathy to her host of relatives and friends, and especially to the bereaved father and mother and brother whom she leaves to mourn her loss; and may kind and gentle words keep us all in the right way, and the blessed Spirit lead us all to the bright home where we hope to meet our loved ones in the sweet by and by!

C. C. GRIFFIN, P. C.

Hirem, Miss.

JONES—Miss LOUISE JONES, daughter of Mr. Cherlie Jones, of Lowndes county, Miss., was born Aug. 12, 1871; joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1886, in which she lived a consistent member until her death, Sept. 8, 1898.

Her life was fruitful of good works, although death claimed her for a victim when she was just budding into womanhood. Whenever and wherever needed, she was there found ready to serve in any way, in order to lighten burdens or alleviate pain. Possessing a genial nature, her presence was a benediction in the sick-room, for it was a ray of sunshine in the otherwise darkened chamber of the sufferer. Kind, tender, and thoughtful, she was a ministering angel to many afflicted ones.

Just before her fatal sickness I held a protracted meeting at Mt. Pleasant, the church of which she was a member. She was my organist, and every service found her at her post. During this meeting she consecrated herself to God and his service; so, by death, the Lord has only enlarged the sphere of her labor. She serves him now more perfectly. She was patient and uncomplaining during her last sickness, though suffering severely.

I extend to her loved ones my most heartfelt sympathy. May we all meet her in heaven!

EUGENE JOHNSON.

EQUEN—JONTE EQUEN was born in New Orleans, La., and died there on Sunday, Sept. 11 1898. He passed away in his prime, being only forty-seven years of age. He first embarked in business in Wexahatchie, Texas. Returning to New Orleans, he clerked awhile, and then merchandised in Greenville and Columbus, Miss. In 1884 he began in New Orleans a brokerage business, and represented important milling interests. Prominent in commercial circles, he bore a part in all that tended to the betterment of the community. A Knight of Honor and a leader in the anti-Lottery cause, he was also a member of the Citizens' League. In 1885 he married Miss Willie Sykes, of Columbus, Miss., and she and five young children survive him, as do also his mother, Mrs. S. S. Hoover, and four sisters. Conscious to the last, and firmly relying upon his crucified Redeemer, he was sustained and fully saved in the passage of death, falling asleep in Jesus.

When Jonte Equen died, there went from earth a dutiful son, a kind brother, an affectionate husband, an indulgent father, a true friend, a good citizen, a genuine man. Passed into the world of light and life, he wears the crown immortal.

S.

LONG—BESSIE LONG was born Sept 7, 1882, and died, after a brief illness, at her home in Carroll county, Miss., Aug. 25, 1898. She was an affectionate sister, and a most loving and dutiful daughter. For some months previous to her death she took charge of much of the business about the premises, by reason of her father's feeble health. Though so young and inexperienced, she did it nobly and well. Many an errand to the postoffice, or to some place on the farm, superintending the care of stock, or directing in other labor, did she perform bravely, and with a glad and willing heart. She gave every evidence of Christian faith and experience, and although she had never been received into the communion of the church, yet had avowed her earnest purpose to do so, and but for her untimely death would, doubtless, have been a member now. Scattering sunshine and gladness wherever she went, her departure leaves a void in fond and devoted hearts. By and by God shall heal all sorrows and wipe away all tears.

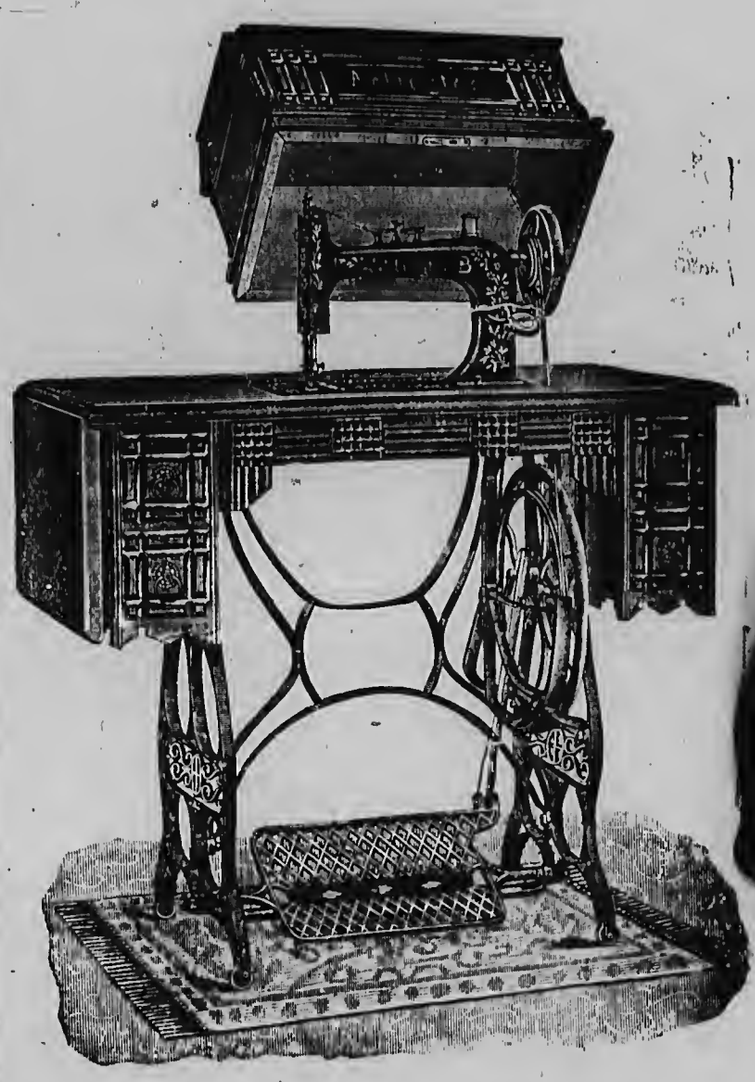
Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc.



The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high-arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take-up, convenient foot rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one bindar, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one gauge, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE ARM is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearing polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—The "Arlington B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light to heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great length; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell, without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless and are very durable.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

A gospel ship has been built at Jeffersonville, Ind., which will be employed along the coast of Cuba and Porto Rico.

The bicycle craze has decreased, the consumptions of cigars in America by about 1,000,000 a day. The decrease since the craze set in has actually been 700,000,000 a year.

The Spanish Peace Commissioners are making pertinacious efforts to get the American Commissioners to adopt the Spanish position on the Cuban debt question. The Americans absolutely refuse to consider it.

The Harvard faculty of arts and sciences has voted that all students who were in the service of the United States Army and Navy last June, and for that reason were absent from the final examinations, should receive full credit for the year's work and be graded where it is possible.

Paris just now might be in a state of siege. Troops are dotted about all over the capital. Almost all the places where work of construction is going on are guarded. There is a manifest desire upon the part of the striking natives to bring about a general cessation of labor by any and every means.

One member of the faculty of the Catholic University at Washington enjoys the unique distinction of being the only professor of Gaelic language in this country. This is Father Richard Henebery, who has just arrived from Ireland, the chair at Washington having been founded by the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

It is learned on good authority that Ex-Queen Liliuokalaai will leave for Washington about the middle of November, to press her claims against Congress for remuneration for the loss of her throne and the revenue from the crown lands, for which she feels that the people of the United States owe her some pecuniary compensation.

It is said that since 1895 the war with Cuba, including the consequent war with the United States, has cost Spain the sum of $375,000,000, without reference to the loss of her rich colonies and of her splendid naval vessels. Placing the value of the colonies at a moderate estimate, the total loss to Spain must be not far from $1,000,000,000.

Felipe Agoncillo, the representative of Aguinaldo, the leader of the Philippines, has sailed for France, where he expects to be allowed to present the appeal of the Filipinos to the American Peace Commissioners. "We had enough of Spanish misrule," said he, "and if the United States will not grant us independence like the Cubans, then we will have to be satisfied with annexation."

A decree of Captain-General Blanco, dated Oct. 5, has been published. It provides that a full discharge be granted to every enlisted man who has the right to it and who desires to remain in Cuba. It provides for the transfer to the second reserve of those who, possessing the necessary qualifications, wish to remain in Cuba. The decree provides for the return to Spain of those who may have previously lost the right to a return passage.

It appears that a band of the Chippewas in Minnesota have committed a number of deprodations recently, and that an effort has been made to apprehend the guilty parties. These attempts on the part of the authorities have been resisted by the Indians, who refused to give up the men wanted. As a body of the United States troops were sent into their settlement, last week, to make the arrests, a sharp fight was the result. Six soldiers were killed and about fifteen wounded.

Now that the process of mustering out the first batch of volunteers has been about completed, the War Department has commenced the task of reorganizing the army. The force now in Manila is to be kept as a separate corps, while the balance of the troops are to be divided into four army corps. These four corps are to be quartered at various Southern camps, situated mainly in Georgia and Alabama. The Seventh Army Corps, of which General Fitzhugh Lee is the commander, is destined for service in Cuba, and General Lee himself will, in all probability, command at Havana.

While negotiations are progressing more or less satisfactorily in Paris, the work of the Military Commission at Havana has come practically to a standstill. The deadlock has arisen over the date of evacuation. The Spaniards demand that the date of evacuation be fixed for April next, while the American Military Commissioners insist that immediate evacuation is what was contemplated and what this country demands. Here the case stands apparently, and as Military Commissions are only deliberative bodies, the question in dispute has been referred to their respective governments by the commissioners for final settlement.

President McKinley has cabled the United States Military Commission at Porto Rico that the island must be evacuated by the Spanish forces on or before Oct. 18, and that the Spanish Commissioners be so informed. In case of the failure of the Spaniards to complete the evacuation by that date, the United States Commissioners are directed to take possession and exercise all of the functions of government, and in case it is found to be impossible to secure transportation for the Spanish troops by Oct. 18, they be permitted to go into temporary quarters until transports can be secured to take them to Spain.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS H. CLIFFORD, Booneville, Miss., EDITOR.

Every Epworth Leagner is pledged to work against the iniquitous liquor traffic.

We congratulate our fellow Leagners "across the line" for their recent record in the direction of State prohibition.

Eighteen thousand majority for prohibition was recently registered by our Canadian cousins, and thus they occupy a place in the front rank of recent prohibition movements.

The "antis" called it a "measly" majority, but when we take into account the size of the Dominion and the large population of French speaking people in Quebec and Montreal and vicinities, we think the record made—a good one.

The French clergy (Roman Catholic) advised their people in favor of the manufacture and sale because of revenue, etc., and thus in Canada, as in most other countries, "Rum and Romanism" work together.

Governor McLaurin deserves a resolution of thanks from every Leaguer in Mississippi for the stand he recently took with reference to the proposed "literary tiger" in Jackson, Miss.

A young man with bright promise—a former student at Vanderbilt University—member of a good family in Alabama, recently, while under the influence of strong drink, shot a man in California, and is now before the courts for trial.

The following excerpt from the Arkansas Methodist is in place just here:

Near our office is the Garibaldi Saloon. Into it we see young men passing day by day. Are these young men slaves to drink? They would resent the accusation. But they have much more reason to be ashamed to enter a saloon than any bloated toper. They say, "We can let it alone." It is the more to their shame that they don't do it, then. The only plea for drinking that any one can make with which a sensible man can sympathize is, that "he can not help it."

We are requested to announce that leaflets containing a biographical sketch of Dr. and Mrs. Fearn have just been sent out by the Mission Board to all League presidents in Mississippi. These League officers are asked to only distribute among the Leaguers.

Several copies of the Minutes of Fourth State Conference of Epworth Leagues in Mississippi, held in Meridian, April 14-17, are before us. They are well arranged and well printed. Copies have been sent to all presidents in the State for use and reference in their respective chapters.

THIRD ANNUAL EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE OF THE MERIDIAN DISTRICT.

The third Annual Epworth League Conference of Meridian district was held in West End Church, Meridian, Miss., Sept. 13 and 14. Not as many delegates outside of the city were present as we expected, but we attributed this to the yellow fever scare. Much interest was manifested, and this proved to be the best District Conference ever held here.

There were a number of fine papers read during these sessions. These will be published in some form in the near future.

Wednesday morning Rev. B. A. Pendleton, pastor of West End Presbyterian Church, was introduced to the Conference. He made a few "catching" remarks: "The League is going to get there!" Compared us to a stamp and letter—if the letter reaches its destination, it will have to stick to the stamp; if we reach our destination, heaven, will have to stick close to the Son of God.

We expected to have Dr. H. M. DuBose with us Wednesday night, but were very much disappointed, he being unavoidably detained.

Following officers were elected: President, Rev. Henry Hawkins; first vice-president, Mr. N. D. Hawkins, South Side; second vice-president, Miss Anna K Trotter, Langsdale, Miss; third vice-president, Miss Cora Harrington, Daleville, Miss; secretary, Miss Viola Gilbert, West End. Superintendent of Junior Department, Miss Lula E. Summers, Central, Meridian.

We have an earnest set of officers for this year, and we hope and pray for large results, carrying out the mottoes of our Leagues: "Look Up, Lift Up," and "All for Christ."

It was left with district secretary to appoint place for our next Conference. SEC.

WHAT SCROFULA IS.

Scrofula is a disease as old as antiquity. It has been handed down for generations, and is the same to-day as in early times. It is emphatically a disease of the blood, and the only way to cure it is by purifying the blood. That is just what Hood's Sarsaparilla does in every case where it is given, a faithful trial. It eradicates all impurities from the blood, and cures the sores, boils, pimples, and all forms of skin disease due to scrofula taints in the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla has won the greatest praise of vast numbers of people by its grand and complete cures. Don't allow scrofula to develop in your blood. Cure it at once by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

PAINT TALKS—IX.

A PRACTICAL DEMONSTRATION.

In the preceding papers of this series I have given various reasons for preferring the better class of combination paints. I now propose that the property owner shall put this teaching to a practical proof which is within the reach of anyone that has a house to be painted this Fall.

I propose that he shall paint one-half of each side of the house with pure white lead and oil (being careful to purchase lead bearing the brand of an actual corroder), and the other half with some good combination paint. I am particular about the brand of lead, because a combination paint might easily be purchased by mistake, and the test would then be between two combination paints, and would prove nothing as to the qualities of lead. Let him note, first, the actual cost of painting equally well each of the two halves; then let him observe the comparative appearance of each; and as time passes let him watch the deterioration of each.

Within a year or two the superiority of the combination paint will be demonstrated; and if the experimenter, when repainting becomes necessary, would repaint only the portion repairing it with the original material, adding the cost to the original item, under its proper head, he could eventually settle this question so effectually in his own neighborhood that there would be no longer room for any argument about it.

It would not be proper for me to advertise here any of the many combination paints suitable for this test; but if anyone desiring to make the experiment will address me in care of this paper, I will furnish a list of approved makes, obtainable in his neighborhood.

To make this experiment fair, each exposure of the house should be divided (roughly) into two halves, of which one should be painted with pure white lead, the other with the combination paint. Every exposure will thus have an equal chance, which is necessary to a fair test, as the southern exposure is much more severe on paints than the other exposures. The brands should also be removed from the packages and private marks substituted, so that the painter may not be tempted to treat the two kinds of paint differently. It might also be instructive to inquire which paint the painter regards, from its appearance and working qualities, as the better.

Here is a practical suggestion, which, if carried out by a sufficient number of property owners throughout the country, will settle the paint question definitely, and will eventually save a great deal of money and annoyance to the paint-consuming public.

I have asserted that a properly prepared combination paint containing a large proportion of zinc white is cheaper, covers more surface, holds its color longer, and is more durable than any other form of house paint; and if paint authorities know anything about the subject, the paint user will save himself money and trouble by following my suggestion. STANTON DUDLEY.

5 DROPS (TRADE MARK.)

What Mr. John R. Collins of Durbun (Miss.) writes June 19: For the past three years I have suffered with pain over my whole body so that I was unable to do a whole day's work on the farm at any time, and for the last months I had given up entirely from work of any kind and despaired of ever being cured. I had tried all remedies I could find but with little benefit. "5 DROPS" was recommended to me, and I commenced taking the same some time in January and immediately saw that it had the desired effect on the diseases from which I was suffering, which were RHEUMATISM, ASTHMA, KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLE, and I am now as well as ever by the use of "5 DROPS," and can plow all day long Mississippi fashion. I take pleasure in writing this for the benefit of people who may be suffering in a similar manner; and I will gladly answer any letter that any sufferer may write to me, and send them proofs as to my condition at present and before. Yours truly. JOHN R. COLLINS.

Mr. J. W. Sanders, Earl, (Ark.) writes July 7, '98: I suffered terribly with catarrh for four years, but after using two bottles of "5 DROPS" I recovered and am now entirely well, and as fat as a hog, and I give your "5 DROPS" the praise for I could not find anything that would give me the slightest relief until I tried this great remedy. I can truthfully say that it has cured me, and I give "5 DROPS" the name of being the best medicine that can be made, and recommend it to everybody as a permanent cure for Catarrh. Sincerely, J. W. SANDERS

Eli Cherry, Notary Public, Gillis Mills, (Tenn.) writes July 11, '98: I am a farmer and have labored very hard. Three years ago I was taken with severe pains in left breast and about my heart, and the best doctors said I had Neuralgia of the heart and could never get well. I had to quit work and had very bad spells with my heart. My daughter, Mrs. H. T. Franks, saw your "5 DROPS" advertised, and she ordered a bottle for me, and it did me so much good that she ordered a second bottle, and after using that one I felt as good as I ever did, and have made a full hand in the field this year; and my old neighbors and friends are astonished and are all inquiring of me what cured me, and I can only say "5 DROPS" DID IT. Even the doctors are astonished at my recovery, and a great many of my friends who are afflicted with Neuralgia and Rheumatism wish me to send and get them some of the wonderful remedy, "5 DROPS." Trusting that the people who are suffering may see this testimonial and have confidence enough to give "5 DROPS" a trial, I am, Respectfully, ELI CHERRY, Notary Public

If you have not sufficient confidence, after reading these letters to send for THREE LARGE BOTTLES, FOR $2.50, which will surely cure you, then send for a $1.00 BOTTLE, which contains enough medicine to more than satisfy you of its wonderful curative properties. Prepaid by mail or express. This wonderful curative gives almost instant relief and is a PERMANENT CURE for

"5 DROPS"

THE GREATEST WONDER OF THE AGE.

Much has been said in the magazines within the last few months about the liquifaction of air and its wonderful results. The new discovery, however, has been regarded by the general public as one of very little practical value. This opinion, it seems, is no longer tenable. Prof. A. L. Metz, the distinguished occupant of the Chair of Chemistry in Tulane University, was recently interviewed by a Times-Democrat reporter, and his views on the subject are given in an article from which we quote as follows:

"By next Summer, possibly, or, at any rate, in the very near future," said Prof. A. L. Metz, the city chemist, "people in New Orleans and elsewhere will keep their houses cool just as they now keep them warm—by closing the doors and windows. The temperature inside will be as low as desired, and the whole thing will be done by little vessels hung up in the ventilators and filled with liquid air considerably colder than 300 degrees below zero.

"There is nothing extravagant about my prediction," continued Prof. Metz. "It is simply the practical outcome of what is perhaps the greatest discovery of the age. I refer, of course, to the method of producing liquid air on a commercial scale, because the product itself is not new. Made cheaply and easily, as it is now, it is destined, in my opinion, to play a tremendous role in the future of civilization, and will closely rival electricity in its effects upon the economic conditions of the world."

New Orleans will see its first specimen of the new scientific marvel some time in November. Prof. Metz will go to New York for a brief visit next week, and he proposes to bring about twenty-five gallons of the air. That is to say, he will start with twenty-five gallons, but the loss from evaporation is so great that it is doubtful whether he will arrive with more than six or eight. This will be ample, however, for a series of experiments which he has projected for his class at Tulane University, and which will certainly surpass in interest anything ever seen in the South. The air will be obtained from an establishment which is now being equipped for its wholesale manufacture at the corner of One Hundred and Thirty-sixth street and Ryder avenue in New York. A large plant is being put in at that point, and it is expected that the liquid will be produced in practically unlimited quantities at a cost of only ten cents a gallon. It is already being made at fifty cents a gallon in Brooklyn.

In this connection it is not only possible, but probable, that a branch plant will be installed in New Orleans within a year. It is the purpose of the New York concern to begin at once on the erection of substations in the larger cities, so as to do away with the necessity of transportation, and certain steps have already been taken looking to the establishment of one here. If the plan be carried out, the New Orleans public is on the eve of a change no less than revolutionary in the conditions of every-day life.

Everybody knows in a general way that there is such a thing as liquified air, but few are familiar with the details of the subject.

In 1884 a Russian named Olszewski succeeded in making a small amount of liquid air. He was followed by Prof. Dewar, in this country, who liquified several quarts of air in his laboratory in 1890, but the process was far too expensive to permit of commercial use.

It was reserved for Prof. Charles E. Tripler, a chemist living in Brooklyn, to solve the problem and devise an apparatus that would work cheaply and turn out the substance in large quantities. This he did first in 1891, but his machine required many improvements, and the process has really been perfected only within the last year. All the liquid air that had been made before was merely a scientific toy, like the minute artificial diamonds that cost ten times as much as the natural gem; but it has now become possible to turn it out in vast quantities at a ridiculously small expense.

The New York plant referred to at the outset is under the direction of two skillful young chemists, Oscar P. Ostergren and Maritz Brüger. They will use a process essentially similar to that of Prof. Tripler, but have improved upon it in the direction of cheapening the product. They are backed by a company that has put up over a million dollars, and hope to introduce the liquid as a domestic commodity within two months.

Liquid air looks a great deal like water, except that it has a slight bluish cast. It is extremely limpid, and there is nothing about its appearance to indicate the incredible cold which it represents. The more fantastic experiments performed by Tripler and others have been made familiar to the public through the magazines and other prints. Most metals, when immersed in it, lose their former properties and acquire strange new ones. For example, sheet iron becomes like bread crust, and may be crumbled between the fingers. Lead becomes elastic and stretches like India rubber. A frozen tin cup dropped to the floor breaks like glass.

"The commercial possibilities and those in the line of domestic use are simply unlimited," said Prof. Metz. "An 8-ounce tumbler of the liquid may be placed in a refrigerator, and it will maintain the interior at a point below zero for twenty-four hours. There will be no expense for ice, no mess from dripping water, no uncertainty about results. One of the most important points about the liquid is the fact that it is perfectly pure and harmless, and its fumes will carry no taint. All sorts of food products may be frozen solid and kept indefinitely, and we can keep our homes at whatever temperature we desire. The sick need not suffer from heat in Summer, and there is no telling what valuable service the new substance may render to surgeons in the way of disinfecting and sterilization.

"I believe, too," continued Prof. Metz, "that it is very apt to be the motor power of the future, especially as applied to horseless carriages, automobiles of every description, and bicycles. It is so wonderfully compact, and the force it generates is so enormous, that it is almost certain to be employed in the propulsion of machinery. It is equally probable that it will come into use as a high explosive. In a shell adapted to its peculiarities it would develop a far greater force than dynamite, mellinite, or any of the other compounds recently made familiar to the general public. In short, there is hardly any limit to its possibilities, and if the war had not happened to distract the attention of the public at the time it did, it would have created far greater excitement than the X ray. But they are going right ahead in the North, and it is safe to say that liquid air will be as familiar in the near future as is the telephone."

THE PANIC: WHAT IS THOUGHT OF IT BY ITS OWN VICTIMS.

A short time since Mr. Edgar S. Wilson, editor of the Mississippi Department of the New Orleans Picayune, went to Chicago to look after his journalistic interests among the thousands of Mississippians now refugeeing there. We quote from him as follows:

"Almost with one accord the Mississippi refugees in Chicago are saying that they were too precipitate in their flight, while others are bitterly lamenting the fact that they came at all, and all of them whom I have met to-day say that something must be done to stop this panic that is ruining and, if not remedied, will beggar the State. Not a few of the Mississippians I find here say that they are more afraid of the quarantines than they are of the fever itself, which in most places has proven of a very mild type. Another name, they say, would rob yellow fever of its terror, and business would go on in the accustomed way, and the State would continue on its rapid march to greatness.

The worst blow Mississippi has been struck has been by its own people. They have discredited the commonwealth by skipping out on the wings of the morning, and the people of the country have had a right to think that the yellow fever is worse than any plague recorded in sacred or profane history. But when they read later in the Associated Press dispatches that there have not been 500 cases in the whole State and not 50 deaths after a month's prevalence of the fever, they laughed at the flight of a people who have taken their place in the forefront of the ranks of the bravest of the brave, and wonder what on earth possessed them to leave home, country and kin, and flee from a fever that even some of the experts who advised this flight have stated they had rather treat than measles. Fortunately, the low death-rate has kept the State from being permanently hurt by this stampede of the people, for, after all, death is the test by which the health of a State or municipality is measured.

I had a talk to-day with a number of Mississippians touching Mississippi and its future, with reference to fever and quarantines.

Hon. Ben H. Wells, the brilliant and esteemed senator, who ably represents Hinds county, of Mississippi, in the State Senate, said: "An epidemic of yellow fever does not come every year. More people die annually in Chicago from epidemics of infections and contagious diseases than die in the whole State of Mississippi in the years when yellow fever comes.

"'Depopulation,' as a remedy, will never again be sanctioned by the people of the State for a disease from the effects of which the death-rate is only 10 per cent. A little time, along with their present experience, will teach our people that the 'depopulation' idea is all wrong."

Mr. W. S. Hayne, of the well-known cotton firm of Hayne & Co., expressed his views in the following words: "Thousands of people have run from quarantines—not fever. I came here simply to get back to some point in Mississippi not tied up and shut off from all business by shotgun cowardice or quarantine, and I believe there are thousands no more afraid of the fever than I am. I expected to stay ten days; have been here two days, and can't get back anywhere. It is disgraceful that as healthy a country as there is in the world should be depopulated annually, and considered a death-trap, by a senseless panic, a so-called epidemic which decreases the death-rate. The people of Mississippi may as well be dead as dead-broke, and with another stampede they will all be the latter. They will have to get brains or courage from Louisiana, call the disease yellowoid, and stick it out, or convert the whole State into a combination lunatic asylum and almshouse. The whole State suffers by the panic and quarantines; non-infected points and farmers in the country as much as those unfortunates left in the so-called 'plague-stricken' towns.

"The people will have to learn to stay at home and attend to business, fever or no fever, or emigrate from the State. The majority of the people I have seen are sorry they left, and would like to get back if the quarantines were raised. I do not think any of them will leave next year, unless the quarantine authorities use physical force to drive them on the north-bound trains."

Mr. R. Griffith, the accomplished and conservative cashier of the Merchants' Bank at Jackson, said: "I deplore this panicky flight of the bravest of people from the fairest of homes. I do not believe it necessary or wise. This opinion is held by many refugees with whom I have talked here."

Mr. W. H. Montgomery is one of the best-known citizens of Northeast Mississippi. He is a large planter, and is also engaged in mercantile business. Mr. Montgomery shares the belief quite common among refugees here that the fever was brought into the State by returning Cuban soldiers, and he favors a national quarantine. Then there would be no crimination and recrimination between State Boards of Health, the Board of one State charging the Board of another State with the responsibility of letting the fever in. Last year the State Board of Health of Louisiana, he says, charged the State Board of Health of Mississippi with letting the fever through that State into Louisiana, and this year the State Board of Health of Mississippi charges the State Board of Health of Louisiana with letting the fever through that State into Mississippi. A national quarantine, Mr. Montgomery thinks, would stamp out this contention.

Mr. F. L. Bellenger, the well known newspaper man of Jackson, is emphatic in stating that he regards the refugeeing of the people as a mistake. He cites the low death rate, and also the further fact that typhoid-malarial fever, which nobody pays any attention to there, kills more people, and is harder to recover from, than this so-called yellow fever that is now prevalent. Those of us who are property owners and business men must, as a policy of self protection, decide upon a rule of conduct which will inspire confidence in our own people. If this is not done, and there is a recurrence of panics, the day will soon dawn when the home-seekers from the overcrowded North will possess the land, and make it blossom like the rose of Sharon. I understand that Northern people in and around Madison and Ridgeland, both of which have the fever, have not refugeed, and that none of them have died, although some of them had the fever. There are some fifty families of these Northern people. Their conduct shows that they are willing to take their chances in the country which they have selected for their homes; and it shows, moreover, that if the people of the State of Mississippi do not mend their ways touching these senseless panics, that when the lands depreciate on account of business stagnation and brutal quarantines, Mississippi will be filled with people from the North who will profit by the misfortunes of the natives, who will be responsible for their own folly.

THE PRESS ON THE PANIC.

We present below a few sample utterances of the press concerning the yellowoid panic:

Bishop Galloway has an excellent article in the last NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE on the yellow fever situation, and shows the inefficiency of our quarantine methods, and favors a national control. The conviction that this is the only solution of this question has grown stronger with us with every visitation of the scourge that we have had since 1878. Our present system has utterly failed to check the spread of the disease. As a means of crippling commerce and causing great suffering among the poor by the complete paralysis of business, it has proved a brilliant success. There are few spectacles more humiliating than the senseless panic into which the report of yellow fever throws the country. We call it senseless deliberately, because communities that lose more people during a year with typhoid fever than would result from an epidemic of yellow fever become wildly excited and institute that most pitiable of spectacles—a shotgun quarantine.

By all means let us have a national system. It can not be a more signal failure than the one we have, and it might be better.

As to the present policy of escaping by flight and depopulating a town to prevent its spread, Bishop Galloway very pertinently says: "Of one thing the country is convinced—present policies do not meet present conditions, which conditions will become more perilous with an increasing population. It is a sad spectacle when one case of sickness will panic a community and stampede the whole State. The medical profession yet stands helpless before the disease, and acknowledges its impotency by advising the people that their only safety is in flight. Depopulation is the only remedy suggested, and an annual hegira toward the frost line is the only security promised. But the patient can not long survive the drastic remedy; the country can not carry the security. There must soon be a change of treatment, or there will be a State funeral."—Alabama Advocate.

Genuine civilization puts the best practical defense in the way of infection at all times, and does not go into lawless hysterics because some disease has here or there broken over the barrier. It is not ready to destroy all the business upon which millions are constantly depending for their livelihood on the impulse of some personal fear. It faces that kind of danger, as it faces all danger, in the discharge of the duty of a Christian and civilized man toward society, and it does not put humanity out of sight when danger appears. The chief objection to methods adopted in some Southern States is, that they are wanting in humanity, wanting in reason, and in no respect calculated to defend the true welfare of the community, on behalf of which they are supposed to be adopted.—New York Tribune.

Greatly as the material cost and loss of the panic outweighs the death danger of the present epidemic, its greatest hurt, the real cause that the Herald has spoken in opposition to its encouragement, is its evil moral effect. To say nothing of the humiliation of manhood, it is not possible to deny or avert grave demoralization through the indulgence of a sense of fear excessive beyond its cause. . . . The Herald is a thorough convert to one of the ideas that Gen. Miller throws out that the thing of all others needful is to dispel the dread in which modern yellow fever is held. "The wild panic it occasions" is ruinous to the State's material interests and debasing to its manhood.—Vicksburg Herald.

ANENT NATIONAL QUARANTINE.

Believing that it will be of interest to our readers, and instructive as well, we present a few press notices on the subject of national quarantine. Some of the papers quoted are in the North, some in the South, some Republican, some Democratic.

Mississippi is in the throes of a yellow fever panic. Town quarantines against town, and armed bands with shotguns enforce the ipse dixit of a terror-stricken mob. Railroads have in some instances suspended their trains; commerce stagnates, schools are closed. And now comes an appeal from State officials to the general government for aid. Yet only at the last session of Congress Mississippi threw all its official weight against the bill introduced by Senator Caffery, of Louisiana, for the establishment of a national quarantine service, which, had it been in operation during the past few months, would probably have afforded sufficient protection against such an invasion as that which has now overtaken the State. "States' rights" scored a fool's victory in defeating the Caffery bill, and to that victory the stricken Mississippians must charge their present misery. When the matter again comes up in Congress the Mississippians may, perhaps, be willing to abate something from the claim of States' rights for the sake of protection against Yellow Jack.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

There is need of a Quarantine Bureau that will cover every inch of national territory, and whose authority will be paramount and absolute. Only in this way can there be intelligent and consistent preparation for fighting infection. A scourge like yellow fever knows nothing about the sovereignty of the States, and protection against it is really a matter of national concern. It is gratifying to note that the people of the South are looking at this subject in this light. One of the first acts of Congress next Winter ought to be the establishment of a quarantine system that will finally remove the United States from danger of further visitation from the "yellow terror."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

It is sought to accomplish two objects by adopting the Caffery bill: the first is to protect the health of the general public, and the second is to prevent the lawless and uncalled-for interference with commerce, which so often prevails in times of epidemic. Quarantine in some parts of the South is too stringent, while in others it is too lax. The Caffery bill is wisely conceived, but before it can pass, it may be necessary for the obstructionists in Congress to study another lesson of the terrors and losses afflicted upon the South by the ravages of yellow fever in the face of the present headless and jumbled quarantine system.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Every city in the South should send a representative delegation to the Memphis convention. This year's epidemic has succeeded in convincing nearly all of those who last year opposed national quarantine that they were in error. The shotgun method, the barbarity that has been practiced, and the incalculable injury done to business in Louisiana and Mississippi have again demonstrated the incapacity of State and local authorities acting independently and in their own way to properly battle with the disease in attempting to control it, or to provide a uniform and reasonable quarantine.

The Memphis convention will, doubtless, demand the prompt enactment of a national quarantine law, and, no doubt, will appoint a strong committee to go to Washington to urge such action as soon as Congress convenes.—Birmingham (Ala.) News.

The Herald again renews its suggestion of a business men's convention to consider quarantine matters, to be held in some Southern city early in December. We note that a suggestion of a quarantine convention of "experts, business men and others" comes from Memphis, but this does not at all meet the needs of the situation. We have had enough of experts in quarantine conventions. It is not a time now for the discussion of theories and the reading of scientific essays. What we need is some recommendation from the business men of the South that will have effect on Congress and lead that body to adopt legislation that will prevent the business of the Gulf States from being stagnated for three or four months in the year. The Biloxi Herald says there is scarcely a newspaper in Mississippi that is now opposed to national quarantine.

There has been but one argument advanced against national quarantine that even seems to have any force. Some people fear that government officials may be influenced by Northern cities to use quarantine to injure rival cities in the South. When this fear is considered calmly it will be found groundless, for nothing of the sort could be done without collusion and corruption that could not be concealed. And nothing could possibly be more dangerous than the power rival Southern cities now have to injure each other by giving credence to idle reports.

We must, therefore, that a convention of Southern business men will meet in December in Mobile or some other Southern city, and that it will recommend to Congress the passage of a national quarantine bill.—Mobile Herald.

"NEARER TO THEE."

BY FRANK L. STANTON.

They were singing, sweetly singing.
And the song melodiously
On the evening air was ringing
"Nearer, O my God, to thee!"
In my eyes the teardrops glistened
As it stirred the twilight dim,
And I wondered as I listened
If it brought them nearer him.

Were they like the wanderer, weary,
Song and life in sweet accord,
Resting in the darkness dreary
In that nearness to the Lord?
Had his Spirit ever sought them,
To be slighted or denied?
Had that dear song ever brought them
Closer to the Savior's side?

I have heard its music often,
Felt its meaning deep and sweet,
And my weary heart would soften
Singing at my Master's feet,
"Nearer thee"—O precious feeling!
Nearer thee in gain and loss;
Nearer thee when I am kneeling
In the shadow of thy cross!

Nearer thee when love descending
Falls in blessing on my head;
Nearer thee when I am bending
O'er the graves that hide my dead!
Nearer thee in joy, in sorrow,
'Tis the same where'er I roam:
Nearer thee to-day, to-morrow,
O my King, my Christ, my home!

TWENTIETH CENTURY EDUCATIONAL FUND OF THE M. E. CHURCH, SOUTH.

$1,500,000.

The General Conference, at its last session, passed a bill providing for the collection of the above amount, to be applied to the strengthening of the whole educational work of our church. One-fifth of the amount collected will be applied to the endowment of the Theological Department of Vanderbilt University, and the remainder will be applied according to the direction of the several Annual Conferences within whose borders it shall be raised. Out of the total collections a small portion will be set aside for the expenses of the canvass.

Bishop Charles B. Galloway was designated as the organizer of the campaign for the purpose of making the collection, and the General Board of Education was charged with the responsibility of the work under his supervision. It was also contemplated that leading ministers and laymen would be at the service of the Board during the campaign, and would be available for service in any part of the church. A concerted and vigorous movement is being planned in the confidence that the church will respond fully to the faith of the General Conference. While much will result from platform speaking and mass meetings at strategic points, the greater part of the work will have to be done in detail. There will be need for seed-sowing in many fields and beside all waters. Painstaking and patient cultivation will be necessary before the great harvest can be gathered. But the time allotted for the accumulation of the fund will be ample for the preparation of the soil, the planting, cultivation, and maturing of the seed, and the reaping of an abundant harvest.

The practical application of the plan is according to the following outline:

I.—PRINCIPLE OF THE COLLECTION.

One dollar from each of our million and a half of members by the opening day of the twentieth century.

II.—PLAN OF THE COLLECTION.

(1) A complete roll of the membership in each charge to be provided by the secretary of the Church Conference under the supervision of the pastor and presiding elder. The roll-book will be furnished by the General Board through the Conference Secretary of Education.

(2) An educational sermon in each charge on the first Sunday in January, 1899, or on the nearest convenient Sunday thereto, and an additional educational mass meeting in the afternoon or evening of the same day. On this day the roll-books are to be opened, and pledges, or payments of cash, to the fund are to be received.

(3) A committee in each charge of stewards, Epworth Leaguers, or other members, to be appointed by the pastor and presiding elder, whose duty it shall be to sub-divide the roll of members into as many lists as there are members of the committee; distribute these amongst themselves, and thus personally solicit a contribution to the fund from every member.

III.—REASONS WHY THIS COLLECTION WAS ORDERED BY THE GENERAL CONFERENCE.

(1) It was recommended by the Committee on Federation as important to the proper beginning of the work of the twentieth century.

(2) Other large bodies of Christians, and especially of Methodists, are preparing similar funds.

(3) Our educational institutions, which are our acknowledged centers for training workers and for building character, have been so long neglected that in looking over our resources for the beginning of the twentieth-century campaign, we find ourselves better prepared for all evangelistic and eleemosynary work than we are for the educational; and it is, therefore, necessary to bring this up until it shall be equal in effectiveness to the others.

(4) The concentration of the whole church on this great work will be of benefit in bringing in harmonious masses into close touch and discipline, and, by practicing them, in the necessary and much-neglected art of co-operation. One of our sources of weakness is the habitual lack of power that comes from the aggregation of isolated masses of force into one harmonious movement. Any amount of labor and forethought that will secure this end for our church at this time will be worth whatever it may cost.

(5) The immediate gain will be found in advancing our educational work throughout every part of our territory at the same time. While this advance may not be very great at any given point, the fact that the whole church has moved up together in its educational effectiveness by the amount of a million and a half of dollars will add to its general power more than can be estimated. As, in the processes of nature, the growth of a tree for a single year may not be noticeable, it having been distributed amongst the roots, the bark, the woody fiber, the stem, limbs, and leaves, yet, when the tree comes to perform its true mission of fruit-bearing, there will be a marked increase in the quantity and quality of its products, so in the general strengthening of the body of the church throughout every part of its territory there will be found to result a greatly increased power to produce its proper fruit in the conversion and building up of men, and in bringing in the final triumphs of the cross.

DRIFTING.

This word brings to my mind a picture painted by imagination, and yet possessing the characteristics of reality. In this picture there is a river, broad and deep, winding itself between tall banks where trees wave their graceful foliage in the breeze and drink in the pure sunlight of heaven. On the bosom of this river is a boat filled with joyous men and maidens, whose only aim seems to be that of finding pleasure. No sturdy strokes of the oar impels the boat o'er the rippling waters, but it is simply drifting with the tide. Whither are they tending? Ah! a thought of the future does not perplex them, and for a while all goes well. They gather the waxen water lilies that blossom in their way, and their merry laughter echoes and re-echoes on the balmy air.

But the scene changes. The sky grows dark, the howling tempest takes the place of the gentle zephyr, and the rippling wavelets become foaming billows that lash the frail bark, driving it upon rocks and shoals. Where are those aimless pleasure-seekers now? Possessing no fixed character, having no goal in view, no sure foundation for their hopes to rest upon, they have gone down, never to rise again.

Make the application to real life. In this busy, progressive age, when wide-awake, ambitious people are, by vim and energy, making for themselves names and characters that will endure forever, how many are simply drifting without endeavoring to accomplish a single noble object. They chase the butterfly, pleasure, determined to have what they call "a good time," never realizing that "it is not all of life to live, nor all of death to die." When the storms of adversity beat upon them, their frail bark is driven upon the rocks and shoals of ruined hopes, and only the bitter wail, "It might have been," tells their sad history.

Who can estimate the power of purpose? Without decision of character, we are like chaff tossed hither and thither by the winds. A great many people seem to dwell in a visionary world, and spend their time in erecting beautiful air-castles only to see them tumble into ruins. Instead of putting the shoulder to the wheel, and trying to accomplish a noble purpose in life, they are like Micawber in "David Copperfield," constantly waiting for something to turn up; and the resistless stream of time carries them on and on, until dim eyes and snowy locks remind them that they are nearing the shores of eternity.

We are sailing on life's ocean,
O'er its waters deep and wide;
Some are journeying with a purpose,
Others drifting with the tide.

Blue the sky is up above us,
Brightly shines the King of Day;
Are we grateful for the blessings
That, unnumbered, crowd our way?

Do we try to catch the sunbeams
As our vessel glides along;
Do we cheer a weary brother
With the strains of some glad song?

What tho' winds may howl about us,
And tho waves rise mountain high;
Only think of that blest harbor,
Where we'll anchor by and by.

Simply drifting with the current,
Can we thus obtain the crown,
When our lives are heedless, aimless,
Dare we hope to win the crown?

Let us, then, press bravely forward
With a purpose, true and bright;
In life's conflicts let us ever
Shun the wrong and choose the right.

THE FEVER AT HATTIESBURG.

Knowing that the members of the Mississippi Conference, which is to meet here on the fourteenth of December, would like to know something of the fever here, I shall proceed at once to write concerning the same.

In the beginning, I should say that it is not yellow fever, neither yellowoid, as Dr. Souchon, of New Orleans, has declared. Yellowoid is quite an indefinite word, and, therefore, we are left in doubt as to what Dr. Souchon means when he uses such a word, for it literally means "like yellow," and hence it may mean like gold, yellow butter, yellow corn, or anything else that is yellow. It is true jaundice is called "yellows," and, therefore, he may mean like jaundice, but this does not express the fever we are having, for it does not make everyone yellow who has it.

To be brief, we just simply state that we have no yellow fever. The fever we have is malarial, pernicious malarial, bilious and malario-bilious fever—that is, one may just have the malarial fever, another pernicious malarial, another bilious fever, while another may have malario-bilious fever, or a complication of malarial and biliousness. This is clear enough to me, for I visited all the patients who were declared to have the yellow fever but one family, and they got well before I knew or heard that they had been sick. All who are thought to have the yellow fever live on a little ridge east of the business portion of our city, and when it is known that our streets and alleys have been sadly neglected, and have been filthy all the year, and that the morning sun draws the poisonous air of the same to that ridge, it becomes plain enough why there is more and worse sickness on it than any other portion of the town, and it also becomes plain why they are having the above-mentioned fevers, which I claim that they have.

It is true that two experts have declared it to be yellow fever, but what of that? Are they not liable to make mistakes as well as other people, and egregious ones, too? Certainly they are, even when they are honest and desirous to do the right thing. But as far as my knowledge and observation extend, experts, as a rule, are not men of the highest ability. They are far from it, and, therefore, they are quite liable to mistakes, and fatal ones at that. Not only are experts, as a rule, men of ordinary ability, but also the men who compose the Boards of Health. Men of reputation in the medical profession have no time for such things. I verily believe that if we had no Health Boards or experts, there would be no yellow fever in our country anywhere.

The only person who has died here as yet was a poor fellow, who had been sick nearly all this year, and he did not have the black vomit. All the sick are still living and doing very well, although calomel is being given them in large quantities. I have been one of the most exposed to the fever here, but, note it, I shall have no yellow fever, for it is not here to have.

THREE QUADRENNIUMS.

The General Conference in 1886 created the Woman's Parsonage and Home Mission Society, to supply parsonages and to better the condition of destitute women and children in the home land.

The first two quadrenniums were the time of beginnings, which are always slow. During this period the organization devoted its funds mainly to parsonage-building, but it began to circulate its own literature, leaflets, and Our Homes, to send supplies to the families of inadequately supported preachers, to do city mission work, and to raise loan funds.

During this, the third, quadrennium the amount given to parsonage-building is almost equal to that of the two preceding quadrenniums, and for the first time two parsonages were aided in foreign mission fields. Because of the failure to report, more has been done than has been recorded. The records show that since the society was founded, twelve years ago, 1,735 parsonages have been built in Southern Methodism, which is two-thirds of the number accumulated during a whole century prior to its organization. Of this number, the society has aided 717, and, no doubt, stimulated many others.

The value of supplies sent the families of Western preachers has increased yearly, the total amount being estimated at $15,948.57.

The loan funds of the society amount to $15,489.87, most of which has been accumulated this quadrennium. The interest in city missions has increased, and missions and missionaries have been maintained in twelve large cities, in some cases continuously, but in others for only a short time, while fifteen different city missionaries have been employed.

Educational mission work has been inaugurated for the mountain people and for three of the different foreign races living in this country—viz.: for the Chinese, the Japanese, and the Cubans. For the mountain people and the Cubans school-buildings have been provided. At London, Ky., there are over two hundred and ten pupils and six teachers, a superior school-building, and four cottages, all valued at $20,000. At Greenville, Tenn., an industrial school of thirty pupils and five teachers has been supported, and property secured worth $9,200. For the Cubans, at Tampa, Fla., there are three schools with two hundred and twenty-nine pupils and eight teachers, and two school-buildings valued at $7,677.

A mission home at Dallas, Texas, has been erected, valued at $10,000, with 58 inmates. Much additional work has been done, such as the support of two Doors of Hope, sewing and industrial schools, religious meetings, and other efforts for the betterment and salvation of the needy and neglected.

Just before the close of this quadrennium Miss Lucinda B. Helm, whose name will shine with increasing luster as the centuries go by, after nearly eleven years of unselfish, unremitting toil, heard, "Well done," and entered into the joy of her Lord. Her heroic labors and superior personality entitle her to an honored place in the annals of the church. Her departure caused universal sorrow. Miss Helm gave her life to the cause. Beginning with its beginning, she at first filled every office, its sole worker. As the society grew, she gradually committed it to others, allowing only her constantly failing health to limit her service. God alone knew the complete devotion of her soul and life to him. Gratitude should swell all hearts that her slender life was spared so long, and that God's blessing has so manifestly attended her labors.

Not long after the death of Miss Helm the society suffered its second great bereavement in the death of Dr. David Morton. He was ever the loyal champion, the wise and able advocate of the society. These two leaders, co-laborers in life, were conquerors in death. Dr. Morton was connected with the earliest beginnings of the Woman's Parsonage and Home Mission Society. He aided in framing its Constitution, in winning for it gifts and friends, in guarding its funds, in seeking its advancement, and in directing its policy. As Secretary of the Board of Church Extension, with unswerving fidelity and unremitting devotion he gave himself to the high commission entrusted to him by the church. His exact and faithful attention to all the details of business, his jealous care of the funds of the Board, and his personal devotion to God, should be an example and an unfailing inspiration to every woman engaged in the work of the organization. It was dear to Dr. Morton, because his far-seeing eye and keen business judgment saw in it great possibilities for the growth of the church. The society should plight itself anew to more earnest endeavor to bring about the almost ideal condition for which he longed and labored, when every itinerant preacher's home shall be a home indeed.—From Twelfth Annual Report.

The following is from Miss Esther Case, Saltillo, Mexico: "'Hitherto hath the Lord helped us.' The meeting with our own missionaries at our annual meeting in January, and with so many Christian workers of all denominations in the General Assembly, which met in the City of Mexico at the same time, was a time of spiritual refreshing, which made a helpful beginning for the work of the year. We were then almost in the middle of our term of school, and the work in all of our departments doing well. In May it was necessary for Miss Roberts, who had worked so long and faithfully here, to take a rest. It was hard to give her up, and harder to miss her wise direction. We could not object, since it was so serious a question as her health. Her sister, Miss Mattie, who was teacher of our primary department, went with her. So the work suffered many changes, although within two months of the close of the term I took Miss Roberts' part of the work with the help of three teachers.

"Miss Churchill, our new missionary, came to us from Chihuahua, and relieved me by taking the English classes, and helped in many other ways, faithful and true in both work and study, and is acquiring the languages rapidly. I remained in Saltillo during vacation busy getting everything in order for the opening of the new term in September. During the year we enrolled 130 pupils in the pay school, 74 in the charity school, 63 women in woman's class. The enrollment is almost the same as last year, and attendance is better. Teachers are doing well; charity school has been usually full, and the children of this department attend Sunday-school more regularly than do those of the pay school.

"Our most excellent Bible woman, Matilde H. de Osuna, whose American name is 'M. L. Paine, Bible woman,' supported by 'M. L. Paine Memorial,' of Prairie, Miss., is a tireless worker in the harvest-field of our Lord, and has already gathered sheaves of golden grain. The husband and father of a family who was converted and joined the church through her influence died triumphantly, and the family have borne their bereavement like true Christians should. Attendance in woman's class has been poor at times, owing to my inability to visit the women often, and also to the fact that they have had a great deal of sickness.

"During Conference we had the pleasure of having Bishop Duncan, Dr. Lambuth, 6 missionaries of the Parent Board, and several Mexican brethren as guests. They gave us much spiritual help. The girls in the Home are all members of the church except one. One of the girls wished to join the church, and her mother took her away from us and entered her in another school. A day pupil was also put into a Roman Catholic school because she was becoming interested in the Protestant religion. One little girl, ten years old, a day pupil, is a true Christian, and wants to unite with the church; but her grandmother tries to discourage her—tells her she is too young to know what she is doing; that when she is twelve years old she may do as she likes. A wealthy friend of the family is very fond of the child, and tells her she will leave her her fortune if she will promise not to become a Protestant. The girl replied, 'I have a fortune that no one can take from me.' The children are all ready to lead in prayer, or take any active part they can in League and prayer meeting service as well as family worship."

Report of Miss Annie Churchill: "On the fourth of last May, I received word from our secretary to go immediately to Saltillo and help Miss Case during Miss Roberts' absence. I reached there on Friday of the same week. My work was the English classes, of which there were six each day; one lesson of a half hour for each grade. Besides this, it fell to my lot to sing with the children of the charity department every day. During vacation I went several times with Miss C. to visit the members of the sewing-class. In my study of the language I was fortunate enough to have Bro. Del Valle, our pastor, for teacher. For several months my lessons were gratuitous. Four hours in school, three of study, and the time I devote to helping with housework, fill the day. My class in Sunday-school is an interesting one, composed of ten girls and one boy. The work grows dearer to me every day, and I trust I may be the means, in my Master's hands, of helping the people of Mexico to a better and truer life."

Will our sisters kindly favor our column with similar reports?

The Christian Life.

GOD KNOWS.

My life is not what I would have chosen. I often long for quiet, for reading, and for thought. It seems to me to be a very paradise to be able to read, to think, go deep into things, gather the glorious riches of intellectual culture. . . . God has forbidden it in his providence. I must spend hours in receiving people who wish to speak to me about all manner of trifles; must reply to letters about nothing; must engage in public work on everything; employ my life on what seems uncongenial, vanishing, temporary, waste. Yet God knows me better than I know myself. He knows my gifts, my powers, my failings and weaknesses; what I can do and what not do. So I desire to be led, and not to lead; to follow him. And I am quite sure that he has thus enabled me to do a great deal more in ways which seemed to me to be almost a waste of life, in advancing his kingdom, than I would have done any other way. I am sure of that.—Norman McLeod.

JOYFULNESS.

Only they who are themselves joyful will be likely to give joy. The physician who would heal the sick must look first to his own health. And he who aims to be a joy-bringer to others must not forswear gladness, or count it a thing unclean. It is a power and a privilege. The kindling eye, the smiling lips, the brow clothed with sunshine, the glowing face—these carry happiness and make good cheer. Chains of sorrow are broken at the coming of such, dungeon doors are opened, clouds of darkness are lifted. Joy has a multiplying power. It is not given us to gloat over, but to gain by it glorious conquests. Let no man despise it, or hide it away as if it were a shame in this world of sadness to be happy. Just because sadness has prevailed upon so many we should lift up the banner of gladness, and, in the name of the blessed God, claim as much of the earth as possible for its possession.—Zion's Herald.

A RELIGION OF SUNSHINE.

Ours is a sunny religion, born of divine love; and one of the fruits of the Holy Spirit is joy. A joyless Christian is a libel on his profession. We ought to walk so close to Jesus as to be always in his sunshine, and make so little of earthly ills and vexations and losses as never to let them envelop us in an atmosphere of Arctic midnight. Paul made a dungeon ring with holy melodies. Every follower of Christ should strive to make his daily life a song as well as a gospel sermon.—Theodore L. Cuyler.

We have noticed that the man who gives the most advice usually finds unable to give anything else.—Exchange.

A MINISTER'S STATEMENT

Rev. C. H. Smith of Plymouth, Conn., Gives the Experience of Himself and Little Girl in a Trying Season—What He Depends Upon.

The testimonials in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla come from a class of people whose words are worth considering. Many clergymen testify to the value of this medicine. Read this:

"By a severe attack of diphtheria I lost two of my children. I used Hood's Sarsaparilla as a tonic both for myself and little girl and found it most excellent as a means to restore the impoverished blood to its natural state and as a help to appetite and digestion. I depend upon it when I need a tonic and I find it at once efficacious." REV. C. H. SMITH, Congregational parsonage, Plymouth, Conn.

LAWLESSNESS—A QUERY.

MR. EDITOR: Kindly permit me to present a query to your readers. As pastor of a work covering a large part of Wayne county, I have been continually amazed at the universal contempt of the civil law in this section. From one side of the county to the other churches of all denominations have their services more or less disturbed by drunken, hoodlum crowds, and in some instances guards have been a necessity to protect the services. Along with this there is the usual accompaniment of Sabbath desecration, gambling, lewdness, and all other forms of vice. Neither is this confined to people not in the church, but is widespread among church members and children of church members.

Is this condition of affairs manifest everywhere? I am told it is. Then are all not in the "last days" when "perilous times shall come"? (II. Tim. iii, 1.) Does not the rising generation bear the deep impress of reprobacy? Answer, ye soul savers! Where are the reports of many young people being saved? While we shout at the triumph of our young soldiery over the Spaniards, we groan at the triumph of the canteen vulture over young soldiery. Respecting this, there are two things which vitally concern the commonwealth:

1. The cause of this reprobacy.
2. The remedy.

The most prolific cause of all the trouble is the infidelity of men appointed to execute the law, many of them being office-seeking time-servers, void of the moral courage to resist hoodlum bribery, and stand for God, the country and right. Little do many people dream of the deep undercurrent of anarchy and lynch-lawism which now and then bursts out in deeds of violence.

Dr. DuBose once said, "The law's delay is the lynchers' license." How much mockery of justice back of the Simite tragedies, which to-day are a dark stain on the face of the great State of Alabama. Every single case of defeated justice has an exasperating influence upon the dangerous classes of the land. An instance is cited which occurred only a few months since: Two young men had a fight, and were promptly jailed. The wealthy parents of one attempted to bond out their son, while the other, in meagre circumstances, was left in jail; and in a few minutes there was a maddened mob ready to tear down the jail to liberate him.

That father who will use his money to shield a rebellious son from justice is an enemy to God and the commonwealth. It is a lamentable fact that some fathers laying claims to respectability will connive at the lawlessness of their sons. If my boy persisted in getting drunk and violating the law, I'd let him board in the county jail awhile.

A case is in mind, where a notorious murderer and all-around "thug" was arrested for selling whisky on the grounds where religious services were being held. In a short while after he was jailed he was petitioned out by certain prominent officials on the plea of insanity (?) from eating morphine, and is again in prison, being apprehended like a beast of prey. Still another incident is cited where a drunken gang of church disturbers were tried for their grave offense, and were all released through the counsel of legal (?) defense.

But what is the remedy? Enforce the law—elect men, not mendicants. Who will do it? About fifty per cent. of our little "street-corner" lawyers ought to enlist in the army. The law has a work to do. Some classes the gospel won't reach.

"Legal suasion for the drunkard maker,"
"Prison suasion for the statute breaker."

O Lord, give us a pure heart, a pure Church, and a pure State!

FROM THE WORK.

GALLMAN, MISS.

Amidst the sad news of yellow fever and low price of cotton, it is refreshing to have something to report. So I send this. Last Saturday, about 4 P. M., a large number of the Old Crystal Spring Church came to the parsonage to "pound" us. No preacher ever received as many pounds at once. These were forty bushels of corn, one hog, besides boxes and jars and sacks of edibles, and several articles of wearing apparel. There were about fifty in the "storm." They all took supper with us; but they brought their supper with them. Come again, my friends, and do likewise. You are always welcome.

PITTSBORO CIRCUIT.

We have been greatly hindered in revival work by sickness among our people, and the yellow fever scare. Before the conditions became so unfavorable we held a meeting of ten days' duration at Chapel Hill. Rev. J. A. Bowen, of Water Valley, was with us at the beginning of the meeting (first Sunday in August); and knowing him to be one of our ablest evangelists, and, perhaps, the best pastor in the Conference, our expectations were high. But our disappointment can be imagined when, after giving us three very able sermons, he was compelled to leave on account of illness. We, however, continued the meeting, which resulted in 35 accessions to our church on profession of faith.

I hereby acknowledge our obligations to the following brethren for assistance in this meeting: To Rev. Arthur Martin, a young local preacher, who gave us two good sermons; and to Rev. G. S. Morehead, who is supplying the Banner mission, for three good sermons, as well as earnest labors outside the pulpit during most of the meeting; and to Rev. D. M. Geddie, who came to us on the eighth day of the meeting, and gave us four able sermons.

We pray for Bro. Bowen, that his health may be restored fully, for though he was ill really all the time he was here, his short visit was a great benediction to the pastor and the people.

We have one of the best Epworth Leagues in the North Mississippi Conference. Our Sunday-schools have also done well. J. M. HUGGIN.

Big Creek, Miss., Sept. 30, 1898.

BOGUE CHITTO.

Nine months have been spent by the present pastor on the Bogue Chitto circuit. These months have given time for observations along several lines. This is not a new field for Methodism, but the charge is passing through its second year of existence in its present form. Two years have proved the work well able to maintain itself. The people have shown themselves kind and generous toward their pastor and his wife this year. Among the souls to whom we have been appointed to minister are to be found some who are truly devout Christians, others who are friendly to the church and manifest an interest in her welfare, and yet others who belong to the indifferent class.

At the four several appointments we have had fairly good attendance upon the public services, and the attention to the preaching of the Word has been excellent. Sunday-schools and prayer meetings have kept in good working condition all the year. The general interests of the church, we trust, have been steadily promoted.

The "protracted meetings" season has been past with several days' meetings in each congregation. The interest in these services was good, the greatest apparent fruits being, in each instance, within the church. We acknowledge our indebtedness for services in these meetings to Bros. Gatlin, of Tyro; Morse and Mullens, of McComb; McDonald, of Caseyville, and Alford, of Martinsville.

The most important material need of the work at present is a home for the pastor. The church has provided a temporary home since the formation of the circuit, but what is needed is a parsonage, where the pastor can be sure of a permanent home as long as he may be in charge. This secured, it will obviate an unwholesome drainage upon the finances of the charge in the way of rents. A Building Committee has been authorized to procure suitable grounds and proceed to the building of a house. There are ample means within the bounds of the work to meet all expenditures incurred in building. As soon, therefore, as the interest of the committee is aroused to the point of action, we expect to have a neat, comfortable preacher's home built. This done, we shall have a pastoral charge comparing favorably with the best appointments in the Mississippi Conference.

WINNING SOULS.

A strange reluctance comes over many when they try to talk about the soul and its relations to God. It is felt alike by the converted and unconverted persons. Very often the gay girl, whose heart is running over with fun and mirth, and whose speech sparkles with wit and humor, has deep in her consciousness the feeling that she is unsatisfied; that she wants something better, purer, and higher. She wishes that the Christian woman who is talking with her would ask her a question, would give her a hint, would lead the conversation to the subject of personal religion. The other has no thought of the kind. She has even a faint, undefinable dread that any effort on her part would be received coldly or made occasion of ridicule.

So the opportunity passes. The souls have been within speaking distance, but have failed to communicate with each other. Each goes on its way. The friend of Christ, who might have won a soul to him, has been silent, afraid, ashamed. What wonder if to that too faithless friend there comes the sad experience that the Beloved has withdrawn himself and is gone; that, seeking the Spirit finds him not, and calling, there returns no answer! Can there be perfect serenity and the full sense of communion with God to one who refuses or neglects so important a duty?—Margaret E. Sangster.

AN EXAMPLE FOR WRITERS.

In writing on Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, in the Review of Reviews, Dr. Edward Everett Hale makes a suggestion which all writers for the press would do well to take home to themselves: "As an editor, I am engaged by nothing so much, or with so good cause, as by notes, sometimes from near and intimate correspondents, who say they have 'dashed off something' which they have sent to me without revision; or who say that the thing would have been better if they had kept it by them. Pray, why did they not keep it by them? Who asked them to dash it off and to send it to us without revision? Has the public no rights, and has the editor no rights? I obtrude this observation here for the sake of saying to the young people that they must not be deceived by the apparent ease and freshness, and if you please, slap-dash of Dr. Holmes' lighter papers, or by the absolute fluency with which his verses run. He never insulted anybody by sending slap-dash work to the press, and that is one reason—as I believe Horace said before me—why you and I always liked to read what he did send to the press. Nobody knows what good things he has left out, and nobody ever read anything of his for which he had not done the best he could do before he submitted it for publication."

SHORT SERMONS.

Over against this desire for short sermons must be placed the fact that the men who have made the deepest impression upon the life of our age are not the men who deal in fifteen and twenty-minute sermonettes. The late Mr. Spurgeon, that prince of preachers, rarely fell under the forty-five-minute rule, and he attracted immense congregations to the end. Canon Liddon, by universal consent the greatest preacher in the Church of England during the latter half of this century, scarcely ever preached less than an hour, and he used to crowd St. Paul's Cathedral to the door. Archdeacon Farrar, who is the most popular of English Church preachers in our day, does not stop short of three-quarters of an hour, yet he has no lack of hearers. The same thing holds true of the masters of the pulpit on this side of the Atlantic. Henry Ward Beecher's rule was rarely less than an hour. Richard Salter Storrs seldom delivers a sermon less than fifty minutes in length. It is safe to say that the great preachers of all ages have been the men who thoroughly discussed their themes, without much regard to time. The fear of the charge of prolixity was not before their eyes.—Rev. D. Sutherland.

There are preachers who, if they do not secure many converts, at least spoil a good many texts. They remind one of the boy who had been fishing all day. When his uncle inquired whether he had caught a good many fish, he replied that he had not, but that he had drowned a good many worms. The instinct of destructiveness is very strongly developed in the average small boy. But a preacher is supposed to have positively constructive results to show for all his pulpit labor. The man who is a failure as a gospel angler, who submerges good texts in a flood of cautious commentary as a boy would "drown worms," has no place in the pulpit.—Exchange.

It is just as bad to do wrong Christmas as any other time in the year.

It is a blessed period in woman's life when a dear little stranger comes driving down out of cloudland to make its home in her heart and call her mother. Yet the majority of women approach this time with fear and misgiving both for themselves and the expected little one. The mother's heart forebodes some weakness or imperfection in the baby while the womanly nature fears its own sufferings; and perhaps a little spice of vanity about her figure makes her dread that its attractive contour may be destroyed by maternity.

But as a matter of fact when a woman is in perfect health and condition, motherhood should only serve to enhance and accentuate her physical attractiveness. Every expectant mother should know and avail herself of the health-giving, nerve-toning properties of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It gives specific strength and endurance to the organism of maternity; promotes thorough, healthy, constitutional vigor and recuperative energy. It makes motherhood safe and comparatively comfortable; insures the baby's perfection and preserves the mother's buoyant spirit and womanly attractiveness.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hull, 27 Merrick Street, Pawtucket, R. I., writes: "I have taken Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and cannot speak too well of it. I have had fifteen babies, and always had a bad time. Sometimes I had to have two doctors. I began taking your 'Prescription' last July, and in September I gave birth to two little girls, and I never had such an easy time. I had no doctor, and was not in pain half of the time as before. My weight is about two hundred pounds. My twins when born weighed ten pounds each. They are fine girls, now four months old."

In many cases where constipation is one of the aggravating causes of disease, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used in conjunction with the "Favorite Prescription." They are the simplest and most perfectly natural laxative ever invented.

Best Edition of the World's Best Book,

—THE—

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers. New Type. All Proper Names. Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Every body is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangment for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to October, '99. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

SELF-PRONOUNCING

S. S. Teachers' Reference Bible.

Text Conforms Exactly to the Oxford Teachers' Edition.

The self-pronouncing text enables the reader to pronounce all proper names at a glance.

This Bible is printed from Large, Beautiful and Clear New Type. All Proper Names are Divided into Syllables and Every Vowel is Marked and the Syllables Inflected, showing the Sounds and Accents as they are given in a Dictionary, thus enabling the reader to properly pronounce every word. This feature is a great improvement and a strong recommendation for this Bible over others.

This Bible contains the celebrated Oxford Teachers' Helps together with a complete series of New Maps illustrating the geography of Palestine and the surrounding countries from the earliest times, and embodying the most recent discoveries renders this Bible especially desirable to teachers and students of the Holy Scriptures.

Imperial Seal Binding, Tuck Edges, known as "Divinity Circuit," Linen Lined, Round Corners, Red under Gold Edges, Price, $4.00.

This book in Bourgeois type will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price ($4) to any address; but to that select class who read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, we furnish it on the following terms: Pay your subscription one full year in advance, viz., to October, '99, and we will send it to you, postpaid, for $1.75. (A little later you will have to pay to November, '99.)

The same Bible in Minion type will be sent for $1.55; in Emerald type, for $1.15, to those who pay a full year in advance.

For fifty cents additional we will send Bible with index. For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved on the outside in gilt letters.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1898.

Some day the mists will clear away,
That now obscure our sight,
And things that here the darkest seem,
Shine in a clear, white light.
And we will see how wisely planned
Were both the sun and shade,
And how for us our Father's hand,
Unerring choice had made.

Love dignifies and ennobles every service. This is a world of the commonplace. Life is made of little things. But done for His sake, these little things become royal. Done in His name, every duty is a princely commission.—Rev. Paul M. Strayer.

LIGHT IN THE DARKNESS.

In every life there are shadows and seasons of darkness. Not all of our journey heavenward is over smooth roads and under clear skies, but from time to time we come to rugged mountain passes of difficulty, and encounter lowering clouds of trouble that send a chill of dismay through the soul. Well has the poet said,

"Into each life some rain must fall:
Some days must be dark and dreary."

None, not even the saintliest, are exempt from the chilling winds of misfortune or the fires of trial Temptation and disappointment are the common lot of all. As Dr. T. L. Cuyler has beautifully said: "Some of the noblest characters in Bible history were men who traveled to heaven through dark nights and in the teeth of many a blizzard. Abraham was the friend of God, rich and prosperous; yet it was a faith-trying journey, enveloped in painful mystery, which he made to Mount Moriah with his beloved son marked for sacrifice. Joseph was led through deep pit and dark dungeon to the premiership of Egypt. Daniel praised God in the lion's den, and Jeremiah, the sorrowing Dante of Hebrew literature, looked up to the stars of the divine promises from the depths of a dungeon. As it was in those days, so it is in our days. Our Father never promises unbroken sunshine to any of his children."

"Why is it thus?" cried the patriarch of Uz from the depths of an indescribably agonized heart; and his question has been upon the tongue of suffering humanity in all succeeding ages.

"These afflictions are a just punishment for sin," was the reply of Job's trio of friends; and their words have leaped from lip to lip until the present day. This theory, though hoary with age, is utterly at variance with the teachings of God's Word. "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgest every son whom he receiveth." "Our light affliction which is but for a moment worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory, while we look not at the things that are seen, but at the things that are not seen." "The sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us." Thus do the Scriptures solve the problem which here confronts us. The afflictions of the righteous are not signs of divine displeasure, but tokens of our heavenly Father's infinite love. They are disciplinary. Their purpose is the development of character.

Misfortunes are often needed to make men appreciate the blessings they so thoughtlessly and ungratefully enjoy. The sun appears to shine with a brighter radiance after it has been for a time obscured by clouds. A season of enforced fasting gives to even the commonest food a delightful taste. How much more appreciative of health or prosperity are those who have passed through a season of sickness or misfortune! Thus for a wise purpose life is interspersed with light and shade. Our heavenly Father wishes to develop in us the noble principle of gratitude.

Were it not for the opposition of the wind the kite would not rise. In like manner, it ofttimes requires the storms of adversity to lift us above the cares and allurements of earth. When we grasp after wealth or fame, or selfish gratification, God often thwarts our plans because he sees that to succeed in them means our spiritual ruin. To quote again from Dr. Cuyler: "While I have known thousands of Christians to be badly demoralized by prosperity, I have rarely known one to be damaged by adversity. Such blizzards are apt to drive the Christians safe under the covert of Jesus Christ."

The sailor who has seen only smooth seas and fair weather is poorly equipped for his work. Just so the Christian needs the discipline that can come only through tribulation. Trials test character and bring out the very best that is in us. Well has it been said: "Nothing more truly shows what a man is than his bearing under the sorrows of life. When the flag is wrapped round the flagstaff on a calm day, when no breath of wind is moving, we can not read the device that is upon it; but when the storm unfurls the flag, we can read it plainly enough." If the way was always plain, there would be little need of faith; but 'now for a season, if need be, we are in heaviness through manifold temptations: that the trial of our faith, being much more precious than gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and glory of the appearing of Jesus Christ."

While God does not promise unbroken prosperity, unclouded skies, and unceasing physical comfort, let us remember that the peace of God may be our constant possession. While all is dark and cheerless around us, within we may have light and love through faith in our Lord, who assures us that his grace all-sufficient shall be our supply. A martyr, exposed to public derision in an iron cage, said to a bystander, who wondered at his cheerfulness: "You can see these bars, but you can not hear the music in my conscience."

How comforting is the thought that the waves of sorrow shall not overwhelm us, that no trial shall be too severe for our endurance! The Christian ought to find unspeakable comfort in the remembrance that God overrules all things for the good of his children. In times of general distress and business stagnation like the present let us not forget that God rules, that his hand is shaping the destinies of men and nations, "rough hew them how we will."

Our extremity is God's opportunity. In every event of life we ought to recognize his guiding hand, and trust his loving care. "Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? and one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father. Fear ye not therefore; ye are of more value than many sparrows." It is related that during the great London earthquake, when buildings were falling, and the earth was rocking like a ship in a storm, and men, women and children were rushing hither and thither, crying aloud in despair, Mr. Wesley gathered a few of his followers in one of their little chapels and read to them the forty-sixth Psalm, beginning, "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble."

However dark the clouds may be, let us remember that the sun of God's love is shining beyond them, and by and by there will be a rift in the clouds through which we shall see the glory of heaven streaming down. The truest trust is that exercised when troubles are thickest. What a heroic faith was that exhibited by the prophet Habakkuk when he said: "Although the fig tree shall not blossom, neither shall fruit be in the vines; the labor of the olive shall fail, and the fields shall yield no meat; the flock shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stalls; yet will I rejoice in the Lord; I will joy in the God of my salvation." Such faith we need today.

"MISRULE OF THE MEDICOS."

MR. EDITOR: I have grave doubts about your article on this subject, and that of the Panic, accomplishing the end you seem to have before you in their writing. The fact is, neither the Czar of Russia nor the Sultan of Turkey have more authority, nor are they more inclined to exercise their authority, than has the private citizen of this country in the protection of his home. And wisdom would dictate that the unwise exercise of this authority is not to be cured by an unwise criticism of those who are trying to save our homes. If they are incompetent or tyrants, or both, this is not the time for a discussion of the matter. What we want now, in this awful battle for life and property, is an increase of confidence, and not the confusion and disaster that comes from a lack of it. So far as I know, or have heard, our State Board of Health needs no defense of their action, in the minds of our people, in trying to prevent the spread of the fever.

Nor is there the least danger that "the absolute power with which the medicos have been invested will be taken from them, if they do not learn to exercise it with more wisdom." If you take it from them, where will you lodge it? [We want it lodged with a National Board, which will quarantine rigidly against every infected locality and protect every uninfected locality against unnecessary and oppressive restrictions. No National Board would quarantine against five hundred towns because of the presence of a mild contagious disease in a dozen or two other towns. Moreover, we believe a National Board backed by the power and resources of the government, would prevent the introduction of the fever from abroad, and would also in a very few years extirpate it from Cuba, which is the source from which all our fever comes. What Gen. Wood has done in a few months at Santiago, is a proof of what can be done in Havana. Our prediction was made deliberately. We believe a national quarantine is coming in the not distant future.—EDITOR.] The "absolute" exists; and if not exercised by the medicos, it will be by the people, and that without judgment. As it is, the people have confidence in the Board's honest efforts to protect them, and are submitting to their methods without complaint. Perhaps you do not know that even the uninfected towns and people do not want judges, witnesses, attorneys, courts, nor even presiding elders, to come in such times as these. [We said nothing about local quarantines. We were speaking of the sweeping order of the State Board. That order was a virtual announcement to the world that every foot of Mississippi soil is a probable danger point. As a result Alabama and Texas at once quarantined, not merely against the infected points in Mississippi, but against the entire State. We do not believe in such wholesale measures. There are hundreds of towns in Mississippi that are not infected, and we believe it is wrong in principle and disastrous to the best interests of the State for the State Board to put such a wholesale embargo on travel.—EDITOR.]

And why did you not take the death-rate of this State to show there was no danger in the "yellowoid" (i). Oxford, Miss.—45 cases and 9 deaths. How is that for the mild yellowoid? [We were exceedingly anxious to give the death-rate for Mississippi along with that of Louisiana, but could not do so, for the reason that an up-to-date list of cases and deaths at all infected points in Mississippi had not been published. In this issue (fifth page) will be found a full report for both Mississippi and Louisiana.—EDITOR.]

No people would more heartily welcome a wiser and a safer system of quarantine than would we of Mississippi. But if the law is to be enacted, and its administration is to proceed upon the yellowoid theory of the disease, we neither want the law, nor will we submit to its administration. [There is no "yellowoid theory" that we know of; but it is a simple fact that whereas yellow fever in '53, '58, '67, and '78 had a death-rate of about thirty per cent., the yellow fever of '97 in Mississippi had a death-rate of less than six per cent. This year in Mississippi it is seven and one-third per cent. On account of this lower death-rate the change of name was suggested by Dr. Edmund Souchon, president of the Louisiana State Board of Health. The proposed name came into general use at once, and we think it probable that it will find its way into the next edition of the dictionaries, as an appellation for a very mild type of yellow fever. Such changes in pathological nomenclature are by no means new in the medical world. Nevertheless, if Dr. Weems prefers the old terminology, he has an unquestionable right to use it. We assure him that we have no intention of raising an army of Crescent City hoodlums and marching to Brookhaven to compel him to say "yellowoid" instead of "yellow fever." Moreover, if anyone else makes such an attempt, we will at once go to our brother's relief, and put our corpus in front of his. We hope this assurance will quiet the Dr.'s nerves, so that he can sleep soundly, undisturbed by horrid dreams of embattled armies with streaming banners emblazoned with "Yellowoid, or Death."—EDITOR.] The law of God and of this nation gives to the citizen the right to protect life and property; and all this can, and should be done, through the agency of the law and its administration; yet if that fails, the protection will not be suffered to go by default. We want a law compelling every citizen, town and city to give notice of the presence of the fever, and then we want the law enforced by an administration that will inspire confidence. [Amen!—EDITOR.]

It is folly to talk to our people about the few who die with it; we do not want any deaths from it at all. If the people of Chicago wish to stay there and die, is that a reason why the people should wish to stay in Jackson and die? I fail to see the force of the argument at this point. We are not satisfied that more people are dying somewhere else, and with some other disease, than die here with yellow fever. [Not only in Chicago, but in Mississippi, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, and all the ordinary malarial fevers that prevail from year to year, have a much higher death-rate than has the present visitation of yellow fever. If there are any statistics that make a different showing, we will take very great pleasure in publishing them, and will apologize to the public for having made a misstatement.—EDITOR.]

What we want is not to have to die with yellow fever. [We, too, would prefer to make our exit by a different route; but if yellowoid, or yellow fever either, knocks at our door, it will find us at home.—EDITOR.] We know we have got to die at some time, and with some disease; but we do not want some one who loves money more than our lives to compel us to stand still and die of yellow fever. [Amen!—EDITOR.] Let the National Government take charge of this matter [Amen!—EDITOR], and enact laws with penalties that mean something [Amen!—EDITOR], and put the administration in the hands of men whose names and standing will inspire confidence [Amen!—EDITOR], and no more loyal submission will be found anywhere than will be given by the people of Mississippi. [Amen! EDITOR.]

J. M. WEEMS.

We and Dr. Weems seem to agree thoroughly as to quarantine, but on the question of depopulation we differ. On this point it seems that the Mississippi refugees agree with us rather than with Dr. Weems. In support of this statement we refer our readers to the article on our first page headed, "The Panic: What Is Thought of It by Its Victims."

COL LOVE DEAD.

Hon. W. F. Love, member of Congress from the Sixth District of Mississippi, died at his home in Gloster, on Sunday, Oct. 16, after a month's illness of typhoid fever. After completing his education at the University of Mississippi, he was elected at the age of twenty-one to the Lower House of the Legislature, of which he remained a member by successive re-elections for six years. He then went to the State Senate for eight years. He was also a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1890. Two years ago he was elected to Congress. He had just received a unanimous renomination. In every position to which he was called he was faithful to every trust. He was a high-toned, upright man in all the walks of life. He was a consistent member of the Baptist Church. We esteem it an honor to have numbered him on our list of friends.

A NOBLE EXAMPLE.

A few cases of yellow fever having appeared in a country neighborhood near Crystal Springs, Dr. R. E. Jones, of that place, though not an immune, left his family, and took up his abode in an old negro cabin, where he expects to remain as long as his services are needed in looking after the victims of the contagion. At a time when there are so many exhibitions of selfishness and depravity, it is refreshing to be able to chronicle such a deed of heroism. Dr. Jones is an ardent Methodist. All honor to our noble brother.

THE END IN SIGHT.

During the cold spell of last week there was frost as far South as Natchez. In this city the temperature has been as low as 51 degrees. This will doubtless put an end to the spread of yellowoid. A few new cases will occur, but they will be for the most part persons who were already infected. It is a great boon to the South that frost put in its appearance so early.

EXCELLENT.

If a business man should attempt to carry on his enterprise with the unorganized slack-twisted methods of an ordinary congregation, the sheriff would soon sell him out. If a farmer were to cultivate a few fertile patches, and let the rest of his farm run to weeds and stray cattle, his only consolation would be in abusing his "luck." A congregation should be so organized that every member and attendant would be induced to do his part toward supporting the home expenses of the church and its benevolences. Every member and attendant should be seen personally and privately, and induced to agree to give a specified sum to the home support and to all the causes in which it is enlisted.—The Interior.

NOTES.

Rev. J. E. Denson and his wife are in bed with the prevailing fever.

Rev. C. T. Munholland is on the road to recovery from an attack of yellowoid.

Rev. James Healey has been transferred from the Los Angeles Conference to the Pacific Conference.

Rev. Q. A. Oats has been transferred from the Los Angeles Conference to the North Mississippi Conference.

We invite attention to two articles on the first page—"The Press on the Panic," and "Anent National Quarantine."

The communication of Prof. Crisler will be gratifying to the friends of Centenary. Dr. Cooper and his faculty are to be congratulated.

The public schools of this city opened last Monday with an attendance of 21,983. This shows that New Orleans is not very badly panic-stricken.

From a private letter from Bro. W. G. Evans, dated Oct. 15, we quote as follows:

"I have just heard that Bro. W. W. Drake, at Franklin, is now down with the 'prevailing fever.' He and his wife, although never having had the fever, have been doing noble service nursing, etc., for several weeks past."

Dr. Cunningham Geikie died a few days since at Bournemouth, South England, where he has resided for some years. Dr. Geikie was a man of great learning and a high order of talent. As an author, his fame was co-extensive with Christendom. His "Life of Christ" occupied a post of honor among works of its class, and we are sure will continue to do so. As a mine of information and a source of inspiration, his "Hours with the Bible," a work of six volumes, has been worth more to us than any book we ever read, save the Bible. His fertile pen gave to the world several other works of a high order of merit. To few men is the Christian world more indebted for a wise use of time, talent and learning.

A wise and enterprising Western layman said to us recently: "I might give some valuable pointers to those who are anxious to start an independent Methodist paper in a territory which is already well furnished with denominational journals. I could tell them an enterprise, now happily dead and buried, which cost a little body of us laymen, who supposed that such a paper was needed, and that we knew how to conduct a journal for the times, over fifteen thousand dollars in clean cash in less than four years. Then we gave it up!" If there are brethren among the ministry and laity who are anxious to have the detailed facts in this case, we can furnish them the fore-mentioned layman's name and address. We could also indicate to them some instances in denominational journalism other than our own in which scores of thousands of dollars have been spent in the attempt to build up a single paper upon a paying basis. There are two horns of a dilemma within reach of those who are anxious in our day to found a new paper: Either provide an abundance of money, and make the paper better than any now published, or start it at a cheap rate, fill it with clippings and with volunteered matter, and let it live awhile at a poor, dying rate, until even its creators will be tired of the sight of it. Either venture will cost time, patience, money and labor of no ordinary amount.—Central Advocate.

"No, sir," said the rabid free thinker, "the idea that there is a God never for a moment has entered my head." "Same way with my dog," replied the deacon; "but he doesn't go 'round howling about it."—Western Advocate.

The serene, silent beauty of a holy life is the most powerful influence in the world, next to the might of God.—Exchange.

The gravest moral dangers are those that beset us when we are least conscious of their presence.

We give advice, but we can not give the wisdom to profit by it.—La Rochefoucauld.

ADVERTISING EPIDEMICS.

The Constitution can not find words strong enough with which to condemn the impudent conduct of Southern newspapere which lend themselves to the advertising of epidemics.

Whenever a few cases of yellow fever visit the Southern coast, it seems as if discretion vanishes from editorial offices and the newspapers join in creating a scare which affects the people, and which goes abroad to advertise an entire section as being a hotbed of disease and death. Municipalities, routed by demoralization, declare senseless quarantines, and 14,000 000 or 15,000,000 people have to be placed under interdict because in their midst there may be fifty or sixty cases of yellow fever or some kindred disease. The newspapers magnify these diseases, publish the number of new cases in flaming headlines, print war maps of the "infected area," and give black-letter announcements of the number of deaths. The effect of this policy is easy to see. It ruins the name of the country abroad, it destroys the movement of business at home, and all for what?

Suppose, for instance, that the newspapers of New York City should come out to-morrow, as they justly could, and under flaming headlines declare that on Aug. 12 there were in New York City 230 cases of typhoid fever and ten deaths; that in Philadelphia there were 150 cases and six deaths; in Boston 200 cases and seven deaths? Suppose the next day these announcements were followed, and that this was to be kept up from one week to another, every word of it perfectly true, would it not create a stampede from these cities, clog their business and make a showing worse than was ever made by any visitation of yellow fever to the South? Take, for instance, the typhoid fever records for the months of June, July and August in any one of the Eastern States, and it will be found that there were more cases of disease and more deaths therefrom than resulted from yellow fever throughout the entire South. The difference is that this disease is not kept in public notice; that the newspapers of that section do not make sensational items of the number of cases of grip, of typhoid, of consumption, or of the other diseases which play havoc with human life in that section, as havoc must be played with human life wherever human beings live. Take, as another illustration, the prevalence in every city and town of the New England coast of diphtheria, claiming its dozens of victims every day. Yet the metropolitan papers do not send out for reports of these cases and spread them upon their front pages to scare the timid and to create a general stampede of the people.

The Constitution would urge upon the newspapers of the South to change this policy of magnifying any disease which may appear from time to time. Surely others can do as harm enough without any assistance from our own sources. The South can show her death record per thousand favorably with any section of the Union. Even the present season, September in the South for September in an equal population in the Northeast, will show that per thousand we have nothing to fear.

Let us, therefore, cease these undue publications and acquaint the people with the fact that we are in no danger of life in the South that does not equally prevail North and West, and everywhere else in the wide world.—Atlanta Constitution.

We invite special attention to the ad. of the Hammond Type Writer. We can speak in highest commendation of this machine from personal knowledge. We have been using type writers for ten years, and have used many different styles, and it is our deliberate opinion that no machine has ever been made that surpasses the Hammond. The great defect with many machines is that after a little use they get out of alignment. With the Hammond this is simply impossible. Every claim made for it can be verified.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

The statement has been made in some papers that there was yellow fever in Millsaps College. This is all a mistake. There is a broad section north of Jackson called "Millsaps College Addition." A few cases of sickness have been reported within this area. There has not been any sickness of any kind at the college since the close of our session in June.

We have had a peculiar state of things in Jackson. I am sure the situation has never been precisely paralleled in any other community. For about six weeks our town has been subjected to the most rigid scrutiny. Over a large part of town doctors have made a house-to-house inspection. Up to this time something more than one hundred cases of sickness have been officially reported. Of this number five have died. The current report is that three of the five died of neglect because they were not reported to physicians and received no medical attention. Of course, we accept the diagnosis of the doctors; but if this is yellow fever, it has lost its terrors. It is not as serious as the epidemic of la grippe that prevailed a few years ago. The consequences, however, have been serious in the extreme. Proclamation after proclamation has been issued by the health authorities urging our people to flee. These startling announcements, in the nature of earnest appeals, could not have been more sensational if we had been threatened with the "black plague." It is not strange, therefore, that all business should be practically suspended, and that there should be much suffering among the poor.

Bishop Galloway and his noble wife, both of whom enjoy immunity against the disease, have been constantly employed in caring for the sick and looking after the destitute.

I think I can safely say that we will never have a repetition of this state of things. A radical reform in policy is imperatively demanded, and it will come.

The weather conditions now indicate that we will soon have relief from our present situation, and I hope when we announce a day for opening our college session the students will come in promptly.

W. B. MURRAH.

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 14, 1898.

Our editorial, of Oct. 6, on "Eternal Punishment," somewhat enlarged has been published in the form of a 16-page pamphlet. It will be sent postpaid to any address on receipt of five cents.

CENTENARY COLLEGE.

The health of the college and community is good. There have never been but two suspicious cases of yellowoid fever in Jackson, although it has been sixteen days since the town is supposed to have been exposed to it. The two cases referred to had a mild attack of some kind of fever twelve days ago, and are now entirely recovered. There has been no spread of this fever since first reported, hence it can hardly be even yellowoid fever.

The cases near town that were pronounced yellow fever, a few weeks ago, are all free of fever and have been for more than a week, and yet there is no spread to others. Rev. C. C. Miller was said to have yellow fever simply on the history of the case. That is, Dr. Carter, of marine hospital service, stated that since Mr. Miller had been to Wilson he must have yellow fever, otherwise he would not so pronounce. Bro. Miller has been free of fever for nearly two weeks, and no other member of his family has been sick.

But, as a precautionary measure, the places of supposed fever will be guarded with diligence until all danger is past. Our physicians do not apprehend the least danger. Our students are cheerful and are doing good work. We expect to have at least one hundred and forty students as soon as the quarantine is raised. The preachers of the Louisiana Conference will please make a special effort in behalf of Centenary just as soon as boys can travel. This is your college. Help us!

BITTER TASTE.

IT AIDS IN THE DETECTION OF UNWHOLESOME FOOD.

Daniel Webster in the famous White trial in Salem, Mass., years ago declared that "murder will out." This maxim has been found applicable to many other things besides murder. Housewives know it to be true when there is alum in baking powder. A bitterness in the bread at once betrays the alum's presence. It can't conceal its true nature. The alum bitterness "will out," and because it will, physicians, who understand the harmful effect of alum on the system, are at a loss to know why people continue to buy baking powders containing it. All baking powders sold for twenty-five cents a pound and less contain alum. There is surely no economy in using these cheap powders. A pure cream of tartar powder such as Dr. Price's was shown to be at the World's Fair, goes so much further and gives so much better results, there is no doubt of its being more economical in the long run.

PASTORS MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

The new pastor's report prepared since the last General Conference will be used in making reports to the ensuing Annual Conference. SPECIAL NOTICE.

To the Members of the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences:

For forty years I have been a pastor in the Mississippi Conference, having entered the work in November, 1857. The Lord has blessed me in this service, but I am growing old, and still have several children whose education is not complete. Our Conference is well supplied with younger men, and still they come. Under the circumstances, I have consented to take charge of one of the boarding houses at Millsaps College (Williams Hall). We can accommodate twenty five, or more, boarders. We propose to give them the best of care, and make the house a "home" to them in the best sense of the word. We have long tried to maintain a Christian home of the purest type in which to rear our own children, and we will spare no pains to keep the standard high for the benefit of the young gentlemen who may be intrusted to our care. At present address me at Carthage, Miss.

ONCE AND FOREVER.

BY SUSAN COOLIDGE.

Our own are our own forever, God taketh not back his gift;
They may pass beyond our vision, but our souls shall find them out,
When the waiting is all accomplished, and the deathly shadows lift,
And glory is given for grieving, and the surety of God for doubt.

We may find the waiting bitter, and count the silence long:
God knoweth we are dust, and he pitieth our pain;
And when faith has grown to fullness, and the silence changed to song,
We shall eat the fruit of patience and shall hunger not again.

So, sorrowing hearts, who humbly in darkness and all alone
Sit missing the dear lost presence and the joy of a vanished day,
Be comforted with this message, that our own are forever our own,
And God, who gave the gracious gift, he takes it never away.

—Sunday-School Times.

"DANGEROUS PASSING."

In the alleys and by-ways of our cities we often see the sign, "Dangerous Passing." The Creator has put up such signs all along the pathway of life. We read them over every street and avenue that leads to vice and degradation. We read, over the doors that lead to the gambling hells, the saloons, the dens of infamy, "All hope abandon, ye who enter here." Dangerous passing! We read it in the deformed and crippled lives of those who have disregarded its warning, in the botched, half-finished work of the weak and inefficient. We read it in the ruined lives, the lost opportunities, the blighted hopes, of those who heed it not; we read it in the prematurely old. All who have violated Nature's laws carry about in their bodies the unmistakable signs which the world may read as a terrible warning.

It is dangerous passing the point where pursuits and pleasures become doubtful. Nature has signs, "Hands off," upon all illegitimate sources of happiness, and she will paralyze the hand that touches them, and smite those that seek enjoyment through them. There are no cross-roads to her goals. The youth who, to outwit nature, thinks to steal his pleasures instead of paying the legitimate price, will find his capacity for enjoyment smitten with palsy ere he can taste; he will find an iron hand in the tempting glove; he will find a serpent coiled up in the forbidden fruit, which must ultimately sting him to death. He will find that the most delicate viands are powerless to satisfy a taste that is dead; that the most ravishing music can not enchant a shriveled soul.

The worshiper of Mammon who thinks to purchase delights by marrying for money, will find that this sale of the God-given power of loving a noble woman is fatal to all future happiness.

It is dangerous passing the place where Nature calls a halt for rest and recuperation, beyond which brain and hand must be driven by stimulants or the spur of ambition, instead of being impelled by the forces of a demanding vitality and the joy of execution. Nervous prostration, softening of the brain, idiocy, temporary or permanent insanity, are liable to be the results of this crowding, which, if it accomplish anything worthy, does so at terrible cost.

It is dangerous passing the point where openness and sincerity cease to be the natural expression of character. When one begins to employ subterfuge, a thread has been introduced into his life—a web which is very apt to seriously mar its entire texture. Though here and there the thread may be plucked out, one will find it as hard to eliminate the objectionable feature as the farmer does to clear the weeds from his fields. In both cases the seed has been sown, and must have issue.

It is dangerous passing the place where justice, appreciation, thoughtfulness and courtesy are even occasionally left behind. Loss of respect, loss of affection, loss of business and the opportunities for improving one's condition and environments, are the results of this passing. The law of cause and effect can never be evaded.

It is dangerous passing any point beyond which lies less than purity of nature, less than uprightness of character, less than a whole manhood.

There is, in life, no real going back. Even if one could return to his injudicious starting-point, he has, by his unlucky wandering, put in motion causes which must, directly or indirectly, now or in the future, affect his life and the lives of others. At the entrance of these paths should be lifted high the warning, in large letters, that it may be heeded, "Dangerous Passing."—Success.

THE MODEL HUSBAND.

I am a model husband. My wife couldn't lay her hands on another like me in a fortnight. When the baby cries at night, I get up and fix him and put him back to sleep. We have been married three years and we have the sweetest little baby boy in the world. I never cause my wife any trouble. When she is all tired and worn out, I just say: "Come, now, old sweetheart, go lie down and let me finish this job." We have a great number of little dresses for Wendel, and I know where they are kept and how to get at them.

My wife's father is a well-to-do farmer and I like my wife's mother. I never see any other woman who can walk a little better than my wife, or who looks just a little sweeter. I wouldn't marry the best woman on earth unless I thought she filled the bill for perfection, from my standpoint of judgment. I thought my wife did—and she does. When she gets a biscuit turned over a few times between her hands and puts it in the pan, I know the biscuits are going to be exactly right. No doubt about it. We have no drip coffee-pot, but she makes the blessedest drip coffee you ever saw and has the commonest kind of an old tin coffee-pot. She has a majestic bearing, too. Her feet set just exactly as a perfect woman's feet set. Her head could be carried no better if she tried for a hundred years.

When I want to find out if anything is right or not, I just get it before her mind and figure on her judgment. She hits it every time. Don't ask me how she does it. There is no spittoon around the house. I know where the peg for my hat is, and every time I take it off in the house I hang it on this peg. My coat has a peg, too, and there is where my coat is found when not on my back. There is no club on earth like my wife and Wendel. She is the "outside guard" and the "inside guard." She is the light in the east and the intellect in the west. She is my bright and morning star. She can smell a loose button a hundred yards, and she has a way of noticing the little specks on my coat lapel, as she used to before we were married. She loves me and Wendel. I don't find anybody that suits me half as well as she does, sweet and gentle from morning till night. When I want to be cross, she won't let me. When I get cold-hearted and the last speck of brotherly love is oozing out of me, just one touch of her presence stops that disposition. All in all, my wife is O. K., and I am a model husband.—Erastus Plokey.

SEEKING HER BOY.

A few weeks ago he was called to the help of a man who was mortally wounded in one of the low dance halls or "dives" of that city. When he had attended his patient the doctor looked curiously about him. The wounded man lay before the bar, against which lounged some drunken old sots. In the next room a few young men, flushed and bright-eyed, were playing cards, while the gaudily-dressed bar-maids carried about the liquor. But neither the gamblers nor the women, nor the bar-keepers paid any attention to the dying man on the floor. They squabbled and laughed, deaf to the groans. The proprietor of the dive, a burly fellow who had been a prize-fighter in his younger days, having seen the police scenre the murderer, had gone back quietly to his work of mixing drinks. Death, apparently, had no interest or terror for these people.

Suddenly a little old woman, with white hair, a thin shawl about her, came to the street door. Her appearance produced a startling effect. The besotted old men at the bar put down their glasses and looked uneasy; the card-players hastily shut the door to keep out the sight of her; and the bar-maids huddled together in silence; but the change in the brutal landlord was most striking.

He rose hastily and came up to her, an expression of something like terror on his face.

"Is James here?" she asked gently.

"No, no; he is not here. I do not know where he is," he said hurriedly.

She looked around bewildered, and said:

"I was sure he was here. If he comes, will you tell him his mother wants him, sir?"

"Yes, yes," he said—and that man urged her out of the door. The physician soon followed and saw her going into another and another dive and grog-shop along the street.

"Who is she?" he asked of a policeman outside. "Is she in no danger?"

The man shook his head significantly. "They will not harm her, sir. They've done their worst to her. She is the widow of a clergyman, and she had one son, a boy of sixteen years. They lived happy and comfortable enough till he took to going to pool-rooms, and then to variety theatres, and at last to these dives here. He was killed in one of them in a fight three months ago, in that very one you were just in now, and was carried home to her, bloated from drink, covered with blood, and dead. She only remembers that he came to these houses, and she goes about them searching for him every day. They are afraid to see her. They think she brings a curse on them. But they won't harm her; they've done their worst to her."

This is a true story. How many sons of loving mothers are going down like this boy into these dark places to-day.—Youth's Companion.

WHY THE SERMON WAS DULL.

"The dullest sermon I ever listened to!" exclaimed Sam, petulantly, as he came home from church.

"Yes," replied grandpa, a twinkle in his eye; "I thought so myself."

"Did you, grandpa?" exclaimed Sam, glad to have some one stand by him.

"I mean to say I thought you thought so," replied his grandpa. "I enjoyed it because my appetite was whetted for it before I went to church. While the minister was preaching I noticed it was just the other way with you."

"Just the other way, how?" Sam demanded.

"Why, before you went," answered grandpa, "instead of sharpening your appetite for the sermon, you dulled it by reading that trashy paper. Then instead of sitting straight up and looking at the minister while he preached as though you wanted to catch every word he said and every expression of his face, you lounged down in your seat and turned half way around. I never knew anybody who could hear a sermon right from the side of his head. Then you let your eyes rove about the church and out of the window. That dulled the sense. You dulled your ears by listening to a dog that was barking, and the milkman's bell and the train puffing into the station. You dulled your mind and soul by thinking you were a terribly abused boy for having to go to church and stay through the sermon, and so you made yourself a dull listener. And I never knew it to fail in my life that a dull listener made a dull sermon."—Exchange.

REST WHILE YOU REST.

Form develops first from rest and the strength which comes of rest. A tired, weakly figure will sag and bend and want elasticity. Overworked figures settle down and lose two inches of height by the pressing together of the parts of the body. That is why women seem, and are, shorter after middle age. On rest depends the length and suppleness of limb, and women should know how to take advantage to secure rest and conserve strength. Girls must be trained to take rest at proper seasons, whether they feel tired or not, and the woman must continue this exact and special care of herself as the foundation of her well-being. A day or two lying off at the right time, having her breakfast in bed and spending the day in the luxury of a wrapper and a lounge, will make the difference between a blithe, active creature the next few weeks, or one who goes about with a constant ache and fatigue.

Doctor Hosmer, the father of Harriet Hosmer, the sculptor, one of the acutest of New England physicians, used to drive around the circle of his practice in housekeeping seasons telling women to lie down and rest when tired, as half an hour at full length on a lounge would refresh the whole body more than three hours sitting in a chair. The periodical rest should be insisted on by every mother as long as she lives to watch over her daughter. Without it shoulders grow broad and the gait dragging. With rest the step is elastic, the form well upheld, the bust firm, the limbs retain elegance and shape. Work while you work, and rest while you rest, should be the rule for every girl and woman.

After advising the duty of rest, it will sound strange to urge the value of hard work in keeping a good form, but the two supplement each other. Hard work is not overwork, but rapid, steady work which puts muscle into play, and sends the blood and sweat flowing finely. Perhaps you will bear better what that polished physician and man of the world, Dr. Weir Mitchell, says on the subject: "I think it fortunate when women are so situated as to have to do things about the household which exact vigorous use of the upper extremities. Nothing is a better allay against nervousness or irritability in any one than outdoor exercise or pretty violent use of the muscles."—New York Journal.

KEARNEY—Mrs. HENRIETTA S. KEARNEY died at her home in Canton, Miss., Aug. 30, 1898. She was the daughter of David Pipes, Sr., of East Feliciana parish, La., and was born Nov. 14 1833. On Dec 19, 1850, she was happily married to Mr. Jno. Kinchen Kearney, of Madison county, Miss., with whom she lived an ideal wedded life. She was educated partly at the Sacred Heart Convent, and partly at the female college of Dr. Lacey in Jackson, La. She was converted and was received into the M E Church, South, in 1850 or 1851, at a very successful revival meeting held in Livingston, Miss., by the late Rev. H. H. Montgomery.

These are the salient points of an earthly career of brightness and joy in itself, and of constant benefit and helpfulness to all brought within its genial influence.

As a school-girl, she was faithful and attractive, winning the confidence of her preceptors, the attention of her school-mates, and the favorable notice of all her acquaintances. She was led right from the classic halls of college life to the marriage altar. To those who remember her wedding night there will come up a vision of a spacious Louisiana home, with a brilliant assemblage of typical Southern society, and herself the principal object of interest, with her girlish grace and winsome beauty and quiet elegance. Entering at once upon the true sphere of woman—"a keeper at home" she was the soul of hospitality, and she made her home the delight of those so fortunate as to be her guests. The member of a large and prosperous family circle in one of the most favored localities in her beloved Southland, before the war had so disastrously changed the situation her home was considered among the most attractive, her hospitality among the most sumptuous and elegant. She was of gentle, winning manners, and readily made attached friends of all who became associated with her. Her qualifications were those claimed by Solomon for his ideal woman: "The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her, so that he shall have no need of spoil. She will do him good, and not evil, all the days of her life. Strength and honor are her clothing, and she shall rejoice in time to come. She openeth her mouth with wisdom, and in her tongue is the law of kindness. She looketh well to the ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness." She was a woman of exceptional strength of intellect, and was possessed of a remarkable capacity for the management of business. The direction of her estates was committed to her care altogether, and the judicious control of them, and the results achieved under her supervision, proclaimed her to be the peer of the wisest and the most successful.

As a Christian, she was quiet and unobtrusive, but consistent and exemplary. She often spoke of how completely her faith in Christ brought resignation and comfort during the war, when she was all alone, her husband being at the front with his military command, and the desolations of war raging around her.

She has been a great sufferer for many years, but cheerfully resigned herself to the lot appointed to her by Providence without a complaint or a murmur. She was conscious to within a short time before she died, but said nothing about her approaching end. Her consistent Christian life and unwavering trust in her Savior spoke more eloquently than words could do of her blessed future. Calmly and sweetly she breathed her life out, as if sinking into a blissful slumber. O. G. ANDREWS.

SANDEFER—Mrs. S. E. SANDEFER departed this life at her home on Sept. 26, 1898. She was a native of Lowndes county, being born on May 22, 1837. She was united in marriage to Mr. G. M. Sandefer, Sept. 16, 1857, with whom she lived happily until her death. She accepted Christ as her personal Savior in September, 1856, and joined the Presbyterian Church, remaining a consistent member of the same until she moved with her husband to the Delta, some years ago, when she united with the M. E. Church, and has since remained a faithful member of the same. Her character was such as adorned her profession, everyone acknowledging her Christian virtues. She was singularly free from the common infirmities, and possessed in a rare degree the Christian graces of patience, kindness, sympathy, and charity, adorned by a meekness as beautiful as the soft radiance of a Summer sky. She was a loving disciple of the Master, and submissively answered the summons to depart and be with Christ. Her home was always the home of the weary Itinerant. Her remains, attended by her husband and many sorrowing friends, were laid quietly away to await the resurrection morning, when she shall awake with power and in the likeness of her Savior. Her pastor, R. S. LAWSON.

KNOX—JAMES C. KNOX was born in Franklin county, Miss., June 12, 1812, and died in East Baton Rouge parish, La., Aug. 23, 1898. On Dec. 25 1840, he was married to Miss Mary E. Smith, of Franklin county, Miss., with whom he lived happily for a number of years. To them were born four sons and two daughters. Two of the sons (possibly more) are still living. Some years after her death he was again married, on the fifth of March, 1862, to Miss M. E. Perry, of East Baton Rouge parish, who still survives him. In 1853 he united with the M. E. Church, South, and lived a consistent member of the same till "God took him."

Bro. Knox was always a modest man in his religious professions, yet I have never heard a doubt expressed relative to their genuineness. He died in great peace. "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace."

He was buried by the writer and the officers and members of the Plain Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, the rituals of both organizations being used in the presence of a sympathizing audience. THOS. J. UPTON.

HART—MRS. BETTIE S. HART was born in Warren county, Miss., May 26, 1855, and died in Madison parish, La., Sept. 5 1898.

About eleven months ago Mrs. Hart's husband passed away. He was sick many long and weary months. She nursed him with untiring devotion, which was day by day sapping her strength away. After his death there seemed to be nothing to stimulate her to action, and she spent much of her time lying down. She grew weaker every day. A few weeks before her death she went to visit her only sister in Louisiana. She seemed stronger for a few days, made the trip much better than her friends expected. When she met her sister she threw her arms around her, and, with tears streaming down her eyes, she said, "Sister, I have come to you to die," which was verified in a few short weeks. She was conscious to the last, and had no fears of death. She knew in whom she trusted. She bore her suffering with much patience, and was very grateful for every kindness shown her. May the Lord bless and comfort the sorrowing mother, sister, and her three orphan children!

A FRIEND.

Canton, Miss.

STUBBS—Mrs. M. E. STUBBS was born in Marlborough district, S. C., Oct. 15, 1817, and died in Covington county, Miss., Sept. 6, 1893, at the ripe age of eighty years ten months and twenty days. She moved to Mississippi in 1840, where she lived until her death. Her maiden name was Stubbs. She was twice married; the first time to B. L. Henegan, of South Caroline. The fruit of this marriage was six children. She was married the second time to T. H. Stubbs, of Mississippi. To them were born six children, four of whom were raised to maturity, two dying in infancy. She joined the Methodist Protestant Church in 1855 and remained in it until that church came to the M. E. Church, South, in Mississippi, in which church she died.

I was her pastor for nearly four years. The last time I saw her was two weeks before she died. After reading, singing and praying with her, she expressed herself as being ready to die, expressing herself with great confidence as to the future. She spoke of her trust in her Savior. She leaves a husband who will not linger long before following her.

W. J. DAWSON.

ENOCHS—The following resolutions were adopted by the Sunday-school at Bethesda, Sept. 25, 1898:

Whereas, It has pleased the all-wise God to take from us our deceased sister, Mrs. S. C. ENOCHS, who has for many years been a faithful, diligent and efficient teacher in our Sabbath-school; And, whereas, While we deeply deplore our loss in the death of Sister Enochs, we bow with reverence to the will of our heavenly Father, and earnestly pray that God will raise up some one to take her place; therefore, be it

Resolved, That to the death of Sister Enochs our Sunday-school has lost a teacher that was always at her post of duty. It was indeed a great privilege to listen to her instruction.

Resolved, That our loss is her eternal gain. No longer will she hold up the hands of the superintendent when discouragements are near. No more will we hear her gentle voice giving instruction to we who so surely need it. No longer will her willing hands minister to those whom she loved. As a church member, she was true to the vows which she had made to her Lord. To know her was to love and admire a character in which was blended both beauty and strength—a beautiful life, a life glowing with labors of love, a strong and abiding faith in God, a faith which she was willing to live and die by. Surely she had the spirit of our Savior, which enabled her to say, "Thy will, and not mine, be done." It is not all of life to live, nor all of death to die. A happy and useful life, a triumphant death and eternal life, which is the gift of God. This was her lot in life, her reward in heaven. She is not dead, friends, but is only asleep in Jesus. I rejoice that it has been my privilege to know and to have been associated with one whose life has been so pure and noble. Blessed be her memory!

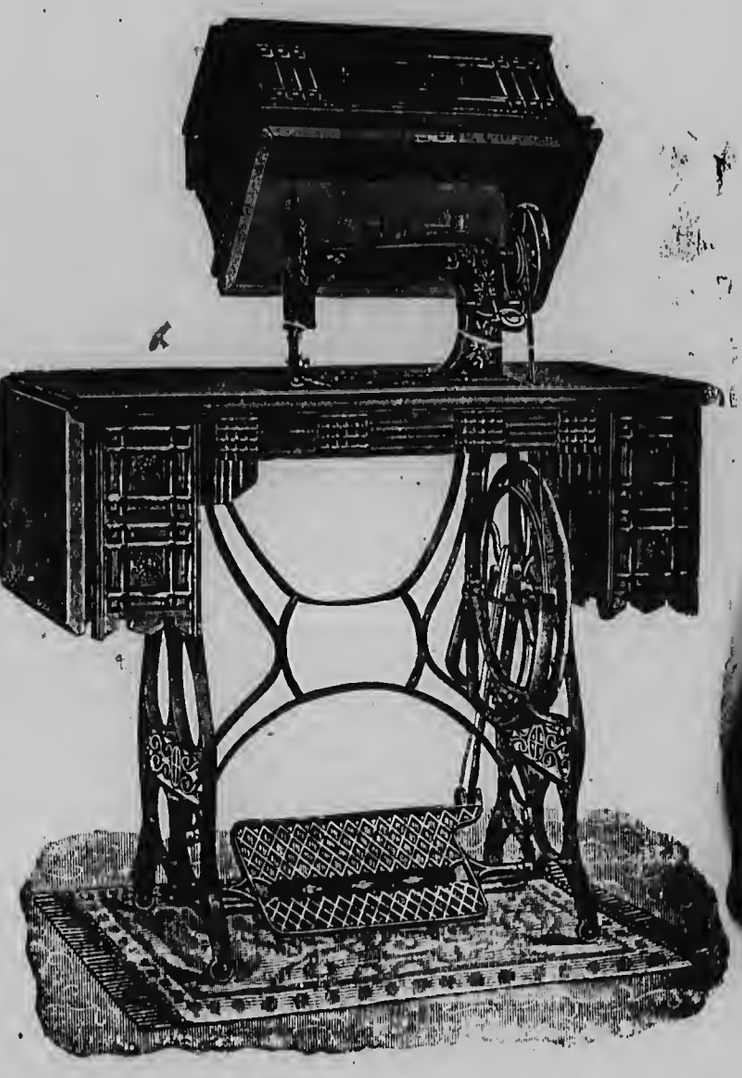
Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc.



The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take-up, convenient foot rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one gauge, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearing polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—The "Arlington B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light to heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great length; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell, without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless and are very durable.

OUR OFFER.

To anyone, not now a subscriber to this paper, who will send us $19, we will send the machine and the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE one year. To old subscribers we make the following offer: Pay your subscription to December, '99, and send $17 additional, and we will send you the machine. This price does not include freight.

We allow purchaser to test the machine for ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

President Masso of Cuba seems to favor annexation. At least, he prefers that to the domination of the military element. He has threatened the present insurgent government will make overtures for annexation.

While firmly believing that Spain will in the end submit to the demands of the United States, before re-engaging in hostilities, the authorities propose to be in a position where they can make an effective demonstration should such action be needed.

It is announced in Paris that a military plot to overturn the government has been discovered. Facts are not obtainable, and the officials are silent. The Duke of Orleans and Prince Louis Bonaparte are both credited with having a hand in it.

Spain's compliance with the demands of the United States to surrender the economic administration of Porto Rico on Oct. 18 is indicative of the action she will take upon future demands made upon her. This is the belief of the administration officials in Washiugton.

The New York Post recently contained a communication from a correspondent in Alabama, in which he proposed, as the remedy for the congestion of the negro population in the South, that black counties should be formed in which the whole population would be negroes.

There is no longer any donht that the negotiations in Paris and Havana are not proceeding with the smoothness which the authorities desire. It is not meant by this that there has been any serious hitch, for such is not the case. But Spain's persistency in making unreasonable demands and in sticking to them is rather wearying.

A serious breach has taken place between the executive department of the Cuban Republic and leaders of the military forces. The army element, led by General Gomez, say they will not lay down their arms until the United States troops leave. President Masso has declared that the time has arrived for disbanding the Cuban forces, and gives the assurance that the country is safe in the hands of the Americans.

According to a statement prepared by the Rev. Dr. Strong, the missionary societies of the United States, Great Britain, Continental Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia number 249, with 4694 stations and 15,200 out-stations. There are 11,695 missionaries, 65,000 native workers and about a million and a quarter communicants. The income from all these countries approximates $13,000,000.

The earliest blizzard, with heavy winds and blinding snow, known in that region for the past twenty-five years, was experienced on Monday in Eastern Kansas and Western Missouri. Besides many smaller places, it was felt severely at Leavenworth and Lawrence, Kan., and at St. Joe, Kansas City and Sedalia, Mo. At Leavenworth, where portions of the Third and Fifth Missouri, and the Twenty-first and Twenty-second Regiments of volunteers are encamped, the tents were blown down and the soldiers made to suffer acutely.

For many weeks there has been a strike of the white miners in the coal regions of Illinois. The owners and operators of several of the mines brought in negroes from Alabama and put them to work behind stockades. At Pana and other places there have been bloody conflicts between the white strikers and the imported negroes. Last week at Virden, another mining town, a bloody battle took place between the white strikers and a body of negroes who were brought in from the South. The conflict was waged fiercely on both sides, with the result that ten men were killed and forty-two wounded.

Secretary Alger has received a dispatch from Major-General Brooke announcing the departure of Captain-General Macias and most of his staff for Spain, and with their going the end of Spanish rule in Porto Rico has come. The graceful acquiescence of Spanish authorities to the demand of the American Commissioners to relinquish the government of this island on Oct. 18, and their prompt compliance therewith, is a matter of unconcealed satisfaction to the administration, and it is pointed to as an indication that Spain will eventually comply with the demands of the government.

The impression is growing in the minds of the American Commissioners in Cuba that Spain expects that the United States will ultimately assist in sending the Spanish troops back to the peninsula. It may be that the present vexations delays are caused for the purpose of trying American patience until McKinley will be glad to send ships in order to expedite matters. At any rate, the Spanish Commissioners never lose an opportunity to dwell upon American wealth and Spanish poverty. At a joint session this was brought out by Parrallo, who said that Spain should be allowed to take away all big guns protecting Havana, because the United States could replace them without feeling the cost.

The position taken by the representatives of the Madrid government to the Hispano-American Peace Commission in respect to the Cuban debt is regarded in well-informed circles as being a menace to the continuation of the negotiations. It is said that the efforts of the Spanish Commissioners are directed more towards obtaining relief from those obligations than in relation to territory. They contend that to compel Spain to shoulder this enormous financial obligation, and at the same time to take from her the only means she has of paying it, is to seek to ruin the country absolutely. Without her colonies, and with the crushing weight of this debt resting upon her, it would be impossible, they argue, for Spain to rid herself of her financial incubus.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Booneville, Miss., EDITOR.

"Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

The Epworth League stands for the promotion of fraternity, friendship and fellowship among Christians of every name and order.

It has done much during the few years of its organization to bring the young people of the North and South, of the East and West, together.

Not long since we heard that the officers of a certain church in a Mississippi town resigned because their pastor invited a clergyman of another "faith and order" to fill his pulpit. We are glad to say that none of those concerned were Methodists.

At the farewell service held in First Church, Memphis, prior to Dr. Smart's departure for St. Louis, Rabbi Sansfield, of the "Synagogue," not only occupied a place upon the platform, but took occasion to say many nice things about his Methodist friend who had been sent to other fields.

Two weeks ago the Booneville Methodists and Presbyterians worshiped together in the Methodist Church, Rev. E. A. Smith, the pastor of the Presbyterian Church, occupying the pulpit. His sermon was particularly to the young people. The occasion was an enjoyable one, and exemplified fraternity, friendship and fellowship.

We would like just here to remind every Leagner of the statement made years ago by the sweet spirited and much loved Bishop Simpson, of the M. E. Church. Let us inscribe it on our banners. "We live to make our church a power in the land, while we live to love every other church that exalts our Christ."

It was originally intended that the Epworth League should, whenever possible, seek to lay much stress upon denominational loyalty. Every young Methodist (and old one likewise) ought to be able upon all occasions to give an answer to every man that asketh a reason of the hope that is in him.

While we feel sure that every Methodist will say "Amen" to the foregoing, we are at the same time likewise sure that no true Methodist will ever countenance sectarian bigotry. Because a man is not of our "faith and order" is no reason that he is not a devout follower of the Lord Jesus Christ.

In connection with these notes on fraternity, we desire to publish an excerpt from a recent editorial written by Rev. Dr. D. H. Moore, of the M. E. Church, and editor of the Western Christian Advocate, Cincinnati:

"Because we tenderly sympathize with General Wheeler in the death, by drowning, of his promising son; and with Mrs. Capron in her new bereavement, mourning, as she does, the brave artillerist, Capt. Allyn Capron, who fought his guns at Santiago, even while tear-blinded by the death of his son, the brave Capt. Allyn K. Capron, of the Rough Riders, we also have only the truest commiseration for Mrs. Jefferson Davis, whose Winnie has been called from her side. Our vision is clearer than before the Spanish-American war dispelled the mists of prejudice and passion. We can understand better now than thirty years ago how that the little girl baby born in the executive mansion of the Southern Confederacy, in the very throes of the struggle out of which God meant to bring a purer democracy, and who became the domestic idol, the faithful helper, and the absolute confidant of her father—how she could come to be enshrined in the hearts of the South as 'The Daughter of the Confederacy;' so that the grief for her death is as that once felt for the Lost Cause itself. We respect that sorrow. It is from the common reservoir of the nation's sympathy, whence henceforth come alike sincerely tears for the Gray and tears for the Blue, and that imperishable devotion to the one flag, whose precious folds are the coveted shroud alike for Lee and Lincoln."

Dr. Moore occupied a prominent place on the programme of the third International Epworth League Conference, held in Toronto, during the Summer of last year. It was our privilege to hear him, and also to meet him in his editorial office in Cincinnati. He is a man of cheerful countenance, and has a warm heart. We trust that our Northern brethren of contrary spirit may be brought to emulate his example of Christian brotherliness.

We are mindful of the fact that many who read the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE do not take the Epworth Era, and hence we are prompted to publish here a letter which recently appeared in the Era addressed to Dr. DuBose, who has charge of mission work among the Cubans in Tampa:

"Dear Dr. DuBose: I send you the picture of our League, 'La Esperanza de Cuba.' There are three Americans only in the group, and the picture represents the best of our congregation. The three vice-presidents are in the center. Directly on my left is Mr. Pedro Pequeno, the vice-president of the Department of Worship. He feels called to preach, and is a very promising young man. Just in front of me is Maria Luiza Aguera, vice-president of the Charity and Help Department—a bright, pretty girl, with gifts and graces. An elderly lady in the top row, second on my right, is Bro. Someillan's mother. She was received into the church last Winter, shortly after I came, and it was a most joyous time for her son, who said he had been praying for his mother for twenty-two years—ever since he became a Christian. The young man at the end of the same row, on the right, with fine classical features, was studying for the priesthood six months ago, and it created quite a stir the first time he came to our service. Many prayers went up for him. He came again, and on until he had a bright conversion.

"Something might be said of each one in the group, but space is precious. Our League is a live one. We have a danger just now to confront: the restless spirit brought about by the termination of the war. So many want to go back to Cuba, and it will need alertness to keep track of our people. The prospects for the opening of the schools are very good, and we feel that here is really the hope of Cuba. May the Lord make us to realize our opportunity and grasp it!

"Truly yours in his name,
"MARY W. BRUCE."

FROM BRO. VAIL.

MR. EDITOR: Will you please make it known to the readers of the ADVOCATE that owing to my ill health I have retired from my work. I have turned the mission over to the young people to run. I have been down sick for eight days in bed with my head and throat trouble. I have suffered for years with chronic catarrh of the head and throat, so that now I am compelled to give up the work and be quiet for a while. I do request the readers of the ADVOCATE to pray for me, that I will soon be in the field again.

Yours in Jesus, E. A. VAIL,
127 Dauphine St.

LAUGH, AND THE WORLD LAUGHS WITH YOU.

BY ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

Laugh, and the world laughs with you;
Weep, and you weep alone;
For this bravo old earth must borrow its mirth,
It has troubles enough of its own.
Sing, and the hills will answer;
Sigh it is lost on the air;
The echoes bound to a joyful sound,
But shrink from voicing care.

Be glad, and men will seek you;
Grieve, and they turn and go,
They want full measure of all your pleasure,
But they do not need your woe.
Be glad, and your friends are many;
Be sad, and you lose them all.
There are none to decline your nectared wine,
But alone you must drink life's gall.

Feast, and your halls are crowded;
Fast, and the world goes by;
Succeed and give, and it helps you live;
But no man can help you die.
There is room in the halls of pleasure
For a large and lordly train,
But one by one we must all file on
Through the narrow aisles of pain.

"MISRULE OF THE MEDICOS."

MR. EDITOR: Although somewhat delayed, my congratulations are none the less sincere and cordial on your clear and strong article under the heading quoted above. You struck the key-note, and your readers generally approve your article, and so do many who are readers of the ADVOCATE. The panic of 1898 is as senseless as the financial panic of 1893, and almost as criminal. And the blame lies at the doors of the medicos, and the State Board of Health in particular. What sense is there in stampeding a whole State because of the appearance of an epidemic, even if the epidemic be yellow fever, or yellowoid, la grippe, Asiatic cholera, the black plague of former centuries, or the bubonic plague which carried off so many thousands in India last year? And why should one object more strenuously to dying with yellow fever than to dying with typhoid fever, small-pox, Bright's disease, or senility? Personally, I had rather have yellow fever five times than have typhoid fever once, and greatly prefer dying with yellow fever to dying with any one of scores of diseases which are far more loathsome. The main thing is to be ready.

A so-called immune myself, I have deliberately kept my wife and children in Canton as a protest against the senseless panic of people and doctors, and the practical infidelity underlying the fright and flight of almost whole communities. We are prudent in diet and in habits. My family agreed with me that it was better to stay at home, where they could be sure of good nursing and prompt medical attention, than to go to the country and endure discomforts and exposures which might result in diseases more serious and severe and fatal than yellow fever. Indeed, we thought it better to stay at home and trust in God than to accept the hearty and urgent invitation to go to the home of a relative in Illinois, using money for traveling expenses which ought to be used in paying a grocery bill. We did not think ourselves fanatical or lacking in affection for each other.

Many left Canton, and thereby incurred debts which will never be paid. Merchants fled, forgetful of business interests. One merchant left his store door unlocked, and a stock of goods worth several thousand dollars exposed, and which would have rapidly disappeared had not his thoughtful neighbors provided lock and key to secure the property he was not able to lose. Another, in his hot haste, locked up several cats in his store and left them to starve to death. Homes were simply locked and left to take care of themselves. We have had, it is estimated, about fifty cases of the fever in Canton, of which only five or six were white people, and so far not a single death. A number of negroes is said to have sickened and recovered without any medical attention whatever.

The Rev. C. S. Newman and wife, of the Presbyterian, and the Rev. Mr. Elmer, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, have stayed here with the remnants of their widely scattered flocks; but only in the Methodist Church have the Sunday-school and the regular Sunday service been kept up. I saw no reason for closing the house of God and abandoning public worship when the bar-rooms were kept open all the week, and barber shops and confectionery stores on Sunday as well. I could see no reason for "forsaking the assembling" of ourselves together when young men could gather themselves together night and day, and gamble, drink, and carouse. And so the Methodist Church in Canton has been kept open, and God been honored, and nobody hurt thereby.

The State Board of Health is an expensive and needless luxury, which can readily be dispensed with. Criticising their failure can not lessen the confidence of the people in the Board, for confidence has already departed, or been dissipated. Since the organization of the Board nothing has been done which could not have been done as well, or better, without them.

T. L. MELLEN.

Canton, Miss., Oct. 20, 1898.

VERY MUCH IN A NAME.

MR. EDITOR: I've been much interested in your editorials last week and this (13 and 20) on the panic, the medicos, etc., approving most heartily the positions you take. Observation along these shores last year convinced me that nothing short of national quarantine will ever suffice to save our section from the disasters of such internecine strife as began to show itself in '97, and burst forth in fuller force this year. The evil results of a general refugeeing can scarcely be overstated. The tens of thousands in money spent thereby, the paralysis of trade and labor left for the poor to endure, the consequent suffering of this class which should ever be considered by Christians in all their calculations, the odium that attaches to the desertion of posts of duty in the hour of danger, the lack of men and means to nurse the unfortunates left behind in the hegira, even the added danger to these lives by the dismal aspect of deserted streets and homes—all these are cogent causes for calling a halt and invoking reason's sway. Yet they are less important than the moral attitude of this question. Well might the heathen and the unbeliever say to these fleeing Christians, "Where is now thy God?" Already have I heard many echoes of this very sentiment.

It would almost seem that "yellow fever" is "a name to conjure by." For men of whom we should never have expected such conduct have yielded to what seems from our standpoint an insane terror—fleeing from "the sound of a shaken leaf," and talking of this disease as if it were an Asiatic plague. Hence I welcome the change of name, though it be slight, and thank the author for the suggestion. Whatever of criticism may be brought against it, the name "yellowoid" will ever apply to the fever prevalent in Mississippi and Louisiana during the Summers and Autumns of 1897 and '98. It certainly bears to the kind of fever which raged in 1878 a similar relation to what exists between varioloid and genuine small-pox. It resembles, and we are thankful to believe gives immunity from, the fiercer form. I state deliberately that I would have welcomed its presence in my own body while it prevailed about me and in my household. Few diseases are not more to be shunned than this much-magnified and misunderstood form of contagious, bilious fever. These two adjectives express its leading characteristics. Look a moment into the following figures: At Bay Saint Louis, in '97, there were over four hundred well-marked cases, with eight deaths—less than two per cent. Most of these eight died from the effect of fright and other complications just after the experts declared our town infected. Prior to that more than one hundred had passed safely through the disease, with not a single death. Other coast towns had nearly as good a record, while current report of conditions in New Orleans last year made its percentum of deaths to cases almost as light. In 1897 our people were shut up in quarantine, and could not run. They wisely determined to make the best of it. No church, store, or home was shut up or shut off from communication with all others. The best of order and good-will prevailed. The well ones nursed the sick, gaining valuable experience. Each tried to help his fellow on. Instead of bickerings and recriminations which were frequent in places bent on saving themselves from infection, we had a decided increase of peace and good will among men. It is worth noting here that no immune of 1878 was taken with this fever.

As one of the after good effects of this providential leading, we have passed the season of 1898 thus far without even "a suspicious case" in our town (Waveland has suffered a little this season). Meanwhile we have been permitted to maintain a partial daylight communication with New Orleans, and would rejoice to have unrestricted intercourse. We are not taking the credit of this condition of things, but give God's providence the glory. I simply cite our case—best known to me—to show that if all would calmly meet the enemy, the danger and distress would be lessened manifold.

I desire to be understood as not one of those who thinks he knows more about disease than educated and competent physicians, who, for their skill and experience, are known as "experts." On principle, I believe in bowing to the decision of men who have had better facilities for knowing the signs of disease than myself. I also greatly deprecate that suspicious spirit which speaks of the announcements of our Board of Health as due to the fifty-thousand-dollar appropriation, and all such stuff. These officials are trying to do their duty as they conceive it. 'Tis also noticeable that every town in Mississippi, and nearly so in Louisiana, where an "expert" has pronounced a case of yellow fever, the disease has spread and shown the general symptoms of that malady. Ye who think so lightly of "experts," please make a note of this. If I am wrong, set me right.

Yet I am persuaded that some members of our State Board have made a grievous mistake in advising "depopulation." Its evils, above alluded to, are too manifest to need argument. Moreover, I notice that the depopulated towns have had a much more serious time in coping with the disease than those places where panic was not engendered by such mistaken advice. Good men and wise can make grave mistakes. This I believe to be an eminent case in point. Be it said also to the credit of our Board as a whole, that we have heard of such advice as emanating not from the Board, but only as the request of two or more individuals of that body. Other less expert physicians followed this wrong leading; hence the dreadful hegira which the victims now deplore as bitterly as any of us could.

What shall we do about it? Try to secure a safe, reliable national quarantine. Agitate and educate in this direction. Give it a fair trial. If disease of any kind appear, let every man stand to his post, help his fellow-man, trust in God, and all will go well.

Hopefully,

J. P. DRAKE.

PACIFIC CONFERENCE.

The Pacific Coast Conferences have all been held. The Pacific, the last held of the four, convened in the city of Oakland, Wednesday morning, Sept. 28, and adjourned Monday evening, Oct. 3. Bishop Hendrix was with us for the first time. He is unanimously voted a great man. As a presiding officer, I do not believe he has a superior. He is prompt in his decisions, firm, yet kind. He was well-nigh worked down when he left us. He put in all his time between Conferences preaching, and while with us presided at a trial that opened the first day and continued through almost the entire Conference, afternoon and evening, with a morning session also on Saturday. The trial was that of a brother who had been transferred to another Conference, and on charges being preferred against him, was retransferred to us for trial. He was a man greatly beloved among us. The result was unusual, if not unprecedented. The accused was acquitted by a vote of 8 to 5, but the Conference refused to pass his character, and located him. I had sincerely hoped that he would be able to completely vindicate himself.

The financial reports, as we had anticipated, in consequence of the drouth, were not satisfactory. Ministers' salaries and collections all fell short of last year's receipts. The collections for missions were nearest to last year's figures. As an evidence of hard times, an audience of 400 gave only $20 at the missionary anniversary. However, we do not press the collections at Conference as formerly. We also report a loss in membership of over 300. Still we are alive, and, for the most part, hopeful.

There was somewhat of a breeze when the Committee on Books and Periodicals reported. It was quite radical on the Publishing House claims matter—too radical to be adopted. All regarding the claim matter was stricken out save a clause expressing confidence in the ability and willingness of our Bishops to do the proper thing, although we are almost unanimously in favor of returning the money without un necessary delay.

We received on trial a class of five young men—the largest for a long time. All are favorably reported of, and we hope much from them. Several were received by transfer, and some go from us. C. R. Lamar and J. E. Carpenter were transferred to the Texas Conference, A. P. Few and C. R. Montgomery to Little Rock, and Jesse Wood, D. D., to the Holston. Geo. Baugh and R. J. Briggs located. The roll of our dead was increased by five. B. C. Howard, D. M. Rice, B. F. Burris and G. H. Newton were all superannuates and old men. The death of W. B. Austin was reported at our Conference love-feast on Sunday morning as having occurred the preceding night. He was one of our most consecrated and efficient young men. He leaves a wife and three young children.

The Bishop redistricted the Conference, making three instead of five districts. He also displaced all the old presiding elders. Possibly since five men could not be put on three districts, rather than show partiality by choosing from among them, he concluded to put them all in the ranks and supply the districts with new men. C. B. Riddick has the San Francisco district; J. J. N. Kenney, the San Joaquin, and Jos. Emery the Colusa. Your correspondent has been assigned to Oakland. It is largely a residence city; lies across the Bay from San Francisco, and is to the Western metropolis what Brooklyn is to New York. The population is about 50,000. We have a fine property here, owned by the Board of Missions, but a small membership and congregation. As usual, I receive my appointment as from the Lord, and since he has sent me here, he will surely grant me a measure of success. There is no more difficult field within all our borders. My predecessor, the indefatigable McKnight, succeeds Dr. Riddick at Centenary, San Francisco.

Some of the boys from the First Tennessee Regiment, encamped in San Francisco, were in attendance. I note this for a purpose. When Col. Smith's regiment came to San Francisco they were received with honor. The newspapers had much to say about the Tennesseeans—such as that the regiment was composed of the best blood of the South, etc. Since then the tone of the press has materially changed. The Tennesseeans are in disgrace. Many things are laid to their charge. They are charged with special antipathy to the negro. Some of them attempted to lynch a negro boy; other negroes have been insulted, assaulted with knives, etc. One of the boys, of excellent family, it is said, when intoxicated, shot down an inoffensive waiter in a restaurant. Their reputation is hurting the entire South. One of the young men who attended our Conference is a local preacher in our church. He says the mischief has been done by a few; that they are mostly worthy men; that many things have been laid to their charge of which they are not guilty. I wish they had remained at home, or been sent immediately to the front. I fear they will now never be able to redeem themselves.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

There is general rejoicing at the appearance of cold weather, which is abating the pestilence that has prevailed in some places for nearly two months. The people at Taylor, Orwood and Oxford have suffered greatly from its ravages, and a few other places have been infected in a small degree. The stricken ones have been the subjects of great sympathy, and much material aid has been given them. How grateful we should be that we live in a land where Christian sympathy, benevolence and prayers abound for the afflicted and distressed.

Every interest of the country has suffered more or less during the epidemic and the enforcement of the necessary quarantine regulations. These conditions, together with the very low price of cotton, are affecting our church finances. In many charges the pastors' salaries and the collections are far behind; but it is hoped that with the revival of business, there will be improvement in these interests also, and that good reports will be made at Conference.

The probabilities now are that our Conference will meet Nov. 30, according to the "Plan of Episcopal Visitation," as published. It might be better financially, and for other reasons, to postpone it two weeks (not longer), as some of the brethren desire. But it is hoped that all will cheerfully acquiesce in whatever time the Bishop, in his godly judgment, may give us, and that we will have a happy reunion and joyful meeting.

Pastors will take notice, that, in order to make a proper showing of our Sunday-school work, they are expected to report not merely the number of schools in operation at the close of the year, but all that have existed at any time during the Conference year; also not on the average attendance of scholars, nor attendance merely at the time the statistics are taken, but all that have been enrolled during the year. Hence the importance of seeing to it, that every Sunday-school is furnished with a proper record book and a good secretary. I am now prepared to furnish the new statistical report blanks that every pastor must have in order to make his report to the Annual Conference. Send me your order for it and pay me the nickel at Conference.

I have been shut in for almost two months, but hope to be in the field soon. G. W. BACHMAN.

REAL CAUSE OF REVOLUTION.

People who have never lived or traveled in Cuba, or other Roman Catholic countries, have little idea of the real architects of discontent among the Cubans and Philippines. In the latter islands the annual revenue of the friars is not far from $10,000,000 per annum, added to which is the "sanctorum," or church money, amounting to $800,000; yet, as a recent writer says, "the allowance for education in the Philippines, with its population of at least 10,000,000, is only $250,000 a year—not as much as is paid for the same purpose by one of our fifth-rate cities." The lands of these friars pay no taxes. Not only so, but these friars make "base" leases subject to ground rent, which is declared to be "more crushing than the worst English leases in Ireland." But this is not all. Entire monopoly of all religious books, pictures and goods is lodged with these friars, who are authorized to make their own terms respecting fees, for christening, for the first communion, for weddings, the last unction, burials, harvest feasts, silver and golden weddings, and other events in which religious forms are employed.

Again, the friars can command forced labor when tenants become bankrupt, for which no payment whatever is made to masons, plasterers, quarrymen, architects, house workers, etc. So we see a rich church owning millions, receiving fees for all services, owning miles of rich territory, yet compelling these poor, unfortunate people with families to work for nothing so soon as they get into trouble! Is it any wonder, under such circumstances, that the friars have grown rich, and that so oppressive have their burdens become that it is these, on the part of the Dominicans, that have instituted successive revolutions?—for the revolutions are against priestly abuse—not against the Spanish monarchy per se. In how many instances the friars have held corpses, refusing to allow burial until their terms were complied with, are facts in history which could be given in ex tenso. The present Archbishop of Luzon is the same archbishop who, in May, wrote the famous pastoral letter in which he denounced the Americans, and, incidentally, the British, as being heretical scum, thieves, assassins, and the assailants of women, unconscious, apparently, of the fact that at the very moment those thieves were holding in trust and protecting for him over fifty million dollars' worth of property, nearly every American consul in the far East having been and still being a trustee of real estate for the Dominican friars of the Philippines.—St. Louis Advocate.

About the worst calamity that can befall a man is to get out of joint with his church. Such a man generally develops into a sort of ecclesiastical bandit whose hand is against the church and the ministry. It would be hard to find a "preacher-fighter" who has not suffered deeply in his own family as well as in his own soul.—Lutheran World.

You can never tell when God will take a little word you may drop, like an arrow shot at a venture, and cause it to strike some hearer between the joints of the harness and bring him down. Therefore let no opportunity slip for speaking a word for Christ.—Rev. A. F. Schauffler.

DISAPPOINTMENT.

BY L. T. L.

"Disappointment, his appointment,"
Change one letter, then I see
That the thwarting of my purpose
Is God's better choice for me.
His appointment must be blessing,
Though it may come in disguise.
For the end from the beginning,
Open to his wisdom lies.

Disappointment his appointment"
Whose? The Lord's, who loves me best,
Understands and knows me fully,
Who my faith and love would test;
For, like loving, earthly parent,
He rejoices when he knows
That his child accepts unquestioned,
All that from his wisdom flows.

Disappointment, his appointment,"
'No good thing will he withhold,'
From denials oft we gather
Treasures of his love untold.
Well, he knows each broken purpose
Leads to fuller, deeper trust,
And the end of all his dealings
Proves our God is wise and just.

"Disappointment, his appointment;"
Lord, I take it then as such
Like the clay in hands of potter,
Yielding wholly to thy touch;
All my life's plan is thy moulding,
Not one single choice be mine,
Let me answer, unrepining
Father: "Not my will, but thine."

MINISTERIAL AID ASSOCIATION OF MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

To the Members of the Ministerial Aid Association of the Mississippi Conference—

DEAR BRETHREN: Again I appeal to you in the interests of this association and the work which it has in hand. During the twenty years of my connection with the organization there has not been a time when we have not had under our care some young men studying for the work of the pulpit, and while we have not done all that we might have done, and every year have had to refuse some worthy applicant, yet it can not be denied that much good has been accomplished through our work. It would only require to give the names of some who have received assistance to convince the most skeptical. That some mistakes may have been made is only to argue that our organization is of human origin. I doubt if a larger percentage of worthy beneficiaries ever went forth from any organization.

From its earliest history our Dr. C. G. Andrews has been its faithful treasurer and guardian. Some ten years ago this writer was elected to the presidency, and, although asking more than once to be relieved, has been kept in that position. During this time we have had three of our most efficient and laborious men as secretaries.

In a recent letter from our secretary, Bro. W. T. Griffin, he states that "quite a number of our prominent preachers have given as a reason for not paying their subscriptions that the affairs of the association are not properly looked after."

Of these brethren I would ask, Whose is the fault? At the last three sessions of our Conference I have publicly called for a meeting of the association, failing to get a meeting; then I have called meetings in the middle of the year, yet at none of these meetings have the brethren appeared to give us their encouragement or counsel. Failing in this, the only course left for aid to be given to our young ministers was through the Executive Committee. This committee, consisting of president, secretary and treasurer, have had to do the work of the association with the best light before us. If brethren thought that the affairs of the association were not being attended to properly, why have they not come forward at our call and given us such information as would have helped us to correct any errors, or, better still, if not satisfied with the management of the affairs, elect a new set of officers (our tenure is for only one year at a time). Really I have doubted the legality of our acting during the past year because of there not having been an annual meeting, when officers must be elected. My sole object in acting at all has been to hold the organization together and give assistance to those to whom we had promised. I can conceive of but one way in which the affairs of the association could have been more properly looked after, and that was for those so greatly interested to have met us at our call for meetings of the association and given us the benefit of their knowledge and wisdom.

That the funds of the association have been properly disbursed, the books and vouchers of the treasury will fully show. (Here I would say that I do not think that there is any thought to the contrary in the mind of anyone on that point.) If the affairs have suffered at any point, it has been, I suppose, in the intimation that we have received unworthy applicants. If such is the charge, I would say that the Executive Committee has been governed by the requirements of the Constitution, that no young man should receive aid who was not endorsed by the presiding elder of the district from which he comes and pastor of his charge. So, brethren who are so greatly concerned for the management of the association, if you have had information of which the presiding elders and pastors of any applicant has been ignorant, it was your duty to so report to the association, and yet for three years you have refused to meet us at our call on the Conference floor. In kindness let me say to all such excuses, that those who make them should be more faithful to their duty or seek elsewhere for excuse. I hope that we may have a meeting at our approaching Conference.

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

(Read before a Sunday-school Conference of Patterson station by Miss Roberta Grout.)

One of the most important questions to be considered in our Sunday-school is, How shall this school be graded? For upon proper grading, to a great extent, depends the successful management and teaching of the school. First, we may ask, To whom does the work of grading belong? This question is answered very sensibly in our Sunday-school Magazine for September. It states very positively that the work should be done by the joint efforts of the superintendent and teachers. Individual preferences of pupils should be set aside, and class arrangement left to the head officer and instructors of the school, for if the capriciousness of pupils were allowed full sway, the result would be disorder and confusion. I have heard of a Sunday-school class who had at least half a dozen teachers in a year, and still they were not pleased. It should go without saying that the duty of scholars is to be subject to authority, and to remain where they are placed. Experience has proven that it is better to class in a Sunday-school according to age than upon equality of learning, for the congeniality, sympathy, friendship and common interest that exist between those of equal years make the most harmonious grouping and produce the greatest unity, which things are greatly to be desired in our classes. By all means let the boys and girls be classed separately, for they are apt to be conversing with each other during the time that should be devoted to the lesson. A youth confessed to me last Sunday that he thought separation was the wiser plan, and he said this in a self-sacrificing spirit, for I am sure he did not mean it was the more agreeable one. Pupils who are wilfully and persistently unruly should not be classed with those who are inclined to be orderly. They should not be permitted to spoil a good class. But let these unruly members be classed together under a teacher specially fitted by grace to deal with them to their edification. I mean a teacher as wise as a serpent and as harmless as a dove. I trust that at least one such can be found in Patterson. I think it would be a good plan for the school to award a premium each quarter to the scholar most perfect in attendance, punctuality, and lessons. This would prove a stimulus to the putting forth of the children's best exertions. Perhaps by this means the children could be supplied with Bibles that they do not possess.

[This last suggestion was adopted, and a Roll of Honor introduced which is to contain only the names of those who have a perfect report for the quarter. Those perfect for one year will be given a neat Bible. —PASTOR.]

CENTENARY COLLEGE.

Not long since I had the pleasure of visiting Centenary College at Jackson, La., and although my visit was at an unseasonable hour and somewhat hurried, I observed things very closely, and will give the readers of the ADVOCATE my impressions of our college.

To say that I was favorably impressed with everything I saw would be putting it mildly. I was charmed, pleased. In the previous years of my ministry it had not been my good fortune to be brought into anything like close touch with our college. I did not know what we had, nor how much it meant to the Methodism of Louisiana.

Thanks to the unexpected fling the Bishop gave me at our last Annual Conference, I landed in the neighborhood of our college, and have been brought in sympathetic touch with the men who are struggling so nobly to maintain one of the best institutions our church has in this Southland—Centenary College. With many others, when I gave it any thought at all, I had learned to think of our college as dead, or dying. My recent touch with her and her faculty has removed all such thought, and I now realize that she is very much alive.

I found, on my recent visit there, over one hundred boys enrolled, all bright, cheerful, and contented, although at that particular time just the least bit wrought up over the yellow fever reports. The material surroundings of the college grounds and buildings have been greatly improved. A neat fence, beautifully whitewashed, now encloses the campus. New houses have been erected on the camps for the president and faculty, and I found President Cooper snugly hid away in one of them. I breakfasted in the mess-hall, where quite a number of the boys take their meals. Judging from what I saw and tasted (and they had no time to make extra preparation for me, as my visit was unexpected), this department is under the very best of management, and is doing well by the boys. Had it not been for the appearance of yellow fever and quarantine restriction, I firmly believe that the enrollment for Centenary would have reached the 150 mark ere this writing.

Centenary College is the place for the Methodists of Louisiana and Christians of other denominations who desire for their sons the blessing of a Christian education. It is not well, it is not necessary, it is not wise to send our sons off to other schools.

Centenary is doing well, but she deserves more at our hands. She ought to do better. I am now convinced of this fact: that the success of our school rests largely, if not entirely, with the rank and file of the preachers in charge of the circuits and stations in the bounds of our Conference. I was a little slow to believe this, but am now convinced, and believe it through and through.

Centenary's enrollment ought to run up to 200 immediately after quarantine restrictions are removed. If the preachers all over the State, regardless of locality, will unite in a "pull all together," it "can" be done. This "can" implies a grave moral responsibility that we dare not shirk. If we can, we ought, we must.

Home Mission Society.

Mrs. H. W. Foote, of North Miss. Conference
Mrs. R. R. Parker, of Mississippi Conference
Mrs. E. R. Kennedy, of Louisiana Conference

The Master has said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature, beginning at Jerusalem." Our country is our "Jerusalem," and presents a vast audience of people of all nations. May each humble follower of the blessed Savior hear the "still, small voice" that came to the discouraged prophet at Horeb, and, hearing, heed!

It is gratifying to note an increasing interest in home mission work, wherever its needs are presented and its practical benefits known. The aiding of parsonages, work of Department of Supplies, amount of literature printed, mountain work, Cuban Mission work, industrial schools, and refuge work, have all made marked and steady progress since the organization of the Woman's Parsonage and Home Mission Society, twelve years ago. Like the "horses and chariots of fire round about Elisha," the Lord has been with his people in this movement, and they have prospered in their efforts far beyond their expectations. They have aided in building 716 parsonages; have 16 city missionaries, 3 Cuban missionaries, and 22 teachers of their schools. "They have acquired property worth $46,877, and a permanent loan fund of $18,392, besides sending annually supplies to the families of inadequately supported preachers, valued for the quadrennium at $16,918.63." The need increases as the work grows: More buildings, more schools, more teachers are needed. Let each and all bring "tithes into the storehouse," for we shall be judged hereafter not by what we have felt, but by what we have done. Henry Drummond says: "There is no happiness in having and getting, but only in giving. Half the world is on the wrong scent in the pursuit of happiness."

We have now about 43 auxiliaries in the Louisiana Conference (adult and juvenile); four of these organized since our annual meeting in March, and over 800 members on the roll. If each one of these members —with loving enthusiasm—would bring their gifts to the Master's service, their gifts of time, talents and money, what a grand report of home mission work old Louisiana would send to the next convention!

There are 12 auxiliaries in the Opelousas district, and only 23 subscribers to Our Homes reported. We shall appreciate very much indeed any items regarding the work, and would specially urge these dear friends to send in quarterly reports as promptly as possible. Let us work with renewed energy and all together. We shall come at length

"Crowned with the benison divine,
His faithful love's decree;
'As ye have done it unto mine,
Ye did it unto me.'"

For the benefit of those who have requested information concerning the Home Mission Society, object, etc., we make the following statement:

The Woman's Parsonage and Home Mission Society was chartered by the General Conference in 1886, and bears the same relation to home mission work in the bounds of the M. E. Church, South, that the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society does to foreign mission work. Its object is to unite the efforts of Christian women and children in a threefold work: First, to assist in the building and repairing of parsonages; second, to maintain mission schools among the mountain whites in different sections of the South, among the needy and neglected classes of our cities, among the Cubans in Florida and the Chinese and Japanese on the Pacific coast; third, to provide city missionaries for carrying on refuge work. The funds are derived from membership dues, special contributions, mite boxes, and the creation of loan funds. Any number of women may become an auxiliary to the society by electing a president, corresponding secretary and treasurer, and by the payment of ten cents monthly per member, 5 cents to the cost of membership in the juvenile or young people's auxiliary. The name of any child between the ages of one and five years may be placed on the Baby Roll by the payment of 25 cents. This baby band now numbers 1,214 names, enrolled from 33 different Conferences. The payment of $25 entitles one to a life-membership certificate, and releases from further dues. One hundred dollars constitutes an honorary life membership, and $300 an honorary life patron to the loan fund.

MISSIONARY ZEAL AND WORK.

We are unable to publish in full a communication from Rev. E. P. Parham, of Clarkaville, Va., but give in substance the points he so well makes. The writer's contention is, that there is urgent need for more missionary zeal and work, and that the great body of Christians are not in full sympathy with the Master in his ideal of preaching the gospel to all nations. He sums up the causes of indifference as being: 1. Want of faith in the divine ideal or plan itself. In a practical age we are too apt to view the whole scheme of redemption, especially where it concerns an ignorant and idolatrous people, from a rational standpoint, and fail to recognize the supernatural forces at our command. We recall the words of Lyman Abbott when writing on a kindred subject: "The divine end of human development is not what we call civilization—steam engines and highways and railroads, ceiled houses and fine clothes and luxurious food—is not even liberty and righteousness; it is the revelation of God to the sons of men, because they are sons of God." 2. Lack of spiritual power. The very dependence of the church upon civilization and its concomitants alienates her from God, and results in an enervation which is fatal to all aggressive movement. It is not by might, nor is it by power, of the fruits of civilization that the church is to win her victories, but by the Spirit of God given in answer to the prayer of faith. Bro. Parham well says: "To his disciples this power is communicable, and the church on her knees seeking this power is the first requisite in all ages in order to gospel success." 3. Bible study and prayer is another essential necessary to a "revival of missionary interest and enthusiasm." Knowledge and obedience are indispensable to progress in the kingdom. Ignorance is an immorality, and disobedience is disloyalty. It is by searching the deep things of the divine mind that we find that truth that makes us true and opens the fountain which sends its living waters through us for the healing of the nations.

Thou must be true thyself
If thou the truth wouldst teach;
Thy soul must overflow if thou
Another's soul would reach;
It needs the overflow of heart
To give the lips full speech.

The Christian Life.

ONE SIN.

There was but one crack in the lantern, and the wind has found it out and blown out the candle. How great a mischief one ungnarded point of character may cause us! One spark blew up the magazine and shook the whole country for miles around. One leak sank the vessel and drowned all on board. One wound may kill the body. One sin destroys the soul.

It little matters how carefully the rest of the lantern is protected, the one point which is damaged is quite sufficient to admit the wind, and so it little matters how zealous the man may be in a thousand things, if he tolerates one darling sin; Satan will find out the flaw and destroy all of his hopes.

The strength of a chain is measured not by the strongest, but by the weakest link; for if the weakest snaps, what is the use of the rest? Satan is a close observer, and knows exactly where our weak points are; we have need of very much watchfulness, and we have great cause to bless our merciful Lord who prayed for us that our faith fail not.

Either our pride or our sloth, our ignorance or our anger, would prove our ruin, unless grace interposed; any one of our senses or faculties might admit the foe; yea, our virtues and our graces might be the gate of entrance to our enemies. O, Jesus! if thou hast indeed bought me with thy blood, be pleased to keep me by thy power even unto the end. —Morning Star.

OCCUPATION.

When the heart is heavy and we suffer from depression or disappointment, how thankful we should be that we still have work and prayer left to comfort us. Occupation forcibly diverts the mind, prayer sweetly soothes the soul.

"Then," writes one who has been sorely tried, "I tell my griefs to God, as a child tells its troubles to its mother; and when I have told all I am comforted, and repeat with a lightened heart the prayer of St. Francoise de Chantal (who certainly suffered more than I), 'Thy will be done forever and ever, O Lord, without if or but'—and then, for fear a murmur may arise in my heart, I return immediately to my work, and become absorbed in occupation."—Gold Dust.

We can hardly talk together five minutes on any subject touching life, without finding it full in our way to say something that may help or please; and those whom all like best largely win their love by this one secret: uniformly, they avoid the hurt and achieve the kindness, either being possible.—Rev. W. C. Gannett.

All we want in Christ we shall find in Christ. If we want little, we shall find little. If we want much, we shall find much; and if in utter hopelessness we cast our all on Christ, he will be to us the whole treasury of God.—Bishop Whipple.

THE PASTOR AND THE RELIGIOUS PAPER.

An exchange says: "If a preacher won't try to put denominational papers in the homes of his people, he is hardly loyal enough to his church to deserve a place in its ministry; if he can't succeed in this work, he is too weak a character to be a minister of the gospel."

This is a homely truth, though too strongly stated. But the minister who neglects to see that every family in his charge is supplied with a church paper largely curtails his own usefulness. The religious newspaper is the right arm of the pastor. It works every day in the year. Its mission is to make church members more intelligent, more spiritually minded, more faithful and earnest in every Christian duty. It is the agent and advocate of every important interest. Its presence in every household will largely increase church attendance and Sabbath-school attendance, and will add in no inconsiderable degree to the contributions for every cause of benevolence. Without it, the people, being in ignorance of these causes, give sparingly. Whenever their interest is awakened, as is done by the religious paper, they give very much more largely. And with the increase of all other church activities there comes necessarily an increase in the pastor's support.—Exchange.

If we can hear the voice of God in all sounds, see the sweep of his will in all motions, catch hints of his taste in all beauty, follow the reach of his imagination in all heights and distances, and trace the delicate miniatry of his love in all the little graces and utilities that spring and blossom about us as thick as the grass, we shall tread God's world with reverent feet as if it were a temple. The pure and solemn eyes of the indwelling soul will look forth upon us from everything which his hands have made. Nature will be to us not some dark tissue of cloth of mystery flowing from some unseen loom, but a vesture of light in which God has enrobed himself, and with worshipful fingers we shall rejoice to touch even the hem of his garment. —J. H. Ecob.

God can not show us the stars while the sun shines in the heaven, and he can not make known to us the precious things of love which he has prepared for our nights while it is yet day about us. Christ says to us then, "I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye can not bear them now." We could not understand them. But by and by when we come into places of need, of sorrow, of weakness, of human failure, of loneliness, of sickness, of old age, then he will tell us these other things, these long-withheld things, and they will be full of joy for our hearts. When night comes he will show us the stars.—J. R. Miller, D. D.

That man has looked out upon the world to little purpose who has not seen that convictions of the supernatural are dominant among all classes of the human family. The man of highest culture believes in the supernatural as the work of God, while the lowest savage regards it as the work of some unknown spiritual power. The universal prevalence of this fact shows it to be a factor incorporated in man's moral constitution. Let the skeptic account for it on any other grounds, if he can.—Rev. W. L. Wells, D. D.

Thank God that we shall never come to any level, however high, where we can rest in ourselves, and feel him no longer above us who is himself our heaven! We know that we shall be seeking him and finding him forever and forever, growing into his infinity as it heightens and broadens and deepens beyond us.—Lucy Larcom.

You will find it less easy to uproot faults than to choke them by gaining virtues. Do not think of your faults, still less of others' faults. In every person who comes near you look for what is good and strong, honor that, rejoice in it; as you can, try to imitate it, and your faults will drop off like dead leaves when their time comes.—John Ruskin.

When you find yourselves overpowered, as it were, by melancholy, the best way is to go out and do something kind to somebody.—Keble.

Clergyman's Statement

Nerve Strength Gained by Taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

BRIGHTON, IOWA.—Rev. Bernard M. Shulick of this place, owing to weakness of the nerves, was for a time unable to attend to his duties. He makes this statement: "I have suffered for a long time from weak nerves. After I had taken a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla I became quite well again. The weakness of the nerves has now wholly disappeared and I am able to attend to my duties again. I am therefore grateful to Hood's Sarsaparilla and I recommend it to everyone who suffers from weak nerves."

Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier.

Hood's Pills are the only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

WE CAN NOT WALK ALONE.

BY M. L. OURTINE.

Dear Lord, we can not walk alone,
In human strength there is no power;
Our pleading, earnest heart must feel
We need thee—need thee every hour!

The self-sustained are self-deceived,
'Tis humble souls whom thou dost dower;
Who, Savior, to thee meekly cry,
We need thee—need thee every hour!

Oh Heart of Love! draw near, draw near,
And grant thine all-assailing power
To them who in abasement cry,
We need thee—need thee every hour!

Belle Alliance, La.

THE LOUISIANA CHAUTAUQUA AND THE MINISTRY A SUGGESTION.

We have in the bounds of the Louisiana Conference, near Ruston, one of the progressive towns of North Louisiana, an institution known as the Louisiana Chautauqua. Here gather together annually (usually the month of July) the most prominent educators of the State to pursue some special course of study, to reap the benefit of some prominent lecturer on literature, mental science, philosophy, caricature, etc., and to enjoy the incalculable benefit of association, interchange of thought, and practical experience. That these educators have been wonderfully benefited goes without saying, and that this movement marks the beginning of a new era in the educational system of the State is the hope and belief of all who are acquainted with the facts. This affords opportunities to many worthy young men and women who have been deprived of coming in contact with the great minds of the day, that, we note with pleasure, they are eagerly grasping. It is equipping teachers for better work, and a higher grade of work, than we have been accustomed to. The effect is already being felt.

Now, brethren, does not this Chautauqua movement offer the ministry an opportunity that they can not well afford to neglect? Was it not Bishop Vincent who first instituted the Chautauqua? Was it not instituted with special reference to the ministry? Then, why should not such a movement be of interest to the ministry? If it has proven a boon to literary educators, would it not prove a greater boon to ministers, who are educators in the highest sense? It seems to me it would. Already there has been complaint that ministers take no interest in the movement. Now, I feel safe in saying that if the ministry would take sufficient interest, the Chautauqua management would readily arrange for choice lectures on homiletics, theology, ecclesiastical history, etc., as well as provide for a Department of Biblical Study. This, in connection with their lecturers on psychology, moral philosophy, literature, etc., will be of inestimable benefit to the ministry. I am informed that Dr. Gross Alexander, of Vanderbilt, spends part of his Summer vacation in conducting a Preachers' Institute in the Louisville Conference, where great benefits are derived. Then there are others of like reputation and ability, as might our own Drs. LaPrade, Black and Parker, and other of our able ministers, be employed by the management for this work. The effect of such study and association would, doubtless, be great good. There is a large class of the ministry (the writer among the number) who have never enjoyed the advantages of college life or education. What they are they are by main force and awkwardness (and some of us are awkward specimens). They know practically nothing of the learned men and their methods; nothing of their advantages in the pursuit of biblical and literary study; nothing of the inspiration that contact with such minds beget. The educational standard is being raised (and that is as it should be), our congregations are becoming more enlightened, and the ministry must keep pace. Some of these men have families, or are in such circumstances and of such an age that they can not go off to college, and being shut off from such advantages, the inevitable result is, that they must lag behind, and finally drop out because of inefficiency. While we could spend only from one to four weeks in this work, yet we could learn and absorb much of the plans and methods of these great minds in dealing with the higher branches of study that are requisite in the educational and ministerial world to-day.

Again, such a move might be of benefit to our college-bred men. Coming from such association and study, would we not be better prepared for the revival season—the ingathering of souls? Would it not be a benefit to our congregations? The cost should not exceed from $10 to $30, and we could well afford to spend the time and money to accomplish the benefits that would certainly be derived. It would be means well spent in the service of our Lord.

I merely make this suggestion in hope that an abler and more influential pen will take it up and arouse the interest of the brethren in a matter I believe to be of great importance to the ministry, feeling sure that some one will do it, if it be worthy of attention, knowing the Methodist ministry ever ready to lead in any work that will be for the upbuilding of the cause of Christ on earth and the good of the people at large.

ROB'T W. VAUGHAN.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. E. P. Craddock, Okolona, Miss., Oct. 13, 1898: "We regretted very much two years ago to leave Jonestown Station, but the doctor (M. D.) said wife's health could not stand the Delta; so across the State we were hurled—and landed in Okolona. When we reached the parsonage it was bare walls and nothing more, but soon we were in a furniture store, and one hundred dollars was spent in nice oak furniture, etc., and we have put fifty more on that this year, so a good parsonage well furnished is the result. Have painted two churches, bought a hundred-dollar organ, and several nice swinging lamps; made arrangement to build two new church-houses this Winter. Organized two Epworth Leagues and two W. F. M. Societies. Sunday-schools all doing well. The preacher's salary was raised one hundred dollars last year, and fifty this, and will be raised fifty for next year. Forty or fifty conversions this year; thirty-two joined our church; good meeting all over the charge. Have enjoyed our two years' stay with this good and kind people very much."

Rev. Burnette Wright, P. C., Shreveport, La., Oct. 17, 1898: "Our church this year has chronicled nothing exceedingly marvelous or miraculous; but, everything considered, we have enjoyed a good year. Twenty members have been received into the church. These members are of the character which usually prove a permanent blessing to the church. The new church erected on Texas avenue is said to be the most convenient, artistic, and showy frame edifice in the State. Including eight hundred dollars secured from the Missionary Boards, the sum of thirty-five hundred dollars has been raised. The Epworth League is well organized and doing good work. The Sunday-school is said by good authority to be the best in the district. The number of Sunday-school pupils exceed the number of church members. Prayer meetings are well attended and enjoyed. The spirituality of the church is above the average. The pastor has been well cared for. The people here, as everywhere in the South, are as sunny-hearted as their cloudless skies, and as profuse in hospitality as the fragrance of their flowers. We have been in the State only two years. During that time the commendation so graciously bestowed—the assurance so generously given—the hearing so enthusiastically accorded—encourages us to greater zeal and more diligent effort. Dr. W. H. LaPrade, Rev. W. W. Drake, and Rev. J. L. P. Sheppard, P. E., have been with us in meetings this year. The preaching was characteristic of the men."

SALEM CAMP MEETING.

We have just closed one of, if not the best camp meetings ever held at old Salem Camp Grounds. This is the oldest camp ground known in this section of the country, having been erected 56 years ago where it now stands, and previous to this it was held 16 years a few miles from its present location, making 72 years since it was first erected. Meetings have been held annually, with the exception of about 3 meetings caused from the yellow fever, quarantine, etc., and still the people are not tired nor worn out fixing and going to camp meetings. Some who attended the first meetings when but small children are still regular attendants and tenters, among whom we would mention old Bro. and Sister Fairbanks, who have reached the ripe age of 75 and 80 years, who still cheerfully contribute to the support and success of the meetings; and others from 70 to 80 years were in attendance. People do not seem to get too old to go to camp meetings on this charge. I have never known a people so united, and of one mind and purpose, as these people were for a camp meeting. We began Thursday, Oct. 6, and closed Monday, the tenth. From the first service to the last the Spirit of God was clearly manifested in its saving power. It has never been the privilege of the writer to attend a more spiritual meeting where such a wonderful display of the divine power was manifested. Strong men and women were brought under its influence alike, and were made to weep, rejoice, and shout forth hallelujas. It is said by some of the oldest tenters that this was the best meeting held here for over 20 years, and others say it was the best ever held. We think there were at least 35 conversions, with 17 accessions to the church. The following ministers were present and participated in the services, whose preaching was in demonstration of the Spirit and of power: Revs. L. R. Roberts, H. B. Vandenburg, W. L. Hightower, C. J. Phillips, W. W. Broom, M. R. Jones, and R. G. Williams, with other faithful lay members, who did good singing and praying, which contributed to the success of the meeting. To God we give all the glory.

J. L. JORDAN, P. C.

CRYSTAL SPRINGS, MISS.

This is Sunday, Oct. 16. It seems strange not to be getting ready for the pulpit at this hour—10:30, A. M.; but there will be no public service in any of our churches to-day. Whether this is wise or otherwise, I will not undertake to say, but such is the advice of our health officers, and we do not hesitate to defer to their judgment. There have been eight cases of yellow fever about one mile below this place, on the Hazlehurst road. Four have gotten well, and the others are in a fair way to recover. There have been a number of exposures, but no new cases have developed now for several days.

As might have been expected, there was some excitement here when it transpired that we had several cases of genuine yellow fever at our very door; but this has subsided, and very few of our people have gone. Schools have been suspended, business houses open at 8 A. M. and close at 4 P. M., public gatherings of all kinds are discouraged, and our people are looking after sanitary conditions, and some of them are resting in the Lord. It is a good time to keep cool, be quiet, read our Bibles and pray in secret. One Presbyterian brother suggested to me that there may be good in the temporary suspension of public worship, to throw our people more on their home religion for a while. Pastoral visiting even is discouraged, so we preachers are learning to be "keepers at home." At such a time as this it is good to be well supplied with something to read. Fortunately for me, I am fairly well supplied with our periodical literature. Here is the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, getting better and better all the time; the Nashville Christian Advocate, filled with a great variety of well-digested matter; the St. Louis Christian Advocate, than which no better comes to my table; the Richmond, sparkling with good things. Then the Methodist Review, and the Review of Missions, which are indispensable. Finally, the Outlook and the Pentecostal Herald, the reading of which makes me more loyal to my Lord, and not less loyal to my church. Besides these periodicals I have recently purchased some good books. Among these is Bishop Galloway's "Quillian Lectures," which I have read with interest and profit, as I do everything from the pen of our Mississippi Bishop. Then here is the Gospel of Spiritual Insight, which I have just finished, and the Gospel of Common Sense, which I am now reading, both from the pen of Dr. Deems, and both first class.

My church is doing fairly well. Up to this time seventeen persons have been received on profession of faith this year, and all these at the ordinary Sunday services. Our congregation is large and our Sunday-school full, with a good home-class department. One interesting feature of our Sunday-school are the Bible classes. We have three of these: one composed of ladies, taught by Mrs. Lilly W. Thompson; and two composed of gentlemen, taught respectively by John Dunning and C. A. Redding. These classes are large, and their teachers are excellent. The spirit of Bible study seems to be prevalent in the congregation. About seventy-five persons belong to the Home Department of the Sunday-schools. When the committee canvassed the congregation in the interest of this department, one lady declined to join it because she thought it was the holiness movement; and she thought right, for Christianity, in all its departments, is a holiness movement or nothing; and there is not anything that tends more to promote holiness of heart and life than the careful and prayerful study of the Holy Scriptures.

Yesterday afternoon we buried the Rev. H. C. Lock, a local preacher of this church. He was 84 years of age, and as ripe for heaven as any man I ever knew. He loved the house of the Lord, and often came to church under circumstances that would have kept away most men of more strength and fewer years. He walked with God, and was not, for God took him. In his last illness we found him peaceful and happy, patient and resigned to the will of God. He has a son in the itinerant ministry—I think in the Arkansas Conference.

W. B. LEWIS.

If every man could live an out-door life, passing his time with gun and fishing-rod and canoe, there would be less illness in the world. Unfortunately, the demands of modern civilization will permit very few men to live this ideal, healthful life.

Many men have to pass the day shut up in offices and stores, and the nights in close apartments in crowded cities. They get little out-door exercise. One of the results of this unhealthy, sedentary living is the awful prevalence of that dread disease—consumption. One-sixth of all the deaths each year are due to this relentless enemy. Formerly physicians pronounced this disease incurable. It is now generally known that there is a marvelous medicine that for the past thirty years has been curing consumption almost without a failure. It is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption, bronchitis, asthma, laryngitis and other diseases of the air-passages. It is the great re-builder. It tears down, carries off and excretes old, inert tissues and replaces them with the firm tissues of health. It restores the lost appetite and makes the digestion perfect.

"Four years ago I had an attack of grip that left my throat and lungs in a bad condition," writes Mrs. Mary Hartman, of 300 Harker St., Mansfield, Ohio. "The doctor said I had disease of the throat and bronchial tubes. I continued to grow worse. I had pain in the upper part of my chest and a severe cough, which grew worse at night and in the morning, with heavy expectoration. I would cough up mattery scabs, after which I would experience a burning and smarting sensation in my throat. I took the doctor's prescriptions without number, but they did me no good. I took sixteen bottles of cod liver oil and was as bad as ever. I then took five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and three of the 'Pellets.' I began to improve in every way and now enjoy good health and have taken no medicine for over six months."

Best Edition of the World's Best Book,

—THE—

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers. New Type. All Proper Names. Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bible. Every body is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangment for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to October, '99. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

SELF-PRONOUNCING

S. S. Teachers' Reference Bible.

Text Conforms Exactly to the Oxford Teachers' Edition.

The self-pronouncing text enables the reader to pronounce all proper names at a glance.

This Bible is printed from Large, Beautiful and Clear New Type. All Proper Names are Divided into Syllables and Every Vowel is Marked and the Syllables Inflected, showing the Sounds and Accents as they are given in a Dictionary, thus enabling the reader to properly pronounce every word. This feature is a great improvement and a strong recommendation for this Bible over others.

This Bible contains the celebrated Oxford Teachers' Helps together with a complete series of New Maps illustrating the geography of Palestine and the surrounding countries from the earliest times, and embodying the most recent discoveries renders this Bible especially desirable to teachers and students of the Holy Scriptures.

Imperial Seal Binding, Thick Edges, known as "Divinity Circuit," Linen Lined, Round Corners, Red under Gold Edges, Price, $4.00.

This book in Bourgeois type will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price ($4) to any address; but to that select class who read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, we furnish it on the following terms: Pay your subscription one full year in advance, viz., to October, '99, and we will send it to you, postpaid, for $1.75. (A little later you will have to pay to November, '99.)

The same Bible in Minion type will be sent for $1.55; in Emerald type, for $1.15, to those who pay a full year in advance.

For fifty cents additional we will send Bible with index. For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved on the outside in gilt letters.

The Annual Meeting of the Publishing Committee of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is hereby called for 10 A. M., Wednesday, Nov. 9, 1898.

JOHN T. SAWYER, Chairman.

On the earth the broken arcs;
In the heaven the perfect round.
—Robert Browning.

The world always listens to a man with a will in him.—Exchange.

A man should be lenient with everybody but himself.—H. W. Beecher.

Chance opportunities make us known to others and still more to ourselves.—La Rochefoucauld.

If you aspire to high position, you must be prepared for great labor and strong opposition.—Midland Methodist.

Love and you shall be loved. All love is mathematically just, as much as the two sides of an algebraic equation.—Emerson.

Observe the postage stamp; its usefulness depends on its ability to stick to one thing until it gets there.—Joseph Chamberlain.

I owe my health and vigor through a long and busy life to the Sabbath day with its blessed surcease of toil.—William E. Gladstone.

Praise yourself, and others will curse you; praise others, and they will praise you. Men are generally good for their debts.—Midland Methodist.

Some people's mouths are always set for a scold, and are easy on trigger. Be sure to keep to the rear of such an one, for she's loaded.—Midland Methodist.

Do not imagine trouble; do not borrow it; do not die before your time. When God wants you to die, he will show you how to do it easily.—H. W. Beecher.

The farther the ages advance in cultivation the more the Bible can be used, partly as the foundation, partly as the means of education, not, of course, by superficial, but by really wise men.—Goethe.

Men seek after power, but often mistake the path that must be traveled, if the goal is to be reached. There is power in purpose; hence, we should live lives of purpose if we would enjoy a life of power.—Rev. J. S. Leland.

Small strands of wire are skillfully arranged into a strong cable sufficient to carry the great suspension bridge with its millions of travelers who pass over it. If professors were united in faith and effort, who can tell the strength of their influence?—Rev. W. S. Cairns.

There are many who would die for Christ, but in these times he calls for men willing to live for him. What is needed to-day is a higher heroism, a nobler, more costly martyrdom—that of the living sacrifice, the sustained resolve, the renewed self-giving, the daily consecration.—Rev. Josiah Strong, D. D.

LAPSES IN FAITH.

An unwavering faith is as rare as it is beautiful. Few, indeed, are the Christians whose hearts and hopes are so fixed on God that they trust him implicitly at all times. The most trustful and devout occasionally have seasons of doubt, and experience feelings of depression because of dangers or difficulties which at other times they would meet with unfaltering faith and unflinching courage. Truly does the poet sing,

"Oh, it is hard to work for God,
To rise and take his part
Upon the battle-field of earth,
And not sometimes lose heart."

How frequently in the history of God's chosen people, Israel, in spite of miraculous deliverances and signal blessings, the faith of the people faltered, and the voices of murmuring and rebellion were heard!

Even Moses, the greatest figure in Old Testament history, whose lofty courage and heroic faith enabled him to overcome difficulties that would have appalled most men, on one occasion weakly gave way to distrust and impatience. When Israel had reached the borders of the promised land, and were encamped at Kadesh, in the wilderness of Sin, there being no water to drink, a cry went up against Moses and Aaron, as at Rephidim. Thereupon God commanded Moses to speak to the rock before their eyes, promising that water should gush forth sufficient to supply the wants of man and beast. Having gathered the people together, Moses said unto them, "Hear, now, ye rebels; must we fetch you water out of this rock?" Then, instead of speaking the word only, as God had commanded, he smote the rock twice. As Dr. Geikie says: "The lofty, immovable trust of Moses in the divine word was for the moment shaken. Obeying the command, he was uncertain and hesitating as to the result, and openly showed his doubts, as if the Almighty could not do whatever he pleased, or would not fulfill his word." Because of this momentary distrust, he was prohibited from entering the promised land.

How strange it seems that Elijah should fall into doubt and despondency; Elijah, whose faith closed the fountains of dew and rain for three and a half years, and who, during that long period, was fed by God's own hand; Elijah, the hero of Carmel, in answer to whose prayers fire came down from heaven, causing the assembled hosts of Israel to cry out as with the voice of one man: "The Lord; he is God. The Lord; he is God!"

Yet so it was. Immediately after the glorious triumph on Carmel, with the earth still wet with the rain which his prayers had called down, he flees from Jezebel for a week, and, alone in the wilderness, throws himself under a juniper tree and prays that he may die. How sudden the transition from the mountain-peak of faith to the dark, dismal valley of distrust! Everywhere else, save on this one occasion, Elijah appears in the role of a hero. What an admonition as to the frailty of human nature! If Elijah was vanquished by the demon of distrust, how great the need for watchfulness on the part of the common herd of humanity!

What a marvelous victory was that won by Asa, King of Judah, over Zerah, the Ethiopian, who came against him with a host of a thousand thousand!—an army almost equal to that with which Xerxes invaded Greece. But it was a victory won through faith in the power of God. Before the battle Asa had cried unto God, saying: "Lord, it is nothing to thee to help, whether with many or with them that have no power; help us, O Lord our God; for we rest in thee, and in thy name we go forth against this multitude." Yet, in spite of this divine deliverance, we find Asa, some years after, making a league with Ben Hadad, King of Syria, in order to circumvent the plans and threats of Baasha, King of Israel, against him. Alas! how easily the lessons and blessings of the past are forgotten! For this lack of trust in God, Hanani, the seer, was divinely commissioned to rebuke Asa, and to warn him that though his kingdom had enjoyed long peace, henceforth there would be wars.

How inexcusable seems the failure of Peter's faith while walking upon the waters of Galilee! As he trod the waves they turned to adamant, as it were, under his feet, and he had almost reached the Master when his faith weakened, and he at once began to sink. Just so our faith often fails at the very time when we have the strongest reasons for pressing on and achieving glorious victories. We, no less than Peter, oftimes need the admonition of our Lord, "O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?"

The instances cited, and numerous others that might be given, teach us that even the strong in faith are not exempt from temptation to distrust, and are in danger of suffering defeat and loss thereby. "Wherefore, let him that thinketh he standeth take heed, lest he fall."

Though lapses of faith are likely to occur in the experience of every Christian, they are neither necessary nor advantageous, and must be guarded against. It is not enough to have an overcoming faith occasionally, or part of the time; we need it all the time. We should live by faith day by day.

A weak faith magnifies difficulties, blocks the wheels of progress, and prophesies defeat. It is a stranger to enthusiasm, and has a barren experience. Weakness of faith means weakness of spiritual life. Great spiritual victories, mighty movements for God and humanity, and complete self-mastery, are never the reward of a halting faith. Our Lord assures us that if we have faith, and doubt not, mountains shall disappear before us. Whether they be mountains of difficulty, of prejudice, of trouble, or of iniquity, faith shall surmount them.

Sin and selfishness act as weights to the wings of faith, and make it impossible for the soul to rise to those heights where God manifests himself in gracious power. Only a humble, contrite heart can exercise a sublime, heroic, wonder-achieving faith.

Trust in God wanes in proportion as trust in ourselves increases. As long as we realize that it is "not by might, nor by power, but by the Spirit," that we are to do God's work, we may confidently expect success; but when Pride enters, Faith departs.

Faith often stumbles through forgetfulness of former deliverances and blessings. God does not forget to be gracious, but men often forgot how gracious he has been. Having overcome some temptations and faults, how strange that we should be skeptical as to the possibility of mastering others! The memory of mercies past should enable us to mount as on eagles' wings to heights of experience and achievement never before attained.

Weakness of faith also sometimes springs from unfamiliarity with God's gracious promises. A bank note is of no value to him who is not aware that he possesses it. In like manner God's promises of help and guidance are often valueless, because we fail to acquaint ourselves with them. For a strengthening of faith there is nothing like a constant, reverent, trustful study of the divine Word. Happy is he who, like the Psalmist, has the gracious promises of God "hid in his heart."

Faith can not long remain robust without fervent and frequent communion with God. Only in an atmosphere of prayer can faith increase its stature.

MULTUM IN PARVO.

Col. J. L. Power, Secretary of State of the State of Mississippi, one of the most widely known, most popular and most public-spirited citizens of the State, in a recent issue of the Magnolia Gazette, expresses himself on the subject of panic and quarantine as follows:

"Let the shotgun quarantine be relegated to the rear of forgotten follies. Let Boards of Health and bulletin boards and proclamations and ordinances have a rest, or let the general government conduct the business on some uniform, systematic schedule that will protect life, respect personal property, and permit trade and commerce to flow in their usual channels. This thing has cost Mississippi for 1897 and 1898 $100,000 in direct appropriations from funds obtained by the issuance of interest-bearing bonds. And it has cost her citizens for both years more than $50,000,000 in losses, direct and indirect. The experiences of both years have put the State back a quarter of a century, and if it is to be repeated and repeated, her doom is sealed."

OPENING OF MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

After some weeks of waiting Dr. Murrah has announced that Millsaps College will be open to students Nov. 3. The fever which has prevailed to some extent in Jackson prevented an earlier beginning of the session. As events have shown, the college might have gone on with its work but for quarantine restrictions and an unreasonable dread among the people. The fever we have had here and elsewhere has been of a very mild type, with fewer fatalities than attend measles, la grippe, and other diseases that occasion no alarm. I am glad to say, however, that we have had no fever at the college, or in any of the students' homes. There is, therefore, no sort of danger from "infected" houses, and all students can come on promptly without the least apprehension. We have had several good frosts, and in a few days the "situation" of 1898 will be at an end.

It gives me pleasure to learn that the attendance promises to be large. Many students have written from time to time, stating that they only awaited the removal of quarantine lines to come and claim the rooms they had engaged. I pray the divine blessing upon the work of the collegiate year.

TIME EXTENDED.

Pastors having been greatly hindered in their work for the ADVOCATE by the quarantines, we have extended our fifty-cent offer. We will send it from now until March 15 for fifty cents. Make hay while the sun shines.

"THE TWO EPISTLES."

Our readers will remember that we gave a highly commendatory notice of this work soon after its publication last year. It has received universal commendation from the church press, and has had a good sale, thus justifying a reduction in the price from thirty cents to twenty cents. We hope it will continue to sell, as its circulation among our people can not fail to be productive of great good.

A NEW BOOK.

CO-FRACTIONS—A NEW DISCOVERY AND ITS APPLICATION. By R. N. Price, A. M. 16 mo. Boards. 46 pages. Price, 25 cents. Southern Methodist Publishing House.

In this little volume are brought to light some interesting and novel facts as regards the relations of certain fractions to each other, which the author denominates "co-fractions." When two fractions have equal numerators, and the denominator of one is equal to the sum or difference of the terms of the other, they belong to the class under consideration, and are useful in the solution of problems where the question involved is of the following nature: "If one number is a certain fraction of another number, what fraction is it of the sum of the two numbers, or of their difference?" "Co-fractions" are shown to have a variety of applications, as, for instance, in problems of percentage, ratio and proportion, and discount, the processes in many cases being evidently much shorter and easier than the old methods. It is a book well worthy of consideration by mathematicians, teachers, and business men, for the principles discovered will, we think, prove serviceable as well as curious.

M. M. BLACK.

AN EXPLANATION.

The press of the M. E. Church has given various explanations of the recent small increase of church membership in comparison with former years. Here is the Northwestern Advocate's explanation:

"A new regulation of the General Conference prescribes that when the habitat of an absent member remains unknown to a pastor for one year, the name of the missing member shall be annotated as 'removed without letter,' and the member concerned 'shall not be counted in the returns of statistics.'

"Some pastors have been embarrassed for years by the number of members on record whose home and later personal history are indefinite, to say the least. Not long ago the word was passed about the church that these missing members presumptively are members still, and that their names must not be marked off our records. Some pastors did mark them off, but with doubts or possible protests. The old totals were a basis upon which many connectional appropriations (some called them 'assessments') were constructed, and presiding elders and pastors demurred, even though they may not have erased the names at the last. However, when the law above cited was enacted the order was obeyed and the names ceased to be 'counted in the returns of statistics.' The result was a marked apparent decrease of the rate of yearly increase in our church. Many pastors who hesitated for one or two years to annotate the names as 'removed without letter,' and to drop them from the record, finally consented to do as the law directs, even though they deprecated an apparent reduction in membership numbers."

Although we have had no recent change of law at this point, we believe that the same cause has produced a like effect among us. Our preachers are more willing than formerly to strike off the names of non-residents who are lost sight of.

DELIVERANCE WILL COME.

There is nothing of a temporal nature which would be hailed by the Southern people as a greater boon than their complete deliverance from yellow fever. Such a deliverance we believe will come in the near future. We mean that the disease will be stamped out at its source—in Cuba. On this point the following utterances from leading and influential journals in different sections show the trend of enlightened public opinion:

The home of the yellow fever, as is well known, is in Cuba, and wherever it makes its appearance in the United States, it can be traced directly or indirectly to that island. There is no doubt among scientific men that the yellow fever germ in Cuba can be stamped out by modern sanitary methods.—Minneapolis Tribune.

What we have done in controlling or restricting the yellow fever in our land warrants the expectation that now, with Cuba, the source of the epidemic, in our control, the practical eradication of the disease can be accomplished. We have learned how to check its spread, but till now we have not been able to get at its source.—Providence (R. I.) Journal.

When a wave of American enterprise and capital overflows Cuba the transformation scene will attract the notice of the world. But the first step, as at Santiago, will be to put the Cuban cities, especially the fever-breeding seaports, into better sanitary condition. Four centuries of Spanish indifference to sanitation in Cuba must now be overcome. With good health departments Cuba will be as safe as any tropical island in the world.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

But the opinion of a man so eminent in the medical world as Surgeon-General Wyman, of the United States Marine Hospital Service, is of far greater value than that of any mere journalist. Here is what he has to say on the subject:

"With American predominance in the Island of Cuba there will be little or no difficulty, even before the ports and cities are placed in better sanitary condition, of this government exercising a surveillance over vessels leaving for the coast of the United States proper. There is in contemplation already the locating of disinfecting plants in a number of Cuban ports by which vessels may be made absolutely safe before leaving these ports, and after vessels have been placed in proper sanitary condition at the port of departure, the time occupied in their voyage to our coast, provided they arrive with no manifestations of disease, will be counted as the time which is now passed by the vessels while held in quarantine from three to five days on this side. But more than this, I feel confident that soon the sanitary ideas of the United States will prevail in Cuba, and that sanitary engineering, sanitary plumbing, good drainage, good sewerage and good water supply will all, under American influence, replace the sad conditions which prevail in all Cuban cities at present.

"With these improved conditions there is no question in my mind that yellow fever will diminish in intensity and frequency, and may be made entirely in due time to disappear almost en-

NOTES.

Rev. H. H. Ahrens is convalescing from a light attack of yellowoid.

Our readers will be glad to learn from his own pen that Bro. W. W. Drake is up again after his bout with the fever.

Dr. J. L. Pierce will commence a meeting at Caroudelet on Sunday, Nov. 6. He will be assisted by Rev. R. H. Wynn.

Bishop Galloway will start for Texas this week, where he will remain until he completes his round of Conferences.

From the secular papers we learn that Rev. T. B. Holloman, of the Mississippi Conference, has had an attack of yellowoid, but is convalescent.

Sister Denson, wife of Rev. J. E. Denson, died on the twentieth at their parsonage home in this city. We tender our profoundest sympathies to our brother in his sore bereavement.

By a letter from Rev. S. S. Bogan we learn that Rev. V. D. Skipper, presiding elder of the Alexandria district, Louisiana Conference, and his wife have both been down with the prevailing fever, but are now convalescent.

We deeply sympathize with our friend and brother, Rev. T. W. Brown, of the Mississippi Conference, in the bereavement which he suffers in the death of his son, Jesse, which occurred at his parsonage home at Ocean Springs, Miss., on the eighteenth.

There has been frost in this city and at several points further South. All the States except Texas have raised their quarantines. The wheels of commerce are again in motion. Our people will now have something else to think of besides fever and quarantine.

***

We invite special attention to the notice of Dr. Malone about the opening of Grenada Female College. As Grenada has not had even a suspicious case of fever, there is no reason why it should not have the very best opening in its history, and we sincerely hope it will have.

We invite attention to the notice of Port Gibson Female College. There has been only one case of fever reported at Port Gibson, and that was outside the city limits. More than three weeks having passed, there is, of course, no danger of infection. We hope for a large attendance.

In our issue of last week the total number of deaths from yellowoid in Louisiana was given as 39, when the figures should have been 52. The figures were correct, however, for each locality. We can not tell how the mistake occurred, as we have the correct figures on our record-book.

The Central Methodist has removed from Catlettsburg, Ky., to Louisville. Dr. Meek, the founder of the paper, who has edited it for thirty years, becomes assistant editor, and Dr. M. B. Chapman, who for several years occupied the tripod of the St. Louis Advocate, becomes editor-in-chief. Dr. Meek has always made a good paper. We welcome Dr. Chapman back to the tripod.

As will be seen by Dr. Murrah's notice, Millsaps College will open on the third of November. Although Jackson has had the fever, it has been extirpated by the cold weather, so that there is now no danger whatever of its spread. Let it be noted, too, that there has been no fever and no sickness of any sort on the college campus. We hope the college will open with its halls crowded.

NATIONAL QUARANTINE.

That the seriousness of the yellow fever situation in Mississippi has forced that State to call upon the Federal government for aid is an outcome to be expected. The experience of last year, and the facts of every other epidemic in the South, has shown that the States can not control the spread of the disease. The distress that so slight an outbreak has caused, however, should quicken the conscience of Congress and cause the passage of a practical Federal quarantine law that will save the South from itself and protect the rest of the country at the same time. This year should see the rout of the clique that opposed action and the passage of constructive legislation. Further delay will be criminal.—Philadelphia Press.

The State Board of Health is weak and exhausted. It has no adequate system of quarantine regulations. There is no organized plan of delivering supplies, no general sanitary service, and little, if any, practical basis for a concerted effort between the State and the Federal authorities to check the epidemic. Under a national quarantine system all the means for a vigorous and successful campaign against the fever would be ready at hand, and it is reasonably certain that the disease would never have got its present hold.—New York Mail and Express.

As it is clearly proven that the State authorities are incapable of grasping and controlling the pressing issues of public safety, it becomes the duty of the health officials of the general government to establish national quarantine, and speedily and effectually bring order out of chaos.

Much of the danger of the spread of yellow fever in the South has centered in the difficulty of reconciling the different State Health Boards to some uniform and reasonable methods of general protection for wide districts of country. This will always be the case so long as the question of State rights is discussed in connection with matters pertaining to public health.—New York Herald.

RHEUMATISM causes more aches and pains than any other disease. It is due to acid in the blood, and is cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla which neutralizes this acid.

HATTIESBURG AND THE FEVER.

Persons who depend on the reports made in newspapers of the fever here would conclude that we are having quite a scourge, but I can say that there is more alarm and random talk than danger. Indeed, I can state with quite an emphasis that quarantine is doing more damage than the fever. It is true we have had six deaths within a week, but let us look at these a little and see why they have occurred.

The first one was Bro. Cor Neal, a Presbyterian. He was an unhealthy man, with weak kidneys, and after having weakened himself by losing sleep and waiting on the sick, he took fever, and his kidneys ceased to act, and he died from uric poison. The second one was Sister Seitzler, a member of our church, and the wife of the editor of the Hattiesburg Progress. She took the fever, and died from exhaustion with another trouble. The third one was Bro. Galbreth, a Presbyterian, who died from heart failure, having had no fever of any kind. The fourth one was Miss Hubbert, who had recently come from the North to take charge of domestic matters for Bro. Fuller, who is her nephew. He was taken quite sick after having had chills for some time, and she exhausted herself waiting on him day and night. In her exhausted state she took fever and died, being fifty-odd or sixty years old. The fifth one was an old lady, Mrs. Olson, an Episcopalian. Her daughter, Miss Edith, had been sick most of the Summer, but grew much worse, and, of course, being so solicitous about her daughter, she could not rest day or night at times, and, consequently, being worn out with fatigue and anxiety, she finally was taken sick and died. The sixth one was a little child of Mr. and Mrs. Charles. It caught on fire, and inhaled the flame, and died, not being sick at all.

So we see that it is not the so-called yellow fever that is doing so much mischief, for three of the six did not have the fever, and the three did not necessarily die alone with the fever. Likely some of the three, if not all of them, would not have died if they had not been shut up by quarantine to hear, see and feel nothing but yellow fever, as it is named. Persons get sick and die through fear and neglect. I had rather take the yellow fever and die than to be party with those who favor shutting up others to die with it in order to keep my own poor self from dying with it. People seem to lose all love and care for one another in their efforts to save themselves, as well as to lose faith in the providence of God. It is true that those who have put their trust in doctors see their helplessness when it is said that we have yellow fever and become alarmed, but, thanks be unto God! we never feel thus when we put our trust in God.

From all I have heard and learned I am heartily opposed to both State and National quarantines. Let them be abolished, and let the church take care of the sick. The world has little feeling and sympathy for the helpless and sick, especially the poor. What a field for the church to do good! Let us cease to talk about State and National quarantines, except to abolish them forever, for they are foolish, selfish, and wicked. There is no God or wisdom in them as they are now managed. If our best men and best talents, with good experiences, are put in control of them, then I am in favor of National quarantines, and not till then.

Under the blessings of God we shall be ready for the Conference at the appointed time, Dec. 15.

CANCER AND TUMORS CURED BY ANOINTING WITH OIL.

It is justly claimed that the Oil Cure is the best remedy known for malignant diseases, and every honest doctor who has investigated the matter must admit the fact. The remedy is not only mild and safe, but it cures internal as well as external Cancer and Tumors, and gives relief from unceasing pain. Thousands have been cured in the last few years. Dr. D. M. Bye claims that after twenty years of success as a specialist for Cancer and Tumors, the Lord led him to the Oil Cure, and for seven years the Doctor has received thousands of good letters from persons cured. Hundreds from ministers and Christian patients are printed in books and papers which if one will read they will plainly see that surely God's blessing is with the Oil Cure. In the large book will be many half-tone photos which show conditions before and after treatment, all of which are sent free, giving particulars and price of Oil. Its just popularity is shown by the fact that at this time over two thousand patients are taking home treatment. Its great success has caused many counterfeiting imitators, therefore be careful and send to the right place and person by addressing DR. D. M. BYE, LOCK BOX 25, INDIANAPOLIS, IND., U. S. A. The suffering should know of this. Cut this out and send to some afflicted one.

FRANKLIN, LA.

For about two months and a half this community has been paralyzed by the presence of yellow fever, and the resulting fears and quarantines. During that time it is estimated that there have been twelve hundred cases of sickness, of which nearly half have been yellow fever in varying degrees of severity. Fortunately, only ten deaths have resulted from the scourge. During these trying times the generous people of the town and parish have contributed liberally to the wants of the poorer people.

We have had sickness at the parsonage constantly for more than five weeks. I am just up from a right severe attack of the fever, and we are now nursing the baby through a light attack.

We hope to rally from our paralysis in time for Conference.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE OPENING.

The seventh session of Millsaps College will begin Thursday, Nov. 3, and continue without intermission for Christmas holidays until June 20, 1899

A full session's work will be completed, and the advancement of no student will be delayed as result of postponement in opening.

Terms as published in catalogue.

All students in Literary and Law Departments are urged to be present on the opening day. New students should be on hand Wednesday, the second. To correct a misleading statement inadvertently made in some papers, attention is called to the fact that there has been no sickness of any kind at the college or in our Students Homes since the close of the last session.

WILL REOPEN MONDAY.

Port Gibson Female College will reopen Monday, Oct. 24. Boarding pupils in the country and day pupils are expected to come in promptly; students from other points can safely enter as soon as trains are resumed. There is no danger of exposure to fever. There has been no case in the city proper, and as no further spread has resulted from the suspicious case on the second of October in the Port Gibson Oil Mill district, the town is pronounced free from infection. The health of the town is excellent, and a good attendance is reasonably expected.

GRENADA COLLEGE.

Grenada has escaped the prevailing fever. We have not had a suspicious case, and by the date above named all danger of contagion from any quarter will be past. Pupils from infected points, however, as a matter of precaution, will not be admitted until after cold weather.

Every teacher will be in her place and all lost time will be made up by teaching Christmas week, one or two Saturdays in each month and two weeks later, making the term close about the middle of June. By this means the year's work can be compassed and no one lose class standing. All trains will be met Oct. 31 and Nov. 1, and at any other time on notice. I am confidently expecting every pupil engaged during the Summer, but it is important to hear from each one. Please arrange to come Monday, Oct. 31, and be ready for the opening next day so as to lose no further time.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To the Members of the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences:

For forty years I have been a pastor in the Mississippi Conference, having entered the work in November, 1857. The Lord has blessed me in this service, but I am growing old, and still have several children whose education is not complete. Our Conference is well supplied with younger men, and still they come. Under the circumstances, I have consented to take charge of one of the boarding houses at Millsaps College (Williams Hall). We can accommodate twenty five, or more, boarders. We propose to give them the best of care, and make the house a "home" to them in the best sense of the word. We have long tried to maintain a Christian home of the purest type in which to rear our own children, and we will spare no pains to keep the standard high for the benefit of the young gentlemen who may be intrusted to our care. At present address me at Carthage, Miss.

H. P. LEWIS.

FAYETTE, MISS.

We have just passed through a genuine yellow fever panic. We, however, have had but few cases and no deaths. We hope that it is over. More than two-thirds of the people left town. Many of them are returning; and if the weather continues cool, quarantine will soon be raised and we will get back to our normal condition.

Our neighbor town—Harriston—has suffered sorely. We have profoundly sympathized with the afflicted there. Being but two miles away, the epidemic there caused great alarm here. The fact that this pastor stayed was highly appreciated by the people, so much so that they gave him and his family the heaviest "pounding" that they ever enjoyed—also many kindly expressions. For such kindnesses we feel profoundly grateful. In attentions to the sick we did all that we had opportunity to do. Glad our opportunities in that way were not greater.

Before the disease was pronounced yellow fever in Harriston, many of our people were exposed to it. That we have escaped so well seems to be miraculous. God has graciously preserved us—blessed be his name!

WHAT TIME IS IT?

What time is it?
Time to do well—
Time to live better—
Give up that grudge—
Answer that letter—
Speak that kind word to sweeten a sorrow;
Do that good deed you would leave till to-morrow.
Time to try hard
In that new situation—
Time to build upon
A solid foundation.
Giving up needlessly, changing and drifting,
Leaving the quicksands that ever are shifting.

What time is it?
Time to be earnest,
Laying up treasure;
Time to be thoughtful,
Choosing true pleasure.
Loving stern justice—of truth being fond,
Making your word just as good as your bond.
Time to be happy,
Doing your best—
Time to be trustful,
Leaving the rest.
Knowing, in whatever country or clime,
We'er can we call back one minute of time.

HOLDING THE LADDER.

A workman in Cooper Institute, in this city, having occasion to ascend a ladder to do some repairing in one of the public rooms, called to an old man, whom he happened to see standing by watching him: "Here, old fellow, hold the ladder for me, won't you?" The "old fellow" started forward and held the ladder for the workman, while he climbed up and did his work. That unpretentious and willing old man was Peter Cooper.

We say that was Peter Cooper. It was Peter Cooper through and through and all over. It was ambition enough for him to hold the ladder for other people. He remembered how hard the climbing had been for him when he tried to study and learn and fit himself for his sphere of usefulness and service; and he had made up his mind many, many years before that he would make it easier for other people to climb. His institute was a ladder, and the fairest sight in it all was the almost daily sight of the old man, with his glory of white hair, visiting it, standing by it day after day, holding it up that other people, young men and young women, might climb.

And what is that but saying that Peter Cooper was a Christian? What is this but the very essence of Christianity, the very meaning of the word? What is this but the very life of Him who taught that, "it is more blessed to give than to receive," that saying of our Lord forgotten by the Evangelists, and rescued for us by the Apostle Paul? It is the lesson the disciples had learned of their Master when they said of him that "He pleased not himself," which even his enemies had learned and repeated in the gibe, "He saved others; himself he can not save." What is it but Christ's own summary of the law of God incarnated again in human life, as it has been incarnated, thank God! many times since Jesus set the example?

That is a white day for any man, poor or rich, when he makes up his mind as did Peter Cooper, to give his life, his thought, his mites or his millions, for other people. They are happier for it; the world is better for it. We know rich men now living whose whole thought is of how they can make their wealth help the world. We heard one of them say, the other day, "It requires more thought to know how to spend your money wisely than how to make it." But we could easily mention the names of more than one rich man of New York who counts many times more millions than Peter Cooper ever amassed, but who holds and grasps after dollars, and never cares to hold the ladder. For them the hungry, toiling world has no benedictions. Their hearse will be followed by no reverent and grateful crowds. No tears will fall for them. The morning paper will report of them that they died, and that they left behind them so many tens of millions, left it because they could not take it; and it will say nothing more. Why? Because they have planned, labored, amassed only for themselves. They have held no ladder. They have despised the law of love and service, which is paramount to all laws, on which God's judgment throne is set, that by which he judges himself and will judge the world, and that by which we are bound to judge our fellow-men. Peter Cooper had enough simple, deep wisdom in his youth to take into his own heart and life that blessed rule which humbles self, if it can only uplift others; but which, in God's own blessed economy of law and life, uplifts both the world and its benefactor. Trust God for it, "he that humbleth himself shall be exalted." He that stands at the foot of the ladder to hold it shall sit near the head of the feast in the heavenly kingdom. What have we been talking about? Is it Peter Cooper's conversion? Nay, yours, we trust, kind reader. —Independent.

WHY THEY DON'T GO.

Burdette hits many a nail on the head. How like human excuses are the following:

"So you are not going to church this morning, my son?

"Ah, yes; I see. 'The music is not good'; that's a pity! That's what you go to church for, to hear the music.

"'And the pews are not comfortable.' That's too bad—the Sabbath is the day of rest, and we go to church for repose. The less we do through the week, the more rest we clamor for on the Sabbath.

"'The church is so far away; it is too far to walk, and I detest riding in a street car, and they're always crowded on the Sabbath.' This is, indeed, distressing. Sometimes when I think how much farther away heaven is than the church, and that there are no conveyances on the road of any description, I wonder how some of us are going to get there.

"'And the sermon is so long always.' All these things are, indeed, to be regretted. I would regret them more sincerely, my boy, did I not know that you will often squeeze into a stuffed street car with a hundred other men, breathing an incense of whisky, beer and tobacco, hang on a strap by your eyelids for two miles, and then pay fifty cents for the privilege of sitting on a rough plank in the hot sun for two hours longer, while in the intervals of the game a scratch band will blow discordant thunder right into your ears, and come home to talk the rest of the family into a state of anral paralysis about the 'dandiest game you ever saw played on that ground!'

"Ah, my boy, you see what staying away from church does. It develops a habit of lying. There isn't one man in a hundred who could go on the witness-stand and give, under oath, the same reason for not going to church that he gives to his family every Sunday morning. My son, if you don't think you ought to go, you wouldn't make any excuses for not going. No man apologizes for doing right."—Religious Herald.

A LESSON FOR TIME-WASTERS.

Lost! Somewhere between sunrise and sunset, two golden hours, each set with sixty diamond minutes. No reward is offered, for they are gone forever.—Horace Mann.

"What is the price of that book?" at length asked a man who had been dawdling for an hour in the front store of Benjamin Franklin's newspaper establishment. "One dollar," replied the clerk. "One dollar!" echoed the longer; "can't you take less than that?" "One dollar is the price," was the answer.

The would-be purchaser looked over the books on sale awhile longer, and then inquired: "Is Mr. Franklin in?" "Yes," said the clerk, "he is very busy in the press-room." "Well, I want to see him," persisted the man. The proprietor was called, and the stranger asked: "What is the lowest, Mr. Franklin, that you can take for that book?" "One dollar and a quarter," was the prompt rejoinder. "One dollar and a quarter! Why, your clerk asked me only a dollar just now." "True," said Franklin, "and I could have better afforded to take a dollar than to leave my work."

The man seemed surprised; but, wishing to end a parley of his own seeking, he demanded: "Well, come, now, tell me your lowest price for this book." "One dollar and a half," replied Franklin. "A dollar and a half! Why, you offered it yourself for a dollar and a quarter." "Yes," said Franklin, coolly, "and I could better have taken that price then than a dollar and a half now."

The man silently laid the money on the counter, took his book, and left the store, having received a salutary lesson from a master in the art of transmuting time, at will, into either wealth or wisdom.—Success.

SEEING THE POINT.

A boy returned from school one day with a report showing that his scholarship had fallen below the usual average.

"Son," said his father, "you've fallen behind this month, haven't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"How did that happen?"

"Don't know, sir."

The father knew, if the son did not. He had observed a number of dime novels scattered about the house; but had not thought it worth while to say anything until a fitting opportunity should offer itself. A basket of apples stood upon the floor, and he said:

"Empty out those apples, and take the basket and bring it to me half full of chips."

Suspecting nothing, the boy obeyed.

"And now," he continued, "put those apples back in the basket."

When half the apples were replaced, the boy said:

"Father, they'll roll off. I can't put any more in."

"Put them in, I tell you."

"But, father, I can't put them in."

"Put them in? No, of course you can't put them in. You said you didn't know why you fell behind at school, and I will tell you why. Your mind is like that basket. It will not hold more than so much. And here you've been the past month filling it up with chip dirt—dime novels."

The boy turned on his heel, whistled and said:

"Whew! I see the point."

Not a dime novel has been seen in the house from that day to this.—Exchange.

A DROP OF INK.

"I don't see why you won't let me play with Robert Scott," pouted Walter Brown. "I know he does not always mind his mother, and smokes cigars and sometimes swears. But I have been brought up better than that. He won't hurt me, and I should think you would trust me. Perhaps I can do him good."

"Walter," said his mother, "take this glass of pure water and just put one drop of ink into it."

He did so.

"O mother, would you have thought one drop would blacken a whole glass so?"

"Yes; it has changed the color of the whole, has it not? It is a shame to do that. Just put one drop of clear water in it and restore its purity," said his mother.

"Why, mother, you are laughing at me. One drop, nor a dozen, nor fifty, won't do that."

"No, my son; and therefore I can not allow one drop of Robert Scott's evil nature to mingle with your careful training, many drops of which will make no impression on him."

WHY HE QUIT DRINKING.

A professional gentleman, who was accustomed to take his morning glass, stepped into a saloon, and going up to the bar called for whisky. A seedy individual stepped up to him and said:

"I say, squire, can't you ask an unfortunate fellow to join you?"

He was annoyed by the man's familiarity and roughly told him:

"I am not in the habit of drinking with tramps."

The tramp replied:

"You need not be so cranky and high-minded, my friend. I venture to say that I am of just as good a family as you are, have just as good an education, and before I took to drink was just as respectable as you are. What is more, I always knew how to act the gentleman. Take my word for it, you stick to John Barleycorn, and he will bring you to just the same place I am."

Struck with his words, the gentleman set down his glass and turned to look at him. His eyes were bloodshot, his face bloated, his boots mismated, his clothing filthy.

"Then, was it drinking that made you like this?"

"Yes, it was, and it will bring you to the same if you stick to it."

Picking up his untouched glass, he poured its contents upon the floor and said: "Then it's time I quit," and left the saloon, never to enter it again.—Exchange.

"NEED I GO TO SCHOOL?"

"Oh, father, need I go to school?" said Johnnie one morning as his mother was getting him ready. "I don't understand books—I never shall. I had rather cut wood with you in the bush, and work ever so hard."

"Johnnie, how did we fell that big tree yesterday?" asked his father.

"A stroke at a time, and keeping at it," answered the boy.

"Exactly so," said the father. "A word at a time, and keeping at it, will make you a good speller; a sum at a time, and keeping at it, will make you good in figures; a thought at a time, and keeping at it, will make you master of the hardest book in the world. A patient keeping at it, Johnnie, and you will be a scholar."

"Is that all?" asked Johnnie.

"All," said his father.

"I do not know but I can do that," said Johnnie. And before six years from that time he stood first in the highest class at school. —Lutheran Observer.

VALUE OF APPLES.

There is no better aid to digestion, in certain cases, than the cooked apple. It is a recognition of this truth—though doubtless the recognition came before the truth was fully appreciated—which assigns apple sauce as an accompaniment of roast pork, goose and other rich meats, which are apt to make trouble with the digestive powers. The derangement arising from eating too freely of meats of almost any kind are corrected by the use of any apple regimen, the fruit being used either cooked or raw. Paradoxical as it may sound, the free use of fruit acids, of which the apple is the very best repository, tends to decrease that very common disorder, acidity of the stomach, the chemical action of the related elements changing the acids into alkaline carbonates, which tend to neutralize any acid condition of the system.—Hall's Journal of Health.

A TRIBUTE OF LOVE.

Our daughter, SALLIE JACKSON RANDLE, was born in Bastrop, La., Sept. 14, 1884, and went to heaven from West Monroe, La., on Sept. 20, 1898. She joined the M. E. Church, South, in Opelousas in a meeting conducted by Rev. E. T. Denson during her father's pastorate there. She was soundly converted, and was always ready to testify to the power of Jesus to save. During a recent meeting at Mer Rouge she was very happy, and often spoke of Bro. Riggs, who conducted the meeting, and said, "I love Bro. Riggs; he did me so much good." She loved to sing, and, oh! how we miss that sweet voice singing the songs of Zion! But we know she is singing above, and expect soon to join her there. She took sick while on an errand of mercy for her father, who was quite ill with swamp fever, and she came home and was stricken with the same dread disease. All was done that loving hands could do. I was in bed, but our friends and relatives came to our aid. We had a faithful doctor, who, when he saw the end approaching, told us. I told her the situation, and asked her if she was afraid to die. She said, "Oh, no; I am not afraid." She asked me to pray. We all kneeled, and I thanked God for lending us such a good child for fourteen years; then prayed that his Spirit might guide her even "through the valley and shadow of death;" then prayed for the kind doctor and relatives and friends who were so faithful and then committed her spirit to God, and prayed that after awhile we might be an unbroken family in heaven. She asked me to sing, "Shall we gather at the river?" I sang, and she listened; then she called each member of the family, shook their hands, kissed them, and said, "Meet me in heaven;" sent a message of love to her absent brother and wife; gave each one a token of love; called her uncles by name and so many friends that were absent, her teachers, etc., and said, "Tell them all to meet me in heaven." I told her of grandfathers and grandmothers (Ross and Randle), uncles, brother and sister, aunties, and so many dear friends who would come to meet her, and of dear Sister Wallace, who had gone just one week before. How glad she looked! To the doctor she said, "Good-by, doctor; meet me in heaven." She called constantly for papa, but the doctor would say, "He is too sick." Then she would say, "Oh, yes, kiss him, and tell him I love him; meet me in heaven."

Oh, it was beautiful to see her falling "asleep in Jesus." She rallied a little and said to her sister, "I had a glimpse of heaven, and it was so beautiful I did not want to come back." Her pastor came and prayed with her. She enjoyed it, for her mind was clear until about one hour before death. She kept saying, "I'll wait." I told her, Yes, she would wait by the beautiful gate, and papa, mama, brothers and sisters would soon join her; then she took up her purse (that had been given her by the nurse her uncle had sent to wait on her) and said, "Give the two dollars to missions, the nickel to baby, and the purse to Scott." Just before she left she said, "Papa." She loved us all, but papa has been her special care ever since he has been sick. She could not love him enough, and never tired waiting on him. He never saw her, but could hear her sweet voice as she made ready to depart and be with Jesus. It is hard, but we know he doeth all things well, and we bow with submission, saying, "Thy will be done." Pray for us, and especially for the sick father and brother. The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord.

PAPA AND MAMA.

HENRY—Mrs. MARTHA AMANDA HENRY (nee West) was born in Attala county, near Valden, Miss., March 30, 1850; was married to Thos. A. Henry, July 7, 1872. They together moved to Leake county; from thence to Sharkey, near Anguilla, where, on the morning of Sept. 10 1898, the death angel found her ready and waiting for her Lord to say, "It is enough; come up higher." She had been a member of the Methodist Church a number of years; nor was she simply a member in name only, but her membership meant something to the church as well as herself. She leaves husband, a son and two daughters, which was her only regret. We trust that the parting so painful will only be for a short while, and that her prayers in their behalf may be answered. Surely those who loved her so dearly will strive to enter "the beautiful gate ajar," where the Savior stands ready to "wipe the tears from all faces," and where partings never come. Death is sad in any form, but doubly so when it claims the wife and mother. To the bereaved ones we extend sympathy, and commend them to God, who doeth all things well.

MRS. ALICE CARY MCKINNEY.

Ruston, La.

NOBLES—LAURA ANN NOBLES (nee Marlin) was born in Hinds county, Miss., July 31, 1852; moved to Rankin county when small; married to B. H. Nobles, Sept. 22, 1870, and died July 19, 1898.

Springing from a strong Methodist parentage, she united with the M. E. Church, South, at Shiloh at the early age of fourteen, and was a consecrated and faithful member until her death. She delighted in the services of the sanctuary and in the sweet communion of saints, and was always ready to give expression of her faith in Jesus' power to save. Here was a religion of sunshine. Possessed of a bright and cheerful disposition, she carried gladness and joy to the hearts of those who chanced to cross her pathway. She was open and frank in all things; not afraid to give expression to her convictions, and always outspoken in condemning wrong of every kind. The community has lost a kind neighbor, Shiloh one of her very best members, the pastor and family a true friend and helper, and her home a faithful wife and mother. A devoted husband and seven children are left behind. May we all meet her in heaven above!

PAUL D. HARDIN.

HARPER—Be it resolved by the Board of Stewards of the Methodist Church, that with deep grief we bow in submission to our heavenly Father in the sad and mysterious ruling of his will by which our dear brother, JOHN J. HARPER, has been removed from our midst, while in the heat and burden of the day we toiled together in the vineyard of the Lord.

Resolved, That during the many years in which Bro. Harper has labored as a member of this Board as steward, secretary and treasurer, and for several years Sunday-school superintendent, he has at all times been faithful and prompt in the many calls of duty, wise in counsel, and consecrated in labors abundant, and has, by his godly life and zealous labors, most justly earned this tribute of love to his memory.

Resolved, That we pledge ourselves to the redoubling of our energies to the church he so loved, and that we assure his bereaved family of our Christian sympathy and prayers.

DAVIS Died Sept. 5, 1898, CHARLES VAUGHN, infant son of C. R and Kudly Davis, aged one year and seventeen days, after an illness of five or six days. Little Vaughn was never healthy like some children; he received special care. His fond parents neither spared labor or expense to rear their pretty, curly-headed, blue-eyed, dimpled-cheeked darling baby boy. Medical skill and kind nursing failed; he passed away so gently.

Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wakes to weep.

This precious bud of promise was plucked from earth to bloom in heaven. The home is more lonely, but the interest in heaven is increased. Fond parents, your precious babe is safe in the home of the blest. Vaughn was baptized last year by Rev. R. W. Vaughn.

BROWN—ROSIE BROWN, daughter of James L. and Lou J. Brown, was born near Holmesville, Pike county, Miss., Sept. 23, 1883, and departed this life near Pine Grove Methodist Church, St. Helena, La., Feb. 7, 1897. She was a member of Pine Grove Church.

Dear little Rosie, she has finished her work on earth, pinned her little pinions, and gone to Him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." She is sadly missed. Her body lies in the old family graveyard to await the resurrection morn. She leaves parents and twin-sister Lillie, with three other sisters and three brothers, an aged grandmother, a host of relatives; but, cheer up, loved ones, we can meet her again.

AUNT HAT.

BALLARD—Mr. JAMES W. BALLARD was born the tenth day of November, 1845, in Austin, Oakland county, Mich. He was the sixth son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Ballard. He died Sept. 22, 1898, at his home in Markesville, La. He was a member of the Methodist Church. He was a good man, devoted husband, and a very affectionate father. He was married to Mrs. E. Kempt, June 6, 1894. To them was born one son—a very bright boy indeed. A great crowd followed him to his grave. May the blessing of our heavenly Father comfort the heart of the lonely widow!

W. T. WOODWARD, P. C.

JEFFRIES—Little ERWIN, son of R. F. and L. M. Jeffries, was born Nov. 15, 1897, and died Sept. 30, 1898. The little form was laid away in the cemetery at Midway.

Erwin was a robust child, full of life, and his illness was of short duration. He had a pleasing face, and seemed to be the idol of the home. He has gone to live with the angels of God. I trust the bereaved parents will meet little Erwin in the celestial city, where there will be no more parting.

Gentlemen: I am in receipt of your kind letter of May 13th, stating that you have forwarded per express to the Red Cross one hundred bottles of your Mul-en-ol antiseptic, for which we desire to return our very grateful thanks. We shall doubtless find abundant occasion for all antidotes of pain and suffering, and we hope to class yours among the best. In the name of suffering humanity, permit us to thank you again.

(Signed) Very truly yours,

CLARA BARTON,
President American National Red Cross.

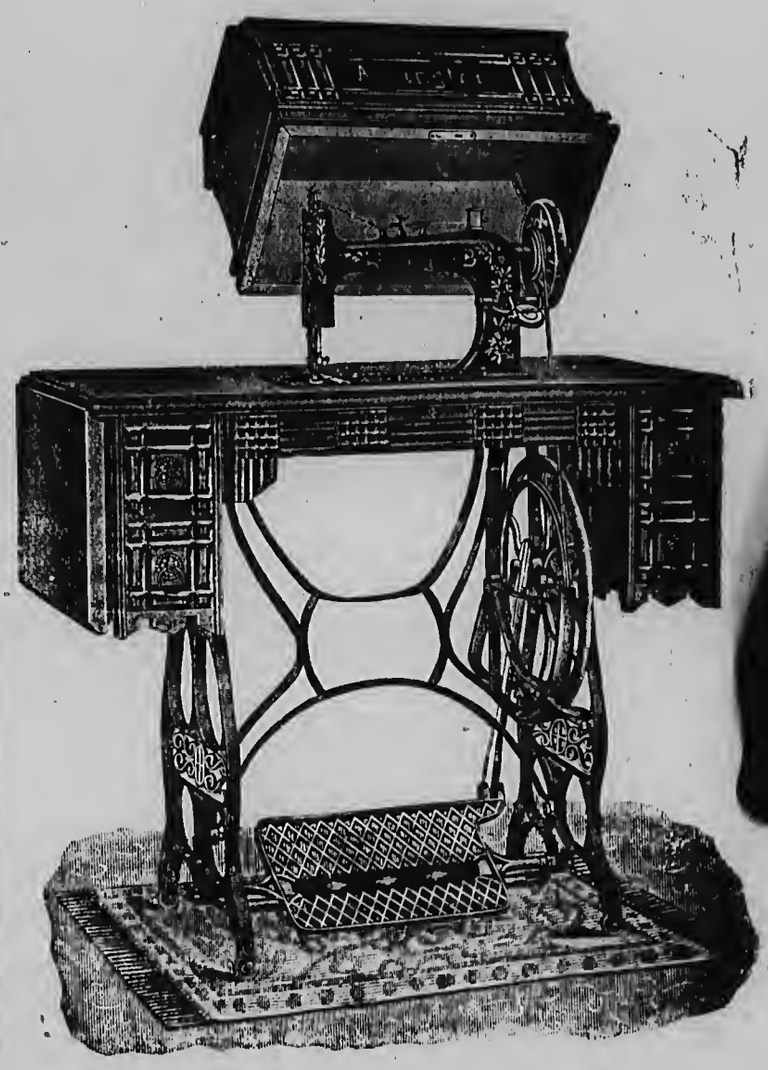
Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc



The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take-up, convenient foot rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one guage, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearing polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—The "Arlington B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light to heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great length; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell, without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless, and are very durable.

OUR OFFER.

To anyone, not now a subscriber to this paper, who will send us $13, we will send the machine and the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE one year. To old subscribers we make the following offer: Pay your subscription to December, '99, and send $1. additional, and we will send you the machine. This price does not include freight.

We allow purchaser to test the machine for ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

TO AGENTS:

We will send this machine free to any preacher or other person who will send us twenty new subscribers with the cash—$40. Address

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

The compromise proposal of the Spaniards has been rejected, and they were given to understand that the United States would not assume any part of the debt of Cuba.

The formal transfer of the postoffice by the retiring postmaster, Hon. Frank A. Daniels, to the incoming official, Hon. John R. G. Pitkin, was effected in this city on Saturday.

The withdrawal, Saturday, of quarantine from the State of Louisiana by the president of the Louisiana State Board of Health leaves the entire region to the east and north of Louisiana free from quarantine restrictions.

The State Board of Health of Mississippi, on Saturday, served notice that all quarantine restrictions heretofore imposed by that body upon travel and traffic entering that State from any direction are withdrawn.

Last Sunday in Scott county, Miss., there was serious disorder and considerable bloodshed over an attempt to arrest some negro offenders. One white man and eleven negroes have been killed, and the woods are still full of armed and angry men.

The British Government issued another blue book on Monday, containing an important note from Lord Salisbury, in which he plainly declared that the entire Nile valley belonged to Egypt, and the title could not be questioned. His firmness has greatly pleased the British editors. France is determined to have an outlet on the Nile. War preparations are going on.

With the formal annexation of Porto Rico, the work of formulating a scheme of government for the possessions which have come into the power of the United States as a result of the war with Spain must now begin. That this problem is a difficult one everybody recognizes; but it must be solved satisfactorily for all that, and with as little delay as possible.

When Ferdinand W. Peck, the United States Commissioner to the exhibition of 1900, arrived in Paris the space alloted to the United States at the exposition grounds was 175,000 feet. Mr. Peck's first gain was 6000 square feet, and he has just secured 22,000 square feet more, by means of a direct order from the French Government on the director of the exposition, making the present total 203,000 square feet.

President McKinley has told Prime Minister Sagasta, through the French Government, that Spanish disposition of what this government considers immovable property in Cuba must stop at once. The Secretary of State has written to the French embassy explaining that this government could not permit the sale of cannon or the removal of guns from the fortifications of Cuba, as reported by the American Commissioners, and that such proceedings must be stopped at once.

On Saturday morning, Newspaper Row, on Camp street and Bank alley, this city, got another serious scorching. At about 4 o'clock fire broke out in the four-story building adjoining the Picayune, on the up-town side, and burned with great fury. The burning building was occupied by M. F. Dunn & Bro. as a stationery and lithographing establishment, and was filled with combustible material. The fire was prevented from spreading by the good work of the firemen.

The relations between England and France are now critical in the extreme. Those people who are lulled into a sense of security by the statement emanating from leading diplomats, that war is improbable, and that a satisfactory way out of the difficulty will be found, are liable to be rudely awakened. It is not even the fact that both England and France are preparing for hostilities that constitutes the most serious phase of the situation, although such preparations are not a reassuring sign certainly. The strongest indicator of the critical nature of the relations between the countries is the apparently irreconcilable nature of the respective contentions. Great Britain has announced that France must recede from Fashoda, and retire completely from the Nile valley.

The Philippine legislature has been in session since Thursday, Sept. 15. The first thing that was decided was that the Philippine republic should not countenance any policy that should be agreed upon whereby Spain would have anything further to do with the islands, and would resist by force of arms any such measure. A vote was taken on the policy of annexation to the American Republic, and annexation was decided upon by a large majority, some seven out of eight voting in favor of it. Aguinaldo now expresses himself as personally in favor of annexation, but adding that he does not think that the natives generally will support such a policy.

It is now certain that the complete evacuation of Cuba will be delayed beyond the period originally fixed by the administration. This will be entirely without reference to anything that has occurred in Paris before the Peace Commission. The War Department has fully satisfied itself that the task imposed upon the Spaniards, namely, the removal and transportation to a great distance, by sea, of about 120,000 soldiers sick and well, with their accouterments, was beyond the ability of the Spaniards. Delay in the evacuation of Cuba will cause delay in the relinquishment of sovereignty by the Spaniards over the entire island, which was set for Dec. 1.

RANK AND FILE.

Much as we admire the great orators and stand enthralled by the recollections of their power, we can not but concede the palm of usefulness and steady building up of the church to men of quiet labor, average ability and gifts valuable but not showy. These are the "rank and file" of the preachers. Let us not forget the circuits and the second and third rate town and village work and the men of God who man the fortifications and batteries there. Neglect the country and we will lose our hold upon the best part of the State. Keep the "secondary battery" in good order and in every great fight it will give a good account of itself, as it did in Wesley's and Asbury's days.—Baltimore Advocate.

Buying a Sweet-Toned Church Bell.

Not only the members of a church but all the residents of the neighborhood have an interest in the tone of the bell that is hung in the church. Its tone may be sweet and clear or jarring and discordant. The safest way to be sure of getting a bell whose sound shall please the whole community is to place the order with such reliable manufacturers as the Cincinnati Bell Foundry, Cincinnati, O. The famous Blymyer church bells, of which they are the makers, are the pride of many congregations and a pleasant feature in many neighborhoods.

A Prominent Memphian Writes.

DR. H. MOZLEY, Atlanta:—Having been a great sufferer for three years from indigestion, and been treated by many physicians, who failed to give me any relief. Continuing to grow worse, my brother advised me to try Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir, which remedy he had used for several years. I commenced its use, and must say that your Lemon Elixir is the greatest medicine on earth. I have never suffered a day since I commenced using Lemon Elixir.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Booneville, Miss.
EDITOR.

Have faith in God,

Without faith it is impossible to please Him.

A weak faith denotes feeble life, but a mighty trust claims and insures the fullness of religious life and potency.

Many believers mature in age, like the Corinthians St. Paul addressed, still remain in the babe-state of heart.

Moral debility and abnormal tendencies unremoved through a want of faith in the promises retard the incoming of the complete life of Christ in the soul.

The following, clipped from the Ram's Horn, is a sad picture of an old man stepping out from time into eternity without God and without hope, and being so hardened as to desire the notorious infidel lecturer to make an address at his grave. Alas! how sad.

"'Lincoln, Ill. (Special)—James Tuttle, of this place, is dying. By his will $1000 will be paid to Col. Ingersoll for making an address at his grave.'

"Poor old man! is it possible that he could have lived ninety-two years and have sustained his starving soul on the dry husks of atheism? And must he make them his death-pillow also? Could there be a sadder sight than that of an old man tottering toward the brink of Death's bottomless chasm with no bridge of Faith to bring him to the other side?"

"In His Steps," or, "What Would Jesus Do?" is the title of a book well worth reading. We enjoyed it much, and received a considerable spiritual uplift from the reading. Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, of Topeka, Kas., is the author, and, in referring to the book, he says: "I have written the story with a great desire, a prayer with every sentence, that it might, by the power of God, open up a new thought of Christian discipleship." We commend and heartily recommend the book to the Leaguers everywhere.

Dr. DuBose has just returned from the Conferences in the West. He writes entertainingly and hopefully of the work on the Pacific coast. "The Epworth League and its secretary had right of way." A thoughtful and observant man remarked to him: "In a few years more the Epworth League will fill our California pulpits with well-trained young men indigenously produced."

Barbee & Smith have issued a notice calling attention to the fact that they will send the Nashville Christian Advocate (regular price for one year being $2) and the Epworth Era (regular price per annum, $1) both to one address till Jan. 1, 1900, for $2.25. They will send them in clubs of five to one address for $10. Cash must accompany all orders. This is a wonderfully liberal offer. Let the Leaguers endeavor to send in a list of subscribers from each chapter.

The following is an excerpt from the catalogue of one of our own female colleges which is doing a good work in the State in which it is located: "That school which awakens a girl to the consciousness of her own possibilities, and gives her that training and culture which results in exalted views of life and duty, and gives the world bright, brave girls, who rejoice in girlhood; pure, true women, who honor womanhood; loving, helpful wives, who exalt wifehood; devoted, consecrated mothers, who glorify motherhood, is laying the foundation of a Christian civilization which means peace on earth, good-will to men."

While we strive to build up every interest of the church peculiar to our own denomination, let us not forget to heed the trumpet call which bids us fall into line with the "other soldiers" of the Lord's army, and go forth to the conflict shoulder to shoulder, presenting a solid front against a common foe.

DR. BULL'S COUGH SYRUP CAN BE depended on to cure promptly the severest affections of the throat or lungs. It never fails.

5 DROPS (TRADE MARK.)

Cured Nervous Prostration, Rheumatism, Catarrh and Stomach Troubles. Mother and 3 Daughters cured by "5 DROPS."

Swanson Rheumatic Cure Co., Chicago. July 25, '98.

I think "5 DROPS" is the best medicine in the world; it has done me so much good. Before using "5 DROPS" I could hardly lie in bed long enough to go to sleep. I would have to get up and walk around, or sit up in bed. I don't know what was the matter with me, but I was suffering all through me, and my body was so tender that part of the time I could hardly lie on the softest bed. As it has benefited me so much, I have recommended it to my neighbors. Three of my daughters have sent to you for "5 DROPS" also two of my lady friends. One of my daughters was suffering terribly with her stomach, and was all bloated up until she weighed 176 pounds, but after she took "5 DROPS" her weight came down to 146 pounds—her normal weight—and she is all right again. She thinks there never was such medicine made, I myself think it is splendid. MRS. M. A. MATTINGLY, Colfbran, Col.

Mr. Ira Sargent, Dunbar, (Neb.) also writes under date of July 25, '98, that he is cured of Rheumatism, Stomach Trouble, and Catarrh. "I want to write you in regard to my case of STOMACH TROUBLE and RHEUMATISM. I commenced one year ago to take '5 DROPS,' and I can tell you today that though I am 75 YEARS OLD and past I feel like a new person. I don't want to be without '5 DROPS.' '5 DROPS' has the praise of being the best medicine on the market. It has cured a bad case of CATARRH here and has another almost cured. Please accept my thanks for the favors I have received at your hands. IRA SARGENT."

If you have not sufficient confidence, after reading these letters, to send for three large bottles for $2.50, which will surely cure you, then send for a $1.00 bottle, which contains enough medicine to more than satisfy you of its wonderful curative properties. Prepaid by mail or express. This wonderful curative gives almost instant relief and is a permanent cure for Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, Backache, Asthma, Hay Fever, Catarrh, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headaches, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, La Grippe, Malaria, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis, and kindred diseases.

"5 DROPS" is the same and dose. Large bottle (300 doses), $1.00, prepaid by mail or express; three bottles, $2.50. Sold only by us and our agents.

LESSONS FROM THE EPIDEMIC.

BY BISHOP C. B. GALLOWAY.

Exceeding interest in the welfare of my State and country, and distressed because of the calamitous conditions that have obtained for some weeks, must be my apology for adding another word on the subject which is now uppermost in the thonghts of all Mississippians. I count it the sacred duty at this time of every true citizen to address himself patriotically to the study of our commonwealth'a future. There must be a readjustment of forces and a realignment of opinion in order to accomplish the restoration of public confidence, and a surer prevention of these disastrous conditions. Ali citizens, whether physicians or laymen, should make whatever contribution they may be able to the consensus of opinion and suggestion, out of which may be evolved the wisest methods and the amplest secnrity. And any suggestion, from however humble a sonrce, should command respect in proportion to its value and honest intent. Great specialists extend the widest hospitality to ail information and from every source.

Without passion or personal feeling we onght to interchange views aa to the best measures for our State's protection from infectious disease, and from what is far worse—the panic that ensnes. The issues involved are too serious and momentous to be obscured by personalities. Individuals mnst be forgotten in a common and patriotic purpose to secnre the ampiest gnarantee against the enemies of public health and the destruotion of property values. With perfeot frankness and sincerest earnestneas this discussion shonld be conducted and continued until it results in all needed legislation and in the most practical organization for the public defense.

I have no word of personal criticism npon honorable and worthy gentiemen who have conducted the affairs of the Board of Health during this trying year. They deserve high praise for extraordinary diligence and vigilance, and must be accorded pnrity of purpose and honesty of effort in their laborions service to the State. But this may be generously done without approving the wisdom of all their administration or justifying the iaw they have sought to execute.

The distressing state of affairs in Mississippi has not been produced by disease, however contagiona or infeotions, but by a frenzied and foolish panic, due to an unreasonable dread. Our people have been taught to fear yellow fever by their medical advisers and health guardiana. Instead of efforts to allay apprehension and arrest stampedes, ominous, if not sensational, bulletins and orders have had the effeot to generate fright and foment frenzy. Citizens are advised to fly as the only possible escape from danger and death. When such "orders" are issued and "depopulation" is urged, and citizens are charged with reckless folly for not running, no wonder there has been wild panic and heartless local quarantines, and shameless indifference to sick neighbors. When people are made to believe that yellow fever is the contagion of death, that it is only another name for the undertaker, we have no hope of relief from the sad conditions now bankrupting the State of Mississippi.

But what are the facts? Is there justification for this wild fear? The history of yellow fever in Central and South America for several years past, and in the Southern States and during the years 1897 and 1898, gives no warrant for this mortal terror. The death-rate has scarcely equaled the fatalities of measles and other diseases that occasion no alarm. Dr. Souchon, president of the Louisiana State Board of Health, giving the total number of cases and deaths from yellow fever in the States of Louisiana and Mississippi up to date during this year 1898, makes this estimate and strong statement.

The mortality, therefore, is 4.33 per cent. This most surely is not a quarantinable disease, and much less so than grip, infinenza, typhoid fever and scarlet fever. So that whatever the cause—whether the decreasing virulence of the disease, or more scientific and successful treatment, or better sanitation—the presence of yellow fever should not any more occasion ominous dread or wild stampede. We need not fly in terror from what a prominent physician a few years ago unscientifically called "a mystery in nature—one of the hidden ways of God." The days of such ghostly mystery have passed.

Exceedingly mild is the type of disease which somewhat prevailed in Mississippi. The clinical history of many cases in Jackson, if published, would make interesting and rather humorous literature. Some of them I have secured, and will carefully preserve as helpful to an intelligent study of this great problem.

The following suggestions have occurred to me as worthy of consideration and adoption by us as Mississippians.

First. Insistence upon a broad system of national quarantine under strict Federal control. The general government should be held absolutely responsible for the introduction of yellow fever into this country. Such a measure, carrying with it the responsibility indicated, would give us immunity from fever and its frenzied accompaniments. I favor the principle of the Caffery bill.

Local quarantines are inefficient, expensive, and often inhumane. Shotguns can not keep out microbes. Mauser rifles are powerless in the presence of an invisible foe. Cordons will not hold negroes. They are migratory, social, and have infinite curiosity. They roam especially at night, and have little or no fear of yellow fever. By them contagion is carried, and infection spreads. Nothing less than a standing army can confine them within narrow limits.

State quarantines, as at present administered, are almost futile. They are more—they are vexatious and vicious. What have we in return for the $50,000, more or less, expended out of the State treasury this year? The purpose of the law and this liberal appropriation is to prevent the spread of contagious and infectious diseases. The Board of Health seems to be charged, therefore, not so much with the treatment and cure as the prevention and confinement of disease. Its commission is not to discover, but to prevent. Yet there has, at times, seemed to be pride in the expert diligence that could find or ferret out and bulletin a case of yellow fever, as though that was a vindication of the Board's efficiency and a justification of its existence.

And these quarantines are destructive to commerce, without the corresponding compensation of protection from disease. Absolute authority is exercised over highways of travel and all lines of business. The idea of ordering the stoppage of all travel between non-infected points in the State is most extraordinary. On the entire line of the Mobile and Ohio railroad, from Alabama to Tennessee, there was not a reported or suspicious case of fever, and yet no person was allowed to go from one station to another. After that order had been rescinded, a few cases occurred at Meridian.

Second. I would advise the thorough reorganization of the State Board of Health on essentially different lines. Properly constituted, with specifically defined powers and limited resources, it may render valuable service. But there is no valid reason for confining membership in that Board to the medical profession. On the contrary, there is every argument in favor of a broader organization. The business interests of the State, including the great railroads, should have ample and able representation, and in that council should sit a lawyer of acknowledged ability, because of the many legal questions that necessarily arise. Doctors may have genius in diagnosis without eminent capacity for administration. Besides, the laws and methods of sanitation are not the secrets of the medical profession. They are now eagerly studied by intelligent citizens of all classes and callings. Indeed, the great sanitary experts of the United States are not medical men.

Our Board of Health has as yet been able to make but limited effort in the way of instruction and direction in the laws of sanitation. A little hurried fumigation and isolation after disease appears is scarcely less than trifling with its broad purpose and high commission. Prevention of disease must begin long before there is immediate occasion for alarm. It is really too late to prepare for defense when the enemy is at our gates.

We might learn something from the superb administration of General Wood, the military governor of Santiago. He found that city reeking with yellow fever and other infectious diseases, but by heroic sanitary measures the death-rate has been reduced to the minimum, and not an authentic case of yellow fever can be discovered by the most diligent expert. This he accomplished, not by cordoning, but by cleaning the city; not by a rigid quarantine, but by the vigorous use of soapine.

On the subject of the arrest of the disease after it appears—of the possibility of "stamping it out," as the phrase goes—on the practicability of adopting some other more efficient remedy than deportation and depopulation—I quote again from a recent pamphlet by Dr. Souchon, president of the Louisiana State Board of Health. He says: "The result of antisepsis was proven in the isolation hospital in New Orleans in 1897, when the citizens threatened to burn the Beauregard School, which it had been decided to turn into a yellow fever hospital. They said that it would be a pesthouse that would infect all the neighborhood, and yet the final results proved, to the amazement of all, that not only not a single case in the neighborhood had come from it, but that within its own walls no case developed among any of the sisters, nurses and attendants, although several were non-immune. This was also the case in the Touro Infirmary and the Hotel Dieu. The disease can also be kept confined to the patient alone in the room and the room preserved from infection, and, therefore, free from danger to the non-immune attendants, if the patient is taken hold of in time and antisepsis thoroughly practiced. Any exception to this assertion is due to some oversight in the application of the regulations of antisepsis."

In my judgment the bulletin board should be abolished. It does harm and no good. It is simply an alarm signal to frighten the timid and destroy commerce and decrease values. It is a notice to depopulate—to fly to Northern climes and await the coming of the frost king. It is a species of medical yellow-journalism—a sensational advertising of exaggerated danger. And, then, it is prejudicial to those who can not fly and may be sick. They go to bed in dread and imagine their's may be a fatal case.

We need, as Mississippians, without regard to political preferences or professional jealousies, or geographical prejudices, to unite hopefully and heroically in a supreme effort to restore public confidence. Mississippi is a great State, as healthy as any in the Union, and possesses vast possibilities, unexcelled in all our wide North American domain.—Picayune.

THE CASE OF DR. BARBEE.

At the recent session of the Tennessee Conference, when the name of Dr. J. D. Barbee was called, an investigating committee was appointed which reported no trial necessary. Thereupon a motion was made to non-concur in this report. What followed is thus described by Dr. W. M. Green in the Alabama Advocate:

First came a resolution to return the $288,000, which was as follows:

(1) "We feel it our Christian duty to put upon record a Minute concerning the collection of the Publishing House claim and the difficulties which have arisen ont of it.

(2) "We record our deep sorrow for the things done by our agents and condoned by our Book Committee in collecting this money, feeling that in the disputed points they are wholly indefensible, and we deeply regret that there has been no expression condemning the same by any official body before whom the matter has been considered.

(3) "We accept the methods to which the Bishops have pledged themselves for returning the entire sum, and we pledge our hearty cooperation in carrying them into effect. But we prefer that the money be returned without any condition.

(4) "We believe that the disciplinary dealing with the brethren implicated is just now a subordinate question. Their dismissal or their voluntary withdrawal from official position will not settle any great part of the difficulty. The supreme duty confronting the church is the return of the money and the unqualified disavowal of the wrong done in collecting it.

(5) "Inasmuch as our Bishops have pledged themselves to the return of the money, we leave the whole matter of the details of this work entirely to their direction, with the hope that the matter may be accomplished at as early a time as may be practical."

This resolution was adopted by a large majority, only thirty-two voting against it.

In the afternoon of Friday an immense audience waited upon the decision of the Conference as to the passage of the character of Dr. Jas. D. Barbee. Dr. Jas. A. Orman read a communication addressed to Conference as follows:

"Clarksville, Oct. 21.—To the Bishop and members of the Tennessee Annual Conference of the M. E. Church, South, now in session at Clarksville. Brethren: Concerning the discussion now in progress relative to the Publishing House war claim, I have to state respectfully:

"1. That in all I did to collect the said claim I acted conscientiously, and, upon a calm retrospect, I am fully and finally convinced that I walked before God in mine integrity in every particular.

"2. Seeing that a misconstruction of my motives in this matter has offended some and troubled them—and admitting I may have made a mistake—I am grieved and sorrowful at the result.

"3. I am reverently and affectionately in your hands, and trust your wisdom and justice in the adjudication of the case. Affectionately,

"J. D. BARBEE."

A letter dropped from the hands of an angel could not have had a more electrifying effect. The motion presented by Rev. W. R. Peebles to nonconcur was withdrawn. The character of Dr. Barbee was passed without a dissenting voice, and a wave of happy feeling spread over the immense congregation. I never saw a more beautiful scene in my life. The old white-haired Roman stood about two-thirds of the way down the aisle, the tears streaming down his face. Rankin, his son, rushed up, threw his arms about his father's neck and kissed him; then followed the preachers from all parts of the house, and never before in my memory did a man get such a hugging and tear-sprinkling, and over it all sounded the voice of the Bishop singing, "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow," in which the audience joined like the roar of many waters. Even "the stranger's eye wept."

THE ANGLO-CHINESE COLLEGE.

I.—LOCATION.

It is located in Shanghai. This city is the metropolis of the East. Situated about forty miles from the mouth of the great Yangtse river, it contains a population of over six thousand Europeans and Americans, and nearly 300,000 Chinese—all under the control of the Municipal Council (elected annually by the foreign property holders), in conjunction with the consuls of the various treaty powers residing at Shanghai. This is the great trade center for China, Japan, and Korea. It is the entrepot for a large majority of the passengers and freight coming from Europe and America for the far East. Shanghai is the center of foreign influence in China. It is the place, above all others, to which all Chinese who become interested in foreign things, and who desire to learn foreign ways, look for guidance. Thousands of the people come here every year from all parts of the Empire to see what the wonderful people from over the sea have done, and are doing, in the way of building steamers, machine shops, many-storied residences, banks and stores, wide streets, gas lights, water works, electric lights, telephones, churches, schools, hospitals, etc.

The college is located in the newer part of Shanghai—the American settlement—known as Hongkew, the Chinese name for the region, which means "the mouth of the rainbow," indicating that the Chinese, like some people in America, have hoped to find the traditional bag of gold at the rainbow's mouth. This settlement is now rapidly filling up with a population of both foreigners and natives, among whom are the literati, merchants, factory operatives, mechanics, etc.

About six acres of valuable ground in the heart of Hongkew belongs to the college. Three acres of this is occupied by the college campus. The residences of the foreign teachers occupy a part of the other three acres, and the rest is vacant lots. These lots ought to have buildings put on them to be rented out, so as to get an income from them for the use of the college.

II.—OPPORTUNITIES.

1. Educational. There is a great and growing demand for a knowledge of English, mathematics and science among the youth of China, especially at Shanghai and at other cities along the coast. Indeed, this demand is spreading far away into the interior, and the missionaries are being called upon everywhere to teach these subjects, especially English. This desire for Western learning is caused by two facts.

(1) There is a great demand for English-speaking Chinese in government employ, in the customs service, in telegraph offices, in business houses, in machine shops, on steamers, in mines, on railroads, and in schools and families as teachers. The pay in these numerous positions is very good—from three to five times as much as an ordinary Chinese can get as a teacher, writer, or clerk. Thus a splendid outlet is provided for the ambition of youth—men who want to rise in the world—and they are eager to take advantage of it in ever-increasing numbers.

(2) Western learning is, by imperial decree, to take the place of the old wenchang, or classical essay, in the government civil service examinations.

Hereafter, therefore, all scholars who have a knowledge of Western learning will stand a much better chance of passing at the government examinations than those who do not have such a knowledge. Thus it becomes necessary that all boys and young men who are looking forward to an official career must now study English, mathematics, and science, in order to stand any chance to get a diploma at the government examinations. Hence, while the Chinese government, as well as private individuals, are establishing schools to teach Western learning, the institutions established by the missionaries are, and will continue to be, the principal means for meeting this demand for Western learning, and the only limit to the work that can be done for China in this direction is the men and the means to do it with.

2 Religious. The Anglo-Chinese College has an excellent opportunity for evangelistic work among the boys and young men that crowd its halls. All the pupils are required to attend prayers in the college chapel every morning and evening, and Sunday-school and preaching once on Sunday. A large majority of them have a religious lesson in the course of their daily studies, and the Saturday morning session is devoted wholly to Bible study. Besides this, various kinds of religious work is carried on at which the attendance is voluntary, such as the weekly prayer meeting, Epworth League, Y. M. C. A., probationers' meetings, students' prayer meetings, etc.

Thus Christianity is constantly kept before them, and they are urged to accept the truth and believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, that they may be saved. In this way large numbers of Chinese youth, who can not be reached in any other way, have been thoroughly instructed in the truths of Christianity, and many have become Christians. The importance of this work is further enhanced by the fact that not a few of these young men are to exert a controlling influence on the destiny of China in the near future.

A. P. PARKER.

EAST MISSISSIPPI FEMALE COLLEGE.

During all the yellow fever excitement and reign of quarantine, etc., everything remained calm at the college, and things run along as smoothly as usual. There was no sickness of any kind. The health of the girls has been almost perfect. It was reported that there were two suspicions cases of fever in the city, and some physicians thought it was yellow fever; but Dr. Murray, the oldest and most level-headed of the experts, after watching them several days, said they were not yellow fever. No member of the household took it, nor did anyone in town. The health of the city has been most excellent all the Summer and Fall. Girls who were quarantined away are coming in rapidly now. Every place in the building will be taken within a short time, though we are making arrangements for more room, so we can accommodate all who come.

The Conservatory of Music is growing rapidly in favor. The director can take only a few more pupils, and some of the lady teachers already have their allotted number.

The new teacher of languages from Wellesley is doing a fine work. So also is the teacher of mathematics, who has taken a post-graduate course in the University of Chicago. The teacher of English from the University of South Carolina is doing the most thorough work we have ever done in that line. In fact, everything is moving off better at the college than ever before. The machinery runs smoothly.

The religious atmosphere is even better than it was last year. Several conversions at the first regular meeting of the Young Woman's Christian Association. This bids fair to be the best session the college has had in its history.

J. W. BEESON, Pres't.

HELPFULNESS

BY JAMES L. REEVES.

Who causes sunny smiles to grow
Where none were known before,
Or makes one's cup of joy o'erflow
When sorrow's at his door?
Who kindles in another's breast
A bright and healthful glow—
That generous soul by heaven blest
Will rare enjoyment know.

Who meets along life's rugged road
A traveler, wan and worn,
Bending beneath a heavy load
Friendless, perchance forlorn,
And offers now a cheering word
And then a helping hand—
Has in two hearts emotions stirred
That will heaven's praise command.

Who sees a brother in the path
That leads to sin and shame,
Indifferent to impending wrath
And careless of his name,
And guides him in the better way—
God's way of life and peace—
Will see the light of perfect day
Shine round him and increase.

A REPLY.

MR. EDITOR: In your issue, of Sept. 1, appears a labored effort headed, "Rex Reviewed," and signed, "Observer," in which the author enters a protest for himself and over 5,000 other itinerant preachers against my suggestion in a former article, that it is probable that the present low state of spiritnality in the church, and the lack of revivals in the different charges of the church, was, and is, the result of some falling on the part of the ministry, etc.

Permit me to say, in the start, that when a writer uses a nom de plume, and writes from nowhere, he is not entitled to as much consideration as he would be if he was not ashamed to give his postoffice, so that he could be hunted out and called out by his opponent. Hence I am of the opinion that what I said in my squib referred to above was eminently right, proper, and just what he deserved. In replying, I shall not notice his frantic attempts to discredit my contention by an effort to show that I contradicted myself repeatedly in the article he reviewed, because it is more than ought to be expected of me to write a good piece, and then furnish my readers brains to enable them to comprehend my meaning. Unfortunately, I have misplaced the ADVOCATE containing his fulminations against me, and will have to trust to a rather poor memory to recall the ideas I wish to answer. The only important feature of his letter is his denial that a failure to have revivals in the different charges without the aid of an evangelist is the fault of the preachers in charge, and it is to this denial that I shall confine myself in this article.

Last Sabbath I read, with much interest, the timely and excellent pamphlet by Dr. Sawyer, of the Louisiana Conference, entitled, "The World in the Church," etc., which pamphlet it would be as well for "Observer" to read and carefully digest, after which I am inclined to think he will withdraw his protest, and try and not lay himself liable to the charge of putting on a coat that, while it fits him perfectly, does not enhance his beauty or attractiveness as a minister of the gospel of our Lord. I remarked in my original communication that only those whom the coat fitted need put it on, and as "Observer" immediately rushed into print with his protest, it is fair to presume that he had struck the right tailor. That many of our clergy are lax in the enforcement of the Discipline and the proclamation of the terrors of God's law, no one who attends our churches can truthfully deny. By reference to Dr. Sawyer's book, page 17, "Observer" will find these words: "So derelict are many pastors that it will be positive news to many church members that at the third Quarterly Conference, Ques. 14 is asked, 'Have the General Rules been read?' It is, therefore, the duty, sadly neglected though it be, of all our pastors, at least once a year, to read, expound, and exhort their people to keep these General Rules. In regard to these rules the Discipline speaks in the following very emphatic manner, 'All of which we are taught of God to observe, even in his written Word, which is the only rule, and the sufficient rule, both of our faith and practice.'" Dr. Sawyer, being an old and faithful presiding elder, and having had large experience along this line, and being, besides, one of the aforesaid 5,000 in whose names "Observer" enters his protest, I presume his evidence will be considered pertinent as well as reliable. On page 39, and quoting from an editorial of Bishop Parker when editor of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, we find these words: "The pastor's duty is clearly laid down in the Discipline. He is not to mend, but to keep the rules, and to pursue the course and take the steps indicated in the law. If all would do this, there would be little trouble. But for want of uniformity and lack of vigilance a church is burdened with a worldly, pleasure-loving and disci pline-defying element. Coming into such a charge, the faithful and conscientious pastor has a regular battle to fight in order to enforce the rules." Will "Observer" kindly inform us who is at fault for these things? Bishop Parker evidently thought that there were quite a number of that 5,000 protestants by proxy who had failed in the discharge of plain duties to the manifest injury of God's church. On page 41 we find: "The late Dr. Howard Crosby says: 'The church of God is to-day courting the world. Its members are trying to bring it down to the level of the ungodly. The ball, the theater, nude and lewd art, social luxuries, with all their loose moralities, are making inroads into the sacred inclosure of the church, and as a satisfaction for all this worldliness, Christians are making a great deal of Lent and Easter and Good Friday and church ornamentations.'" Where is the responsibility for the presence of such people in the Methodist Church? Will "Observer" rise and tell us? He will, doubtless, insinuate that we are of the unholy number ourself, and, in reply, we beg to remark that if we are, our pastor ought to be unfrocked for failing to kick us out. On page 47 this: "This is from Rev. E. M. Bounds, D. D., when on the editorial staff of the St. Louis Christian Advocate: 'This disposition to discount Discipline and stress persuasion is near akin to preaching the love of God and leaving out the terrors of the law; the one ends in a worldly church, the other in a powerless ministry.'" That the "disposition" referred to is exceedingly common in our pulpits even "Observer" will not be so untruthful as to deny, I hope. On pages 62, 63 and 64 he quotes a review by Bishop Galloway, when editor of the ADVOCATE, of "A Chapter in Studies in Matthew," by the distinguished Welshman, Rev. J. C. Jones, in which occurs this passage in regard to John the Baptist: "And now also the axe is laid unto the roots of the tree. John the Baptist was wielding the axe to cut down with fell strokes the mighty overshadowing trees of Jewish superstition and corruption. Luther also was swinging the axe to clear Europe of the mighty overshadowing trees of popish superstition and corruption. I am not sure but the great need of the present day is a powerful, ponderous axe, and the next great need a strong, robust man to wield it with a firm, resolute purpose against the colossal falsehoods which bring disaster into trade and dishonor upon religion. Oh, for the ministry of the axes once more!" Among a multitude of other good things the Bishop said: "We quite agree with our author that such a ministry is 'the great need of the present day.'" Will "Observer" get up and state where such a ministry is to be found now?

The review closes with this beautiful and eminently truthful conclusion: "Revivals of religion are only born of such preaching. Men must first know that they are sinners before they will fly to a Savior. Sinai must be seen and heard in order to appreciate and love the peaceful brow of Calvary. We plead, therefore, for a revival of the ministry of the axes." Dr. Sawyer adds: "May not all say 'Amen!' to the Bishop's pleading for such a revival?" (I reckon we can all say "Amen!" except, possibly, "Observer." He seems to be satisfied with existing conditions.) Surely we should by this time have a surfeit of the James Wheatley style. Said John Wesley of James Wheatley's preaching, "According to his understanding was his preaching an unconnected rhapsody of unmeaning words, like Sir John Suckling's

"Verses, smoothe and soft as cream,
In which was neither depth nor stream."

I especially commend to the careful attention of "Observer" the editorial of Dr. Carter, when editor of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, entitled, "Salvation by Syllogism," which Dr. Sawyer quotes on page 65. It is easier to get a sinner saved by a syllogism than it is to do it in the old-fashioned, orthodox way, and it is likely that "Observer" will adopt the plan if he has not already done so. Dr. Sawyer adds very justly: "There can be no doubt that the churches suffer much from such methods as that particularized by Dr. Carter. Dexterous manipulations and plausible expedients are made to answer for deep convictions, heart contritions, all-sweeping repentance, and actual faith. Instead of the new birth, witness of the Spirit, adoption, and the blessed Bible doctrine of assurance, we have in some quarters a sweet, pleasing theology, the jagged edges of truth carefully smoothed off and duly flavored with the purely sentimental and æsthetic, that the poor diseased palate of the sinner may be able to swallow it without difficulty," etc. Who is it but the preacher that uses this sort of theology, Mr. "Observer"? Chapter 13 is headed, "The Old Way Is the Best," and contains the opinion of the sainted Bishop Marvin as to the proper forms of preaching the gospel, etc., and we hope "Observer" will read, ponder, and inwardly digest. Not only will he find food for thought in what the Bishop says, but also in Dr. Sawyer's personal remarks, and his quotations from others than the Bishop. There is much in the chapter that will commend itself to the man of God who has his Master's work and glory in his heart. There are many, very many other passages in this little pamphlet that are good reading, and that support my contention and confound my adversary; but I fear to further trespass on your columns.

DRONES IN THE ECCLESIASTICAL HIVE.

On a bright, balmy June day I passed by an apiary, and such a buzzing and roaring I never heard. There was general commotion in the hives, and it seemed that a wholesale slaughter was going on. Cries of "Tyranny," "Murder, murder," rose from every hive, and I saw the fat old drones literally dragged from the hives, and a myriad of outraged and enraged little bees fell upon them, and a general biting, stinging and dismemberment was carried on till life was extinct, and the bodies were mutilated in a general manner, some carrying off wings, some legs, and some antennæ. I asked the apiarist what it all meant, and he said the working bees are killing the shiftless and gluttonous drones. Now, these drones are constant consumers and non-producers; so the safety and peace of the hive require their destruction. At first sight this looks like murder, and seems cruel, to say the least of it; but, after further consideration, we find that the highest judiciary would acquit the honest little homicides. They act in self-defense. They must kill the drones, or starve for want of the food the drones will eat. They simply act in accordance with the first law of nature—self-protection. Here we see the force of a great, just, and universal law: they that will not work should not eat; they who will not produce can not honestly consume. By this law everyone is required to do something to add to the happiness, comfort and safety of humanity.

Society is nothing more than a compact of social beings aiming at the greatest common good, and is a sine qua non to human happiness. Every infraction of social law causes a discord in the harmony of life. But we will not discuss the ethics of our commonwealth. It is our beloved branch of the church—Methodism—that we are more concerned about.

We will notice, first, the drones in the itinerant hive, if we should be so unfortunate as to have any. And are there not a few? Well, it seems to me that no greater calamity could befall a church than for it to have a lot of drones for preachers. Look at the "Established Church" before the reformation. It was filled with a lot of men that cared for nothing but pleasure and ease. They were so worthless the church was drifting to destruction, when such men as the Wesleys and others—men of great energy—rose up, and by self-denial and heroic efforts saved it from ruin, and the world from a long night of darkness.

Of all men, Methodist preachers should be the busiest. They are under solemn vows never to be unemployed, and never to be triflingly employed. How a man who has assumed ordination vows in the Methodist Church can live as some of them do, I can not understand. We have known some that would spend a great deal of their time on the streets, doing no good in the world. For a preacher to spend his time socially (so called), eating, drinking, smoking, and gadding about, when he should be at work, is a burning shame and an odious sin. There be some who do not read a half-dozen good books in a year, and never write a sermon, but depend on some old skeleton made twenty years past, or more often get their sermons from homiletics, and sometimes resort to the baseness of plagiarism. They never build churches or parsonages, never evangelize, but if they have meetings, they send off for some evangelist, or get some working pastor to do their work. In plain English, they do nothing but demoralize and tear down every work they are sent to. And when they go to Conference, they make an exaggerated report of their work, and offer a score of apologies and excuses for not having done better. They are drones of the purest type. Clouds they are without water, cockles that cumber the ground, drones that impoverish the hive. Like leeches, they cry, "Give, give," and are never satisfied. They are worthless incumbents of the church as long as they live, and die and leave their posterity as beneficiaries of its beneficence. Of all such incorrigible cases I recommend ecclesiastical execution.

It's no uncommon thing to see drones among the lay members of our church. In fact, there is hardly a society in the entire connection that is free from the curse of this infection. There be many who never do anything; never pay a cent, and never do any personal work. They are willing to be the recipients of the blessings of the church, but do nothing to support it. They have no regard for the vows they took when they joined the church. They are a dead-weight, grievous to be borne. The church should take hold of these drones and put them to work, or turn them out of the hive. If they will not do anything, I see no cause to keep them in the church. They are evidently tares that can be plucked up without fear of hurting the wheat. "Ye shall know a tree by its fruits." If they produce no fruit after they have been properly cared for, they should be cut down as the barren fig tree. J. A. POE.

ON TO CUBA!

BY BISHOP O. P. FITZGERALD.

That is the watchword of our nation and of the church of Christ. It is the watchword especially of the M. E. Church, South, for reasons that will appear.

On to Cuba! When? In the very near future. We can not doubt the success of our armies in the war now being waged. We have both a better cause and stronger forces. If God is on the right side, he is with us. If God, as some flippant scribbler has said, is on the side of the heaviest battalions, he is with us. The star-spangled banner will be floating in triumph from the flag-staff on the chief plaza in Havana before next New Year's Day; how much sooner we will see. With American occupancy the way will be open for every body and everything to go into Cuba that ought to go. If you think that a very general sort of statement, give it a little study, and its significance will grow on you. There is a wish in my heart and a purpose in my soul to spend Christmas Day, 1898, in the city of Havana. Dr. Lambuth, a seasoned missionary, must be there, too. On to Cuba! For what? To give Cuba the gospel of our Christ. Our commission may be found in the opening paragraph of the sixty-first chapter of Isaiah. My heart glows as I read the inspired words. Read them, and pray as you read, brothers and sisters. More than political freedom, Cuba needs the gospel that offers a free pardon to every repenting sinner, and guarantees grace and glory to whosoever will. We will preach this gospel; we will sing it; we will spread it throughout Cuba, God being our helper. I want again to hear our blessed old hymns sung as I once heard them sung in the musical Spanish tongue in our little mission chapel on Concordia street in Havana. Be ready, some Cuban brother, to pitch the tune. Healing for the broken-hearted, deliverance to the captives, sight to the blind, the setting at liberty them that are bruised—this is our gospel for you, and ye Cubans, whose night of agony we humbly and joyfully believe is nearly past.

On to Cuba! Who? All of us. Yes, brethren and sisters, all of us. Some will go in person; the rest will send their sympathy, their prayers, their gifts. With glad hearts and willing minds our people will enter this open door. Others will be ready to go, and may the Lord go with them and bless them! But Cuba especially invites Southern Methodists. We have already made a beginning there. We are her nearest neighbors. We have had large experience in the past elsewhere that ought to be profitable unto us in the planning and prosecution of missionary work in Cuba. The Lord has given us a training for this very work. May he give us wisdom to know our duty, and grace to do it even in this, our day!

On to Cuba! The fair isle will be waiting our coming. Our watchword will be "Love," and our victory will be the victory of faith.

(Concluded.)

The loan funds are important factors in the work of the society. Being permanent funds, and loaned at a low rate of interest, they are a perpetual source of help wherever they can do most good. Our "Angel Band Loan Fund" is the name given to a memorial fund, and constituted by a contribution of $20 for each name sent. Parents and friends can thus erect to the memory of their loved ones a lasting monument of good deeds. The educational loan fund, used solely to sustain, equip, and build up the educational work of the society, is constituted by the payment of $5. The same amount constitutes a patron to the "Preachers' Wives Loan Fund." There are 4,801 pastoral charges in the M. E. Church, South, and 3,618 parsonages. We have, therefore, 1,183 homeless preachers. The total amount of donations made by the Central Committee up to March 31, 1898, was: $27,520.63; total amount of loans up to same date, $18,065. Out of an estimated membership of 900,000 women and children, only about 20,000 are enlisted in this work.

Now, dear friends, if this is the Lord's work, are we faithful servants if we neglect it? Let us be honest with our own hearts as we answer.

Our Week of Prayer collections go to the Cuban Mission, and the need is very urgent. That consecrated Christian woman, Miss Mary Bruce, superintendent of missions at Tampa, thus writes: "Will not our women rouse themselves? We must have a school for the Cubans. It will be a real foreign mission, as much as going to Mexico or Brazil, only the distance is not so great. Let us pray that the Lord will move upon the hearts of those that have means to establish the schools, and that he will call the right ones to direct. The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few."

Some one has said that Christianity is a mathematical paradox. "The more you give, the more you receive." Certain it is that a sweet satisfaction comes to those who try, no matter how humbly, to lift the burden of suffering, and make life brighter and better for those around us. We are not writing in the sand. The tide does not wash it out. We are not painting our pictures on canvas, and with a brush, so that we can erase the error of yesterday, or overlay it with another color to-day. We are writing our lives with a chisel on the marble, and every time we strike a blow we leave a mark that is indelible.

The Christian Life.

CHRISTIAN HAPPINESS.

How many of our Christian lives, even where they are distinct and true, are joyless, lacking the spirit of song which must ever be expressing itself in looks and words and deeds to find a vent for the full, free happiness within! A Christian man should be not only the most just man in the community, not only the standard of taste and of good conduct, of right doing and right dealing, but he should be the happiest man in the community. My religion is unreal to me until it makes me break out into a song. The Christian man should have in him such light and love and fragrance that people shall feel the magnetic influence of his presence wherever he goes, and the children feel that there is a man of God near them, and the poor and the helpless feel there is a source of counsel and wisdom and help, and this great world, given over so much to dust and noise and discord, be made a brighter place, sweeter, simpler, more typical of heaven, more prophetic of the time of brotherhood and of peace.
—Charles Berry, D. D.

A WORD TO GO HOME ON.

The saintly Miss Frances Ridley Havergal literally lived and moved in the Word of God. It was her constant solace, delight and inspiration. It is related of her that, on the last day of her life, she asked a friend to read to her the forty-second chapter of Isaiah. When the friend read the sixth verse, "I the Lord have called thee in righteousness, and will hold thine hand, and will keep thee," Miss Havergal stopped her. "Called—held—kept—used," she whispered. "Well, I will just go home on that." And she did "go home on that," as on a celestial chariot, and the home-going was a triumph, with an abundant entrance into the city of God. What word of God have you to go home on?—Exchange.

The great vices are not always our most dangerous enemies. These great sins carry with them such conspicuous and sad results that men shun them. The really dangerous enemies of our spiritual welfare are the little vices that sap our spiritual life while we are unaware. They drain away our moral strength and destroy spiritual aspiration until the total of their effects is greater than individual excess in some single great sin. Little acts of injustice, paltry indulgences of malignant disposition, unnoticed bursts of petulant impatience may waste away the sweetness and the purity of the soul until it is really more depleted of its spiritual vigor than if it had given way to some single robust sin. It behooves the Christian to watch the little sins. They come upon him when he is least expecting them. They rob him of his sweetness of spirit, and he hardly realizes what he has lost, so quietly and secretly has the process gone on. The overpowering sins he is on his guard against, for they are so easily seen, and their effects are so hideously marked. Beware of the peccadilloes that seem trifling, and yet carry hidden dangers with them.
—Exchange.

"What matters the spirit in which work be done, if only it be done?" so say some, now and then. But watch them a little while in their relations with others. When they are become employers or superintendents, instead of underworkers, they feel and speak differently. The spirit makes a great difference, especially in certain sorts of service. It is peculiarly a vital element of Christian service. God cares much more for the spirit than for the form of our work for him, and in a large measure the work itself is given us to be done in order to afford opportunities for the cultivation of a right spirit.—Congregationalist.

An eagle carrying a serpent in its talons to its nest on the mountain was bitten to the heart, and fell to the ground. Have you ever seen a man or woman in the church fall in the same way? You do not know the secret of the fall, but the omniscient eye of God saw it. That neglect of prayer, that secret dishonesty in business, that stealthy indulgence in the intoxicating cup, that licentiousness and profligacy unseen of men, that secret tampering with unbelief and error, was the serpent at the heart that brought the eagle down.—Theodore L. Cuyler, D. D.

A PREACHER'S REPORT

Interesting Statement by Elder Joel H. Austin of Goshen, Ind.

"I was a victim of catarrh and had almost constant pain in my head. The trouble was gradually working down on my lungs. I was weak and irresolute. My wife had the grip and Hood's Sarsaparilla cured her. After this I had the same disease and resorted to Hood's. In a short time the aches and pains were relieved and I also saw the medicine was helping my catarrh. In six weeks I ceased to have any further trouble with it and I am now a well man. The pains and bloating I had in my limbs are gone and I am relieved of a heart trouble. I am thankful for a medicine so intelligently compounded and so admirably adapted to the needs of the system." FROM THE WORK.

SILOAM CAMP MEETING.

While our camp meeting at Siloam, near Gansville, Oct. 7 to 13, was not a wonderful success, it was far from being a failure. Indeed, it was quite a success as to the number of tents built—twelve—and number of families that tented—twenty-three—one occupying church and one a house near the encampment. We also had a hotel, for it was upon the self-sustaining style. Perhaps not less than ten more tents would have been built had we contemplated the matter earlier, and that number will, no doubt, be built by October, next, at which time we contemplate having another camp meeting.

We had rather a limited supply of preachers. Bro. Tolbert, a Baptist preacher, reached us Saturday, and, though feeble, gave us one good sermon—deeply spiritual. Bro. Crews, presiding elder of this (Arcadia) district; Bro. Ledbetter, Simshoro circuit, and Bro. Burkett, Onachita mission, were with us, and did excellent preaching.

Notwithstanding the preachers of our district rather discarded us, the Lord was with us, and we had a good time and good was accomplished. Church revived; ten or twelve claimed conversion, and six additions on profession of faith, and more to follow. This (Gansville) circuit occupies higher ground than it did a little less than four years ago, when this scribe took charge of it. Still there is room for much improvement. Have had fourteen additions on profession of faith. Collections will be better than formerly, and expect to finish parsonage.

RUSTON, LA.

Sunday, Oct. 16, closed a revival meeting at Ruston, La., which had continued four weeks. On account of rain there were no services for four days. The amount of sickness and the death which occurred kept very many from attending; yet, notwithstanding all causes of hindrance, the interest deepened from the first. The spiritual decline of several years' standing was interrupted, and those who were at ease in Zion were awakened to the condition of those about them. A number were converted; perhaps more than half of them already members of the church. The members were graciously renewed and the experience of many Christians enriched. The teaching function of the gospel was stressed—specially so in the morning services. Much information was received by the people as they studied God's Word in Bible readings and from simple, helpful lessons by the earnest pastor; the Holy Spirit being present and revealing the things of God in a light and with a power that many had not seen before. The complete consecration of a large number of people was but the natural result of this teaching.

Another result was seen Sunday morning, when the Conference collections were taken; something over $200 being raised. The hearts of the older members were made glad as they saw the quiet, but sweetly cheerful and prompt giving. The remainder is being easily secured.

We received much appreciated assistance from Bros. T. B. White, J. B. Cassity and C. A. Carson. Bro. Cassity preaching once and Bro. Carson twice.

We have introduced and supplied quite an amount of religious literature; fifty books and about a dozen subscriptions to our ADVOCATE. People and pastor are happy and hopeful. R.

ESCATAWPA CIRCUIT, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

The Wilson Springs Camp Meeting commenced on the fourteenth of October and closed on the night of the sixteenth. Only four families tented on the campus, and everything seemed to work against us; but we went forward in the name of our God. Being entirely without ministerial help at the beginning of the meeting, we were compelled to do the preaching, which we did, feeling assured of the fact that we were carrying out our part of the contract to preach the gospel to tell men of their sins; this we did, trusting God for results.

Ministerial re-inforcement came to us on Saturday—Rev. Jeff. Havens, of Vancleave; Phillips, of Ocean Springs, and Dr. W. L. Hightower, of Moss Point. These men of God came to us full of faith and power. The preaching done by these three brethren was simply grand. On Sunday Drs. Singleton and Beall, of Moss Point, came. Dr. Singleton's sermon at 11 A. M., on "Covering Up Sin," will never be forgotten by the great crowd that heard it. Dr. Singleton is a great preacher, perfectly at home in the pulpit, holding his audience spell-bound. Dr. Beall gave us a masterly sermon at 3 P. M. on "Christ Saving the Lost." Dr. Beall is ever ready and willing to preach. The Doctor seems to be a kind of gospel gun loaded and ready for battle at a moment's warning. The Doctor never misses the mark. May God bless him! Dr. Singleton occupied the pulpit again at night—it being the last service of the meeting. Of course, the great audience expected a grand sermon, and, sure enough, when the preacher took his text in Romans ii, 4, 5, for an hour the congregation, with rapt attention, heard the grandest sermon of their lives. To listen to such a sermon would remind me of a mighty river overflowing its banks and sweeping everything before it. Penitents crowded the altar; many resolved on a better life, and fifteen united with the church. Miss Stella Harkness, the efficient organist of Biloxi, led in the singing. Miss Stella performed her part well. Her sweet voice, gentle manners, and devotion to her work at the organ won for her many and lasting friends. Miss Maxie Hall played the last hymn, "God be with you till we meet again." We had a regular old-fashioned hand-shaking at the close. Many hearts were warmed, many lives brightened, and many souls lifted unto a sweeter experience.

FAYETTE, MISS.

We are rejoicing in our new parsonage. This building has been in contemplation for years. On our arrival here as pastor in December, 1896, we found the people ready for this work. Soon the raising of funds was begun. In June, of this year, we decided that we had a sufficient amount—$1,000 being in hand—to warrant us in proceeding to build. The contract was let, and as the result the building was turned over to us, completed, a few days ago, and we are in it. The house alone cost us $1,250, and is a surprisingly large and nice building for that money. Twice before in my ministry have we built parsonages of about same size as this one, but not so nicely finished, which cost us each $2,000.

We have had a faithful and efficient Building Committee, composed of Bros. L. W. Carradine, Jas. McClure, C. C. Colley, J. J. Gordon, R. V. McDonald, J. B. Darden, assisted by the pastor. To the good women of the church, however, we are largely indebted. They, by their untiring efforts, have raised a large part of the funds; have added a tank and bath-tub, and are now handsomely furnishing the parsonage. Without them we could not have succeeded.

We have converted the best room of the old parsonage into a pastor's study, and have it well fitted up. It is nice, comfortable and retired. This study is indeed highly appreciated by the pastor. We thus preserve a part of the old parsonage as a relic of antiquity. It is the oldest parsonage in the Southwest. We have the original acknowledgment of the deed, dated July 29, 1834. Many of God's most eminent servants have tabernacled here, rendering the place sacred. We have in this parsonage lot a beautiful situation, five acres of ground—a clever pasture, a splendid garden, cistern, well, tank and pond. All together, one of the most desirable pieces of parsonage property that I know of.

For being thus comfortably situated, we acknowledge, with hearts full of gratitude, our indebtedness to the elect women who have so diligently assisted; to the Building Committee, who have been so faithful; to the numerous parties in this charge and in other parts of the Mississippi Conference who have contributed, and, above all, to "God who is over all and blessed forever."

We have incurred a debt of $160. We trust all who have promised us and others who may feel so disposed will help us to raise this debt. Let us, if possible, get it off of hand by Conference.

BROOKSVILLE CIRCUIT.

We are at the close of the long, hot Summer, and just entering upon the golden glories of the Autumn. The fields are being rifled of the teeming grain and barns are filling with the Winter's store, and rewarding the husbandman's toil. But when we see the fields ripe unto harvest, our hearts are saddened with the remembrance of that harvest of death, which, with his "sickle keen," the Reaper has gathered in the midst. Seldom has a Summer passed where in one church and community so many prominent and useful citizens have been taken from us in so short a period of time. The first to be called, after a sudden and painful illness, was Mr. J. P. Stokes, well known to all living in this county. On the thirtieth of June he passed away to the grief of his family and the sincere regret of the whole community. He was a man of note and influence, and his loss can scarcely be made up. Of strong character, decided opinions, fearless in expression of his views on all subjects, with our "courage of his convictions," as one said at the grave, with unswerving integrity, faithful in his duties in public life, his vacant place as president of the Board of Supervisors is an irreparable loss. Charitable and hospitable, he welcomed cordially all guests, whether rich or poor, of high or low degree, as such distinctions had no influence on him. Though not a member of the church, he was a decided Methodist, supporting the ministers and institutions of that church with liberality. In conversation with his pastor and friends, he expressed willingness in the hour of death, and his friends feel they have hope in his death. A large assembly gathered at the beautiful cemetery at Soule Chapel, where he was laid to rest, and as one and another, with sorrowful greetings, spoke, we heard the oft-repeated words, "He was one of my best friends."

But scarce had the community recovered from the shock of this sorrow, when another and tragic death overwhelmed the survivers. Two weeks after this death Mr. R. K. Wootten, a faithful, efficient steward of the Brooksville charge, as he stepped on the platform, to make a visit to his daughters in Atlanta, suddenly fell on the track, and was instantly killed. Crushed in an instant, he gave one last sigh to those who rushed to his assistance, and yielded his soul to God who gave it. Well for the comfort of the sorrowing survivors that his death was probably free from pain. If he was quickly called into eternity, he as swiftly ascended to the presence of his Redeemer and the glories of heaven. He left a sorrowing widow, with whom he had lived long and happily, and four children, thus deprived of a respected and affectionate father. The church mourns in him a faithful officer; the preacher, a true and loyal friend, and the community, a valued fellow-citizen. We dare not intrude upon the privacy of the sacred grief of his immediate family. God comfort them as we can not.

Surely we might have thought this is enough; but, alas! not so. A few weeks later Exprairie Church also was bereft of a prominent and faithful member and officer. Mr. Jos. Cole also died suddenly; but in his death also we sorrow not as those without hope. Devoted to his church, always attending promptly its ordinances, his Christianity was of that decided type which always commands respect. All his talents were devoted to his Maker. In the Sunday-school he was always present—a learner in the Bible, as all should be, setting a bright example to his younger brethren. He left a wife and son to mourn a tender husband and affectionate father, and again we commit them to Him who alone can pour the oil of consolation into their wounded hearts.

And yet again we were called to mourn another brother. Mr. Thos. Price was the last to go from earth to heaven. A man of intelligence, liberality in the use of ample means, a loving brother, a tender husband and affectionate father, his loss is hard to bear. Truly in his case we may say, "Death loves a shining mark." He was always solicitous in the interests of his pastor, anxious to know if he needed anything, and showed many proofs of this feeling by substantial and generous kindness. As a church and community, we are sorely bereft, but man seeth not as God seeth, and we bow in submission to "him who doeth all things well."

What lessons we should take to our hearts to be ready when our summons comes! All these were men in the prime of life—at least not aged, but active and in strong health. May we remember that though the workers perish, God's work goes on, and may we be roused to greater diligence in doing that work, seeking with renewed energy to fill some of these sad vacancies by working diligently, however imperfectly! Pray for us, as a church, that these losses be sanctified to our further usefulness and blessing.

A MEMBER OF BROOKSVILLE CIRCUIT.

Humility is perfect quietness of heart. It is to have no trouble. It is never to be frotted, or vexed or irritated, or sore or disappointed. It is to expect nothing, to wonder at nothing that is done to me, to feel nothing done against me. It is to be at rest when nobody praises me, and when I am blamed and despised. It is to have a blessed home in myself where I can go in and shut the door, and kneel to my Father in secret and am at peace as in a deep sea of calmness when all around and above is trouble. —Standard.

Women nowadays do not have to use a stream of water for a looking-glass. They have modern mirrors that will tell them very promptly whether their beauty is fading. A woman's beauty fades very rapidly if she is troubled with some derangement of the distinctly feminine organism. Ignorance or carelessness in this respect frequently causes great suffering and irregularity in after life. Little irregularities and weaknesses in girlhood should be looked upon promptly and properly treated at once.

Mothers cannot be too conscientious in this respect, and cannot throw aside the raillery that is so prevalent upon this point too soon. Every young woman should know something about her own physical make-up, and the importance to her future of her local as well as general health. A woman who suffers from weaknesses peculiar to her sex will rapidly lose her beauty, her general health, her amiability and her usefulness and capability as a wife and housekeeper. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription promotes regularity of all feminine functions, gives sturdy health to the distinctly feminine organism and prepares it to meet the trials of wifehood and motherhood. The "Favorite Prescription" is not a cure-all. It is intended for but one class of disorders and is good for no other. Taken during the period of gestation, it makes parturition easy, and banishes the discomforts of the expectant months. All good medicine dealers sell it.

"I wish to express my thanks for the good I have received from Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. E. Scovill, of Bolton, Stephenson Co., Ills. "I have used it at different times for the last eight years. It is the best medicine for expectant mothers. I never tried it for that until my last baby. I had been very bad, almost helpless. I could not get out of bed alone, or even turn over. Last December I commenced taking the 'Favorite Prescription,' and could soon get in and out of bed as well as at any time. On March 29th I gave birth to an eleven pound boy without pain, and have since been as well and healthy as I ever was."

Best Edition of the World's Best Book,

—THE—

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers. New Type. All Proper Names. Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangment for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to November, '99. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

SELF-PRONOUNCING

S. S. Teachers' Reference Bible.

Text Conforms Exactly to the Oxford Teachers' Edition.

The self-pronouncing text enables the reader to pronounce all proper names at a glance.

This Bible is printed from Large, Beautiful, and Clear New Type. All Proper Names are Divided into Syllables and Every Vowel is Marked and the Syllables Inflected, showing the Sounds and Accents as they are given in a Dictionary, thus enabling the reader to properly pronounce every word. This feature is a great improvement and a strong recommendation for this Bible over others.

This Bible contains the celebrated Oxford Teachers' Helps together with a complete series of New Maps illustrating the geography of Palestine and the surrounding countries from the earliest times, and embodying the most recent discoveries renders this Bible especially desirable to teachers and students of the Holy Scriptures.

Imperial Seal Binding, Tuck Edges, known as "Divinity Circuit," Linen Lined, Round Corners, Red under Gold Edges, Price, $4.00.

This book in Bourgeois type will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price ($4) to any address; but to that select class who read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, we furnish it on the following terms: Pay your subscription one full year in advance, viz., to November, '99, and we will send it to you, postpaid, for $1.75. (A little later you will have to pay to December, '99.)

The same Bible in Minion type will be sent for $1.55; in Emerald type, for $1.15, to those who pay a full year in advance.

For fifty cents additional we will send Bible with index. For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved on the outside in gilt letters.

LACK OF CONVICTION.

While we undoubtedly live in the most enlightened and progressive age of the world's history, and while Christianity is now witnessing some of its grandest triumphs, we must not shut our eyes to the fact that the forces of evil are by no means asleep, and that baneful influences are ever at work, threatening mischief and ruin. In our elation over material and moral advancement, we are in danger of overlooking evil tendencies, which, if unopposed, will prove disastrous. No characteristic of the present age is so portentious of evil as is the general lack of deep, abiding convictions as to the sacredness of duty, and the heinous nature of sin.

Not a little of the lax living of our times is directly chargeable to laxity of belief—to loose opinions. With many the sense of duty is so feeble that it interferes amazingly little with pleasure, convenience, or pecuniary profit. The truth that the service of God requires unswerving loyalty and unflinching fortitude seems to be but dimly apprehended by a large class of even professing Christians; and hence they allow themselves all manner of selfish and sinful indulgences. People who have superficial conceptions of right and wrong and of the claims of religion never exhibit piety of the hardy, heroic type, but usually drift along in the current of worldliness and wickedness.

Mr. Gladstone is credited with saying that "the sense of sin is the great want of modern life." "It is wanting," declared he, "in our sermons; wanting everywhere." The great statesman was right. Sin is far too lightly regarded in these days of luxury and culture. Vice is handled too delicately. In much of the literature of the day—both books and periodicals—vice instead of being portrayed in the dark colors appropriate to its own innate hideousness, is so portrayed as to make it enchanting. And not only in literature, but in common parlance, and oftimes even in the sacred desk, the strong Anglo-Saxon terminology which the Bible uses in speaking of sin and sins is substituted by euphemistic terms more agreeable to ears refined. This change of nomenclature would be a matter of small moment but for the fact that it is an index finger pointing to a disastrous change of sentiment. How few there are, comparatively speaking, who manifest in their daily lives a vivid realization of the heinousness of sin! Even professing Christians walk in their own ways, apparently unconscious of the fact that all sin is an abomination in the sight of God.

No man's religion is any deeper or truer than his convictions. A man of shallow convictions is like a ship with a small propeller, and is easily driven out of his course by the winds of temptation and the flotsam and jetsam of sin. Great reforms and mighty revolutions are never set in motion by men of shadowy opinions and faint determination. Earnest living is never the result of half-hearted sentiment. Weakness of character is but the legitimate offspring of weakness of belief. What multitudes act as if they only half believed the Bible! Those Christians who feel but lightly the obligations resting upon them are the ones who live idly and negligently. The minister who does not himself feel deeply the truth he preaches can not expect to move others by his appeals, however elegantly they may be clothed. The sinner who has shallow convictions of sin is likely to manifest repentance of a very evanescent type. Consistency of life and loftiness of character are not accidental products, but are the result and manifestation of pure intention and earnest conviction. Men rarely live any better than they believe is necessary. As Dr. T. L. Cuyler well says: "The people who clamor for liberty to think as they please, and do as they please, and who scout at all Bible restraints as a bondage, are the very ones who drift into vagabondage."

This decline of the sense of sin is producing as its natural fruitage a bountiful harvest of iniquity. In many communities where once the strictest sentiments prevailed as to the use of intoxicants, and the enactment and enforcement of wise prohibitory laws, there is now the greatest laxity. Consequently drunkenness, debauchery and violence abound, and wickedness is arrogant and boastful. Gambling, Sabbath-breaking and other iniquities also flourish like a green bay tree where once they were under the ban of public sentiment. The commonness of divorce in many of our States is an evidence of a deplorable decline in sentiment regarding the sacredness of the marriage relation. With regard to all these evils church members seem content with a "let-alone policy," fancying themselves blameless so long as they refrain from these evils personally.

There is an evident decline of conviction also as to the importance of family prayer and the duty of taking children to church. Consequently, a large percentage of the boys and girls of to-day whose parents are church members are growing up to be godless and churchless. The religious instruction of the young, alas! is in many cases left almost entirely to the pastor and the Sunday-school teacher.

Concerning all these matters the pulpit should give forth no uncertain sound. The sacredness of duty, the heinousness of sin, the strictness of divine justice, and the imperative necessity for deep and hearty repentance, need to be emphasized.

Let all Christians be on their guard. Let each realize that he is in some measure responsible for the moral standard of the community in which he lives. Let all, with earnest prayer for divine illumination and guidance, do all in their power to foster nobler and earnest convictions. Let us take the Word of God, not the opinions of men, as the rule of our faith and practice. The man who imbibes his convictions from the secular press, or from polite society, will almost certainly manifest a defective morality and a woeful lack of zeal for the cause of Christ. The great need everywhere is for men and women who, Ulysses-like, will close their ears against the siren songs of the world, the flesh and the devil, and place their feet firmly upon the rock of divine truth.

CLEANING UP CUBA.

The filth of Havana beggars description and defies credulity. Col. Waring, the chief of the Sanitary Commission, sent to report upon the sanitary condition of the principal cities of Cuba, is quoted as saying that if he were to tell the truth about the unhealthy condition of Havana, he would not be believed. The Mail and Express has published trustworthy testimony upon this subject from its own correspondent which indicates that words are inadequate to picture the noisome squalor of a city that has accumulated beneath its foundations the dirt of centuries. As impressive corroboration of these reports is found in the cold estimate of Col. Waring that it will cost $22,000,000 to rid Havana and its harbor of those menaces to health which are to-day the most serious deterrent to the peaceful invasion of American capital and enterprise. It is a big bill to pay, but it must be paid as the initial price of our greater national wealth, regardless of the specific form of government under which Cuba is to attain its fullest development.—New York Mail and Express.

Col. Waring was prepared for a great deal. He had heard that the city and harbor of Havana were the filthiest in the world; but even he was surprised at what confronted him. "If I told all that I saw in Havana in the way of filth," he says, "I would not be believed." And Col. Waring is no novice on this subject. He has made the cleaning up of cities his study. He went to all the leading cities of Europe to investigate this matter; he visited the most squalid sections of the dirtiest towns, yet he could find nothing that approached Havana. The sewage and filth of four centuries are piled up there or poured into the harbor, so that the mere lauding at some of its rotten wharves will infect a vessel.

That the cleaning up of Havana and the washing out of its harbor will rid the world of yellow fever all the sanitarians are agreed. It is not an experiment, for it has been tried. Buenos Ayres got rid of the fever there by sanitation; and Vera Cruz, which of old ranked next to Havana as the worst resort of this malady, has been restored to health by the efficient sanitary measures put in operation by President Diaz. The United States can certainly do for Cuba what Mexico has already done for its coast towns—for it has a hundred times as much at stake.—Times-Democrat.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE POSTPONED.

A letter from Bishop O. P. Fitzgerald, of this date, announces that the time of holding the Mississippi Annual Conference has been postponed from Dec. 15 to Dec. 29. The Bishop writes that a change of place is not necessary, now that the date is deferred.

C. G. ANDREWS,

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

NO POSTPONEMENT.

Bishop Key requests me to announce that the North Mississippi Conference will meet Nov. 30. After consultation with the presiding elders, it is found that the majority favor the date above given.

J. S. OAKLEY,
Secretary of the Conference.

A CHEERING PROPHECY.

Dr. Carter, of the Marine Hospital, said to a representative of The Times-Democrat, as he was putting up his traps at the St. Charles, preparatory to seeking "fresh woods and pastures new:"

"The fever ledger for 1898 was closed to-day, and I feel easier once more, for I believe that there will be no fever next year. Last year I thought there would be some this year. My prediction has proven true. Now I say, with even more confidence, that I do not think there will be a repetition of the experience in 1899. The history of the disease does not bear out this assertion. We have never had it the third season in succession, but always have had it the two seasons together."

An assurance of this sort from a really skillful expert, like Dr. Carter, is worth more than all the predictions of the yellow fever theorists in the world.

And the community, which has had experience of Dr. Carter's splendid work in the treatment of yellow fever, and his able observations in regard to the propagation of the disease, will readily credit his assertion that there will be no further visitation of it for years to come—will credit his assertion, and be greatly relieved and encouraged by it.—Times-Democrat.

GONE HOME.

Bro. S. S. Cope, of Paulding, Miss., died yesterday, the twenty-seventh instant, after an illness of near two weeks. He leaves a devoted wife and three children to mourn their irreparable loss. In the death of Bro. Cope, Rose Hill circuit has lost one of its most useful and faithful members. His body will be interred at the cemetery at Jackson.

We tender our profoundest sympathies to his bereaved family.

THE CONFERENCES AND THE WAR CLAIM.

The following Conferences endorsed the action of the Bishops: Western, Los Angeles, Louisville.

The following Conferences endorsed the action of the Bishops and also censured the Book Agents: Missouri, Southwest Missouri, St. Louis, Illinois, and Tennessee.

The Holston Conference took action in opposition to returning the money.

THE STATE BOARD.

Let us give credit where credit is due. Yellow fever, quarantine, depopulation and business depression are bad enough, goodness knows; but to perpetuate an error and to blackguard and condemn the best and truest and ablest friend we have would be infinitely worse. So far as the northern portion of Mississippi is concerned, the State Board of Health, or its representatives in this section, has handled the fever, and the situation and conditions consequent to the fever, in a most efficient and satisfactory manner. Along this line, but with reference to the State in general, the Commercial-Appeal in an editorial, in an issue of recent date, says:

There are a few newspapers in Mississippi that have gone off, without thinking, after the strange god; the people of the State are not likely to follow them. The fact of the matter is that beyond all dispute, Mississippi has the most competent and thorough-going State Board of Quarantine in existence. The Mississippi State Board of Health has performed every function which the National Government could perform, and it has done for the people all the National Government could have done.

The State Board of Health discovered and declared yellow fever at Orwood on Tuesday, Aug. 30, and quarantined the section the same date. It was on the following Sunday that the first representative of the Marine Hospital Service arrived on the ground, and Monday morning, Sept. 5, before he examined a sick patient. Who can estimate the increased area of the infection if left undisturbed for that week longer? The State Board discovered and reported the fever at Taylor, Waterford, Starkeville, Oxford, Burgess, Water Valley and, so far as we know, every infection reported in the State this season; but this article is with especial reference to the northern portion of the State, where we have personal knowledge of the work done by the Board, and in this regard, Dr. Ward, of Winona, in a circular letter, under date of Oct. 17, says:

The State Board of Health has done faithful and heroic work in this campaign. It has accomplished everything that could be compassed by vigilance, energy, fidelity and intelligence; but the State Board can never suppress, nor circumscribe epidemics so long as they are permitted to gain a foothold through hesitancy, uncertainty and dissensions on the part of local physicians.

It is not in the power of the State Board to prevent the introduction of infection into the country; that is the duty of the National Government; but in discovering and diagnosing disease, circumscribing the area of infection, guarding healthy communities and healing the sick, the State Board is alike competent and faithful.—Water Valley Progress.

The above editorial, from the Water Valley Progress, has been sent to us with a request for its publication. We most cheerfully comply with the request. We heartily endorse what is said of the vigilance and diligence of the Mississippi Board of Health. We believe they have worked to the utmost of their ability to prevent the spread of the fever. Our only criticism of the Board was with reference to their famous embargo upon travel between non-infected points. That order, we believe, to have been a huge mistake; but we give the Board credit for the best of motives.

At the annual meeting of the Publishing Committee of the Texas Advocate, held last week, Dr. T. R. Pierce was re-elected, but, having a preference for the pastorate, he declined to serve longer. Dr. G. C. Rankin was elected in his stead. Dr. Pierce is a man of broad culture, and a vigorous and graceful writer. We welcome Dr. Rankin to the tripod, and predict for him a successful career.

SINCERITY.

1. Sincerity means literally "without wax." It was applied to honey. Thoroughly cleansed of waxen substance. It was frequently retained for purposes of weight and bulk. Adulteration general; food, medicine, apparel, life.

2. Life! Nay, things are not what they seem. Masquerade general. Conscious and unconscious. Would appear younger, fairer, wiser, better. Yes, there are erudite ignoramuses, pious frauds. Only few desire to be known as they are. Are ashamed of the reality.

3. Pompously some assert that they are in all things guided by principle. But if you examine that principle, you will find it only obstinacy. Prejudice led to these views, and to these views they adhere. Manfully, they think. Consequentially obdurate. Will not change. Rightly the bard laments: "He, who's convinced against his will, is of the same opinion still."

4. Even love is not without dissimulation. Love love, but hate. Love their own, their well-being, name, fame, possessions. Love self and all things emanating from and contributing to self. Not true? Love can be weighed as sugar can be weighed. That for which you are prepared to make the greatest sacrifices you love most. Hence, what is it that you love supremely, your own or God?

5. Liberality, too, is frequently adulterated. Of the senses, large or small, reported to have been given for benevolent purposes, wonder how much flowed from pure liberality? Gave, because they craved the praise of men; gave, because they wished to excel others in amounts given; gave, because others gave. Imitation, emulation, laudation cancerously defile heaven-born liberality. The methods adopted by so-called leaders in Israel promote insincerity in this respect.

6. Not even all prayer is sincere. Have been shocked when assuming the posture of prayer. Deity was spoken of in the third person. Others employ prayer as a convenient method to praise or punish some one. Rhetoric abundant, sentences ornate, wordy pyrotechny. Nothing felt of the "living fire" trembling through the breast.

7. Paradoxical though it seem, not a few are proud of their humility. Used for parade purposes. It is beautiful. Easily assumed. But woe to those who treat us and speak of us in accordance with our assumption! Miserable hypocrites we are. But all the same: "Blessed are the meek."

JEAN PAUL.

FROM CENTENARY COLLEGE.

I hereby certify, as practicing physician of Centenary College, that there has not been a suspicious case of yellow fever on the campus up to Oct. 25, when Mr. Embree, from some unaccountable source, contracted the disease.

That Drs. Jones, Ervin and myself have advised Dr. Cooper to continue the regular college work, since there is no other suspicious sickness of any kind in either of the dormitories, and because of the lateness of the season and continued low temperature. There is no reason whatever to apprehend a spread of the fever. Every precaution necessary to destroy the germs of the fever in the building where the one case occurred has been taken. All the bedding and clothes in Mr. Embree's room were burned, and the other rooms in the dormitory thoroughly cleaned and aired.

Furthermore, that Dr. Cooper and his faculty have acted wisely and for the very best interest of the health of the student-body.

A. R. HOLCOMBE, M. D.,
Member of Board of Health.

We apprehend no spread of this fever among the boys—that is, if we can rely upon cold weather stamping out the disease. We have had several frosts and ice two mornings, with an average temperature below the danger line.

Dr. Cooper is a safe and wise man. He has managed well through the trying ordeal of panic and fever. His unselfish devotion in trying to shield the boys from danger deserves highest praise. In every move made he has consulted our physicians, our best and wisest citizens, and has been fully endorsed by the faculty.

The only thing that could be done, after fever was announced in town, was to get all the boys and professors on the campus and quarantine against the town. It was impossible to get away from here then, as the whole country shut us in by most rigid quarantine.

Surely we have reached the end of all this fever, panic, and paralysis! God forbid that our Southland may ever again be so afflicted.

May God bless and prosper Centenary College!

A NEW BOOK.

MORMONISM. By Rev. J. W. Ramsey. E. T. Winston, Pontotoc, Miss.

By courtesy of the author the above-named work lies upon our table. It is a pamphlet of twenty-two pages. So far as we are competent to judge, it is a correct portraiture of Mormonism—its origin, its principles, its results. As this latter-day heresy is slowly spreading through the South, it is well that our people should be enlightened as to its true character. The author has, therefore, rendered a service to the public in the publication of this work. Wherever this ecclesiastical monstrosity makes its appearance, let this booklet be circulated as an antidote.

NOTES.

Rev. J. T. Norsworthy has had a very successful pastorate at Camden, Miss.

President McKinley has appointed Thursday, the twenty-fourth, as Thanksgiving Day.

Next Sabbath, Dr. Pierce, assisted by Rev. R. H. Wynn, will begin a meeting at Carondelet.

Rev. M. H. Honnoll, of the North Mississippi Conference, has been quite seriously ill, but is now convalescent.

Rev. George D. Parker has a meeting in progress this week at Carrollton Avenue Church. He is assisted by Drs. Sawyer and Pierce.

The Union Thanksgiving service will be held this year at Felicity Street Church. The sermon will be preached by Dr. J. L. Pierce.

Dr. W. F. Glenn has been re-elected editor, and Dr. T. T. Christian, assistant editor and business manager, of the Wesleyan Advocate. For eight years the Georgia Conferences have said to these brethren: "Well done, good and faithful servants." We extend congratulations to all concerned.

On the twenty-first of June, Miss Rose C. Fails was licensed as a practitioner of law by the Supreme Court of the State of Louisiana. Last Friday, Oct. 28, she argued her first case before one of the courts of this city, and procured a verdict for her client. She is the first woman to plead law in this State.

The Algiers brethren, under the leadership of their wide-awake pastor, Rev. R. H. Wynn, have commenced the work of renovating their house of worship. It will be so entirely reconstructed as to look like a new building. Outside improvements will also be made in the way of a handsome iron fence, a neat Schillinger pavement, etc.

The following extract from a private letter from Rev. W. S. Shipman will be read with interest. All honor to Bro. Standifer for his heroism.

Bro. R. M. Standifer came up from Oxford yesterday first time he has been out since the breaking out of the fever. He has been of very great service to the suffering town, and he has acted in the capacity of nurse, doctor, undertaker, priest; was duly elected alderman, and then mayor.

W. S. SHIPMAN.

Miss Belle Kearney delivered an address every night during September and October—New York, New Jersey, and other States in that section being the field of her operations. She has everywhere commanded large audiences, and her efforts have received high commendation from the press, some papers having spoken of her as "the strongest woman on the American platform." On Sunday night, Oct. 23, at Saratoga, N. Y., four of the leading churches gave way for her service, and the ministers sat with her in the pulpit of the elegant Methodist Church.

LET HARSH CRITICISMS OF BOARDS OF HEALTH CEASE.

I have noticed some criticisms of the acts of the Mississippi State Board of Health, and of physicians engaged as experts in the diagnosis of the fever now prevailing over the Southern States. As I am not one of the physicians thus engaged, I feel it a duty to say a few words in their defense.

We frequently hear this remark: "As long as the fifty thousand dollars appropriated by the State for quarantine purposes lasts, you may expect these experts to find yellow fever."

Such remarks as these are unreasonable and unchristian. They give one a feeling of distrust of the parties making them. Instances are rare, if they exist at all, where there is evidence of experts having pronounced a disease yellow fever without a confirmation of their diagnosis. The medical profession is censured for its vigilance in finding cases, for not finding all the cases, and for not finding them early enough. The State Board of Health, the surgeons of the Marine Hospital Service, and these experts, deserve the praise of the people rather than their harsh criticisms. It is perfectly reasonable that yellow fever, in its very mild form, should prevail for some days unobserved. It, no doubt, often does, without a physician being called, and being an unusual disease, it may not then be recognized. I do not believe that everyone is dishonest, and that all persons can be bought, not even in the medical profession. It is not popular to declare a case of sickness yellow fever; "the commercial diagnosis" is the more popular one. It takes courage in a physician to pronounce a case of sickness as even suspicious.

In your issue, of Oct. 20, I regret so much to see an article from Rev. Isaac L. Peebles, of Hattiesburg, Miss., addressed to the members of the Mississippi Conference, stating that there is no yellow fever there, and asserting that Boards of Health, and the physicians employed by them, are not men of skill in the medical profession. One quotation from his article will suffice: "I verily believe that if we had no Health Boards or experts, there would be no yellow fever in our country anywhere."

This is hard language for a minister to use. Where did he obtain such skill in the diagnosis of this disease? If a minister does his duty, he can not possibly give much time to the study of medicine. He places his judgment against that of such medical authority as compose the Marine Hospital Service, our own State Board of Health, and other members of the medical profession, of undoubted repute as physicians, who are doing good and honest work over the Southern States. Surely the good and noble brethren to whom this letter was addressed, and the members of this grand church, will feel humiliated that a recognized preacher and member of their Conference should have written such a communication.

This fever is made light of because the death-rate is low. Granting that it is low, it is evident that it is infectious, and that it spreads when once introduced. It makes a great many people sick, and a great many good people die. The death-rate at Edwards last year was low, but go there and get a list of the dead, and you will find a long list of good citizens and valuable church members gone. The same may be said of Oxford and other places this year.

I do hope that criticisms will cease, and that a better feeling towards Boards of Health will prevail, for in them lies the only protection that can be obtained. Let us pray that the Lord will be with the people of the afflicted States, and that the representatives from Health Boards that are to meet in New Orleans and elsewhere to discuss the question of quarantine will lay aside all prejudice. Let the result of the meetings called be such as to forever free us from this dreadful scourge. If national quarantine promises better protection than has been given us, let us have national quarantine.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

MY DEAR BRETHREN: Since Bishop Fitzgerald has postponed the time for our Annual Conference till Dec. 29, I hope that every vestige of timorousness about coming to Hattiesburg will disappear. There can be no sort of danger in coming into a town which has been very slightly infected with yellowold, when the mercury went down to a place in October which made it difficult to find a parallel in the history of the past, so far as the South is concerned.

I congratulate the Conference on the postponement of the time; and feel sure that the additional time will be richly rewarded by an increase in the collections, and more nearly paid-up salaries. It would be a positive disgrace to a pastoral charge to fail to pay a small salary to the preacher, and then keep him over Xmas without rallying to him in substantial support.

The experts have done their work, and packed their grips, and quit the field. Dr. Carter has announced that the fever ledger of 1898 is closed. Thanks to Jack Frost for putting Yellow Jack to flight.

We are looking forward to the Conference with much pleasure. In order to dissipate any possible fear of incurring risk in coming to Hattiesburg, I wish to say that Bro. Peebles and I will board, lodge, nurse, pay medical bill (if homeopathy is used), furnish burial place, and preach the funerals of all the preachers who have yellowoid here in December.

Now, brethren, here is a "golden opportunity." Don't fail to come and get the proffered benefit (?).

Fraternally yours,

C. A. POWELL.

A COOK BOOK FREE.

"Table and Kitchen" is the title of a new cook book published by the Price Baking Powder Company, Chicago. Just at this time it will be sent free if you write a postal mentioning the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. This book has been tried by ourselves and is one of the very best of its kind. Besides containing over 400 receipts for all kinds of pastry and home cookery, there are many hints for the table and kitchen, showing how to set a table, how to enter the dining room, etc.; a hundred and one hints in every branch of the culinary art. Cookery of the very finest and richest as well as of the most economical and home like, is provided for. Remember "Table and Kitchen" will be sent, postage prepaid, to any lady sending her address (name, town and State) plainly given. A copy in German or Scandinavian will be sent if desired. Postal card is as good as letter. Address Price Baking Powder Co., Chicago, Ill.

Our editorial, of Oct. 6, on "Eternal Punishment," somewhat enlarged has been published in the form of a 16-page pamphlet. It will be sent postpaid to any address on receipt of five cents.

A CHRISTIAN FACULTY.

For more than twenty years I have been acquainted with Whitworth College and her teachers, but I never saw the whole corps of teachers working in our church as at present. I am constrained to tell the church my observations of the "Whitworth faculty." In Sunday-school they are faithful teachers and helpers; in church, they are in their places, the musicians nearest the organ, from the director to the primary teacher, and all uniting their voices in singing praises to our King. On quarterly meeting occasion many of them were at love-feast, and testified to their love for the Savior. At prayer meeting, they are ready to help their pastor. Bro. Jones had Prof. Webb to conduct the meeting last Wednesday night, and he has appointed Prof. Sherwood to hold the meeting next Wednesday. You see they practice the religion they profess, and I doubt not the good influence they exert will abide in the lives of the girls under their care. Certainly no one can say the "faculty of Whitworth College" is not a Christian band, and none need fear to trust their daughters in their care.

S. G. WEEMS.

HATTIESBURG AGAIN.

Some of our brethren abroad seem to be somewhat disturbed by reports of small-pox here as well as yellow fever. In order to their comfort, I am glad to say that there is not a case of small-pox here. There have been a few cases among the colored people, but there is not a single case among them now. I do not know of one white person who has had it. Some who were vaccinated suffered much from that, and some have not gotten over it yet, and, perhaps, they never will, but they have learned enough about such butchery as never to have it done any more. While we are glad that they have learned wisdom by their hard experience, yet we are sorry that they would not receive it otherwise. Thanks to our God, the day is rapidly approaching when the butchery of vaccination shall cease forever. Its foulness and deadliness are being plainly seen after more than one hundred years of its destructive work. Vaccination!—the act of taking the filth of a sore and putting into a healthy body! The act of making well people sick in order to keep them from getting sick! What philosophy! Void of ordinary common sense, and yet practiced and submitted to by sensible people!

As to yellow fever, it is just as we claimed all the time; we have none of that, and have not had; but that which was called yellow fever is being ended by cold weather and attention to sanitation. Everything will be all right before our Conference (Dec. 15). Only five of the homes for Conference brethren were infected by the so-called yellow fever, and these are being fumigated. However, if any of the brethren object to being put in these nice homes, where there will not be the least danger, just let them say so, and we shall accommodate them, the Lord permitting.

We have never had a Conference in this territory, and, therefore, would be delighted to have one. It would do our people and others untold good. Let us have it, and that, too, on Dec. 15, if the brethren prefer it then. Some of our business men here prefer to put it off until Jan. 5, not because we will not be ready, nor because there will be the least danger, but simply because they will not be in such a rush with business then, and, therefore, can attend its sessions. That is all of it. There is nothing else in it, and, rather than to miss getting the Conference, they will cheerfully take it on Dec. 15. They would not have their families and the people, generally, disappointed by taking the Conference away from us for much. Let us have it, brethren, even on Dec. 15, if you prefer it. We shall be ready under the blessings of God.

NOTICE.

To the Pastors and Sunday-school Superintendents of the North Mississippi Conference:

Please give attention to the following plan for mission work in our Sunday-school adopted by Board of Missions at its last annual session—and I call your special attention to the third division of this plan—and be sure to let the treasurer of the Board of Missions know how much money your Sunday-schools raise, as he is to make a special report on this item. Only Corinth has been heard from as to what was done on "Rally Day." Brethren, can't every charge pay more for missions this year than last? As pastors, let us do our best, and that means much. Will we do the best we can? If our old plans have failed, let us try new ones. Many people would pay who do not if properly approached and worked. There is a way to the hearts and pockets of most men. Let us try to find it. Our Conference will hardly be postponed, and what we do will have to be done quickly.

W. S. SHIPMAN, Treas.

Holly Springs, Miss., Oct. 28, 1898.

THE PLAN.

The following plan for missionary work in all our Sunday-schools was adopted unanimously by the Board of Missions at its last annual session:

1. That the Board of Missions ask the Sunday-schools to raise, within the next year, fifty thousand dollars for the cause of missions.

2 That in all the Sunday-schools one Sabbath in each month be set apart as Missionary Day, and that the collection on that day be devoted to missions.

3. That a careful account be kept with all Sunday-schools, and a report of this work be made a part of the report of the Conference Board of Missions to the Annual Conferences, so that one publication may be made of the contributions of the various schools.

4. That on the third Sunday in October, or as near thereto as practicable, there shall be held in all our schools a Missionary Rally Day, for which a suitable programme shall be prepared by the Secretary of this Board and the Sunday-school Editor, and furnished free of charge by the Board of Missions to all schools, on condition that they will take a collection and forward the amount to the treasurer of the Annual Conference Board of Missions, to whom all collections for missions shall be transmitted.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Those members of the Conference who intend to bring their wives with them to Aberdeen will please to notify me before Nov. 15. It will be necessary for you to do this that homes may be provided.

The usual arrangements have been, or will be, made with all the railroads for transportation rates. Later I will notify you of the schedule of the trains coming into Aberdeen.

Let the entire Conference be in constant prayer for the outpouring of the Holy Ghost on our session. I would suggest a day of fasting and prayer—say Nov. 25—that our Conference may be one of unusual spiritual power. Brethren, let us do this. Make the announcement in your pulpits, that the entire membership in North Mississippi may join us in this day. Then come up to Conference in the spirit of the Master, and in the power of his might, and God will give us a great blessing. W. W. WOOLLARD.

DON'T BE SORROWFUL, DARLING.

BY REMBRANDT PEALE.

O don't be sorrowful, darling!
And don't be sorrowful, pray;
Taking the year together, my dear,
There isn't more night than day.

'Tis rainy weather, my darling;
Time's waves they heavily run;
But taking the year together, my dear,
There isn't more cloud than sun.

We are old folks now, my darling,
Our heads are growing gray;
But taking the year all round, my dear,
You will always find the May.

We have had our May, my darling,
And our roses long ago;
And the time of the year is coming, my dear,
For the silent night and the snow.

But God is God, my darling,
Of the night as well as the day;
And we feel and know that we can go
Wherever He leads the way.

A God of the night, my darling,
Of the night of death so grim;
The gate that leads out of life, good wife,
Is the gate that leads to Him.

PUTTING THE HORSE IN THE SADDLE.

It is fatally easy to get flustered, irritable, and to lose control of the temper. After such an experience almost every one is heartily ashamed of himself, and registers a vow that never again will he be guilty of a similar fault. There is one consideration that may be helpful in carrying out such a resolution, and that is that there are very few things in this human life that are worth losing one's self-control about. Suppose matters do not go to your mind; suppose you are disappointed, opposed, or maligned—what does the thing at stake amount to in comparison with that sense of self-mastery that never, for an instant, suffers the horse to get out of hands? Is there anything more pitiable than a frightened man borne along by a runaway horse? The rider does not have anything to say as to where he is going or what will be the result. He is subject to a stronger power. But there is health and tonic force in seeing a mettlesome animal controlled by a strong and supple hand. In the inner realm these two scenes are often parallel. There is immense resource for self-poise in the simple resolution to be master of yourself. When you look at the disappointments and misadventures of life from that point of view, many things that disconcert us and betray us into impatience, and passion, and loss of self-control, appear simply contemptible. It is not worth while to let the horse get into the saddle.—Watchman.

OF SIMPLE CHEERFULNESS.

There are a number of women in the world who are fond of heroics. They are the people who exhaust themselves with unnecessary work, and take upon themselves a vast amount of suffering, physical and mental, that could readily be eliminated from their lives. In general, they keep themselves and all surrounding them in a tense state of mind and nerve, creditable, or at least excusable, in an early martyr, but decidedly uncalled-for in the ordinary cares of ordinary life.

"If conditions were different!" sighs some care-worn individual. "If this load of trouble were off my shoulders, or if it were not just what it is, I could afford to be cheerful and jolly. But what can one do when one's life is nothing but worry, worry, from morning till night?"

And so the worry of the world goes on, eating into the sweet, bright flowers of cheerfulness that ought to bloom in every soil.

Why is it that we women either work ourselves to death or do so little that we take to cultivating our health and our nerves? Why do we weigh ourselves down with the worries of our friends and kindred? Why do we devote so much more time to discontent with what we haven't got rather than content with the gifts, numerous enough in every case, the gods have provided us?

Is there not a good deal of caustic truth in George Eliot's saying of a discontended heroine: "You are discontented with the world because you can't get just the small things that suit your pleasure, not because it's a world where myriads of men and women are ground by misery and wrong, and tainted with pollution?"

Happiness lies within the reach of everybody. Let a woman have enough occupation, of the manual order as well as mental, and not too much; enough exercise in the open air; enough trust in Providence to believe that problems beyond her solution are given her for the exercise of faith and patience, and not as causes of worry and mental torment. Then that plain and unpretending virtue of simple cheerfulness will seem to her a thing to be admired and hoarded.

Then, if you will permit me another quotation, she will not think it a mere rhetorical flight of poetic fancy when Faber exclaims: "In God's wide world there is no room for sin, no provision for sorrow, not a corner for unhappiness. Every created intelligence drinks its fill of the fountains of His gladness. Every instinct of animals beats with a pulsation of divine enjoyment. Every tree uplifts its head and flings out its branches, every flower blooms and sheds sweet odor, every mineral glances and sparkles just as the clouds sail, and the waters flow, and the planet turns, in the excess of the happiness of God."—Selected.

HAVE A PURPOSE.

Young man, have a purpose in your heart. Now, what is your purpose in life? Is it that under all circumstances you will do what you think is right? Or is it to become rich at the expense of principle and right? The first purpose you should have is to care for yourself. Young men now-a-days don't, and when the body is wrecked, they hobble through life making everybody about them miserable. Find out what diet best agrees with you, and adhere to it. Daniel began by abstaining from wine. This would be a good start for you, young man.

Next, take care of your intellect. Study if you have intellect—there are some young men who don't know whether or not they have any intellect—to improve it. Many hard-worked men have acquired profound education by being studious during small intervals of leisure.

Then take care of your manners. The manners of Americans are degenerating. There was a time when a young man would not offend a lady by puffing cigar smoke into her face. Now I see it done on the street cars every day. Imitate the sweetness and gentleness of Daniel. Be affable, suasive, courteous and kind. Never utter a thoughtless word that will pain. Start in life with the principle: "I'll be a gentleman, come what will."—Selected.

PURIFIERS OF LIFE.

There are some men and some women in whose company we are always at our best. While with them we can not think mean thoughts or speak ungenerous words. Their mere presence is elevation, purification, sanctity. All the best stops in our nature are drawn out by their intercourse, and we find a music in our soul that was never there before. Suppose that influence prolonged through a month, a year, a lifetime, and what could not life become. Here, even on the common plane of life, talking our language, walking our streets, working side by side, are sanctifiers of souls; here, breathing through common clay, is heaven; here, energies charged, even through a temporal medium, with the virtue of regeneration. If to live with men diluted to the millionth degree with the virtue of the highest can exalt and purify the nature, what bounds can be set to the influence of Christ?—Prof. Drummond.

THE OTHER SIDE.

A gentleman once said to us, "I do not favor prohibiting the sale of liquor; it would be an injustice to the men in business; besides, it would throw thousands out of employment."

We replied: "You do not look at the issue from the right side. You take a contractor's view.

"Just before the war closed a government contractor said, in a car: 'I hope the war will not close under two years. I will lose thousands of dollars; besides, many men will be turned out of employment from the government works.'

"A lady passenger, clad in weeds of mourning, rose to her feet, and with tearful voice said: 'Sir, I have a brave boy and husband sleeping the sleep of death in a soldiers' cemetery. I have only one boy left, and he is in front of the foe. Oh, God! I wish the cruel war would close now.'"

He saw the point. Do you?

It may be your boy or girl that will fall the next victim to the drink "industry." (?)

Would you consider the "trade" worthy of such a price? If not, for your own sake, and for the sake of other fathers and mothers, stop the murderous traffic.

ODD MOMENTS.

A great deal of work and study may be done if the odd moments of time are systematized. Harper's Bazar quotes several examples of those who had acquired the art of working by snatches:

A woman who was obliged to wait at the breakfast table for a dozen boarders to straggle down, in her waiting moments manufactured yards of dainty lace, which she found to be a profitable way of employing the time.

Another young woman, who daily waited a quarter of an hour for an elderly friend to go driving, kept a book on the hall table, and in the waiting times of one Summer managed to do a creditable amount of historical reading.

Another kept a book "going" in each room of the house, and, whenever she waited for dinner, managed to read a few chapters of whichever book was handiest.

The only reading moments of one busy woman was the time she spent every day putting her baby to sleep, and her book was kept in readiness to be used.—Selected.

A TESTIMONY FROM THE GALLOWS.

A few months ago a youngman in Omaha, while mad with drink, shot and killed a man who had been one of his friends, without any apparent motive; and for this crime he recently suffered the extreme penalty of the law. Shortly before his execution he called for pen and paper, and wrote a pathetic letter addressed to the young men of the city, especially those who had been his former associates. After recounting various experiences of his boyhood and young manhood by which he had been drawn under evil influences, he said: "But if anybody a year ago had told me that I would be in jail to-day with a death sentence upon me, I would have called him crazy. Yet here I am. Young men, for God's sake, keep away from drink. Keep away from saloons and beer gardens. Seek the society of respectable and manly young men, or stay at home with your mother. If I had done this, I would be out in the world among you to-day."—Charleston Messenger.

A MOTHER'S FAMILY PRAYER.

When we had laid the body of my husband and father to rest and night grew apace, my three little fatherless boys, with eyes brimming with tears and voice trembling, said: "Oh, who will talk to Jesus every night for us now, mama?"

I felt my own nothingness, and could only breathe a prayer for help. As if in answer, I did, with great effort at self-control 'tis true, read a few verses of the 130th Psalm—kneeling with my children and repeating the Lord's Prayer together. Thus began, and has continued, with unabated interest, our daily seeking the grace sufficient. The children do not seem to think it "tiresome" when they all take part, asking questions which I try to answer the very best I can.—Christian Observer.

Kindness seems to come with a double grace and tenderness from the old. It seems in them the hoarded and long purified benevolence of years, as if it had survived and conquered the baseness and selfishness of the ordeal it had passed—as if the wind which had broken the form had swept in vain across the heart, and the frosts which had chilled the blood and whitened the thin locks had no power over the warm tide of the affections.—Bulwer.

"Why do you say as smart as a steel trap?" asked the talkative boarder. "I never could see anything particularly intellectual about a steel trap."

"A steel trap is called smart," explained Mr. Asbury Peppers, in his sweetest voice, "because it knows exactly the right time to shut up."

Hygiene.

THE CIGARETTE EVIL.

The examination of young men for the military service of the country has called attention again, and in a most emphatic form, to the evils of cigarette-smoking. The examining surgeons have spoken in no uncertain terms. First, it is said that the percentage of rejections on the ground of physical disqualification is much larger than during the Civil War. This is followed by the statement that this change is due to the curse of cigarette-smoking, ninety per cent. of the victims of which are rejected. Think of it—only ten per cent of the young men addicted to this habit have hearts sufficiently sound to pass an examination for military service! Leaving this class out, the percentage of sound young men is higher now than during the late war.

These facts are earnestly commended to boys, and to the parents and guardians who have charge of the education of youth. They are most serious, even alarming. They are official and impartial, and can not be charged to reformers or "cranks." Thoughtful physicians lay great stress on them.

Occasionally physicians are found who have little sympathy with those who would guard young men from evil habits; who talk without thinking; who are possibly themselves slaves to the filthy tobacco habit, and they will laugh at the cigarette evil, declaring that the evil is imaginary. We have seen reports of one or two such. But they are not to be regarded. The facts are overwhelmingly against them. The more reliable opinions of wiser men should be heeded, and every one having the good of the rising generation at heart should use his influence and authority against this evil.—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

IN MEMORIAM.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath:
But thou hast all seasons for thine own,
O Death!"

Already written in the Lamb's Book of Life is the name, Rowena M. Yonnger, wife of the Rev. James E. Denson, of the Lonisiana Conference, and pastor of Dryades Street M. E. Church; yet we wonld record some of her many virtnes, and the "sweet memories" of her saintly life.

She was born in Donaldsonville, Oct. 22, 1871, and departed this life in this city Oct. 20, 1898. She em braced religion and joined the M. E Chnrch in Bnnkie, La., in 1888. From her seventeenth year nntil the honr of death she lived a devoted Chris tian, endeavoring to perform every duty pertaining to her profession.

She was married to the Rev. James E. Denson on Oct. 22, 1888. When the fever broke ont in this place her husband urged her to go to the conntry, while he remained to minister to his congregation; but she refnsed to go, saying she wonld never leave him in danger. Brave, true, faithfnl heart, her life was sacrificed to dnty.

She was a pure-minded, gentle woman, and greatly beloved by all who knew her, and many hearts are saddened by her death. Her body rests in the Washington Cemetery, where loving friends will scatter flowers and sweet birds sing a requiem to her ashes.

Sleep on, dear sister, and take your rest
Beneath earth's fading flowers;
Meanwhile we'll teach our hearts to say,
God's will be done, not ours.

SPENCER—Mrs. ELIZA JANE SPENCER, yonngest daughter of the late Judge Christian Hoover and Mrs. Mary Neyland Nailer Hoover, was born in Pike county, Miss., March 22, 1846. She was a sunbeam in her parents' home. I have often wondered, while gazing upon her physical beanty, what sphere of action God intended for her. She was educated in Summit Female College and at Mr. Oscar Newton's school in Crystal Springs, Miss. She joined the Methodist Church when a child, and having the advantage of the training of intelligent and religious parents, she developed into a high type of Christian character. She was married to Mr. George Henry Spencer, of Columbus, Ga., Dec. 10, 1868. The first five years of their wedded life were spent in Colnmbns, Ga., when they returned to Pike county, Miss. In 1891 they removed to Lincoln county, Miss., where her husband died Sept. 2, 1892. Mrs. Spencer was the mother of four sons and three daughters. One son died in infancy. Mrs. Spencer removed with her children to Bogne Chitto, Miss. Dnring the years of her widowhood she was a subject of much physical snffering, bnt was uncomplaining and patient, planning for the education of her children, wisely directing her honsehold. Her son Hoover Spencer, was in Atlanta, Ga., and did not reach home in time to receive his mother's dying blessing. Her daughter, Mrs. Anna Yawn, was prevented by severe illness from seeing her dear mother. Mrs. Spencer's children are all members of the Methodist Church. Two danghters are married to worthy men. Her children were trained in a home having a positive religious influence within it, and they will not throw off this influence, bnt develop it. Mrs. Spencer sweetly fell asleep in Jesus, Thnrsday morning, Aug. 11, 1898. Her remains were interred in the family graveyard at the Hoover old homestead, attended by sorrowing relatives and friends.

"There is a world above
Where parting is nnknown;
A whole eternity of love
Formed for the good alone;
And faith beholds the dying here
Translated to that happier shore."

M. L. J. HOOVER.

KITTLE—Mrs. AGNES ELIZABETH KITTLE departed this life on Sept. 29, 1898. She was reared in Durant, Miss., and was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Weems, veterans of the cross, who still abide in the old home. In 1877 she was married to Mr. Geo. I. Kittle, a prosperous merchant and planter, and settled with him at Stoneville, in the Mississippi Delta, his present home. For twenty-two of her forty-three years on earth Sister Kittle was a consistent member of the Methodist Church; beautiful in the amiability of her daily life, an exemplary wife and mother, and devoted to her home. As a neighbor and friend, she was generous and hospitable, yet modest and retiring in every sense. Her family and friends will miss her most, though all who knew her loved her. She was both physically and spiritually strong; energetic in practical affairs, and rich in faith and good deeds. On Sept. 21 she was taken with malarial hematuria, and lingered for eight days. The best medical skill, the kindest nursing, and the prayers of family and friends were all of no avail. Her work on earth was done, and she received her promotion to the higher place prepared for her in the heavens. She did not fear to die, but passed away quietly and peacefully, like she had lived.

We join our prayers with those of the bereaved ones—the aged parents and the sorrowing husband and five sons, who survive her—that they all may be reunited, an unbroken family circle, at the right hand of God.

OWENS—Rev. J. M. OWENS was born in Marshall county, Tenn., in 1849, and died in DeSoto county, Miss., Sept. 14, 1898. He moved to DeSoto county with his father in 1855, where he grew to manhood. He was converted to God in early life, and connected himself with the Methodist Church. After being licensed to preach he joined the North Mississippi Conference, bnt, owing to failing health, he located. Soon after he moved to Memphis, and connected himself with Pennsylvania Avenue M. E Church, of which he was a member at his death. He was a consecrated Christian, loved the work of the Lord, which was ever npon his heart, and how he could best do it. He labored as a local preacher where every opportunity was offered. He was loved and honored by his brethren. He had an attack of the slow fever, and had nearly recovered when he had a relapse, and died very suddenly at his sister's, Mrs. A. E. Cummings, near Byhalia, Miss., whom he was visiting. He died in triumph of the Christian's faith and hope, and went to his eternal reward. He leaves an aged mother, eighty-five years old, and four sisters to mourn his loss. May the God of all grace and comfort support them with his grace in this, their hour of sorrow and bereavement!

M. F. LEAKE.

ABLE—AMANDA R. ABLE (nee Mann) was born March 1, 1839, and died Sept. 28, 1898. She was married Dec. 20, 1867, to Mr. L. W. Able. There was born to this union nine children. Two are dead, and the remainder are all grown. Sister Able professed religion when young, and has been a consistent Christian for many years. She was perfectly devoted to her girls and family, bnt specially to her girls. She was a great mother, nntiring (as we learn) in her efforts to make her home pleasant and her children happy. She died in the faith. Her sickness was sudden and of short duration. Her death was a great stroke to her family; they were so devoted to her. We wonld say to all the family: Make life purer and holier for her sake, and thereby make yourselves purer and better prepared to meet your loved one when the Master calls, for you have reason to rejoice, since your mother is gone, to know she is at rest. Be faithful, and meet her by and by in heaven.

HER PASTOR.

LEVINE—FRANCIS ALPHONSE LEVINE, the son of Capt. Wm. T. Levine and Adeline Lemont, died on Oct. 8, aged thirty-two years eight months and three days.

He went out to Santiago, Cuba, on the "Underwriter," a pilot boat belonging to the bar pilots, and came back sick and to die. When it was apparent that he could not live long, his brother asked him if he wanted a priest, bnt he refused to have one. Then he came after me. I had three interviews with him, and prayed for him each time. In the last one I had with him he professed to have perfect trust in God. He said that he had peace, and was not afraid to die. The evidences of conversion were unmistakable. He was brought up a Catholic, bnt in his last hours rejected the church and its teachings, and gave himself fully to the Lord. On Sunday evening I performed the funeral services amidst a large concourse of friends.

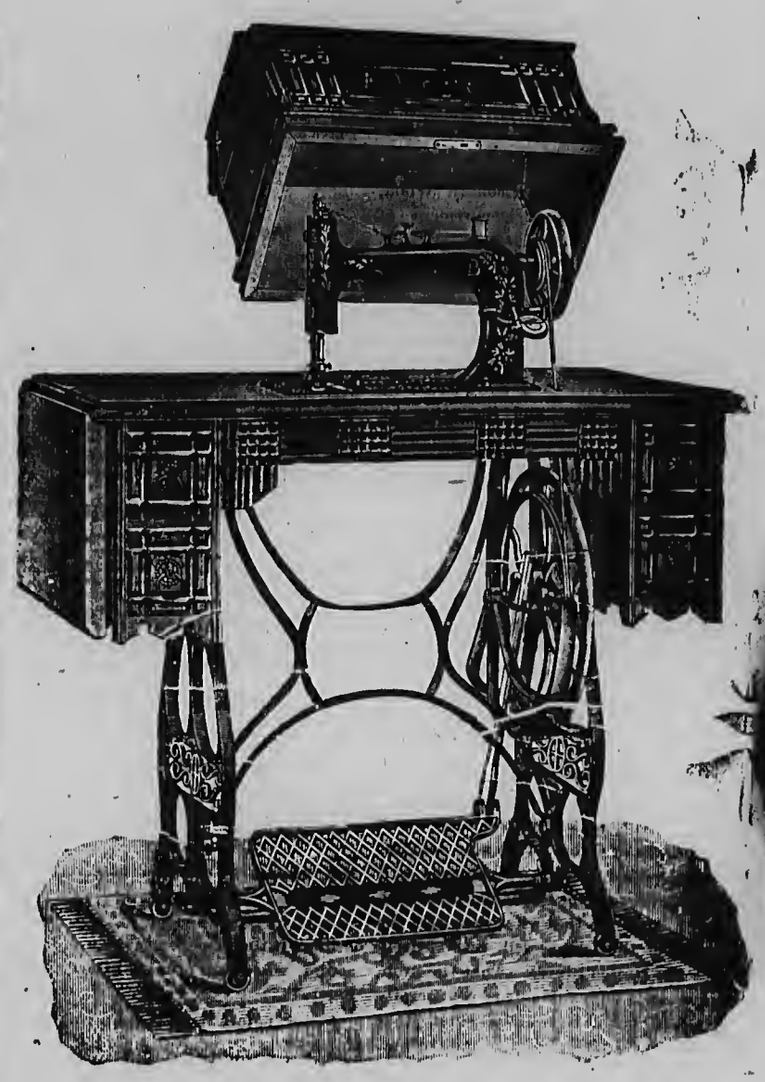
Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc



The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take-up, convenient foot rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one guage, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearing polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—The "Arlington B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light to heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great length; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell, without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless, and are very durable.

OUR OFFER.

To anyone, not now a subscriber to this paper, who will send us $19, we will send the machine and the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE one year. To old subscribers we make the following offer: Pay your subscription to December, '99, and send $17 additional, and we will send you the machine. This price does not include freight.

We allow purchaser to test the machine for ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

TO AGENTS:

We will send this machine free to any preacher or other person who will send us twenty new subscribers with the cash—$40. Address

The Sana-Cera Treatment for the cure of Catarrh, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Deafness and all diseases of the Head, Throat and Lungs

MISS LILLIE TRUSH, Elwood, Ind., writes:—Three years ago I was a mere skeleton and thought to be a hopeless victim of Catarrhal Consumption. My entire system was saturated and diseased with the catarrhal poison. I belonged to a consumptive family and no one ever expected me to get well again; but I was placed in charge of Dr. M. Healy who gave me his Sana-Cera treatment. Shortly, the reviving spells left me, my appetite returned, I grew stronger, increased in weight and after a 3 months' course was completely cured. I am now in perfect health and a stout hearty woman, as you will see by my photograph.

Three Months Home Treatment Free!

To introduce the Sana-Cera Cure in every community and prove that it cures when all others have failed, I will for a limited time send medicines for a 3 months treatment free. Send a description of your trouble, name and P. O. address at once; or, write for Question Blank and prompt attention will be given you free. Address DR. M. HEALY, Prin'l, National Dispensary, Dept't T 11. 125 W. 12th St., Cincinnati, O.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

The French press is beginning to manifest a more conciliatory spirit regarding Fashoda, apparently with a view to preparing the public mind for the recall of the Marchand expedition.

The former Spanish cruiser "Maria Teresa," which was sunk during the battle with Cervera's fleet, and raised under the direction of Naval Constructor Hobson, sailed for Hampton Roads on Saturday.

The Louisiana State Board of Health has been officially notified by the Texas health authorities that, beginning Nov. 1, all quarantine restrictions against Louisiana and Mississippi will be removed.

A garbage plant is to be established in the City of Mexico. The heat evolved by the crematories will be utilized for steam purposes and a number of factories will be erected in their immediate vicinity.

The visit of General Leonard Wood, governor of Military Department of Santiago, has been instrumental in bringing all the elements among the Cubans to the front. No fewer than 2000 insurgents, of whom 500 are officers, want offices, and their clamor amounts almost to a demand. There are two leading factions, one headed by General Jesus Rabi, and the other by General Rios.

Colonel George E. Waring, Jr., died of yellow fever on Saturday at his home in New York, where he had been since he arrived from Havana on the "Yucatan" on Tuesday last. He was 67 years of age. Colonel Waring had been sent to the city of Havana as a special commissioner of this government to ascertain the exact sanitary conditions of that city and to form ideas for the best methods for putting the place in first-class sanitary shape.

One of the most important questions to be taken up at the approaching session of Congress is the final disposition to be made of Cuba. It is now definitely understood that the Spaniards will finally evacuate the island not later than Jan. 1, 1899; so that after that date the future of the island will rest entirely with the United States. That the problem bristles with difficulties is generally admitted, but it is equally certain that some solution must soon be arrived at.

The European cables of the past week have been of more than ordinary interest, not merely because of the threatened rupture between Great Britain and France, but also because of the evidences of an impending change in the combinations of the various powers in their relations to important pending questions. That there was serious danger of a war between France and England is undoubtedly true; but, although the French are still at Fashoda, the end of the week finds the situation much less warlike.

The Acme Wrecking Company, of San Francisco, has made a request upon the Navy Department for authority to raise the battle-ship "Maine." The company has experience in raising vessels on the Pacific coast, and representations have been made to the department as to its ability to accomplish the task in Havana harbor. The company simply asks authority to raise the "Maine," and bring her to this country. If the government wants the ship after she reaches the United States, the company will want to be paid salvage money through condemnation proceedings. It is probable, in case the government did not want the ship, the company would exhibit her in different large seacoast cities of the United States. No money is demanded from the government by the company.

The approach of their German imperial majesties to the city of Jerusalem on Saturday was made through triumphal arches and amid banners, garlands and ever-growing crowds, displaying in every way their enthusiasm and delight. The formal entry through the Jaffa gate was heralded by the roar of guns at the citadel, where the Turkish band played the German anthem. From the tower of David, Emperor William and Empress Augusta Victoria proceeded on foot, amid wild cheering, to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, where they were received by the Catholic, Greek and Armenian clergy, whose patriarchs presented addresses, eulogizing the devotion of Emperor William, who has since conferred decorations on the patriarchs. Their majesties then proceeded to the German Evangelical Church, where the pastor presented an address.

It is said the peace negotiations at Paris will be successfully concluded within a fortnight. It is stated on high authority that the United States will take the entire group of the Philippines and will assume the $10,000,000 debt incurred by Spain in the Philippines when she issued bonds to that amount. It is asserted that the Spanish Commissioners have pledged their acceptance of these terms in advance. The instructions to the American Commissioners to make the concessions asked for will be sent. The Spanish Commissioners have contended that should the minimum demand of the United States be the Island of Luzon, including Manila, the Spanish government would be powerless to rule the remainder of the islands, and that so long as the United States was to get the territory, it should assume the $40,000,000 indebtedness.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Booneville, Miss., EDITOR.

"For if the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself to the battle?"

Never before was there a time when a louder call was made than now for consecrated men and women. Those of whom the world may say, as the woman said of the Prophet Elijah—"I know that thou art a man of God."

God is continually calling for re-enforcements, and we are confident that many young men now filling the ranks of the League—training for service—will fill the pulpits of our land some day.

And may we not infer that some of the young women will superintend the affairs of the parsonage homes of the future, and prove, as many have already proved to be, a "power behind the throne" and a helper in the work of the Lord?

We are not even suggesting that the Epworth League is to be turned into a Matrimonial Association; but we are sure that friendships formed under such influences will do far more toward the perpetuation of an American home-life in its purity and integrity than those formed in the halls of worldly amusements and under the auspices of so called society.

Two members of the Booneville (Miss.) Epworth League are to be married in the Methodist Church at that place, Wednesday night, Nov. 2, by their pastor. We consider the church the proper place (when practicable) for such ceremonies, and the preacher in charge the proper person to perform the rite.

Rev. J. M. Huggin, of the Pittsboro circuit (North Mississippi Conference), and Rev. E. P. Craddock, of the Okolona circuit, report flourishing Leagues organized and at work within the bounds of their respective charges.

The Annual Conferences for Mississippi and Louisiana are very near at hand. Let the Leaguers assist the pastors in their final efforts to secure "everything in full."

Dr. DuBose will go to Boston next month to meet the committee appointed to arrange programme for the fourth International Conference of Epworth Leagues, to be held in Indianapolis next Summer.

Bro. W. D. Hawkins, our first vice-president (who also honors the positions of first vice-president of the District League and president of the League Union), is wide awake to every opportunity that offers advantages to his department. He breaks the monotony of "constant church going" by occasional meetings in some shady grove or upon the mountain top. A meeting of such character, held not long since, lends a picture upon which I shall dwell for a moment. We sat upon a carpet of beautiful grasses; our roof was of fluttering, balmy leaves; and there were no walls to hush the melody of song or obstruct to view nature's beauty around us, save distance. The program consisted of songs, papers, talks, prayers, etc., which blended their beauty with the joyous scenes about us, and gave not only Leaguers, but a number of visitors present, an occasion of delightful worship.—James B. Holland, Reporter for South Side League, Meridian, Miss.

Under the editorial management of Rev. H. M. DuBose, D. D., the Epworth Era is fast forging its way into the very front rank of religious journalism. If we, as Leaguers, will give it the support and circulation it deserves, it will in the not far distant future have a subscription list equal to that of any other church paper published in the South. Dr. DuBose was reared in Mississippi, as was also Dr. S. A. Steel, the former and much-loved editor.

We knew a man once who, when told that his house was afire, walked out into the yard, looked up to the blazing roof, and deliberately replied: "I do not understand the philosophy of that." "Philosophy," exclaimed his wife; "you get a bucket of water and help put that fire out." Foolish, was he not? Yes, but fully as wise as the learned man who says, "Science has not yet spoken its last word upon the subject of total abstinence," and for that reason declines both to advise people to let liquor alone, and to assist his fellow-Christians in the suppression of the traffic. Plain, common-sense people do not stop to inquire about the scientific aspects of snake bites. They kill the snake, and put an end to its mischief. As to the liquor traffic, plain, common-sense people will welcome all the advice and assistance that science can render, but when they see the "Common Enemy" destroying thousands of homes and lives, and millions of money, they are not going to wait until science has spoken its last word. They are going to act on the evidence of their senses—what they see and hear and feel. Science is too slow in rendering a verdict.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

Rev. W. T. McClure, presiding elder of the Booneville district, Southwest Missouri Conference, is the newly-elected editor of the Epworth League Department of the St. Louis Christian Advocate. He fills the (editorial) place made vacant by the transfer of Rev. Jno. M. Moore to the West Texas Conference. We extend to Bro. McClure the right hand of fellowship.

EPWORTH LEAGUERS, ATTENTION.

The regular monthly meeting of the Union Epworth League will meet at Carondelet M. E. Church, South, Tuesday, Nov. 8, at 7:45 P. M. All are invited.

DR. BYE'S PASTOR FORTY YEARS AGO.

Uniopolis, O., Dec. 18, 1897.

Dr. D. M. Bye, Indianapolis, Ind.

Dear Sir—This is to certify to all it may concern, that my wife was afflicted with cancerous affection for twelve years, located on her left temple between the eye and the ear. At times it appeared to affect her eyes. She would complain of their being sore. Having noticed in our church paper, the Conservator, some wonderful cures performed by the use of your Combination Oil remedy, I was induced to order the medicine and use it according to your directions. I now take pleasure in saying to those who may be like afflicted that my wife is cured; no more complaining that her eyes are sore. I have waited some time to see if the cure was permanent, hence the delay in writing to you. Thank God for providing such a remedy for such a direful disease, and thanks to you, Dr. Bye, for the use of your medicine and for your liberality in my case. Yours respectfully,

WM. MILLER.

P. Elder of West District Anglnize Annual Conference, Church of the United Brethren in Christ.

Persons afflicted with Cancer or Tumor may address DR. D. M. BYE, Lock Box 25, INDIANAPOLIS, IND., and he will send them a book and papers free, giving prices of treatment, and hundreds of letters from the afflicted in every part of the United States and Canada who have been cured; also half-tone cuts from photographs showing facts that can not be questioned.

According to the records of the local office of the weather service, the past month has broken the October record for cold weather. For the first time during the twenty-five years of the existence of the weather service in this city a heavy frost has occurred as early as October, and there have been as many as four cold spells to date, which is extremely unusual at this early period.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections; also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints. Having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, and desiring to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who wish it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail, by addressing, with stamp, naming this paper. W. A. NOYES, 820 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

At the fourth Quarterly Conference of Tupelo station, North Mississippi Annual Conference, the following was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, At the expiration of the present quarter our presiding elder, the Rev. S. M. Thames, will have served four consecutive years upon the Aberdeen district; And, whereas, Under the law regulating our itinerant system it is impossible for him to be returned to us again next year; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we hereby express our high appreciation of his efficient work among us, and that we commend him to the people to whom he may be sent as a Christian gentleman of stainless character, a worthy and capable official of the church, and a faithful minister of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Resolved, That this resolution be spread upon the minutes of our present session, and that a copy of it be sent to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

THE PASSING YEARS.

BY EMILY J. BRYANT.

The gracious years of God are passing by,
Grieve thou not for the unreturning past;
The sad, dark places of earth testify
Of work undone—the field is ripe and vast.

The gentle years of grace are passing by,
Each one sent by a Father's loving thought,
Like a Father's hand from the binding sky
Reaching down with blessing richly fraught.

Wonderful years are passing by,
Age and decay and change the years defy,
Unnumbered as the host of midnight's sky,
Swiftly as a weaver's shuttle they fly.

Wonderful years for His dear church to grow,
Wonderful years for the harvest of souls,
Wonderful years for hearts to work and glow,
Wonderful years ere eternity rolls.

Wonderful years for the world's redemption,
To win the race to holy, sweet accord;
Years for man from sin to win redemption,
Years for the cause and kingdom of our Lord.

Correspondence.

THE ANGLO-CHINESE COLLEGE.

(Concluded.)

III.—NEEDS.

1. Our first need is a church-building. We now hold our services in the college chapel. But this is very inconvenient, and greatly hinders the growth of the church. The outsiders, especially the women, do not like to come into the college chapel, so that we do not reach large numbers of people that we could reach if we had a church-building. And, moreover, the chapel is needed very much for other purposes in the work of the college. Three thousand five hundred dollars (gold) is needed to build such a church as will meet our present wants. We have $500 in hand, and another $500 can be secured. We need, therefore, $2,500 more for this purpose. But we ought to put up a larger church than $3,500 would build. The Christian community of Shanghai is rapidly increasing, and the many union meetings that take place there every year are growing to such large proportions that even now none of the churches so far built in Shanghai will accommodate them. Last year the Christian Endeavorers had to rent one of the large public halls, at considerable expense, in which to hold their grand rally, as none of the churches in Shanghai would hold the people on that occasion. The next church built in Shanghai ought, by all means, to be of sufficient size to accommodate these large union meetings. We ought, therefore, to build a church with 1,000 to 1,200 sittings, costing about $6,000 (gold).

2. Dormitories. The present dormitories are cheap buildings, put up several years ago as a temporary makeshift, and have long since become very dilapidated, notwithstanding frequent repairs, and are now wholly inadequate to the needs of the college.

3. Class-rooms, library, and gymnasium. We can accommodate about 200 pupils, with some considerable crowding. Last year we squeezed in 244, and this year 238 were admitted, while nearly a hundred had to be turned away for want of room and teaching force. More class-room is badly needed for even the 200, or more, that we now have in the college. The library is much needed. A small room in the attic of the main building is now set apart for the purpose, but it is altogether too cramped to be of much use. The gymnasium is a necessity in a school in China, where the pupils are naturally so averse to taking physical exercise. We have very little in this line as yet, and a well-equipped gymnasium is needed very much.

4. Improvement fund. If the vacant lots could have tenement-houses built on them, a large income could be collected from them which would be permanent endowment for the college. This would serve not only to relieve the Board of Missions of the salaries of the foreign missionary teachers in the college, and pay all the taxes and running expenses, but would greatly aid in providing a proper equipment for the work that the college ought to do.

Our China Mission Conference, at its last session in October, 1897, unanimously agreed to ask the home church, among other things, for for the Anglo-Chinese College. This amount is needed in order to properly equip the college for the great work that it is called upon to do in this time of China's awakening. A grand opportunity for educational and evangelistic work is presented to our church through this college, and we ought to have the means to do it with.

There is, however, not a little competition to be met with. Besides the numerous and smaller institutions and private schools that are being carried on in Shanghai for teaching Western learning, there are three large institutions that are well supplied with men and money for this kind of work.

(1) The Roman Catholics have a large institution, known as the Saint Xavier's College, within a quarter of a mile of the Anglo-Chinese College. They have a large five-story building, with all the necessary smaller buildings and appendages, a strong teaching force, and plenty of money.

(2) The Chinese government has recently established a school in Shanghai for teaching English, mathematics, science, etc. Nearly $100,000 (gold) has been appropriated for the purchase of land and the erection of all the necessary buildings, etc., to accommodate 400 pupils. This institution is to be under the charge of Rev. J. C. Ferguson, formerly of the Methodist Episcopal Mission at Nanking.

(3) The Protestant Episcopal Mission has a fine institution in St. John's College, under the charge of Rev. F. L. H. Pott. It was founded originally by Bishop Schereschewsky at a cost of $100,000, which amount the Bishop had secured by an appeal to the home church. This college has grown to be a splendid institution under Mr. Pott's able management. He came to the United States last Autumn to raise $10,000 (gold) with which to build a Science Hall for the use of the college. He secured the money, and returned to China in February last, and the building will probably soon be erected. A considerable sum was also contributed by the Chinese patrons of the college towards the erection of the hall.

With these finely equipped institutions in our immediate neighborhood, we need to greatly enlarge and improve our facilities in order to meet the conditions now surrounding us if we would not fall behind in the work. We are now in much danger of being able to command only the second and third-rate pupils—the leavings, so to speak, after all the other better equipped institutions are filled up. Can we not get the help we need, and get it quickly?

A. P. PARKER.

THE QUARANTINE QUESTION.

I dislike very much to appear in opposition to any view advocated by one so wise and able in judgment and advocacy as Bishop Galloway; but, since he so kindly invites expression of views, even from the humblest, on the question of yellow fever and quarantine, I venture to express a view somewhat at variance with his, so far as the quarantine question is concerned.

While I fully agree with him as to the injury involved in the folly of fright and flight, still it seems to me to be a dangerous experiment to adopt "absolute" Federal control, so that the States would have no organized authority and no voice in determining the rights of the citizens within their borders. I say that this would be a grave step, and, in my opinion, would involve great danger to the States. Federal control of the State once gained would be very difficult to shake off, and that which, under extraordinary conditions, was permitted by the State would soon be claimed as a right under any condition, and the reserved rights of the State would soon vanish. I grant that yellow fever is a thing to be kept out, if possible, but as between the yellow fever and centralized power which can invade a State and determine what conditions may or may not prevail there, and what legal enactments and processes are to prevail in determining the personal rights of the citizen within the State, is not the fever preferable?

It seems to me that Federal control of all coast quarantine would be all sufficient to keep the plague from our shores, and a Federal quarantine system which failed to do this would fail to prevent the spread of the disease after it had gained a foothold within our borders. Such a quarantine the Federal government could establish and maintain, but Federal authority within the States could be no more maintained than is the State authority, unless Federal soldiery should be used in the invasion of a State, which would be destructive to the rights of the State as provided in our Constitution, and would result in the establishment of centralized and absolute government entirely out of harmony with our free institutions and the present recognized right of a State to manage its internal affairs.

Is it not true that no power but brute force can control a people once panic stricken? And is not the best remedy for the foolish shot-gun quarantine, and the best preventive of fever fright and flight, to be found in the cultivation and development of a personal faith in God, which will bring calmness in the presence of danger?

If the physicians will quit making such a fuss, and not excite the people, it will go very far toward allaying their fear of the disease, and render the enforcement of reasonable quarantine regulations not only possible, but comparatively easy.

Let the Federal government keep hands off. Let the State give us a Board of Health composed as suggested by Bishop Galloway, and so far as man can provide we will have protection. Let the people be honest, industrious, and trust in God, and panic will not be possible should the fever come again.

W. T. BOLLING.

QUARANTINE MATTERS.

I like some of the articles on quarantine in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and some I do not like. These are two extremes to be dreaded, and equally shunned—too much caution and not enough.

For several years I have had my opinion on the subject of quarantine, and having laid my views before some of the most learned of the medical profession whom I have met, these opinions have become a matter of conviction.

There is but one reasonable ground on which any system of quarantine can be defended, viz.: The protection of uninfected communities against an infected place. This protection should be made as nearly absolute as possible, with a minimum of inconvenience to the public.

This can be accomplished, it seems to me:

1. By quarantining the infected place, leaving all others undisturbed.

2. By carrying on commercial exchanges through disinfecting plants, under the control of the United States Marine Hospital surgeons.

3. By allowing no one to leave an infected community without ten days' detention in an absolutely uninfected "camp of detention."

4. By making it a penal offense, punishable with fine or imprisonment—or both—for any practitioner in medicine to fail to report promptly to the United States Marine surgeon any case which for any reason, or symptoms, is of a contagious or suspicious character.

5. By the dissolution of all State and Local Boards of Health, thereby placing the responsibility where it properly belongs—i. e., on the individual practitioner.

As to State rights involved in the assumption by the General Government of the health conditions of the several States, it is enough to say than where anarchy begins to rule in any State, whether by a mob known as the Board of Health or as the Poor Man's Protective Union, or else, all rights at once cease.

The present form of the mob medico is a necessity growing out of the existing illogical and nonsensical system of quarantine, which imprisons uninfected communities, and scatters the people of infected communities all over the country, infecting every place to which they have a mind to go.

In many instances State Boards are a part of the politics of the State, and in some instances under the influence of the Boards of Trade; and, for political and commercial reasons, suppress the true state of facts until the number of foci have been so increased as to cause a spread of the infection in spite of science and money.

The two seasons past State and Local Boards have shown their incompetency to manage yellow fever, and, as if for the protection of the reputation of these Boards, some inventive genius has coined a new name for the old disease. It is no more yellow fever, but yellowoid.

Whatever may happen in the future, it is a fact that in the past federal officers have not permitted themselves influenced out of the line of duty by local interests. This the people will not assert of State and Local Boards. The Caffrey bill, now pending in the United States Senate, is sadly defective, but will prove a great improvement on our present Rip-Van-Winkle system of quarantine.

THE AUTOCRATIC TANNER.

The recent troubles with the miners at Virden, Ill., were due to the blundering, or worse, of Governor Tanner, just as the trouble in Chicago some years ago could be laid at the door of Governor Altgeld.

Governor Tanner was notified of the threatened trouble, and was asked to send a force to preserve order. This he refused to do, till the trouble came and there had been inevitable bloodshed. Then he did what it was his duty to do at first.

But we would like to know by what law he closes the gates of his State against negro laborers entering the State to find honest employment? He says that they are denied entrance because they belong to the criminal class and are undesirable citizens. This is Governor Tanner's dictum, which he expects people to accept as higher law than the Constitution.

One trouble about it is that it is not true. In those parts of the South where laborers are all negroes, there is as little violation of law as in any section of equal numbers in Illinois, where the laborers are all white. We have employed negro servants all our life long, and we honestly believe that there is no more law-abiding class of laborers to be found in the whole country. That the largest number of our criminals in the South are negroes is true; but the body of our laborers are negroes, and among them is to be found the bulk of the poverty and ignorance of the South. And poverty and ignorance are the fertilizers that produce the criminal class in every country.

The South did not want the negro to have the ballot till he was prepared for citizenship. But Illinois, with the other Northern States, insisted that he was entitled to it, and voted almost solidly to enfranchise him, over the protest of the South. Southern people have been denounced because of their cruel selfishness in striving to rob him of his rights of citizenship. The verdict of the North was that he was prepared for citizenship by the fact of his freedom, and all the power of the government was pledged to secure him this right. It mattered not to Illinois and the other States responsible for this result that nearly every Southern State was bankrupted by the legislation of these ignorant legislators, who thronged our legislative halls. Justice had been vindicated and humanity elevated in the enfranchisement of the slave. They thanked God and felt pious.

But now, when this man, raised by their own voice to citizenship, this man whom they fondly called brother, seeks to exercise one of the plainest rights guaranteed by the Constitution, the right to support himself by honest labor, he is met with a fusil ade of rifles, and is warned off the sacred soil of Illinois by the chief magistrate of the State, with the statement that he is an undesirable citizen, and is not wanted, and must not come, under penalty of death. He is good enough to be a citizen of Alabama, but not good enough for Illinois!

Governor Tanner has disgraced Illinois, and, by sustaining him, the people of the State will brand all their fond professions of love and sympathy for the negro as hypocritical cant. Under the Constitution, and in accordance with the spirit of this government, he has as much right to seek employment in Illinois as any other man.

We have been looking for a blazing thunderbolt of wrath from Dr. Edwards, of the Northwestern, to scoroh and wither Governor Tanner. He has been ever ready to champion the cause of the negro against the cruelty and injustice of the Southern white man. We have seen no finer field for the display of his peculiar talents than that offered by Governor Tanner's action. If he has embraced the opportunity, we have somehow missed his deliverance. It may be, however, that his denunciation was so fierce and hot that it burned up the paper before it reached our office.

If the example set by Governor Tanner is to be followed by other governors, we would like to know where the thing is to stop.

Suppose Governor Johnston should go through the works around Birmingham and inform all the employees from Illinois that they must get out of the State, because he regarded them as undesirable citizens? What a nice little circus it would produce all over the United States!

And yet he has the same right to do so that Governor Tanner had to refuse those negro miners permission to go into Illinois, because he regarded them as undesirable citizens. If this thing goes on, it will be necessary, after awhile, when a man wishes to move from one State to another, to find out whether the governor regards him as a desirable citizen. As an American citizen, jealous of the rights of every man in this great country, we protest against such a high-handed outrage as a menace to American institutions.

The following paragraph, which we find in the Central Advocate, is to the point, though we do not know whether it was intended for this case or not. It exactly fits:

"A demagogue is a mischief-maker at any time, and his ability in that direction is measured by the position he chances to occupy. Should he have at his command the entire legal machinery of a great State, his harm-producing capacity is almost unlimited. Yet, when a single State honors two such men in immediate succession to each other, the people can hardly be said to suffer unjustly."

No. But the people of every other State do suffer unjustly.—Alabama Advocate.

OPENING OF MILLSAPS.

ONE HUNDRED PUPILS WERE IN ATTENDANCE.

The face of Dr. Murrah, president of Millsaps College, fairly beamed with delight this morning when he marched into the chapel at the head of the faculty to hold the opening exercises of the seventh session of this popular institution, to see before him almost a chapel full of students instead of the meagre handful which some of the many pessimistic had predicted, on account of the recent prevalence of yellow fever in this city. His voice was full of gratification and encouragement when, in a short address, he bade them welcome, remarking that the familiar college yells which he had heard was the sweetest music that had greeted his ears for many days.

Rev. T. L. Mellen, of Canton, was present holding the devotional services of the morning, and making the boys a talk which abounded in appropriate advice and wise counseling. His talk was much enjoyed by all. Rev. R. W. Bailey also delivered a short and appropriate address, which was received with applause. He expressed himself as hoping the example of the present would be much more contagious than the recent fever. Rev. Dr. Norsworthy also made some appreciated remarks. Dr. Murrah then continued his remarks, assuring the boys that there was no need for further alarm from fever, and that there was no reason for any further delay in the regular work. There is every reason to believe that Millsaps will enjoy an unusually prosperous session this year. To-day its attendance is above 100, which will be increased to 175 by Monday morning. The boys are seemingly enthusiastic and earnestly desirous of getting to work. Everyone in the State will rejoice in the prosperity of Millsaps as one more indication that epidemics and the fears thereof are over, and that confidence is entirely restored. Regular work was resumed in all departments this morning, and all are very much elated over the successful beginning.—Clarion-Ledger.

A SUGGESTION TO WRITERS.

It is stated that Virgil was eleven years writing the Æneid, and was so far from being satisfied that at his death he ordered it to be burned. There is a suggestion in this to correspondents who hurriedly dash off a communication for a paper, with a request to the editor to "correct all mistakes." The Æneid is immortal because there was put into it nearly half the working life of the author.

Grey's Elegy represents years of patient work. There may be now and then a genius whose work can not be improved by careful writing, but he is very rare. There are few productions worth reading that are not the product of painstaking work.

Sometimes a correspondent is offended because his careless scrawl is not published. Sometimes, when it does appear, he is amazed that no one seems to appreciate its excellence. How do they expect an article to interest others that did not interest them enough to secure from them a careful reading after it was written? If it is worth while to give a thought to the public at all, it is worth while to present it in the most forceful manner possible. It is a mistake to suppose that men do not want ideas. They do. The world is always in search of ideas, and if any idea is strongly and lucidly stated, there are always readers ready to grasp it. But when it takes more time for the reader to discover the idea than the writer spent in selecting its expression, they very naturally do not care to spend their time in the search.—Alabama Advocate.

THAT'S THE WAY.

Just a little every day,
That's the way!
Seeds in darkness swell and grow
Tiny blades push through the snow,
Never any flowers of May
Leap to blossom in a burst
Slowly, slowly, at the first—
That's the way
Just a little every day.

Just a little every day,
That's the way!
Children learn to read and write
Bit by bit, and mite by mite.
Never anyone I say,
Leaps to knowledge and its power.
Slowly, slowly, hour by hour—
That's the way
Just a little every day.

RECOLLECTIONS OF BISHOP LINUS PARKER, D. D.

The Methodist Review, for September-October, 1898, contains a brief sketch of the life and character of this man of God by the Rev. Fitzgerald Sale Parker. Its perusal brought up a rush of old memories associated with him.

In 1850 I was stationed on the Mississippi side of the "Father of Waters," opposite Lake Providence. I met a physician of Lake Providence, a true Methodist, who spoke in glowing terms of his young preacher, and he gave me a cordial invitation to visit him, as the preacher made his home in his (Dr. Larch's) family.

On my first visit I was impressed with his pleasant manner and entertaining conversation. In conversation, in preaching, and in writing, he was never at a loss for a word. His variety was truly great.

Bro. Parker was chary in his criticisms, but did sometimes offer suggestions. After hearing me preach several times, when together in his room, he wrote down two or more of these words and phrases, and underscoring them with three or four marks, handed the paper to me. I caught on at once, and was not slow to begin an improvement.

On one occasion he invited me to go with him back some miles into the country, where he was expected to preach on a week day. He had never visited the place. In those times the well-to-do denizens of this interior could not procure material for neat and comfortable homes except at great expense. He said I should preach for him. Then he had never heard me preach. We were early at the place. It was a rude log-house, with seats irregularly arranged. The congregation kept coming in until all available space was occupied. This was what neither of us expected. The people were not finely dressed, but certainly dressed respectably, with intelligent looks. I recognized that Bro. Parker had grown restless, and asked him if I should begin the service. He took hold of the book rather hurriedly, and said, "No, I will preach myself." At his request I led the singing for him, and closed the services with prayer. He recognized that I did not feel altogether pleasant under the sudden change of preachers. After dinner he said to me: "This is Wednesday, and to-night is the time for my regular service in town. We will go in, and you shall preach for me in town." I held the service, doing the best preaching I could. He spoke in some commendation of my discourse. I asked him for no explanation. He was afraid to risk me before that country congregation as it showed up to him at the last; but, as he knew everybody in town, it would be easy for him to explain and apologize for any pulpit rudeness.

At the Mississippi Conference, in the Fall of 1850, I was returned to Issaquena circuit, my former charge. Two weeks later I saw that Bro. Parker had been assigned to Shreveport. This was a disappointment to me. It detracted from my interest in my old charge. We did not regularly correspond, and met but seldom afterwards.

During his two years at Shreveport he frequently contributed to the columns of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. In those days he wrote over the nom de plume of "Woodsman." This he adopted from the name of the little steamboat which conveyed him up the crooked river on his first trip to his home for 1851-52. Beyond the growing city the little steamer pushed its way up the sinuous stream into mysterious regions covered by the virgin forest of ages; hence the boat's name, "Woodsman." The young preacher seemed to have enjoyed the coming and going of the little boat, looking on as she came moving up "like a thing of life," making the landing, discharging freight for the little city of his charge, then hacking out and starting for the great woodland regions beyond. Once, noticing her departure, some days after he was pensively walking beside the river wondering to himself why the little steamer was delayed so long on her woodland trip, when he observed a plank floating in the edge of the stream, and so near the shore as sometimes to touch it. He caught the plank, and, turning it over, he read "Woodsman" in the plain letters he had seen so many times on the steamer's wheel-house. This board brought him the news of a fearful wreck somewhere. He wrote of it with the sadness and sympathy he would write a story of death.

As editor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, Dr. Parker visited our North Mississippi Conference. It was announced that he would preach at night before I knew he was present. I broke away from all committee claims and pressed well forward in the church, in order to give him the best hearing and attention I could, but the man handling the books was not the Linus Parker of more than twenty years ago. Then he was rather slender. This man was stout and decidedly full habited. The voice of that Parker was rather effeminate; the voice of this Parker was masculine and rather on the bass order. He had grown away (if that word can be used) from the earnest, pathetic manner and delivery of his young days. He was deeper and stronger in his arguments, but he was lacking in the freshness and sympathy of touch which took hold of me and carried me along in the olden time. But perhaps he had grown, and I had not. I had but a few moments with him that night, meaning to call upon him next morning, but he had left on an early train to meet business engagements.

One impression left on me by the short interview I had with him was, that he had grown far away from the laughter-loving and frolicsome tendencies of the long ago. With all who loved him I can heartily say: Peace to his ashes. Amen!

"LAW AND ORDER SOCIETY."

Dear Bro. Robt. L. Phillips, Waynesboro, Miss.:

I have just read your letter in the New Orleans Christian Advocate, and I certainly sympathize with your community. You described what ours was until about fourteen months ago, when forbearance ceased to be a virtue, and we organized a "Law and Order Society," with a membership of about forty members (fifteen is enough), and elected a president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer. We do not charge an initiation fee, but for every still we capture we get $19 out of the government through our worthy internal revenue collector; therefore, you see we need a treasurer, and now we are all (or several of us) arrested by a wildcatter who claims that we left one of his gates open; but, of course, we did not, and we are prosecuting him for making and selling whisky. Our trial comes off on the twenty-fourth instant. We have money in our treasury to pay our lawyer to help us defend ourselves and prosecute him. Right here I wish to inform you that this wildcatter does not live in our county, but away down in Clay county, about ten or twelve miles away. We have made raids in every direction for fifteen miles for two Summers, and this was our last raid, and by hard work and God's will we expect to convict him; then we will have our county in pretty fair condition.

We do not have any secrets in our society, but we appoint about five or seven very true men as an Executive Committee, who keep the secrets and order the raids, etc. We always get an officer, either a sheriff, deputy, or bailiff, or internal revenue collector, or marshal, to go with us, having been deputized by said officer to go with us. Below I send you a copy of resolutions:

Whereas, The laws of our country have been violated at sundry times and in divers places by disturbing religious worship, hindering schools in their work, families have been insulted and the public highways rendered unsafe for travel; And, whereas, The officers of the law have been powerless to suppress crime for want of the aid and support that should be given them; And, whereas, We believe that whisky is the prime cause of all these evils; And, whereas, We believe that whisky is made and sold in our community in violation of law; And, whereas, This long train of evils have been endured till forbearance has ceased to be a virtue; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we demand of all persons who are violating the laws of the country by the illegal manufacture and sale of whisky, to quit and stay quit, and we will let the past go as far as we can without violating our oaths.

Resolved, If said violations of law are continued in the future as in the past, we pledge ourselves to turn out en masse and hunt up these dens of crime. We will hunt the woods, fields and pastures till said places of crime are found, and we will prosecute the violators to the extent of the law.

Resolved, We will ask the officers of the law to put the maximum punishment on such violators till order is restored in this country.

Resolved, Should any person suffer violence in person or property for the faithful discharge of the aforesaid duties, we pledge ourselves to make good his losses as far as we can, and will sacrifice all our time and money, if necessary, to hunt up the guilty parties, and have them punished by the law.

Resolved, We ask all good citizens to join in with us to execute the law, and to protect the country against such lawlessness and crime. For the faithful discharge of the aforesaid duties we pledge our lives, our time, our money, and our sacred honor.

Adopted at Pleasant Ridge, Miss., August, 1897.

Now, my brother, take these resolutions, and organize, if you can't get but six good men. You know the Bible says, "One can chase a thousand, and two can put ten thousand to flight." Appoint one or two of your number to sit with the district attorney, and help him reject the whisky soaks from the juries, and in a few years we will make our beloved State what God intended that it should be, to-wit: the "Egypt of America," the "Eden of the world."

Very respectfully your brother (I am not a preacher),

J. A. McArthur.

BROOKHAVEN—WHITWORTH COLLEGE.

Beautiful for situation, and, better still, healthful for location, is Brookhaven, than which there is no brighter jewel in Mississippi's coronet of pleasant and progressive little cities. On a high sandy site, the water flowing away from it, with no swamps or marshes near to invite malaria, its atmosphere is pure and invigorating as the mountain breeze. During the quarantine a house-to-house investigation disclosed but three cases of illness, and none of a serious nature. This report including Whitworth College, with the school in progress. We are told that in former years an infected person has come to this town, had the yellow fever, and no one else became infected. Brookhaven is on the highest ground between New Orleans and Canton, and the theory is held by some that its altitude prevents the spread of the fever germ. However this may be, the friends of old Whitworth may continue to rejoice in its remarkable immunity from disease. Although much of its patronage is from malarial districts, there has not been a death in the college during the past ten years. Of what other school can this be truthfully said?

Intellectually healthful, too, is the environment of the college. The leading spirits of Brookhaven are educated and progressive, and this town has one especially attractive feature seldom found outside the vicinity of a large city—that is, a circle of young men and women of established character and cultured literary taste, some of these being contributors to high-class periodicals. By contact with them the college workers are cheered and stimulated. This mental stimulus is mutual, for the energy and life of the college are contagious. Visitors to Brookhaven should visit Whitworth. They will enjoy the library and the large, well-furnished reading-room, with its fine variety of the best current literature, and the various recitation-rooms, with their courteous, capable teachers and wide-awake pupils. It is worth one's while to attend a meeting of the literary societies, organized and conducted by the pupils. While listening to music, essays, and recitations, one is especially impressed by the dignity of bearing and ease of expression acquired by these young girls.

The facilities for a musical education at Whitworth deserve particular notice. Only those teachers are employed who have spent years at the best-known conservatories. The same care is exercised in the departments of elocution and art, and the names of the literary teachers where best known are synonyms for ability and faithfulness.

While intellectual training is given, equal care is had to develop the spiritual energies. The president and teachers are practical, earnest Christians, who realize that religion is the key-note of character. Every morning and night, as in a Christian home, the assembled students are placed in the care of Him who, "watching over Israel, slumbers not nor sleeps." The weekly Epworth League services are interesting, and a daily prayer meeting in the dormitory is voluntarily attended by the students. As we listen to the brief, direct petitions of that reverent service, we think of the wondrous possibilities for good of the cultured Christian womanhood into which very many of these characters are developing, and we are convinced that Whitworth College, so favorably located, so wisely and generously planned, and so nobly conducted, must be counted as one of those mighty moral forces which Providence has placed in this world for its uplifting. AN APPEAL.

The island of Key West, a tropical gem, seven miles long by one-half wide, is diminutive in comparison with the important commercial and national interests centered there.

The public schools do not meet the demands; the Romanists are educating the better class of the Cubans, and also the children of the 1,000 Southern Methodist members. One who has been ten years a foreign missionary says: "This school will be a real foreign mission, as much so as going to Mexico or Brazil, only the distance will not be so great." A day-school with two missionaries has been begun, and $5,000 is needed to open up a boarding-school, the most acceptable method of education for girls in countries peopled by Latin races, because of the convent system and the custom of not allowing women alone on the streets. From a Christian boarding-school would emanate influences that for years to come would affect individual, family, and national destiny. The need for a Christian education for the 30,000 Cubans on our own shores is not based upon the political interests or on racial inferiority, but because of the divine command in regard to the stranger within our gates.

Will not some League help with this enterprise? The Cuban number of the Era, of the Review of Missions, and of Our Homes will portray in detail the needs of the Cubans. Perhaps some League would like to furnish a room, to bear the League name, by contributing $50, or would wish to educate a Cuban girl at $100 per annum. Perhaps some bereaved parent or friend would desire to build a memorial to a loved one, thus immortalizing a precious name. The Taj Mahal, that exquisite expression in marble and jewels of the love a Hindoo prince bore his wife, has stood for centuries a monument of undying affection. A boarding school at Key West, though built of plain material, may immortalize in a more valuable manner a heart's devotion; an antitype of a spiritual structure that under eternal skies and on heavenly shores will surpass in exquisite beauty and endurance the far-famed Taj Mahal.

A contribution, however small, stating definitely that it is for the Key West Boarding-school, will be received by Mrs. W. D. Kirkland, General Treasurer, 2301 West End Avenue, Nashville, Tenn. If further correspondence is desired, address Mrs. R. K. Hargrove, West Nashville, Tenn.

LETTER FROM MISS BRUCE.

My Dear Miss Allen: I wish to write of our new school-building in West Tampa, of which we are justly very proud. There are two commodious, well-ventilated rooms. It stands first of all as a monument to Mrs. Rosa Valdes' love and care for her people, for she gave the ground upon which it is built; then nearly all of the money in it is from the generous Floridians. The ladies of the Tampa Church contributed $251.25 of the amount; and the "patron saint" of the Cuban work, Mrs. M. A. Woiff, sent $110. We thank God, and take courage. The opening service was well attended. The school children had hymns and Scripture texts. Dr. Fulwood and Bro. Someillan made felicitous remarks, and a baby was baptized at the close. We now have this good building with two most faithful teachers to stand as a light in West Tampa among several thousand Cubans. The Wolff Mission School in Ybor City is doing a like work. We need here an addition in order that our boys' department may be on the same ground, thus giving better service in teaching. Then we want to reach out to Key West, where there are the largest possibilities, then on to Cuba. "Cuba for Christ!" is our watchword, and the schools are the sure right arm of the preached Word.

We have a number of candidates for church membership from the schools. On Sunday last there were twenty-five boys in my class, an opportunity that anyone might envy. Recently one among those who came forward was a Spaniard, and he was happily converted. There was quite a stir among outsiders, much speculation as to whether he would be welcome or not; but among the members themselves it was all right. Unless you lived among the Cubans you can not fully realize the strong antipathy, and how much grace does for them.

In planning for the year to come, we expect to see fruit of this year's faithful work. The children in the schools have a better idea of discipline and study. The parents are drawn closer to the Christians as those who sympathize with them and help them. We beg the society to do an aggressive work this year among the Cubans, strengthening the cords of stakes already driven, and enlarging the place of our tent. The thirty-five thousand Cubans on Florida shores to-day are here by divine wisdom, and we must give them the gospel, not forgetting what "strangers" we should be but for that Light that has shined in upon us. Truly yours,

Mary W. Bruce.

SCARRITT BIBLE AND TRAINING-SCHOOL.

Mrs. W. H. LaPrade, Shreveport, La.—

My Dear Friend: Your letter brought by Miss Peabody would have been answered immediately had not the duties incident to the opening of school and the editing of the October Evangel occupied my attention to the exclusion of correspondence. Miss Billingsley has, doubtless, sent you a receipt for the check which came a few days later.

I am glad that you have decided to let Miss Peabody take the regular course, as I think it much more satisfactory, and from what I have already seen of her, I am quite sure she will make a good, helpful, earnest worker after the two years' training. I am glad you have had such success in securing the funds wherewith to send her. Our heavenly Father is very kind to us sometimes in so often showing us how abundantly he can bless, even when our faith is small. Would we but trust him more, I am sure we would have no lack under any circumstances. I feel sure, too, that the attempt to help Miss Peabody will stimulate your missionary societies, so that they will take new interest in the great cause of missions. There is nothing that so quickens our interest in the heathen as to have a missionary in preparation or in the field. May God bless your noble women! I feel sure that Miss Peabody will be a credit to your Conference.

Praying a blessing on you all, I remain, Yours most cordially,

Maria Layng Gibson.

THE SECRET OF MOODY'S POWER.

The great evangelist depends for his success upon the power of the gospel properly presented to reach the human heart, and ultimately to exercise a controlling influence over human conduct. He proceeds upon the theory that a code of ethics upon which a safe society and a wise government can be built can be established only by reaching the human heart through the gracious admonitions and precepts of the Great Teacher. That the theory is a sound one is demonstrated by eighteen hundred years of human history and experience. If human conduct can be controlled, and a high standard of civilization maintained through any other instrumentality than the gospel, human philosophy and science have not yet furnished the scheme.—Chicago Times-Herald.

In a conversation with General Miles, Osman Pasha, the "hero of Plevna," remarked to the Sultan's American visitor: "The secret of success in war is persistence. If you lose one fight, you may win the next. Never stop. Wear out the enemy. Only persist!" This would be capital advice to offer the Christian believer in respect to his spiritual warfare. He may not, indeed, be able to "wear out" his tireless enemy, the devil, but he can, with divine help, "persist" until he has conquered. A good saint was once asked whether he believed in perseverance. "Certainly I do," was his reply, "for what's the use of giving up?" There is no use in giving up, and there is every advantage promised to the Christian foeman who shall endure unto the end that he may be saved.—New York Observer.

There are few temptations more common to ardent spirits than that which leads them to repine at the lot in which they are cast, believing that in some other situation they could serve God better. If each such man had the spirit of self-surrender, the Spirit of the Cross, it would not matter to him whether he were doing the work of the mainspring or one of the inferior parts. It is his duty to try and be himself, simply to try to do his own duty.—F. W. Robertson.

I have got clear worn-out with skyflights of oratory, glittering generalities, profuse quotations from poets whose lives were badly tainted, sociology and mirth-provoking stories in the pulpit. This kind of preaching never leads a man to cry out from the depths of his soul, "God be merciful to me a sinner!"—Rev. D. C. Garrison.

The leopard every day, before going in search of its prey, sharpens its claws on a tree, against which it stretches all its length. Learn from him to prepare yourself for the work you mean to do. Good work needs forethought and preparation quite as much as had.—National Methodist.

If God be not thrust away by us to the other end of nature and of time, then must we feel him among us as our contemporary, must walk with him in the home, and speak with him as the soul of our soul.—Martineau.

To long to be better to-day than we were yesterday is to "hunger and thirst after righteousness;" to follow up the longing with earnest wrestling and striving is to "be filled."—Exchange.

They serve God best who do well their simple duties—not some fanciful sacrifice at a distance, but the plain, homely, every-day task that lies before them.—Christian Life.

Our spirit nature, like the vine, needs something on which to cling and by which to climb. God's Word is the trellis by which our spirits climb up toward God.—Selected.

A MAGNIFICENT PUBLICATION UPON THE SOUTH.

The wonderful progress which the South has been making in all lines of industrial, commercial and intellectual development has been most fittingly set forth in a magnificent volume, which, after months of careful preparation, has just been issued by the Southern Railway.

This book, the title of which, "The Empire of the South," conveys an idea of its character, is beyond question one of the most comprehensive and at the same time artistic publications ever issued from the press. It contains nearly two hundred octavo pages, over four hundred exquisitely printed illustrations, and makes a presentation of Southern interests in all lines of human activity, which for thoroughness of treatment has never been approached.

The opening chapter of the book under the caption of "The South, Yesterday, To-day and To-morrow," discusses in a broad and forcible manner the present and future of the Southern States, treating at considerable length the various interests, such as agriculture, cotton, tobacco, iron, coal, resorts, climate, etc. Following this are chapters devoted to each of the States south of the Ohio and Potomac, and east of the Mississippi rivers.

These give a brief, interesting sketch of the early history of each State, and then touch upon all its important activities, showing the progress being made not only by the State itself, but by the leading cities.

The author of the work, Mr. Frank Presbrey, is a close student of Southern progress, and in the collection and preparation of the immense amount of important information given in the book, has had the co-operation of the officials of the Southern Railway. The distribution of this magnificent volume will do an incalculable amount of practical good in calling the attention of the world to the South, and the Southern Railway has demonstrated its faith in the future of that section by the expenditure of the many thousands of dollars which this great work must have cost. Those who are fortunate enough to receive a copy of this edition de luxe, which is sent with the compliments of the company, will prize it as a most valuable addition to their library.

YELLOW FEVER AND OTHER THINGS.

We live in a great age. Compare our condition to-day with the times of 1850, or even 1870! Is not the change for the better? Yet who can tell what mighty achievements and what wonderful discoveries the twentieth century will make?

Since the yellow fever was reported at Crystal Springs we have been made to feel a few of the inconveniencies of a rigid quarantine. But Jack Frost, seeing we were "shut in," hastened to our rescue. We are not opposed to quarantines of the right kind, and in the right way. It is just and right that men should protect their homes from contagious diseases. Is it not also right that we should give greater diligence in defense of our spiritual life? If one is important, the other is more important. Yet some men would put out guards around their homes or their counties to keep out the yellow fever, or cholera, or small-pox, but they will allow sin, in many or all of its forms, to come in, corrupt, demoralize, and possibly damn the immortal souls of their loved ones.

If we would only sit down and count the cost, we would soon know that intemperance has done our country more harm than yellow fever has or ever will do.

Our parents are careless sometimes, and allow sinful literature to come into their homes. It is read by their children, whose minds are thereby corrupted. The influence is awful to think of.

The yellow fever is a dreadful thing; cholera will leave death and desolation in its track, but there are some things that are worse, namely: sin, and neglect of Christian duty. Some people get terribly upset, and leave their homes at the bare mention of yellow fever. If our people would keep as rigid quarantine against whisky as we do against yellow fever, how many homes to-day would be free from misery, sorrow, and sadness! How many mothers weep to-day over sons who were murdered in a drunken fracas, and daughters whose lives have been blighted by the drink evil! The records will show which is our worst enemy.

Oh, that our people would come up to "the help of the Lord against the mighty!" G. W. RIVELEY.

HOW CAN INTEREST IN OUR SUNDAY-SCHOOL BE INCREASED?

This paper was read before a Sunday-school Conference of our Sunday-school at Patterson, La., by Mrs. J. S. Perkins.—W. G. Evans, P. C.

"Nothing is good enough that can be made better," is a saying of wide application. In every department of life we see efforts at improvement; so should it be in our Sunday-school. In order to obtain the best results, there should be perfect co-operation between officers, teachers, parents, and scholars. All should assist. This perfect co-operation is a hard thing to arrive at, but it should be the aim of all. A religious organization, to be prosperous, must be conducted with the same system and attention to detail that is so manifest in all successful business organizations. No one's interest should be allowed to flag; all must be kept at the working pitch. The officers and teachers should be selected with care. They should be men and women whose daily lives are in accord with their religious professions. The man or woman who is sincerely trying to be a good Christian can not fail to exercise a good influence over all with whom they come in contact. The officers should see that the business of the school is properly looked after. There should be no disappointments as to having all the literature on hand promptly. They should see that the library is kept in good order, and should try to get the scholars interested in it as much as possible. The teachers must take an interest in each scholar, more particularly in those of his or her class, and must see that they attend regularly, and get there on time. She should set the example. They should study each scholar's character individually, so as to know better how to teach them. They should become acquainted with the parents of their scholars, and visit them and show them that they are really interested in the welfare of their children's souls, and in this and other ways strive to obtain that very essential feature—the interest of the parents. The teacher should devote as much time as possible to the preparation of the lesson, and should attend the teachers' meeting regularly.

The interest of the scholars might be further increased by rewards. They appeal to proper pride of the scholar in good work and record, but they must be in the reach of all. A proper record of each scholar's standing and attendance should be kept, and public recognition of good work made, say once a month, when the scholar's name thus recognized might be put on a Roll of Honor, and let that be the highest reward.

Some time should be devoted to teaching the children to sing, as singing and music is the life of a Sunday-school. After all has been said, the elements most productive of good are the interest of the teachers and parents, and these should be watched most closely.

There is yet the higher and weightier consideration of the influence of the Holy Spirit as a divine instructor in our school. We must never lose sight of the fact that the chief object of the school is to bring souls to Christ; therefore, let us constantly seek God's aid and power in our school.

FROM THE WORK.

PATTERSON, LA.

The year of 1898 has been a year of great effort and seemingly small return in this charge. The Epworth League, which has been a factor of great good among us, has held but few meetings this year, due to the loss of its president.

One of their last and most successful literary meetings was a lecture by Mr. G. H. Stein, of New Orleans, on "Who Killed Cock Robin?" The lecturer took this simple nursery rhyme and, in a beautiful way, drew from it great moral truths, much to the delight of the large audience. The brethren who are looking for a speaker for a League entertainment could not do better than to write to Bro. Stein.

The Woman's Home Mission Society has done good work in reducing our parsonage debt to $135, and sending a box of clothing and some money to the needy Cubans.

The Sunday-school has had a "mountain and valley" experience. It was in the valley for about four months of the hot season, but with the first breath of cool weather the teachers and scholars began to claim their former places, and we are again "full" and at work with that interest that comes with the crowd. One of the factors in awakening a new interest in our Sunday-school has been frequent conferences of the officers, teachers and parents on subjects of vital interest to the school. These have been held at the regular prayer-meeting time, various phases of a subject being discussed in short essays or oral remarks by some one who had been appointed in advance.

In June we had Rev. J. J. Smylie with us, and he did good work, although we did not take in many members. I can see the fruits of his work to this day.

Our finances are in good shape, and, although we have been in quarantine for about two and a half months, and some of our members away from home, we fully expect to meet our assessments in the next few weeks.

We have had excellent health all the year, and, although we are not able to count large results, we feel sure that the year has been profitably spent.

WM. G. EVANS.

REVIVAL AT RUSTON.

Our protracted meeting, conducted by Rev. A. J. Notestine, which lasted the greater part of four weeks, closed two weeks ago. Some sinners are believed to have been truly converted; but the most, and best good, like "charity," began at home among the members. Many who have been idlers in his vineyard became active workers. Young and old alike gave testimony whenever called upon to do so, and whenever voluntary prayers were asked for, many voices would respond without hesitancy. While we all felt that we had gone about as long as circumstances would allow, we were loth to have the meeting close, and Bro. Notestine declared that he was just getting in a "good way," notwithstanding he had done all the preaching from the beginning. Considering the fact that his health has not been good for quite a while, it was rather remarkable that he should have been able to "hold out" so long. Like Moses, he had faithful prophets to hold up his hands.

Bro. T. B. White, than whom there is none more gifted in prayer, or more thoroughly consecrated, proved a benediction, as well as Bros. Carson and Cassity, Methodists; Edwards and McLees, Baptist and Presbyterian. Bro. Edwards dismissed his congregation after Sunday-school every Sunday that they might attend our church, which is the usual custom when there are protracted services at either church. Peace and good-will prevail among the different denominations. We believe that the seed sown will continue to bear fruit throughout the ceaseless ages of eternity. MRS. ALICE CARY MCKINNEY.

Ruston, La., Oct. 28, 1898.

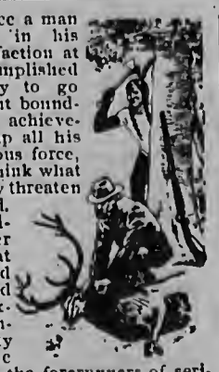
NEWTON AND HICKORY.

Thus far I have made no report of my work through the ADVOCATE. Bro. W. J. Ferguson did some splendid work with us at Hickory. As the immediate result, we had eight accessions. At the Hickory Church we have an Epworth League that meets every Sunday afternoon. The attendance is good; meetings always interesting. Bro. W. M. Sullivan was with us, and did some splendid preaching at Newton in August. Although we had no accessions to the church, we were made stronger, and more activity has been the result.

Our attachment to this people grows stronger as the weeks go by. There is but one objection that can be offered to this work, namely: want of financial system. Two of the livest towns on this road from a business standpoint, but want no new plans introduced by which the financial obligations of the church can be met. I may some day be able to understand why it is some people will pay their school bills, wash bills, servants' hire, etc., by the month, and yet they are opposed to paying a preacher so as to save him from embarrassment. Our Conference collections will be paid in full.

About two and one half weeks ago we announced by cards the marriage of our daughter, Katie, to Mr. J. W. Darris, of Morton, Miss. At once three good ladies of the Newton Church came forward and asked the privilege of furnishing all refreshments. The result was a splendid supper for fifty guests, without any cost to us. Many other kindnesses they have shown us. We are among a warm-hearted people, and we are not wanting, I trust, in appreciation.

D. P. BRADFORD.



How often you see a man deeply engrossed in his work, full of satisfaction at what he has accomplished in business, ready to go ahead and carry out boundless schemes of achievement, and using up all his strength and nervous force, never pausing to think what unseen danger may threaten him from behind. Mighty few hard-working men ever stop to realize that the headaches and dizzy sensations and feelings of weakness and sluggishness and incapacity that overcome them at times are the forerunners of serious disease.

More men would succeed in carrying out their life purposes if they would put their constitutions in strong, forceful, high condition, without waiting until disease has plunged its axe into their vital organs. If a man who is using up his working vitality faster than his nutritive powers supply it, will use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as an adjunct to his daily meals, it will give the digestive organs power to take hold of the food and extract from it the elements which strengthen the vital organism and build up healthy blood.

It revitalizes every organ and tissue of the body; purges bilious poisons out of the circulation; invigorates the nerve centers and the muscular system and makes a man altogether a man—full of ambition, energy and pluck.

Mr. Jos. Henderson Dirbinn, of 544 Josephine Street, New Orleans, La., writes to Dr. Pierce: "I was ailing for some years, suffering from dyspepsia, a tired feeling and loss of energy and appetite. I tried one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and found great relief. I took two more bottles, three in all, and one or two bottles of the 'Pellets,' when I found myself in good health again. I recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to do all that it is claimed to do."

In many cases where constipation is one of the aggravating causes of disease, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used in conjunction with the "Discovery." They are the simplest and most perfectly natural laxative ever invented.

It is a dealer's business to sell you what you ask for—not what he prefers for selfish profit's sake to sell.

Best Edition of the World's Best Book,

—THE—

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers. New Type. All Proper Names. Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first class Bibles. Every body is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangment for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to November, '99. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

SELF-PRONOUNCING

S. S. Teachers' Reference Bible.

Text Conforms Exactly to the Oxford Teachers' Edition.

The self-pronouncing text enables the reader to pronounce all proper names at a glance.

This Bible is printed from Large, Beautiful and Clear New Type. All Proper Names are Divided into Syllables and Every Vowel is Marked and the Syllables Inflected, showing the Sounds and Accents as they are given in a Dictionary, thus enabling the reader to properly pronounce every word. This feature is a great improvement and a strong recommendation for this Bible over others.

This Bible contains the celebrated Oxford Teachers' Helps together with a complete series of New Maps illustrating the geography of Palestine and the surrounding countries from the earliest times, and embodying the most recent discoveries renders this Bible especially desirable to teachers and students of the Holy Scriptures.

Imperial Seal Binding, Tuck Edges, known as "Divinity Circuit," Linen Lined, Round Corners, Red under Gold Edges, Price, $4.00.

This book in Bourgeois type will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price ($4) to any address; but to that select class who read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, we furnish it on the following terms: Pay your subscription one full year in advance, viz., to November, '99, and we will send it to you, postpaid, for $1.75. (A little later you will have to pay to December, '99.)

The same Bible in Minion type will be sent for $1.55; in Emerald type, for $1.15, to those who pay a full year in advance.

For fifty cents additional we will send Bible with index. For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved on the outside in gilt letters.

The feet that go up to God into the mountain, at the end are the same that first put off their shoes beside the burning bush. This is why the Christian, more than other men, not merely dares, but loves to look back and remember.—Phillips Brooks.

We do not need to be preaching in public in order to carry Christ to others. We can always find a congregation if we wish. The workshop, the warehouse, the college, the home, will yield us hearers, if our hearts are set on winning men to Christ.—Alex. McLaren, D. D.

The greatest battles of life are fought in the arena of man's own heart. His most powerful and his most insidious foes are within himself. The household of his daily thought and desires and purposes and imaginings contains enemies subtle and strong. In his own bosom the battle must be joined.—Philip Moxom.

When God's children pass under the shadow of the Cross of Calvary, they know that through that shadow lies their passage to the great white throne. For them Gethsemane is as paradise. God fills it with sacred presences; its solemn silence is broken by the music of tender promises; its awful darkness softened and brightened by the sunlight of heavenly faces and the music of angel wings.—F. W. Farrar.

FRIENDSHIP.

The yearning for fellowship is one of the strongest impulses of the human heart. While there are a few who, like Daniel Boone, the famous Kentucky pioneer, delight to live on the frontiers of civilization, remote from the habitations of others, the majority of mankind esteem companionship and social intercourse as one of the greatest blessings. Indeed, to be without friends is one of the greatest misfortunes. Were it not for the sweetness and helpful stimulus of friendship life would be divested of half its charm. Fortunate is the man who, whether rich or poor, has the power to make numerous friends, whom he binds to his soul with enduring chains of affection. While our happiness is not entirely dependent upon the number or the greatness of our friends, yet the larger the place friendship has in our lives the more joyous and symmetrical they will be.

While Jesus of Nazareth had many followers, twelve of these having been chosen to be constantly with him, three of them enjoyed a closer companionship with him than did the others, being permitted to witness scenes of glory that were denied to the others. There was one home also where Jesus felt particularly welcome, and to which he loved to go, viz: the home of Mary and Martha and Lazarus.

Most appropriately has friendship been called "the golden thread that binds the hearts of the world together." The man who has but a feeble capacity for friendship is indeed to be pitied, for he is thus cut off from one of the purest sources of pleasure, as well as one of the grandest educative influences. The interchange of thought and sentiment, the exchange of help and sympathy, which characterize true friendship, invest life with a beauty and significance that is akin to the blessedness of Heaven. Says Dr. N. D. Hillis: "Friendship glorifies everything it touches. When on a stormy night our friend comes in, he seems to warm the very fire upon the hearth, he sweetens the sweet singer's voice; lends new meaning to the wise man's words; makes the laughter and smile come twice as often and stay twice as long. Longfellow, after a day and night with Emerson, literally emitted poems and plays. He was stimulated by friendship as bees by rose liquor and sweet pea-vine."

Friendship does not imply intimacy with any and all we meet, but it has limits and pass-words which exclude the world at large. The tender feeling that binds friends together can never exist where there is not mutual respect and confidence. It is useless for persons who are suspicious of each other to try to be friends. If on one side or the other there is deceit or reserve, little will come of attempts to renew or establish intimacy. Our real friends are those whom we confide in fully, who share our inmost thoughts and feelings, our joys and sorrows, our hopes and aspirations, and who make known to us all that is in their hearts. Before two persons can enter into this sacred relationship each must perceive in the other some worthiness of mind and heart, some kinship of sentiment and aspiration. Friendship that is not founded on mutual confidence and sympathy is but an empty name.

Many things that pass between friends are too sacred for the cold, unsympathetic ear of the public. Because Abraham was "the friend of God," walking before him with a perfect heart, the Lord revealed to him his purpose to destroy Sodom and Gomorrah for their wickedness. Christ says to his followers: "Henceforth, I call you not servants, for the servant knoweth not what his Lord doeth; but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you."

Genuine friendship is also characterized by a deep concern for the welfare of those who are united to us by its tender ties—which concern manifests itself in a readiness to make sacrifices and a willingness to serve. As the great English writer, Addison, has beautifully said, "Friendship is a strong and habitual inclination of two persons to promote the good and the happiness of each other." It is not all a matter of receiving love and favors, but implies and involves ministration in return. A true friend is ever unselfish, magnanimous, unsparing of himself, and upon whom no benevolent work has so sacred a claim, as the Mississippi Orphans' Home in Water Valley. Opened less than twelve months ago, its generous roof already shelters nearly thirty little children, whose welfare God has committed to us as a sacred duty.

While the Home itself has been free from the prevailing fever, the community in which it is located has suffered, and the friends of the institution here and in many other sections of the State have been unable to give its claims the consideration they have deserved. Let every Methodist congregation in the State hold a thanksgiving service and take up a collection for our Home, promptly forwarding the amount collected to the manager, Rev. M. L. Burton, Water Valley, Miss.

A. F. WATKINS.

Vicksburg, Miss., Nov. 3, 1898.

[A capital suggestion. We hope the brethren will act upon it.—EDITOR.]

The man who is always ready to obtain a favor, yet seldom does a favor in return, is unworthy the name of friend. During one of the pathetic meetings that took place between David and Jonathan, when Saul was doing his utmost to slay the young son of Jesse, Jonathan earnestly declared to his friend: "Whatever thy soul desireth, I will even do it for thee." Such is the lofty spirit that friendship fosters, and by which it is sustained. To be worthy and ennobling it must be in some measure of the Damon and Pythias type. We heartily agree with Emerson when he says: "I hate the prostitution of the name of friendship to signify modish and worldly alliances. I much prefer the company of plow-boys and tin peddlers to the silken and perfumed amity which only celebrates its days of encounter by a frivolous display, by rides in a carriole, and dinner at the best taverns. Friendship is for aid and comfort through all the relations and passages of life and death. It is for serene days and graceful gifts, and country rambles, but also for rough roads and bad fare, shipwreck, poverty and persecution."

There is far too little care exercised in the choice of friends. A mistake in this regard often leads to dire consequences. As surely as soot will blacken, so surely will evil companions contaminate character. Not only are we judged by the company we keep, but the kind of friends we choose largely determines whether we will be vicious and good-for-nothing, or aspiring and saintly.

Let it not be forgotten that true friends can not be bought. They are drawn to us not by what we possess, but by what we are. Likewise we should choose them "for what they are, not for what they have." It is oftimes difficult for those who are possessed of wealth or power to know who are their true friends, but adversity never fails to reveal them. When the storms of misfortune burst upon us, false friends are blown away like chaff, while the true cling to us with a firmer grasp. The humblest may be rich in friends, while the millionaire, though living in great splendor, may be poor in this respect.

Everyone likes to have friends, but all are not willing to pay what friendship costs, for it can never be a one-sided affair. He who would have friends must show himself friendly. It is folly to expect others to run after us and court our favor when we do little or nothing to draw them to us. An unselfish concern for the good of others seldom fails to beget a like interest in return. Kind and cordial treatment of those whom we esteem worthy of fellowship with us will nearly always suffice to open the door to their affections. The man who greets his companions and associates with a cold reserve and with airs of superiority can never hope to have warm friends.

Who is not proud when he can count among his friends some personage of high rank, or grand achievements? But how transcendently glorious, how exalted above measure, is the privilege of having Jesus as our friend! Who understands us so well as he? Who can sympathize with us so thoroughly as he? Who but he has suffered so much for us? Who but he is able to do such great things for us?

"One there is above all others,
Well deserves the name of friend;
His is love beyond a brother's,
Costly, free, and knows no end."

Ennobling as is friendship of the earthly type, companionship with Christ lifts us to still loftier altitudes, and enkindles within us sentiments and aspirations the highest and holiest of which our nature is capable.

THANKSGIVING DAY—A SUGGESTION.

The annual observance of Thanksgiving Day is one of the beautiful customs of our people. That the official suggestion of such a service should come from the Chief Magistrate of our nation is creditable to him and to the people whom he serves, and the appropriateness of the observance of the day commends itself to all who recognize the being and providence of Him whose open hand supplies the needs of all His creatures.

It is the habit upon such occasions to devote the special offering of the day to some benevolent institution, generally a hospital or orphanage. To the Methodists of Mississippi no institution can appeal so strongly,

REV. W. T. WOODWARD.

Rev. W. T. Woodward occupied the pulpit at the Methodist Church at this place on last Sunday. According to the laws of the Methodist Conference, he will, after the first of January, much to the regret of his little flock and many other Christian friends here, be consigned to another charge. Mr. Woodward has established a reputation among the good people of Marksville that will linger in their memories for years to come.

[The above is clipped from the Marksville (La.) New Enterprise, of recent date. The editor of the Enterprise is not a Methodist.]

GONE HOME.

My family and self have all been sick. For nine long weeks the death angel hovered about our home, until night before last he took our precious little babe. She was one year one month and one day old. We feel we need the prayers and long for the association of the brethren. Pray for us. C. F. STAPLES.

Lanesville, La., Nov. 1, 1898.

[The sympathies and prayers of the brethren will go out to Bro. and Sister Staples in their sore bereavement.]

PASTORAL VISITATION.

Pastoral visitation is not to be done up in a hurry or in a rush. The minister is no postman nor telegram deliverer. He is Christ's messenger, carrying cheer, love, kindness, sympathy and help to the home. As such it ill becomes him to pass from house to house with a hurried recognition, and then congratulate himself upon the numerous calls which he has made during the year. Nor, on the other hand, is there any necessity for his going to the other extreme. It is in bad taste to remain so long in the rounds of visitation as to be either tiresome or unwelcome. A golden mean is to be observed. Much depends upon the object to be secured. Time must be taken to attain it properly and satisfactorily. If it is admonition, it is to be administered seriously, Christianly and respectfully. If it is to convey comfort to the sick, it should be done with devoutness, kindness and appropriateness. If it is to give counsel, it should be free from all perfunctoriness, and characterized by friendliness and timeliness. If it is for special prayer or for family instruction, it must not be marked by railroad speed, but with due regard to need and circumstance. If it is merely for a social chat, while it is not to be so short as to fail of its purpose, neither is it to be so protracted as to cause one to be voted a bore. In brief, a pastor's calls should not be mechanical, but warm, hearty, responsive, stimulating, timely and helpful, regard being had to occasion, object and condition.—Presbyterian.

Certain grim figures in a recent report ought to make the glamor of stage-life less alluring. During the past year nearly one thousand actors and actresses applied for assistance from the Actors' Fund. Instead of fame and fortune, how many who go on the stage attain only to bitter disappointment and much that is worse.—Youth's Companion.

Any man can sing by day; but only he whose heart has been tuned by the gracious hand of Jehovah can sing in the darkness.—William M. Taylor.

THE MINISTRY OF THE RELIGIOUS PAPER.

A religious paper should be in every home, and by this we mean a denominational paper representing the church to which the family or members of the family may belong. It should be read by every member in the home who can read. Parents who fail to provide the home with such a paper are recreant to a sacred obligation, the fulfillment of which is essential to good influence in the home. It is better to be deprived of some things which may be considered "necessaries" than to be without good reading.

The church member who does not read his denominational paper will soon become shriveled, narrow, anti-missionary, and then go into "innocuous desuetude." On the other hand, a church member who reads, and becomes an agent in his church for a religious paper, is a benefactor. He is performing a service for Christ and the church which is second to none. A pastor who will from time to time call the attention of his people to important articles, special numbers, and will urge upon his congregation the value and need of taking a religious paper, and will then follow it up with a little earnest solicitation, will strengthen himself among them. They will become informed, appreciative and responsive to the denomination and to Christ.—Arthur T. Fowler, in the Standard.

BEST WAY TO DISPEL ERROR.

A great mistake is often made in attacking error with a bad spirit. If the devil can only get an advocate of truth to show a bad spirit, he can easily forgive the clearness of his argument. The mass of mankind are won more by the spirit of our lives than by the force of our arguments. They estimate our religion and its doctrines by their results upon us. In no way, then, can we better overcome evil than to "overcome evil with good." We must offer mankind something better than they already have, and do it in such a spirit as to convince them that it really is better, or all attacks upon their position will only make them more firm in their obstinacy against the truth.—Christian Witness.

Among those who were quarantined within the corporate limits of Jackson were Mormon Elders T. R. Condie and M. E. Kent. They had a room in the Wright House, when that family had one of the first cases, and were required to remain on the premises. When the Wright family left, one of the elders was found to be very sick, but not of the prevailing fever, and both were quite destitute. The discovery was made by Bishop Galloway, who at once hurried to the desk of the Howard secretary, and informed him of the situation. Within thirty minutes a physician was there; coal, blankets, medicines and a nurse was sent, and the latter-day saints were made to feel that, although their theories of social and religious life are abhorred by those who compose the Jackson-Howard Association, they are human beings and entitled to human aid and sympathy.—Col. J. L. Power, in Magnolia Gazette.

In a recent address before the railroad branch of the Y. M. C. A., of New York City, Chauncey M. Depew made a statement as to the decrease of drunkenness among railroad men which is worth repeating, coming from so high an authority. Twenty years ago, he said, when there were about 15,000 men in the New York Central service, the average proportion of men discharged for drunkenness within a certain period was at least twenty per cent. Now, with 30,000 men employed by the company, not one per cent. is dropped from the service for that cause. The reason for this great improvement Mr. Depew believes to be not merely the more stringent rules enforced by the railroads, but also, and in large measure, the direct and indirect influence of the railroad Y. M. C. A.—Baptist Standard.

A man who lives right, and is right, has more power in his silence than another man has in his words. Character is like bells which ring out sweet music, and which, when touched, constantly resound with beautiful harmonies.—Selected.

Vienna has a sharp lesson that the scientific man must be watched. A professor of bacteriology brought for study some germs of the bubonic plague from Bombay, and was so careless of the culture that his surgical assistant caught the plague and died, and now a nurse and a physician who attended him have also died. We have had, in this country, several very expensive and disastrous illustrations of agricultural pests introduced with similar criminal carelessness. One is the white cabbage butterfly, brought by a Canadian entomologist from Europe, and another is the gypsy moth, brought in the same way to Massachusetts, much to its cost and the disgust of its farmers and its Legislature.—Independent.

Occasionally a man who has occupied a position of some prominence in the church changes his mind in regard to essential truth, makes a little flutter, breaks away from his positions, and thinks that he is about to revolutionize the religious world. In only a little while he finds that this is a mistake. He is soon lost sight of and forgotten, while the church goes on with its great work of bringing souls to Christ. A dissatisfied fish leaped out of the river, and said that many other fish felt just as he did about it. The river flowed on, the great schools of fish went on their way, and the foolish experimenter soon gasped his last upon the sands.—Central Methodist.

For years before his death the late James B. Thomson, of Glasgow, was regarded as a miser and a misanthrope. He lived in the narrowest way and in squalid surroundings, cooking his own food and refusing to permit anyone to enter his little house. But in his will he left $500,000 to public charities, and it is now known that for a long time his agents had been paying out for him about $3,000 a year for the help of the poor and the suffering.—New York Independent.

One of the most alarming symptoms of the times is the growing insensibility to the sinfulness of sin. Only its grossest forms awaken abhorrence and detestation. Sin's demerit is little apprehended. Palliations of it are in order. Small offenses scarcely excite note or reprobation. But sin is sin in any and every form, and conscience ought to be alive to its least motion and condemn it.—The Presbyterian.

Dr. Smiles tells us that his well-known book, "Self-Help," was so contemptuously refused by the first publisher to whom he offered it that he put it away in his desk for years. He brought it out again after he had made a reputation by another book; and about 250,000 copies have been sold in Great Britain alone, while it has been translated into seventeen different languages.—Selected.

NOTES.

Dr. John Mathews has been transferred to the Tennessee Conference, and stationed at McKendree, Nashville.

Rev. E. B. Chappell has been transferred to the Tennessee Conference, and appointed to West End, Nashville.

***

The friends of Grenada Female College will be much gratified on reading the statement of Dr. Malone in this issue. Dr. Malone and his faculty are to be congratulated.

We congratulate Dr. Murrah upon his fine opening. Under the conditions the attendance is remarkable. We do not doubt that there will be a large increase in the near future.

***

The meeting at Carrollton Avenue is still in progress, and will continue during the week. Congregations are good, and much interest is manifested. Quite a number have professed conversion. Bro. Parker anticipates a number of accessions to his membership.

***

Dr. I. W. Cooper, of Centenary, is to be commended for his wise administration during the ordeal through which the college has recently passed. With the fever only a few hundred yards distant he prevented a panic, held his patronage, and kept the college machinery in motion. Such an achievement under such conditions is an exhibition of rare administrative ability.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. J. E. Denson (nee Rowena M. Younger) was born in Donaldsonville, Oct. 22, 1871, and died Oct. 20, 1898. Her mother was born in Paris, and was a member of the Roman Catholic Church, but in early childhood, being impressed by a Methodist itinerant who stopped at the home going and returning from his circuit, Rowena said she was going to be a Methodist when she was old enough. Educated by her father, who was a public-school teacher, she grew up to young girlhood beautiful and striking in appearance. In 1888 she was converted under the ministry of Rev. Sam Hugh Whatley, and joined the Methodist Church. Since then all of her father's family, through her influence, have been led into the church. In 1889 (Oct. 22) Rowena married Rev. J. E. Denson, an itinerant Methodist preacher, proving to him a true helpmeet, going from one hard appointment to another without complaint, enduring the hardships of the itinerancy in the Louisiana Conference, which requires so many qualities of the pure heroine. The self-sacrifices and hardships were taken as they came, bravely, and with devout, earnest faith, that gave new heart to her husband when he was about to falter or turn back in the path. Sincere and transparent in character, she was open and frank in speech, proving the purposes of her life noble and Christian by having it uncovered to all eyes. She gave full testimony of her conversion not many weeks since in our quarterly love-feast, showing that she had a clear knowledge of her salvation through faith. But she leaves the best test and proof of faith, namely: ten years of faithfulness, walking with a good conscience before her Lord ever since she confessed him. In the difficult position as an itinerant's wife she entered early in life, filling that position with devotion to the interests of the church and a marked degree of satisfaction on the works to which her husband was sent. She had spent her life in the hardness of the toil, helping her husband as best she could to stand true to his call to preach the gospel, and now she wears her crown, taken away in the meridian of life. When last we looked upon her features there was not a furrow on her brow, but beautiful, like chiselled marble, she was resting from all her weary suffering and looked as if only asleep. She had already met her Lord, and was rejoicing in glorious salvation on the other shore. The last hymn she learned and sung the night she was taken sick was like a premonition of early departure:

"I know not what awaits me,
God kindly veils mine eyes,
And o'er each step of my onward way
He makes new scenes to rise;
And every joy he sends me comes
A sweet and glad surprise.

'So on I go, not knowing,
I would not if I might;
I'd rather walk in the dark with God
Than go alone in the light;
I'd rather walk by faith with him
Than go alone by sight."

What a glad surprise when she looked up and found she was with her Lord, her hardships all passed! She had calculated on many years of future service from station to station, but all was over; she had landed her bark in the haven of rest. May the consolations of the Holy Spirit be with her husband and loved ones left behind! They must think of her waiting to greet them on the other shore. S. S. KEENER.

IN MEMORIAM.

Whereas, It has pleased the Almighty God to remove from our midst our esteemed friend and co-worker, Mrs. J. E. Denson, wife of our pastor, Rev. J. E. Denson, whose death brings forth the kindest remembrances; therefore, be it

Resolved, That in her death we have lost a true friend and sister, ever ready to perform her duty.

Resolved, That we tender our heartfelt sympathy to the husband of our deceased sister in his sad affliction, and we sincerely mourn her loss, but rejoice to know that our loss is her gain.

Resolved, That this resolution be spread on the Minutes, and a copy be sent to the bereaved husband.

"CONFERENCE IMPRESSIONS."

Under the above heading, a visitor to an Annual Conference recently wrote for publication in one of the church papers his observations of the same, from which we extract the following paragraphs which are very suggestive and worthy of consideration by preachers, both old and young:

"I was greatly gratified to find the elderly men of the Conference retain such a strong love for the church, such a true fellowship with all their brethren, such a cheerful resignation to their retirement from active service and a willingness to fill up the remaining measure of their service. I was greatly charmed with the younger men, in their attendance on the sessions, their intelligent watchfulness of the routine of business, their respectful regard for the older brethren, with the evident desire to make progress in their ministry. There is very little hope for a Conference loiterer; but a watchful, attentive, intelligent man can gather a vast amount of legal and practical information by closely observing the regular business of the every-day sessions. He learns the proper construction of the Discipline, the varied applications of our church law, and builds into his mind that intelligence that qualifies him for his pastorate, for the administration of discipline, either on his charge or on his district."

Who would think of such a character as a "Conference loiterer"? And yet he exists. We have known him for years. He is seldom on time for the opening of his Annual or District Conference. He is scarcely ever in place during the devotional or deliberative exercises of the body. He is in and out—more out than in—and when wanted to make his report, to meet with a committee or for other purpose, he is not to be found. Consequently, he gets but little benefit of the occasion, either mental or spiritual, and goes away complaining of the poor preaching and the little that was done. Moreover, he is surprised and wonders that he does not get better appointments in his Conference.

I hope he will read and ponder these "impressions," and be improved thereby, and that henceforward he will be on time and always in place at his Conferences, so as to receive all the refreshing and inspiration that comes of participation in the various services thereof.

ITINERANT.

Our editorial, of Oct. 6, on "Eternal Punishment," somewhat enlarged has been published in the form of a 16-page pamphlet. It will be sent postpaid to any address on receipt of five cents.

THE SITUATION.

Rev. W. B. Murrah, D. D.: "Happily the period of quarantines and panics has passed. Let us hope nothing even approximating it will ever occur again. We have suffered far more from an epidemic of sensational and exaggerated reports than from the epidemic of yellow fever.

"While anything like unkind criticism is to be deprecated, a calm review of the situation must result in good. It seems to me thoughtful men must agree that we can not stand a repetition of the state of things through which we have just passed. In my judgment, the policy we adopt is wrong. The measures prescribed must inevitably result in widespread demoralization, and I, therefore, favor a reform in policy that shall be radical and complete.

"I have, with some degree of care, considered the objections which are urged against a national quarantine. These objections seem to me superficial, and I am thoroughly persuaded that if the quarantine system is to prevail, it can never be made effective until it is turned over to the general government. I am utterly opposed to the present system of divided responsibility. That always means failure. I take a hopeful view of the future. The lessons we have learned from the experience of the past few weeks will not be lost. We have a great country, and we can not afford to yield to discouragements." —Picayune.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE POSTPONED.

A letter from Bishop O. P. Fitzgerald, of this date, announces that the time of holding the Mississippi Annual Conference has been postponed from Dec. 15 to Dec. 29. The Bishop writes that a change of place is not necessary, now that the date is deferred. C. G. ANDREWS, Sec'y Miss. Conf.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

NO POSTPONEMENT.

Bishop Key requests me to announce that the North Mississippi Conference will meet Nov. 30. After consultation with the presiding elders, it is found that the majority favor the date above given.

J. S. OAKLEY, Secretary of the Conference.

THANKS.

To my brethren and many friends who so tenderly cared for me in my recent sickness and sad bereavement, and to those also who have conveyed their sympathies by letters of condolence, I hereby tender my sincerest thanks. J. E. DENSON.

GRENADA COLLEGE OPENING.

I am gratified to announce that our Grenada College has had the best opening in its history. On opening day we had 53 boarding pupils in the college, and the record at the end of the week is 64 boarding in the college and 10 boarding in town. Several pupils having rooms engaged have not yet arrived, and new applications are coming in every day. We have space left for only 4 or 5 more, but arrangements will be made to accommodate all who come.

The Texas and Pacific give you choice of routes, via Memphis, Shreveport, or New Orleans.

NOTICE.

We hope by next week to be able to publish the time fixed for our annual meeting. Let every district secretary try to secure as large a representation as possible from her district, so that we may be able to secure reduced railroad rates. We have the promise of rates on the certificate plan, if we have the requisite number in attendance. For this reason, as well as for the purpose of increasing the missionary spirit throughout our Conference society, we urge a large attendance at our meeting, and emphasize the importance of each one who comes procuring a certificate at the office where the ticket is bought.

All ministers, and those interested in the work of missions, are cordially invited to attend. All who expect to attend will please send in their names as soon as possible to Mrs. B. F. Jones.

Let every auxiliary in the Conference society observe the Week of Prayer, Nov. 25-31, and remember especially to pray for the presence of the Holy Spirit in all the deliberations of our meeting.

AN APPEAL FOR GARMENTS FOR THE NEEDY.

Among the numerous features of the work of this mission (Helping Hand Rescue Mission) is that of supplying clothing to the suffering poor. The demand upon us in this respect is one that is large and very pressing, and we would fain touch and influence the hearts of Christian or benevolent readers. Discarded or second-hand clothing, as well as new garments, will be very acceptable.

The donors will please not burden us by express charges, but send by freight when residing out of the city. Those residing in the city will please send to our address, or notify us when and where to call by postal card. B. H. GREEN, Supt., 618 Girod St., City.

CATARRH CAN BE CURED

By eradicating from the blood the scrofulous taints which cause it. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures catarrh, promptly and permanently, because it strikes at the root of the trouble.

The rich, pure blood which it makes, circulating through the delicate passages of the mucous membrane, soothes and rebuilds the tissues, giving them a tendency to health instead of disease, and ultimately curing the affection.

At the same time Hood's Sarsaparilla strengthens, invigorates and energizes the whole system, and makes the debilitated victim of catarrh feel that new life has been imparted.

Do not daily with snuffs, inhalants, or other local applications, but take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and cure catarrh absolutely and surely by removing the causes which produce it.

THAT BOOK!

A reader of Dr. Hunnicutt's Essays says: "The Essay on The Former Days and These is particularly fine in matter and style. The whole book is good reading—was sorry when I reached the end, and shall read it again—two things I can say of no other book." Send 50 cents to Barbee and Smith, Nashville, Tenn., and get the book.

NOTICE.

The Home Mission Society of the North Mississippi Conference will hold its annual meeting at Cleveland, Miss., Nov. 19 22. All delegates and visitors will send their names to Mrs. J. L. Gardner, Cleveland, Miss.

We greatly regret that we have not been able to announce the date earlier, but the causes which combined to prevent the meeting in October were not of our own ordering, and we can not longer postpone without conflicting with the session of our Annual Conference, which convenes Nov. 30.

Let the district secretaries go to work and try to have their respective districts well represented; and we would be glad to see many of our preachers there. Their presence will encourage us, and their interest and wise suggestions will help us and strengthen us to go forward with the work that lies before us.

Dear sisters, remember this meeting in your prayers. All our efforts will come to naught unless the blessing of God rests upon our labors. Of ourselves we can do nothing. "I can do all things through Christ, which strengtheneth me."

OUR OWN.

If I had known in the morning
How wearily all the day,
The words unkind
Would trouble my mind
I said when I went away,
I had been more careful, darling;
Nor given you needless pain;
But we vex "our own"
With look and tone
We may never take back again.

For though in the quiet evening
I may give you the kiss of peace,
Yet it might be
That never for me
The pain at the heart should cease.
How many go forth in the morning
That never come home at night!
And hearts have been broken
By harsh words spoken
That sorrow can ne'er set right.

We have careful thought for the stranger
And smiles for the sometime guest,
But oft for "our own"
The bitter tone,
Though we love our own the best.
Ah! lips, with words impatient!
Ah! brow, with that look of scorn!
'Twere a cruel fate,
Were the night too late
To undo the work of the morn.

TOO INDUSTRIOUS.

No observer of the common methods of household life, especially among that large class who are in medium circumstances, neither poor or rich, but in the main comfortable, can fail to be struck with the different way in which men and women regard and use leisure time. In fact, it is a question whether the majority of the mistresses of such homes ever know what it is to enjoy a bit of genuine leisure. They are always oppressed with a sense of the necessity of chipping some odd bit of work into every chink of leisure time. This is industry pushed to the point where it becomes a vice, and often makes a disagrecable element in domestic life.

For instance, a member of the family wishes to read aloud some interesting article or poem. The busy mother listens with apparent interest and enjoyment, but the work in her hands is, after all, of paramonnt importance, and she does not hesitate to interrupt the reader at the most interesting part of the narrative with the request to "Stop till I try on this apron I am making for Willie," or "Wait a moment while I go down stairs to press out this seam;" or, if the work is not actually in her hands, her mind is running on household cares, and, with a kind of double consciousness that occasionally breaks out in such exclamations as, "Stop a little till I call to the cook to set batter cakes for breakfast;" or, "I wonder if Bridget has put the clothes to soak for the washing to-morrow," all of which remarks have the most chilling and even exasperating effect npon the interested reader and listeners, who justly regard such interruptions as trivial and unworthy. We all remember how Jean Paul Richter, in his "Flower, Fruit, and Thorn Pieces," paints the attempts of the good advocate of the poor, Firmian Stanislans, to interest and instruct his pretty, but commonplace little wife, and to elevate her mentally by reading to her his productions, and of the delight that filled his heart when one evening he seemed to have secured her most earnest attention. The knitting in her hand fell to her lap, and her eyes were fixed intently on the floor. He was just completing one of his finest periods, and, noticing her rapt air, he exclaimed to himself: "She understands, she appreciates!" When he ceased she looked at him earnestly and said: "Don't forget to leave off that left stocking in the morning; I must darn that hole in the toe." It was the poor advocate's last attempt to secure his wife's interest and attention for his poems. From that time their paths diverged till death.

Busy women need to withdraw their minds and hands from constant household occupation, and learn to rest and refresh themselves so as to have an interest in the world outside of home. The devotion of some mothers to children and home dwarfs their natures. They are never easy except when at work, and when setting everyone else to work. Industry is an excellent thing, but there is a possibility of its being practiced to a degrec that changes it from a virtue to a vice.—Helen Ekin Starrett, in The Standard.

GETTING ON IN LIFE.

Very often the man who starts out in life with the determination that he will win success by delibcrate trickery and frand, gets along swimmingly at the outstart of his career. In every community will be found a certain proportion of people whose credulity, ignorance or prejudice, cunningly worked upon, make them suitable tools to be used by the ambitious or avaricious schemer who has certain selfish ends in views. He is, or thinks he is, a good judge of human nature, and selects his victims with more or less discretion, according as his claim to experience and knowledge is well founded.

There are certain disadvantages connected with such a life, however, and as the years multiply they increase rather than diminish. For instance, however easy it may be to deceive and befool people once, even the most credulous soul wakes up sooner or later to the fact that he has been victimized. When one realizes finally and decisively that his feelings have been played upon and his confidence has been abused, he becomes indignant and the adventurer must seek other pastures. Thus it becomes necessary for the individual who uses other people, and that constantly, to be ever in the way of making new friends, for the reason that he is daily losing old ones who have found him out. Such a life, that of the itinerant vagrant, is not likely to prove conducive to success. And yet if one place be adhered to, the schemer will be so thoroughly exposed that he will be powerless either for good or evil.

Honesty is snrely the best policy. There are times when it does not seem to be so. There are occasions when it appears to be a burden and a disadvantage. But in the long run every dishonest pretense is likely to be exposed, and he who endeavors to win fortune and honor for himself by doing wrong to his neighbors will eventually come to grief. The history of the world shows that this has occurred in the past and there is no reason to apprehend any change for the future. The young man who wants to fill the world's best places must secure them by his own merit, not by pulling down others.—Central Advocate.

FROM PEANUT STAND TO PROFESSOR'S CHAIR.

"Peanuts, ten cents a quart! Bananas, fifteen cents a dozen!" cried a rough-clothed foreigner in the streets of Kansas City, ten years ago; but that foreigner had mastered Legendre's Geometry in French, could quote Homer by the thousand lines, and knew the classics of his native Russian.

When Russia chooses to make exiles of her best minds, ours is sometimes the gain. Leo Wiener was a precocious boy, and was sent to Berlin to study. He tasted freedom, and carried the air of liberty back to Russia. He spoke for freedom, and was banished.

He escaped from Siberia, tramped through Germany, France, and Spain, and took passage to Cuba. During the two weeks of the voyage, by studying twelve hours a day, he mastered the Spanish language. Cuba could not hold him. At New Orleans he studied the hardest language he had ever met, the English. "Even now, with twenty-seven languages at his command, he halts and stumbles oftenest in speaking English."

"Wiener drifted to Kansas City," says the New York Herald, "and was without a penny when he reached there. To become a peddler was his purpose; bananas and peanuts were his stock in trade. For months his expenses were fifteen cents a day; but he was learning English all the time.

The public library on the hill, night after night, received him; he called for the best English literature. J. M. Greenwood, Superintendent of Schools, became interested in him; he was curious to know who that shabby man was who pored over the classics. Soon he found a pretext for forming his acquaintance, and it did not take him long to discover that this quiet student was a man of fine scholarly attainments. Through his influence, Wiener secured a good position as a teacher. As his qualifications became better known, his advancement followed, and honor, reputation and an assured income accompanied the recognition. The poor exile who formerly peddled peanuts on the public streets is now a distinguished professor in a Western university.—Exchange.

LOSING FRIENDS.

One of the things that most people wake up to when they are approaching middle age is that they have lost a good many friends through their own carelessness. You receive an invitation to the wedding of one whom you knew well eight or ten years ago. He has quite passed out of your life; though, if you were living near each other so that you would meet occasionally, he is the kind of man in whose society you would find real pleasure. When the invitation comes you express your pleasure that Dick or John is to be married and hope that he may be happy. And that is the end of it. You do not send a present, or, what is better—and often costs more—a friendly note conveying your congratulations and good wishes. The occasion passes without any sign from you, and you have lost an opportunity of identifying yonrself with your friend's happiness. He will not associate you with that epoch of his life, and very likely will resent your silence.

It is the same when you fail to take note of a friend's afflictions. It is a real effort to write a letter of sympathy. But such a note may mean a vast deal to one in trouble, and by it you can bind a heart to your own with hooks of steel. The people who claim that they have so few friends have themselves to blame for it. They have lost them through their indifference or thonghtlessness. "A man that hath friends must show himself friendly."—Watchman.

KEEP A CLEAN MOUTH.

A distinguished author says: "I resolved, when I was a child, never to use a word which I could not pronounce before my mother." He kept his resolntion and became a pure-minded, noble, honored gentleman. His rule and example are worthy of imitation.

Boys readily learn a class of low, vulgar words and expressions which are never heard in respectable circles. Of course, we can not think of girls as being so much exposed to this peril. We can not imagine a decent girl using words she would not utter before her father or mother.

Such vulgarity is thought by some boys to be "smart," the "next thing to swearing," and yet "not so wicked;" but it is a habit which leads to profanity and fills the mind with evil thoughts. It vulgarizes and degrades the soul, and prepares the way for many of the gross and fearful sins which now corrupt society.

Young readers, keep your mouths free from all impurity and your "tongue from evil;" but in order to do this, ask Jesus to cleanse your heart and keep it clean, for "out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh."—The Standard.

If we knew the future, many of us would not have the courage to go on to meet it. The uncertainty of life, in the judgment of some, constitutes its greatest charm. The novel and the untried hold a wonderful spell for us all. We dream of what is to be instead of filling the present with earnest effort as we should. We sometimes exclaim, Could we but shape our destiny as we would, how different we would have it! And in our lust for greater power that which we might wield is forgotten orignored. Opportunities pass unimproved. Idle days swell useless years, and, at last, in the sunset of life, we hold, instead of ripened fruit, nothing but leaves.—Recorder.

THE WORK CURE.

In that moment, when, as to most at some time or other, a kind of despairing feeling comes to you—when energy lags, and the heart, bitten by the chill of some disappointment, sinks far below the zero point—then the safety for yon and the sure path into more genial spiritual weather is the duty next you. Do that anyway. Even with failing feeling and nerveless hands compel yourself to do it. Do not put it off. Do not allow yourself bewailingly to wait for better mood. Do the duty next you, or anyway try at it. At least, a fine sense of accomplishment shall come in, a very real consciousness of personal heroism.—Wayland Hoyt, D. D.

If we fade as the leaves fade, at least we may endeavor to live after the fashion of the leaf's usefulness and with something of the leaf's departing beauty crowning the free consent of our mustering out.—Isaac Ogden Rankin, in Congregationalist.

ON GOING TO BED HUNGRY.

All animals, except man, eat before sleeping, and there is no reason why man should form an exception to the rule. Fasting during the long interval between supper and breakfast, and especially the complete emptiness of the stomach during sleep, add greatly to the amount of emaciation, sleeplessness, and general weakness so often met with. It is well known that in the body there is a perpetual disintegration of tissue—sleeping or waking; it is, therefore, natural to believe that the supply of nourishment should be somewhat continuous, especially in those in whom the vitality is lowered. As bodily exercise is suspended during sleep, with wear and tear correspondingly diminished, while digestion, assimilation, and nutritive activity continue as usual, the food furnished during this period adds more than is destroyed, and increased weight and improved general vigor is the result. If the weakly, the emaciated and the sleepless were to take nightly a light meal of simple, nutritious food before going to bed for a prolonged period, they would be raised to a better standard of health. It has been our experience that after digesting a bowl of bread and milk or a saucer of oatmeal, before going to bed, for a few months, a surprising increase in weight, strength, and general tone has resulted. This course is not recommended to those persons who are stout and plethoric.—Christian Uplook.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. Evie Middleton Terry was born Sept. 20, 1870, and departed this life Oct. 6, 1898. In early life she was converted and became a member of the M. E. Church, South, in which she lived consistently until her death. Her life was one of humble consecration to God and his church. On April 27 of this year she became the wife of Rev. Walter A. Terry, of the Mississippi Conference. After about five months of happy companionship the tie was broken. Why, we can not see. God knows; we shall some day. Her death was triumphant and beautiful. It was the pleasure of the writer to be present in her dying hour. When she realized that she was sinking she called her friends and loved ones about her, and bade them a loving farewell, saying, "Good-by; meet me in heaven;" and then, remembering the aged father and mother in their distant home (for her death took place at the home of her father-in-law in Leake county), she said, "Tell papa and mama to meet me in heaven." No cloud intervened between her and her Savior to shut out the light of life. After sending messages to absent loved ones she said, "Now sing." "What would you have us sing?" asked the writer. "Sing, 'Meet me there,'" she said. When this was done she said, "Sing again," and we sung, "Jesus, lover of my soul," and "Rock of ages, cleft for me," and then she said, "Sing, 'What a friend we have in Jesus,'" and with her trembling voice joined in, singing the entire hymn. No doubt remains as to her future; hence we weep not as those who have no hope. We shall meet again in that realm where no sickness is and where death never comes.

May God comfort and sustain the young husband in his great bereavement!

TOOKE—Died at the home of her parents, near Arcadia, EDNA WILMOTH TOOKE, daughter of Mr. Burt and Mrs. Lena Mills Tooke, in her fifth year.

Our all-wise Father makes no mistakes. Little Edna has filled her mission, and we who grieve for her feel nearer to God and heaven, because we knew and loved the dear, beautiful child. Fond mother, God planted that strongest of earthly love in you, and he honors you for cherishing it, and he is now watching over you so close that he feels every heart-throb as he anxiously awaits for you to turn to him, that he may bind up the wound and heal the broken heart.

Dear, grief-stricken ones, turn your hearts from the little mound of clay and think of the glorious victory when Jesus took her in his loving arms from this world of sorrow ere the blight of sin and care had left a single mark, and carried her so safely over the river to that beautiful land, where he placed her in charge of the angels "who do always behold the face of their Father." Lay your burthen at Jesus' feet and trust him, for he doeth all things well. Strive each day to do his will, and when at last the battle is over, the victory won, and you hear the Savior's gentle voice saying, "Well done, come up higher," then you will meet your precious Edna, who is now safe and radiant in angelic robes, joyfully watching at the "beautiful gate."

A FRIEND.

BROWN—Mrs. SUSAN BETHELAR BROWN (nee Mack) was born Sept. 13, 1859, and died at Pine Grove, La., Aug. 7, 1898.

Sister Brown united with the M. E. Church, South, in early childhood, and was always a consistent member of the same. She was married to A. N. Brown, Feb. 7, 1887, and to them were born four children—three girls and one son. As a wife, she was kind and submissive; as a mother, she was tender and affectionate.

Sister Brown was the first member of the Pine Grove Church this writer met on arriving here, and, spending several days at her hospitable home, her kind, pleasant manner and Christian spirit made a lasting impression on me. The most of her life was spent in the neighborhood of Pine Grove, Bro. Brown only having moved but a short while (to Greensburg, La.), and while on a visit to her brother, Geo. Mack, she was taken with that dreaded disease commonly called continued fever. All was done that kind friends and medical aid could do, but to no avail. He that doeth all things well called her to himself. May her surviving husband and little children, brothers and sisters live as she lived, and meet her in that world where parting will be no more!

SUMMER—NANNIE SCOTT SUMMER, daughter of W. W. and C. J. Summer, and granddaughter of R. A. Sibley, Sr., of the Mississippi Conference, was born in Smith county, Miss., March 13, 1883, and died in Trenton, Smith county, Miss., Oct. 6, 1898, aged ten years six months and twenty-three days. She joined the M. E. Church, South, Sept. 7, 1896; lived up to the regulations and demands of the church to her death; sang hymns and prayed daily. Her face would shine as the sunbeam. She was a great favorite with her family and grandparents; also with all that were intimately acquainted with her. She was taken with congestion of a very severe type on Oct. 5, at 1:30 o'clock A. M., and died on the sixth at eleven minutes after ten P. M. Her father gave her a beautiful little paper box. In this she stored away very many pieces of beautiful and precious poetry sublime. She is gone to live with God, where by and by we will join her. There is no congestion or other ills there. Precious lamb, we bid thee rest under the shadas of the tree immortal.

DANIEL—Miss ONIE DANIEL, daughter of the late Sheriff E. L. Daniel, of this parish, departed this life at her home in Waco, Texas, at the early age of nineteen. Just as the beautiful promise of childhood was fulfilled in noble and exalted womanhood, the hand of God in mercy plucked this angelic flower from this sin-stricken world and transplanted her to his garden above. In early girlhood she united with the M. E. Church, South, and remained loyal to her church, her friends, and loved ones. She was never known to utter language tainted with evil. I know the home must be very dark without this bright and beautiful flower, but it is a consolation to know she died with an assurance of a life beyond. When the angel of death came I know in her heart she smiled and said: "Now is thy time, O God! I will rest in peace with the righteous dead." Words are inadequate to express our sympathy for the afflicted family, but remember, dear ones, God always claims his own.

HOWELL—Miss MATTIE M. HOWELL was born in Noxubee county, Miss., in January, 1862, and died at the home of her sister, Mrs. M. C. Jones, in Attala county, Miss., Sept. 23, 1898. Her father was mortally wounded Sept. 19, 1863, at Chickamauga. Not long after his death, from the effects of a fall she lost her hearing, and then control over her voice. She professed religion and joined the Methodist Church while she was at the Deaf and Dumb Institute in Jackson, Miss. She was a dutiful daughter and faithful Christian. Her mother learned the mute language, and they were boon companions. Nearly two years ago her mother died, and since then she has been lonely and seemingly inconsolable. Although her sister, brothers and friends did all they could to cheer her, she never seemed to enjoy life as she had done. Weep not, loved ones; she is not lonely now. May we all live so as to meet her in heaven!

F. A. HOWELL.

LYONS—On Friday, Oct. 7, Bro. AARON LYONS passed peacefully away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Dr. W. D. White, in this town.

Bro. Lyons was in his eighty-seventh year. He had been a faithful, pious member of the Methodist Church from the days of his young manhood, and was a leader in all its work as long as his physical strength permitted. His strength gradually wasted away, and he died without any signs of disease; never had fever.

Old age brings us to know the value of the blessings which we have enjoyed, and it brings us also to a very thankful perception of those which yet remain. Is a man advanced in life? The ease of a single day, the rest of a single night, are gifts which may be subjects of gratitude to God.—William Paley.

Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc

The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect; its adjustment is absolute, positive take-up, convenient foot rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one gauge, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearing polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—The "Arlington B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light to heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great length; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell, without spring centre or joint bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless, and are very durable.

OUR OFFER.

To anyone, not now a subscriber to this paper, who will send us $19, we will send the machine and the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE one year. To old subscribers we make the following offer: Pay your subscription to December, '99, and send $17 additional, and we will send you the machine. This price does not include freight.

We allow purchaser to test the machine for ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

The Sana-Cera treatment for the cure of Catarrh, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Deafness and all diseases of the Head, Throat and Lungs.

MISS LILLIE FRUSH, Elwood, Ind., writes:—Three years ago I was a mere skeleton and thought to be a hopeless victim of Catarrhal Consumption. My entire system was saturated and diseased with the catarrhal poison. I belonged to a consumptive family and no one ever expected me to get well again; but I was placed in charge of Dr. M. Beaty who gave me his Sana-Cera treatment. Shortly, the coughing spells left me, my appetite returned, I grew stronger, increased in weight and after a 3 months' course was completely cured. I am now in perfect health and a stout hearty woman, as you will see by my photograph.

Three Months Home Treatment Free!

To introduce the Sana-Cera Cure in every community and prove that it cures when all others have failed, I will for a limited time send medicines for a 3 months treatment free. Send a description of your trouble, name and P. O. address at once; or, write for Question Blank and prompt attention will be given you free. Address DR. M. BEATY, Prin'l, National Dispensary, Dep't T 11. 125 W. 12th St., Cincinnati, O.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

The Russian Government proposes to dig a ship canal across the empire, which shall connect the Baltic Sea with the Black Sea, so that the largest battleships can pass through it at reasonable speed.

The French Government will instruct Major Marchand to return to France with his expedition from Fashoda by way of Jibntill, on the gulf of Aden, "the only route consistent with French dignity."

There are 750,000 typewriters in use in the United States. The business, says the New Sun, is the growth of twenty years, and an instance, along with telephones and the trolley of American enterprise.

The Spaniards want the Americans to return them the city of Manila and $1,000,000 wrongfully collected, on the ground that the revennes belong to Spain. Spaniards believe the American demand was made for its influence on the coming elections.

General Fitzhugh Lee has written a complimentary letter concerning the work of the Young Men's Christian Association among the soldiers of Florida, and has requested that their representatives may be authorized to accompany his army to Cuba and prepare for even more extensive work.

At Friday's meeting of the Peace Conference, at Paris, the Spanish Commissioners announced that Spain refused to accept the proposition of the United States with respect to the Philippines. As the meeting adjourned until this week without any ruptnre of negotiations, it is evident that Spain has not yet closed negotiations, and has no immediate intention of breaking off the conference.

The recovered Spanish cruiser "Maria Teresa" was lost in a storm off San Salvador last week, having sunk in about 300 fathoms of water. The vessel could not stand the strain of a heavy storm. After many hours of hard labor at the pumps, her commander gave orders to abandon the ship. The officers and crew were taken on board the "Merritt," and safely landed at Charleston The naval officials are disappointed.

Despite the announcement of Lord Salisbnry, at the banquet in honor of General Kitchener, that the Fashoda incident was in a fair way of settlement, the warlike preparations in England continue without interruption. In fact, the work of mobilizing the fleet and putting the army in shape for any emergency, is being more earnestly pushed than ever. The world is puzzling over these evidences of approaching tronble; but the British Government has allowed no inkling of its designs to escape.

Secretary Alger has issued the first order looking to the military occupation of Cuba by the United States troops. The order was issued only after very careful consideration of the reports of the military officers now in Cuba and of the Hecker board and other expert commissioners which have been in the field. The order looks to the occupation of two points to begin with, namely, Nuevitas and Puerto Principe, but the occupation will be extended as rapidly as the Spanish evacuntion proceeds.

The Cubans who have been employed in cleaning and repairing the streets of Santiago have struck for higher wages, though they have been receiving a dollar a day, or fifty cents and two rations—higher wages than have ever before been paid for similar work. In fact, local employers of labor have been complaining of this high rate, alleging that it was quite impossible for them to compete with the government on such terms. The Cuban laborers at the best are lazy and slipshod. They want an increase of fifty cents a day. General Wood absolutely refuses to accede to the demand, and will adopt heroic measures if the strike is not promptly declared off.

The election, this week, while it does not choose a President and declare the nature of the next Federal administration, is, nevertheless, a very important one, because nearly all the States elect Congressmen, and many of them choose Legislatures which will elect United States Senators. Of the 45 States of the Union, all but three—namely, Maine, Vermont, and Oregon—will elect Congressmen. Of the remaining 42 States, 23—namely, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Indiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Washington, Wyoming, Wisconsin and West Virginia—will elect State Legislatures which will choose United States Senators.

An explosion and fire on Sunday wrecked the Supreme Court room and the rooms immediately adjoining it on the main floor of the Capitol at Washington. The damage is enormous. The entire central eastern part of the great marble pile from the main floor to the subterranean basement is practically a mass of ruins. The force of the explosion was so heavy that the coping stones on the outer walls just east of the point where the explosion occurred were bulged out nearly two inches, windows in all parts of the building were blown out, and locked doors were forced from their hinges quite a hundred and fifty feet from the scene of it. Fire followed the explosion so quickly as to be practically simultaneous with it. The explosion shook the immense structure to its foundation and was heard several squares from the Capitol. An explosion of gas caused the damage.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Booneville, Miss., EDITOR.

"And who is my neighbor?"

Not simply the man or woman next door, but whoever is in distress and needs my assistance.

The Charity and Help Department was arranged to instruct our young people as to their duty to the sick, the poor, and those in prison.

Christian philanthropy admits of no fastidious choice. It knows no bounds, and does not ask what a man believes when in trouble, but what he suffers.

Not by works of righteousness are we saved; nevertheless the saved man or woman will demonstrate his faith in the gospel and love for God by works of faith and labors of love.

"Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this: to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world."

Thus the true religion contrasts with that of the heathen, who leave the sick and poor to die of neglect, their bodies often becoming a prey for the beasts of the field or the fowls of the air.

Many acts of heroism have been recorded in Mississippi during the past few months of sorrow and suffering consequent upon the outbreak of yellow fever. We trust that where the Epworth Leagues had opportunity they assisted in furnishing help to those in need.

Bishop Galloway, as usual, was at the front ready to do or to die for humanity. In Chicago, St. Louis and Memphis his name was freely used by the committees as being the proper person to communicate with anent the fever sufferers in Mississippi.

The Mississippi Leaguers especially love this good man and able minister, who was reared and educated within the bounds of their own fair State.

P. O. LOWREY, Treas.

Bishop Nnde, of the M. E. Church, has recently visited Nashville, Tenn. While there he paid a visit to our Publishing House, making special calls at the editorial offices. In the Era, of Oct. 27, appears a very fraternal note from his pen. We remember him at Toronto, last year, as a brother beloved. He is president of the Epworth League Board of Control of the M. E. Church.

A PRAYER.

FATHER!

In Thy great palm I place my own;
For, through this day to walk alone
Would be to fall.

Temptations sore beset my way;
Deliver me from ill this day
By power divine.

If joys be mine, they spring from Thee;
Should sorrows fall, oh let me see
In them Thy hand!

Make me so teachable to-day
That e'en the dewdrop by the way
Shall show Thy face.

Or, if the sky be overcast,
And ragos loud the stormy blast,
Impress me still.

Help me each passing hour to find
Some evidence of Thy great mind
Amid Thy works.

And having found it, to admire
Till I adore! and still inquire
Concerning Thee! Amen.

NAPOLEON'S VALUE OF VICTORY.

IT FINDS A STRIKING COUNTERPART IN RECENT WORLD TRIUMPHS.

Napoleon knew well the value of a victory. After Austerlitz the world seemed his. Fame invited, fortune favored, everything stimulated his aspiring ambition. With growing power he gathered the fruits of victory. And so has it ever been. Success succeeds. A notable illustration of this truth is furnished by the great victories won at the World's Fair in '93 and the California Midwinter Fair in '94 by Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder. Ever-increasing sales and popularity have been the result. The people have promptly ratified the official verdicts that declared Dr. Price's, for leavening power, keeping qualities, purity and general excellence, the "foremost baking powder in all the world." Quite as quickly as the great Emperor do they know the value of a victory that means world-wide supremacy.

NOTICE.

To the Preachers of the North Mississippi Conference—

In settling with our respective Boards please bring New York exchange, currency, or checks on the bank of the town where the Conference is held. New York exchange is preferred. Please do not give us checks on your local bank, as each one of such checks costs the Board receiving it from 15 to 25 cents to collect.

5 DROPS [TRADE MARK.]

What Mr. John R. Collins of Durham (Miss.) writes June 19: For the past three years I have suffered with pain over my whole body so that I was unable to do a whole day's work on the farm at any time, and for the last months I had given up entirely from work of any kind and despaired of ever being cured. I had tried all remedies I could find but with little benefit. "5 DROPS" was recommended to me, and I commenced taking the same some time in January, and immediately saw that it had the desired effect on the diseases from which I was suffering, which were RHEUMATISM, ASTHMA, KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLE, and I am now as well as ever by the use of "5 DROPS," and can plow all day long Mississippi fashion. I take pleasure in writing this for the benefit of people who may be suffering in a similar manner; and I will gladly answer any letter that any sufferer may write to me, and send them proofs as to my condition at present and before. Yours truly. JOHN R. COLLINS.

Mr. J. W. Sanders, Earl, (Ark.) writes July 7, '98: I suffered terribly with Catarrh for four years, but after using two bottles of "5 DROPS" I recovered and am now entirely well, and as fat as a hog, and I give your "5 DROPS" the praise for I could not find anything that would give me the slightest relief until I tried this great remedy. I can truthfully say that it has cured me, and I give "5 DROPS" the name of being the best medicine that can be made, and recommend it to everybody as a permanent cure for Catarrh. Sincerely, J. W. SANDERS.

Eli Cherry, Notary Public, Gillis Mills, (Tenn.) writes July 14, '98: I am a farmer and have labored very hard. Three years ago I was taken with severe pains in left breast and about my heart, and the best doctors said I had Neuralgia of the Heart and could never get well. I had to quit work and had very bad spells with my heart. My daughter, Mrs. H. T. Franks, saw your "5 DROPS" advertised, and ordered a bottle for me, and it did me so much good that she ordered a second bottle, and after using that one I felt as good as I ever did, and have made a full hand in the field this year; and my old neighbors and friends are astonished and are all inquiring of me what cured me, and I can only say "5 DROPS" DID IT! Even the doctors are astonished at my recovery, and a great many of my friends who are afflicted with Neuralgia and Rheumatism wish me to send and get them some of the wonderful remedy, "5 DROPS." Trusting that the people who are suffering may see this testimonial and have confidence enough to give "5 DROPS" a trial, I am Respectfully, ELI CHERRY, Notary Public.

If you have not sufficient confidence, after reading these letters to send for THREE LARGE BOTTLES, FOR $2.50, which will surely cure you, then send for a $1.00 BOTTLE, which contains enough medicine to more than satisfy you of its wonderful curative properties. Prepaid by mail or express. This wonderful curative gives almost instant relief and is a PERMANENT CURE for

THE BIBLE.

No strength it craves or needs
From this world's wisdom vain;
No filling up from human wells
Or sublunary rain.

A thousand hammers keen
With fiery force and strain
Brought down on it in rage and hate,
Have struck this gem in vain.

Against this sea-swept rock
Ten thousand storms their will
Of foam and rage have wildly spent—
It lifts its calm face still.

It standeth, and will stand
Without or change or age,
The word of majesty and light,
The church's heritage.

THE WARTBURG.

MR. EDITOR: It was my good fortune, not long since, to visit one of Germany's most celebrated mountain regions, known as the Thuringian Forest, which lies near the center of the empire, midway between Leipzig and Frankfort-on-the-Main. The average traveler is doubtless disappointed at first with German mountain scenery, for it does not possess that grandeur and sublimity which he looks for in the mountains of Europe. But it must be remembered that the towering Alps, like the towering characters of history, are limited. Germany, from the little I have seen, is not the place for the tourist who is satisfied with nothing short of the awe-inspiring. But he who likes the beautiful and picturesque, who loves to see Nature in her quiet, restful moods, will love the mountains of Germany. Above all, if he is fond of scenery in proportion to its historic interest, or because of the quaint and beautiful legends that cluster about it, he will see in this home of the Tentons some of nature's most beautiful landscapes, which have witnessed the sharpest contests between strong empires, or become the scene where mightier struggles have waged in the breast of heroes who have championed the cause of truth.

Such a region is the Thuringian Forest, particularly in the neighborhood of the little town of Eisenach. On a mountain, nearly 600 feet above this town, is the Wartburg, a fine old castle dating from the eleventh century. The students of church history will recall that it was to this castle that Martin Luther was conveyed by his friend, the Elector Frederick the Wise, just after the Diet of Worms. To be sure, he went to this famous Diet with the guarantee of the emperor that he would go and return in safety; but the experience of the noble Huss not many years before was sufficient evidence for the friends of Luther that the emperor was not to be relied on implicitly when it came to protecting one who was opposing the Church of Rome. And thus it happened that after the intrepid Luther had fought the great battle of his life; after he had met the champions of Rome face to face, and refused to recant; after he had sounded the alarm for the rise of Protestantism, and shaken the foundations of Romanism so that the clergy and monks were ready to tear him to pieces or burn him at the stake, he was providentially secreted away to the Wartburg.

As I walked slowly up the mountain road and saw the peaceful peaks and valleys far and near, I could imagine the feeling of security that must have crept over the reformer as he climbed this mountain 350 years ago, surrounded by his friends and rescuers.

The Wartburg was to Luther what Arabia was to Paul, and what his visit to the Moravians in Germany was to Wesley. These reformers had each made two discoveries—they were convinced of the error of the church on the one hand, and they had had a glimpse of the truth. They needed a quiet place where they could meditate upon these great facts of their experience, adjust themselves to the truth, and outline their work for humanity. Above all, they required a wilderness of some sort, where, free alike from the condemnation and applause of men, they could meet the lower side of their own natures in mortal combat, and by the help of God conquer themselves.

It will be recalled that Luther did not break with Rome suddenly. His hope was that when he had shown the error, it would be corrected, and all would go on well. But the conduct of his enemies at Worms proved to him that in this he was mistaken, and that he had to turn to the peasantry of Germany, just as Paul found he had to turn from the Jews to the Gentiles, and as Wesley found he had to turn to the poor of England.

It is no wonder, therefore, that Luther spent his ten months' residence in the Wartburg translating the Bible into the vernacular of the common people. You may imagine my feelings as I went into the little room where this monumental work was done, and saw the rude desk where the maker of the modern German language sat. A few other pieces of furniture are shown which belonged to him, besides some that were not his. On the floor is the vertebra of a mammoth, which he used for a footstool.

Everyone has heard of Luther's throwing an ink bottle at the devil, whom he imagined he saw in his room. I do not know how much truth is contained in this rather ludicrous legend, but it is nevertheless true that there is a place on the wall about two feet in diameter, where the plastering has been picked off by curio-keeping tourists. It is said that this spot was black at one time, and that it is the spot where Luther's ink bottle hit. He certainly wounded the Old Boy, and he will carry the scar till the end of time.

In the little chapel is shown the pulpit where the reformer preached. One can easily imagine the young giant trying his strength there, as the fire of his indignation at the church, and of his enthusiasm for God, burned more and more intensely.

Upon leaving the castle I walked to another mountain opposite, where I could have a good view of it. As I sat there my mind tried to follow the streams of influence that had emanated from that pile of grey stone. I thought of the rise of Protestantism and its victories, and of the land across the sea that had fallen heir to its riches and blessings.

A legend is connected with the founding of the castle, which runs thus: Lewis the Springer was pursuing a wild boar, and came upon the beautiful mountain where the castle now stands. He was so struck with it as a magnificent site for a castle that he uttered these words, "Wart, Berg, und du solst mir eine Burg werden," which mean, "Wait, mountain, and thou shalt become my fortress." The words, "Wart" and "Burg," were put together, and became "Wartburg." The old "Berg," mountain, has certainly become a "Burg," a fortress, a veritable Gibraltar, sheltering in its infancy the religious revolution of the sixteenth century, which has revolutionized the larger part of Christendom.

The Wartburg has more than a religious interest. It was here that the great mediæval poets of Germany held their contests. One of the large halls, known as the Sangersaal, or Singers' Hall, contains a large fresco representing a traditional contest between these poets.

There is a gallery known as the Elizabeth Gallery, named after St. Elizabeth, the wife of Landgrave Louis, the Clement of Thuringia. Its walls are covered with beautiful frescoes representing scenes from the life of this woman, who, judging from the legends gathered about her name, must have been rich in good works. She is said to have been very charitable, even going so far as to incur her husband's displeasure at the lavish way in which she gave to the poor. One day, the legend says, she was distributing bread to the poor, when her husband suddenly appeared on the scene. She immediately folded her apron to hide the bread from him, for she feared his rebuke, and as he rode up he asked what she held in her lap. She answered, "Roses," and, opening her apron, found her lap full of beautiful roses. God had worked a miracle to preserve her from harm. On another occasion she was on her way from her dressing-room to the banquet-hall, when a poor old man appealed for some clothes. She hadn't time to return to her room to get him something, so she threw to him the beautiful mantle that covered her shoulders. But a lady was not allowed in the hall of pleasure without this mantle, and as she entered without it, her husband's anger was aroused, and he asked where her mantle was. She said it was in her room, and upon his sending for it, the servant returned with the most beautiful garment they had ever seen. Again the Lord had interfered in behalf of one whose ear was ever open to the cry of the poor. Of course, the readers of the ADVOCATE will not endorse the moral to these tales. We are fortunate to live in an age when the saint must be not only kind-hearted, but true.

LETTER FROM "GILDEROY."

When the end of the year comes my eye will wander back on the past. I can not help it. As I grow older the review spirit grows upon me. I note the many changes that have taken place. Most of these changes have come so slowly and so gradually that they can not be seen only by comparing periods a long ways apart.

I could not see that my children were growing only when they tried on last year's clothes or I stood them up by last year's mark. However, in a few years they were full grown, of mature age and gone from home. So it is with many, perhaps most, of the changes that are taking place all around us.

Forty and fifty years ago there were from two to twenty local preachers in every pastoral charge all over this North Mississippi territory, but now local preachers are few and far between. I have served but one pastoral charge in the past twenty-five years that had a local preacher in its bounds. Methodism owes a great debt to the local preachers of the past and present. Tens of thousands of souls have been won to God by their ministry. In many instances they were the forerunners of the itinerants, and organized churches, built houses of worship and turned them over to the pastor in good condition. The chronicles of Methodism ought to make note of the heroic work of these noble men.

As a class, they were among the best men to be found in the land. Many of them were well-educated, most of them well-informed, and all of them full of zeal for God and souls. Some of them were great and gifted preachers, and the body of them earnest and useful. They did a vast amount of hard work without fee or reward, only the consciousness of having done good and of being the instruments in the hands of God in the saving of souls. These noble men will meet a glorious reward in the kingdom of our God. Many of these local preachers had spent their earlier years in the itinerant ministry. Growing families and meager support had forced them into the local ranks.

As I look back, I recall the names of a score or more of local preachers who, in point of preaching ability and real spiritual power, will compare favorably with the strongest and best men among us now. As a rule, these local preachers had carefully selected libraries of standard Methodist authors, and their homes were the study retreats of the young itinerants, and in many instances they were the teachers and trainers of the young, itinerant theologues.

I shall owe a debt lasting as eternity itself to David H. Harkey, W. M. Camfield, Uncle Joe Miller, and to Robert Bonner. These holy men of God knew the Bible and our Wesleyan Arminian theology as a schoolboy knows the alphabet. They loaned me books and helped me along in my studies as a master leads and guides his pupils. I laid away all the hard and tough theological knots I struck until I got with one or the other of these great men, and it did my soul good to see how easily they split them wide open. They took me through the regular theological course of the itinerant university. What preachers they were! Either of them would have been acceptable in any pulpit in the land. They were all devout, holy men of God. Harkey and Miller had served terms in the itinerant ranks. Miller and Camfield each had a streak of dry, sanctified humor that made their ministry very attractive. Camfield was a kinsman of A. B. Longstreet, and much like him in many things. Bonner was one of the most saintly men I have ever known. Harkey was, perhaps, the strongest preacher of the four.

Along slowly as the number of itinerant preachers began to increase, the number of local preachers decreased. In this way, and, likely, from this cause, the local preacher ministry has come to be an unknown quantity over large areas of our wide spread territory. But the work done by these mighty men of God must not be forgotten. They deserve to be held in everlasting remembrance. I could wish their names had been carried on our Annual Conference Journals, and their memoirs recorded on their pages. They deserve a niche in the Methodist Temple of Fame. These men came into the kingdom at a time when they were greatly needed, and they wrought wonders in the upbuilding of our Methodism.

I suppose, judging by the past, that as our charges grow smaller and our pastors more numerous, there will continue to be a decrease in the number of local preachers. The young men licensed to preach now enter upon a novitiate for the itinerancy. They begin in the local ranks to graduate into the itinerant ranks. The course for graduation in many cases is a very short one—all too short. It was far too short in my own case. I got in long before I was ready to enter. So much for the zeal of injudicious friends. The lack of preparation in early life may hamper and cramp a man as long as he lives. Few men, comparatively, ever live long enough or study hard enough to make up fully for the lack of early training. The examples so proudly pointed to are only exceptions to the general rule. Grit and grace backed by hard study can do wonders for ordinary men. Gifted geniuses come on the stage at wide intervals, and, even then, most of them have the gift of hard work.

The wonder to me has been how so many local preachers, under so great disadvantages, made such great men. In every such case they were men who knew God's Holy Word and the standard books of our system of theology.

Woe betide the man who locked theological horns with David H. Harkey, W. M. Camfield or Uncle Joe Miller. They were giants, everyone of them.

When I was a boy I went to hear a celebrated divine preach. His text was, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." His sermon was to prove that no one could be pure in heart—that man must sin a little to keep him humble. Uncle Joe Miller was in the pulpit to conclude for this preacher. He arose and stood looking over the vast throng. His black eyes sparkled like gems, and a smile played over his face. He shook his massive frame, and began in his sharp tenor voice that rang like a silver trumpet: "Ahem! 'Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God.' The converse of this is just as true as the text. Cursed are the impure in heart, for they shall see the devil." In fifteen minutes that great sermon of that great divine was ground into fine dust and blown entirely away. The Bible doctrine of entire sanctification was established beyond the possibility of controversy, and full two hundred souls were in the altars crying for mercy. That was a notable day of the Lord in that section of country. GILDEROY.

FEVER AT OXFORD.

We publish the following clipping from the Commercial-Appeal by request:

Oxford, Miss., Oct. 31.—(Special Correspondence.)—The following brief summary of the yellow fever epidemic in Oxford will, no doubt, enlighten some of the people who seem inclined to cast slurs on the disease which has been called "yellowoid" by the Louisiana Board of Health, and derided by so many in the public press during the past epidemic. Oxford is a town of 3,000 population, about three-fourths of whom are whites.

The first "suspicious case" developed here in the Jumper family, Sept. 8. No suspicion attached to the patient at the time, nor until the other two members of the family became sick. On Sept. 16 Dr. Gant announced two cases of yellow fever in Oxford. At that time Oxford's population had decreased to about 1,500 people. In other words, half the citizens had then refugeed to the country or to Northern cities. On the arrival of State Health Officer Dr. H. H. Haralson, who came here to take charge of the town in the name of the State Board of Health, he found five other cases of fever which possessed such unmistakable clinical evidence of yellow fever as to entirely convince the local physicians of their genuineness. These five cases were in a different portion of the town from the original two, and Dr. Haralson became convinced that the infection was widespread. He stated to your correspondent that unless depopulation could be accomplished, a most serious epidemic confronted Oxford. To his thorough and complete investigation and accurate conclusion Oxford is indebted for escaping an epidemic equal in all respects to that of '78 in Holly Springs or Grenada. The people acted on Dr. Haralson's advice, and left Oxford.

The idea of a refugee camp for the negroes was then taken up, and a call was made for assistance to feed the 600 negroes who were unable to get away from Oxford.

The relief committee pledged themselves to furnish the necessary funds for the camp and for nurses for the sick in Oxford, and the camp was established. By extraordinary management the negroes were induced to leave until the population of the town had dwindled down to about 125 negroes. The exodus of the white people had left only seventy-seven whites in Oxford, including men, women, and children. Owing to the mild attacks experienced by nearly all negroes who have had yellow fever, the negro cases will be considered separately. Of the seventy-seven whites left in Oxford before the depopulation, there were about eighteen sick, and the death-rate before the depopulation was slightly above 40 per cent. After depopulation was accomplished the malignity of the disease was greatly decreased. This alone would prove the great wisdom of depopulation; but, to go further, we will consider the seventy-seven whites who remained here, including the first eighteen. Of these seventy-seven, fifty-nine have had pronounced cases of yellow fever, and eleven have died—a death-rate of almost twenty per cent. This has been such as any person at all familiar with the yellow fever deaths of '78 would unhesitatingly have recognized.

All the horrors of deaths from black vomit, suppression and convulsions have been experienced in Oxford during the past five weeks. Had the whole population remained here, it is no exaggeration to say that there would have been at least 400 deaths from yellow fever.

Now, as to the contagion or infection of this type of yellow fever, the following will prove interesting:

Of all the people remaining in Oxford, four men alone who have been continually exposed have escaped. The death-rate of 20 per cent. has been in spite of the best of attention from doctors and nurses. With the whole population remaining in Oxford it would have been impossible to have given such close attention to the sick, and almost impossible to have buried the dead. All these facts, which are not taken from hearsay, but from personal experience and actual knowledge of your correspondent, have made Oxford's people as grateful to Dr. Haralson for urging depopulation as they are to Dr. Baird and himself for their faithful and earnest work with the sick.

Of the 400 or 500 negroes maintained at Camp Haralson, twelve have had yellow fever, and it is safe to say that all of them contracted the disease before leaving Oxford, since every case developed within four days after establishing the camp.

Of the number at the white camp, three possibly had yellow fever, but there was no spread of the infection. In fact, it has been about proved that a tent is not infectible, and that any man when running from yellow fever is as safe to remove his family into a tent half a mile beyond the corporate limits of the inflicted town as he is to go to Chicago or the Klondike, as far as danger from yellow fever is concerned.

The records kept by Rev. W. D. Hedleston, who was in charge of Camp Haralson, show that a tent is the safest place to have yellow fever in—safer for the patient and for his family. He had several instances where one member of a family had the fever, but no other member of the family was stricken through contact, and exposures were constant. Neither Mr. Hedleston, nor the doctor in attendance, were immune, and both were continually exposed without contracting the disease. Mr. Hedleston states positively that his experience proves a tent absolutely non-infectible.

The opponents of depopulation urge that as many deaths occur among refugees because of exposure, etc., as would occur should the people remain at home. To refute this: Of the 2,800 people who left Oxford three have died; one, an infant, who died from typhoid fever before reaching its destination; one consumptive, who died at the white camp, and one negro, who died at Camp Haralson—three all told. The above explains the type of yellow fever prevalent here, and as all evidence seems to trace it to the yellowoid of New Orleans, Oxford's antipathy to yellowoid can be understood and appreciated.

This town has experienced the yellow fever, and is over it. Its people are not discouraged, but will make Oxford better and cleaner than ever before, and do all that can be done to keep clear of the scourge in the future; but should yellow fever again get in, depopulation will again be practiced and made compulsory, if necessary. E. O. DAVIDSON.

BE CAREFUL WHAT YOU SAY.

In speaking of a person's faults
Pray don't forget your own.
Remember those in houses glass
Should never throw a stone.
If you had nothing else to do
But talk of those who sin.
'Tis better to commence at home
And from that point begin.

We have no right to judge a man
Until he's fairly tried.
Should we not like his company,
We know the world is wide.
Some may have faults—and who has not?
The old as well as young;
We may perhaps, for aught we know,
Have fifty to their one.

I'll tell you of a better plan,
And find it works full well;
To try my own defects to cure,
Ere I of others tell:
And though I sometimes hope to be
No worse than some I know,
My own shortcomings bid me let
The faults of others go.

Then let us all when we commence
To slander friend or foe,
Think of the harm one word may do
To those we little know.
Remember curses, sometimes like
Our chickens, "roost at home:"
Don't speak of others' faults until
We have none of our own

PREACHING TO THE CHINESE: MATTER AND MANNER.

When Jesus sent forth his disciples to the cities and towns to prepare the way for his coming, he said, "As ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand." And his final command to them was, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." St. Paul magnified the privilege that was granted unto him to "preach among the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ."

It is under such a commission as this that the missionary goes to China to preach the gospel. This is his one work. Everything must be made subordinate to this. He must draw all his studies this way. All other forms of work—educational, medical, literary—must be used only as a means to this one end, namely: to proclaim the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ to fallen men. Otherwise, they are useless. We have no warrant for supposing that anything except the gospel is the power of God unto salvation anywhere upon the face of the earth or in any age of the world. The same gospel and the same preaching are necessary to-day in China as were required when Paul went into Asia Minor and Macedonia to proclaim that wonderful Word that was so effective in turning men from idols to serve the living and true God.

The young missionary newly arrived upon the field is often puzzled to know what he ought to say first when he gets enough of the language to begin to preach a little. One of the most vivid recollections of my early missionary experience in China is the thought that was constantly in my mind as to what I should say to the Chinese when I should begin to preach to them. I thought that, of course, the people were utterly ignorant of the most commonplace teachings of Christianity, and that nothing could be taken for granted. So much preliminary work seemed to be necessary that I supposed it would be difficult to determine where to begin. And when the time came, after some six months of close study and drill on the language, I thought I might venture to preach a little in the street chapel by way of practice, at least. I spoke on "The Fatherhood of God" for about fifteen minutes, to some twenty people in the little chapel on the "Ten Fountain" street, inside the east gate of the city of Suchow. I do not know what impression was made upon the audience, or whether, indeed, they understood much of what I tried to say. The only visible result at the time was that, at the close of the sermon when I and Bro. Dzau, who was with me, kneeled down to pray, the hearers were all there, but when we opened our eyes after the prayer, they had all gone out, and the room was empty save for the two preachers. I was somewhat taken back by the behavior of the congregation, but I soon found it was nothing to be surprised at, as the street chapel congregations have a way of coming and going as it suits their convenience. After a good many years of experience and observation I see that no better subject could be selected on which to address a heathen audience than the one I was led to choose for my first practice sermon in China. But the missionary finds many and serious difficulties confronting him in his efforts to deliver his message to the Chinese so that they can understand it and become willing to receive it.

1. They are idolaters, having gods many and lords many. An infinite number of idols, visible and invisible, made of mud, wood, stone, iron, brass and paper, and innumerable spirits of the dead, demons, fairies, and hobgoblins, fill their temples, their homes, their shops, and their official buildings, and burden their minds and cloud their imaginations. Hence, as may be supposed, the idea of the one true and living God has practically no place in their thoughts.

2. Their language is heathen. They have no word that all the missionaries can unite upon as the proper term for God. The whole language is saturated with superstition and idolatry, and while the missionary, preaching to the people, intends to convey Christian truth to them by the use of their language, the hearers often get only a distorted view of the truth, or fail altogether to comprehend what is meant, even though they may understand every word that is spoken by the preacher.

3. Knowing nothing of a personal God, the people have a very vague idea of sin. The most important meaning of their principal word for sin is that of crime against the government, while the chief restraint against the violation of moral law—which, by the way, they understand as well as we do—is the fear of some physical calamity or bad luck that might come upon them from some undefined source. Under their system of merits and demerits, by which a man hopes by doing good works to atone for sins committed, the drowning of a female infant has the same number of demerits marked against it as the wilful waste of rice, or the trampling under foot, or other abuse of written or printed paper.

But, on the other hand, the Chinese have certain moral characteristics that are common to the whole human race, and the gospel is as well adapted to their need as to that of any people in the world.

1. They have a dim and indefinite idea of a supreme, over-ruling power, high above all things, in the heavens. They have, moreover, a God-ward consciousness that is capable of understanding the thought of God when it is presented to them.

2 And they have also a consciousness of sin. Their vague, uncertain, and often absurd efforts to atone for their sins, or to hide their guilt, abundantly prove this. It is perfectly possible, therefore, to make clear to them the idea of a Savior and of their need of him. Hence the subject-matter of our preaching to the heathen in China is contained in the three words, God, sin, Savior. Around these three great ideas clusters all our preaching. We explain and enforce the teachings of the Bible in regard to them. We draw proofs and illustrations of them from the creation and preservation of all things; from the teachings of the Chinese holy sages, as contained in their classics; from the history of China and other nations, ancient and modern; from the facts of human consciousness; from the every-day life and experiences of men, etc.

And it is indeed wonderful how these great truths take hold of the minds and hearts of the Chinese. They are the food for the famishing souls of men, in China as in America. Multiplied thousands have already accepted them, and have thereby become partakers of the divine nature.

Our preaching to the Christians is, of course, somewhat different from the preaching to the heathen. Not that we ever get away from the three above-named fundamental principles of the gospel, but we go further into the deep things of God, seeking to instruct the converts in the teachings of Christ and his apostles, so that they may become rooted and grounded in the faith, and be able at all times to give a reason for the hope that is in them.

This preaching to the Chinese Christians is the most delightful work in which the missionary can engage. Some of the happiest recollections of my missionary life are of the many times when I had the privilege of unfolding to my Chinese brothers and sisters the wonderful things revealed in the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. It is a blessed work. Well might an angel desire to have a part in it!

As to the manner of preaching to the Chinese, I may say in brief:

1. A great deal of open-air preaching is done in China, very much like the work of the Salvation Army people in America and Europe. The missionary, accompanied generally by one or more native helpers, goes along a street of a town or city, carrying a lot of Gospels and Christian tracts for sale at a nominal price, stops at a convenient place, and offers his books to the passers-by. Soon a crowd gathers, and he preaches to them for a longer or shorter time, according to circumstances. Then the native preacher follows, and, after the preaching is finished, some books are sold and, perhaps, some individuals are engaged in conversation, after which they pass on to another open space, where another stand is made and a similar work is done. In this manner the principal streets of the town are gone over, and many of the people hear the Word of Life. The missionary and his helpers then board their boat, or other conveyance, and go on to the next town to do the same kind of work. Sometimes long itinerating tours, extending over several days or weeks, are undertaken, and the good seed is sown broadcast over a wide extent of country. A good deal of this open-air preaching is also done in the towns and cities where the missionaries and native preachers reside.

2. But the most of the preaching to the heathen is done in the street chapels. A Chinese house is rented on a main street or thoroughfare, and fitted up with a plank floor (most Chinese houses have brick floors), and a raised platform at one end with a table on it for a pulpit, and some benches for the congregation. The missionary or native helper, or sometimes both together, go there every afternoon, or, it may be, three or four times a week; the door is thrown open, a hymn is sung, and the people who are passing by, attracted by the sound of singing, or by the sight of the foreigners, come in to see what is going on. The missionary and the native preacher take turns in preaching, during which time the crowd is continually coming and going. Many, after sitting long enough to get an idea of what is going on, or, it may be, on the other hand, becoming disgusted because they can not make anything out of it all, get up and leave, while others come in and take their places. These, in turn, having satisfied their curiosity, take their departure, and still others come and go. A few sit through the whole service, and seem to be interested in what is being said, and are willing to engage in conversation with the preacher, who thus has an opportunity to more fully explain to them the Word he has been preaching. Thus the good work goes on, and all over the land hundreds of thousands of people daily hear the Word of Life.

3. These street chapels become the church-homes of the Christians as they are brought into the church. But in many of the older centers regular church-buildings have been erected, some in foreign style of architecture and some in native style, the funds being obtained either from the home land or contributed by the native Christians, assisted, it may be, by the foreign missionary out of his own salary. In these churches all the regular church services are carried on—preaching, Sunday-school, prayer meeting, Epworth League, and women's meetings.

Preaching has already become a mighty power in the land of Sinim. The Holy Ghost has borne and is bearing witness to his own word in signs following in the conversion of thousands of the people—miracles of grace as wonderful as any the Master ever wrought when he made the blind to see, or the lame to walk, or called the dead to life. In the gospel of Jesus Christ, faithfully preached, is China's only hope of salvation.

JEPTHAH'S DAUGHTER.

BY REV. J. A. PARKER, D. D.

The extent to which we plod along in old grooves is astonishing. How few have had courage to suggest that Jepthah was not the rash, inhuman father which the old interpretation of his "vow" would make us believe!

My attention has just been called to a short communication to the Christian Observer, from the pen of Rev. Geo. F. Robertson, of Uniontown, Ala., in which are some new and logical conclusions. The cases of Jepthah and Uzzah have ever been a source of anxiety to my mind, and no interpretation seen by me has been of a satisfying character. Mr. Robertson, however, brings much relief as to Jepthah's case.

The King James Version of the Scriptures so translates the text as to make the record say: "It shall surely be the Lord's, and I will offer it up as a burnt offering." Building on this translation, we have seen the beautiful girl laid upon the altar and consumed as a lamb!

Following Mr. Robertson's idea as to the propriety of the translation—"and"—I find many who otherwise translate by rendering "or" instead of "and." As the highest authority for this change, I may mention the marginal reading of the Authorized Version (Jud. xi, 30, 31): "If thou shalt, without fail, deliver the children of Ammon into my hands, then it shall be, that whatsoever cometh forth of the doors of my house to meet me, when I return in peace from the children of Ammon, shall surely be the Lord's, or—(margin)—I will offer it—(Variorum Bible puts it in the masculine)—"him"—up for a burnt offering."

How consistent—how well fortified—is the vow when read thus! Under this vow Jepthah was prepared for any emergency without offending the Lord by murderous act, such as killing a sweet, unoffending young woman. If that which met him on his return were some loved one—an object not suitable for a "burnt offering"—then, under the second clause of the vow, it must be dedicated to the Lord—"shall be the Lord's." But if an object suitable for a sacrifice met him, it should be "a burnt offering."

If there be doubt as to the translation—("or" instead of "and")—Robert Young, the Oxford Bible, the International and Bagster editions of the Bible all use "or"—"shall be the Lord's, or I will offer it as a burnt offering."

Besides this all-important idea, in verse 40, it is said (see margin): "The daughters of Israel went from year to year (yearly) to talk with (to lament) the daughter of Jepthah, the Gileadite, four days in a year." Instead of "lament," my Variorum has "celebrate." While we may celebrate the anniversary of one's death, surely we do not celebrate the dead! We may "talk" about the dead "four days in a year," but we do not "talk with" the dead as "the daughters of Israel" did with "the daughter of Jepthah the Gileadite."

The peculiar construction of Jepthah's vow indicates forethought upon his part, looking to just such contingencies as did arise. The law required a male for burnt offering. The last part of the vow, according to the Variorum Bible, uses the masculine pronoun ("him") with reference to the "burnt offering," but is neuter in the first part—"whatsoever;" or as the margin, "that which." Hence it seems the grammatical construction of the vow demands the reading . . . "shall surely be the Lord's, or I will offer it a burnt offering."

Thus we read the vow. The Variorum Bible gives us a still stronger case: "Whosoever cometh forth of the doors of my house to meet me, . . . shall surely be the Lord's; or I will offer it up for a burnt offering." "That which cometh forth of the doors of my house to meet me, when I return in peace from the children of Ammon, shall surely be the Lord's; or I will offer it up for a burnt offering." (If I do not consecrate it, I will sacrifice it.)

Verse 39: "And it came to pass at the end of two months, that she returned unto her father" (from "the hills," where she and her "fellows" had been to "bewail" her "virginity,") "who did with her according to his vow which he had vowed."

There is certainly nothing in all the history of the case requiring us to believe that Jepthah violated the Sixth Commandment in order to please the Lord. Indeed, the contrary is very apparent. David was ostracised from building the Temple because he had taken life; but the power of God was with Jepthah in the Ephrismitish war as in the war with the Ammonites.

Moreover, there is never the slightest reference to any death which menaced Jepthah's daughter. The proudest period in the life of Jewish womanhood was never to come to her. She could never know the deep pride of motherhood, and it was this fact which she and her companions went "up and down the mountains" to bewail. (Verse 37.)

In the customs of the cloister the present day affords us much of that which we see in the case of Jepthah's daughter. Why should we strain a point to place Jepthah in so bad a light or to make the Almighty sanction human sacrifice?

Will some one give us more light on Jepthah's vow?

FROM REV. T. B. HOLLOMAN.

This has been to us of Natchez a year of vicissitudes—one long to be remembered. Scarcely had we recovered ourselves and straightened up from the long quarantine of 1897 when the threatened high water to our Louisiana neighbors (from whom comes largely the support of our merchants) in the early Spring cast a depression over our business interests; then later on came the marching and mustering of our young men preparatory to entering the service of the United States Army. Only a few months had passed when again we are in the midst of another shotgun quarantine, and at last the appearance of the dreaded fever in our community. Added to this that during the whole Spring and Summer the rains have descended and the floods have come, and you have a condition calculated to leave a lasting impression. Though we are far advanced into the busy season, our interests are greatly hindered by quarantines against us. I fear much that with the extension of the time of the meeting of our Conference that we have lost too much to retrieve.

I have read with much interest all the communications of the brethren and your editorials anent the yellow fever, with the most of which I am in agreement. I wish especially to express my hearty endorsement of the article of our brother, Dr. R. E. Jones, of Crystal Springs. After all the criticism by the brethren, who of them would undertake to establish and run a quarantine system with his limited knowledge of the science of diseases and medicines? I am of the impression that the whole matter would be better relegated to the medical journals and to those who have some knowledge of what they write. No class of men receive more kindness from any other class than does the ministry from the medical fraternity; then why this sharp criticism? Are any of us above mistakes? I find that it is the old story of whose ox was gored when dealing with the question. When it is out of a community, then it is too deadly to run the least risk; but when it appears in that community, it is not to be dreaded by those who are outside, and quarantines become absurd.

In our little city we have had in the neighborhood of seventy cases of fever reported and six deaths. Now, I submit that those six deaths are just that many too many to add to our death-rate from the usual diseases to which we are subject. There are diseases against which we can raise no barrier, but where a disease, and especially an infection, can be avoided, is it not in the interests of humanity to prevent it? What comfort is it to the family from which a loved one has been taken to argue that the disease was of mild character that only one in a certain number died, if that one has come from that family? It seems to me an unbecoming disposition to ridicule and mimify has appeared in much that I have read. I am sorry to have believed such was intended. While few have died in comparison to the many cases stricken, those few have brought grief to the homes from whence they were taken; and how much is the sorrow increased when it is known that the disease was one which might have been averted!

I have not seen anything so sensible on the whole subject as an article from the pen of Dr. MacKowan, which was published in the Baton Rouge Advocate. It is worthy of a place in every paper of the land. The experts called the disease yellow fever. As such, it spread in every case, and yet the experts are ridiculed, and the disease is called yellowoid (a patent subterfuge behind which to seek shelter). Why not call the disease by its proper name, and let the people get acquainted with it as after the type of 1897 and '98? I think that wiser and more honest. We are having only an occasional case of the fever lingering with us, and hope for an early disappearance altogether.

HOW TO REACH YOUR FRIEND.

I am told that in London there is a tall building, at the top of which is a newspaper office which receives its news from Scotland by private wire. There were two young men in charge of the telegraph office. One went about London to collect local news, and on his return one night found he could not get in, the man up in the fifth story not hearing his knocking. What did he do? He ran to a telegraphic office, and telegraphed to Edinburgh, "Wake up that fellow in the fifth story." And soon after, down came his companion to open the door. The quickest way to get to the man in the fifth story was by way of Edinburgh. The quickest way to get the man next to me is by way of the throne of grace. If I understand this wonderful telegraphic circuit, I can send up my request to Him who holds all hearts in his hands, and there will be marvelous revelations accomplished in the house next door to me.—Dr. A. T. Pierson.

A GOVERNING GOD.

When things get beyond your control, when you face an unknown future, and when trying conditions confront you, remember that there is a governing God in Israel, and that it is his to bring light out of darkness, joy out of sorrow, and hope out of despair. Be patient and acquiescent. Let the Ruler of the universe and the Lord of the individual manage affairs in his own way and at his own time. Neither grow weary nor become too anticipative. Roll upon a covenant-keeping God your cares, taking his dispensations as they come, and multiplying sorrow neither by distrust nor by foreboding. God unravels the future day by day, hour by hour, and moment by moment, accompanying the distribution with his supporting and sanctifying grace.—The Presbyterian.

We never have more than we can bear. The present hour we are always able to endure. As our day, so is our strength. If the trials of many years were gathered into one, they would overwhelm us; therefore, in pity to our little strength, he sends first one, then another, then removes both, and lays on a third, heavier, perhaps, than either; but all is so wisely measured to our strength that the bruised reed is never broken. We do not look enough at our trials in this continuous and successive view. Each one is sent to teach something, and altogether they have a lesson which is beyond the power of any to teach alone.—H. E. Manning.

Cheered by the presence of God, I will do at each moment, without anxiety, according to the strength which he shall give me, the work that his Providence assigns me. I will leave the rest without concern; it is not my affair. I ought to consider the duty to which I am called each day as the work that God has given me to do, and to apply myself to it in a manner worthy of his glory; that is to say, with exactness and in peace. I must neglect nothing; I must be violent about nothing.—Fenelon.

A church was mentioned in one of our exchanges lately as a church that had "the rare gifts of making its pastors contented and being contented itself." A rare church is that, with rare gifts! If it were possible, such a church should be handed round as a model upon which other churches might be reconstructed. A contented church and a contented minister, and these in conjunction—surely this is a paradisaical spot in church circles. We wish that they were more widely distributed.—Presbyterian.

We talk about being surrendered to the will of God. When you get into your carriage you surrender yourself to the horse, but you hold the reins and make him go where you want to. It seems that we surrender to God's will, but try to hold the reins and do God's will by doing our way.—A. J. Gordon, D. D.

Five minutes spent in the companionship of Christ every morning—aye, two minutes, if it is face to face and heart to heart—will change the whole day, will enable you to do things for his sake that you would not have done for your own sake, or for anyone's sake.—Drummond.

A MISSIONARY'S WIFE

Interesting Letter from India—A Long Summer Season.

The following letter is from the wife of an American Baptist missionary at Nowgong, Assam, India: "After living here for several years I found the climate was weakening me. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla every summer. This I found so beneficial that I now take one dose every morning for nine months in the year, that is, through the hot weather. My general health is excellent and my blood is in good condition. My weight does not vary more than one pound throughout the year. I find Hood's Sarsaparilla indispensable in the summer and recommend it for use in a debilitating climate." MRS. P. H. MOORE.

The above letter is similar to thousands received and constantly coming in.

"WAR A GOOD WARFARE."

This command was given by the Apostle Paul to the young preacher, Timothy, and is the command given by the "King of Peace" to all preachers, young or old, and not them only, but also to all "soldiers of the cross." This command suggests a war, and so there is a war in which we should all enlist, the battles of which we all should help fight, and in the success of which we all should feel a great interest.

History tells us there have been civil wars, national wars, and international wars, and the Scriptures tell us there will be wars and rumors of wars, and in these the people feel greatly interested; but it is astonishing how few are interested in the spiritual warfare. I have been recently engaged assisting in revival meetings, and I have been made to weep to see how few would stand up and say they are on the Lord's side, and are heroes enough to do any duty put upon them. Only look around you, brethren, and be prepared to shed a tear to see how many are serving "Baal," for there is no neutral ground in this spiritual warfare. He that is not for the Lord is against him.

How strange! When, a few months ago, President McKinley made a call for volunteers, thousands readily responded; but when the Great Leader in this spiritual warfare, through his messengers, makes a call for volunteers, how few heed the call! There must be something wrong when people will enlist and fight for a meagre salary and a little honor, and yet turn a deaf ear to the call, "Enlist for the Lord," when the reward offered is much greater than all the treasures of this world heaped up together, and all the honor that can be given by men is small compared to the honor Christ will give to his valiant soldiers.

What is the matter? Do we not emphasize the call, and urge the necessity of enlisting? Or is the call made in such a way that the work seems to the people to be stupendous?

I fear that sometimes the call is made in such an indifferent or cauting way that the people think it makes little difference whether they enlist or not, and that sometimes the ridiculous conduct of some of the so-called soldiers disgusts others and prevents them from enlisting, and that the weak are not shown that their service is much needed; that the "foot" is as necessary as the "hand," and that they will be as much appreciated and as highly honored by the Leader as the strongest.

Come, Brother "Recruiting Officers," let us make the call simple, yet emphatic. Why is it the annual battles ("protracted meetings") are fought, and so few brilliant victories won? Is it possible the preachers have lost their power, or where is the wrong? Surely the fault is on the part of some of us, for the power of God has not diminished, nor his arm shortened. No. The wrong is with men. It may be there is an "Achan" in the camp. It may be the people have spared "Agag," or saved a few of the "best sheep and oxen." Or it may be the leaders (subordinate to the Great Leader) do not make the proper preparation. We are told that General Jackson would spend whole nights in prayer when he was expecting a great battle, but I fear a close investigation would show that some of the leaders who fight their annual battles with no decisive victory have worn out their "pants" in the wrong place. I fear that some are using the wrong kind of ammunition. They are loading their guns with "wild theories," "vain imaginations," "pet dogmas," and "harsh sayings," instead of gospel truths.

One thing I am sure of: Our forces are not in harmony as they ought to be. Instead of all making a desperate charge at the enemy, they are firing at each other. Only think of it, dear reader. Suppose you have organized an army, and leading them into battle, and instead of marching on at your command, and fighting with all their might against the enemy, some of your men turn upon their comrades and beat and kick them unmercifully. You would feel like court-martialing them.

This unmanly behavior is practiced in the division of the Lord's army known as the M. E. Church, South (a name that is dearer and dearer to me as the years go by). Soldiers fighting against their own men, and some of them actually turn upon the leaders and fire volley after volley at them, instead of rallying to their support. How can victory be expected under such circumstances? Is this warring a good warfare?

O brethren! let us, upon our knees, examine ourselves, then make a loud and earnest call for volunteers, prepare for the battle before going in, fortify and make a firm stand against the enemy when he charges (as he will be sure to do about "Christmas time"). And when commanded to "charge," let us take the shield of faith, put on the breastplate of righteousness, and, following the Captain of our salvation, and marching under the banner of Christ, let us fight with the sword of the Spirit until death shall end our warfare. Then, when the battle is over, we can sheathe our swords, and plume our caps, and shout for victory.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. Sam Q. Bass, Corinth, Miss., Nov. 7, 1898: "I am still at home watching sick ones both in my own home and in my mother's home. Bro. W. D. Bass has been battling with fever for more than three weeks. Last Tuesday night his physician thought that the time of his 'departure was at hand.' But now we think that he has passed the dangerous point, and that with careful treatment he will recover. I had an engagment with Rev. W. A. Woods, of Belmont circuit, for the first Sunday in this month, but because of the above reason I could not reach him. This was the last engagement that I had in this Conference for this year. The Conference will soon be here. I sincerely trust that the brethren may all meet together at Aberdeen in great power, and have a great Conference."

Rev. P. H. Howse, Trenton, Miss., Nov. 7, 1898: "We have, in most respects, had a prosperous year. We have received 45 members this year and baptized 16 babies up to date. Our finances will not be up in full, but will be a good showing, considering the low price of cotton. We have held six protracted meetings this year, and the following brethren rendered us efficient ministerial help: Revs. I. B. Robertson, P. D. Hardin, L. Kendall, J. H. Foreman, J. M. Corley, A. D. Miller, Frank Robinson, F. A. Lane, and James Williams. We had a revival at each appointment. Through the mercies of God we believe that the work has gradually developed through the entire year. I have many, many very dear friends on this work, and earnestly pray God's blessing upon them and this charge. Brethren, please pray for us."

HOPE VILLA, LA.

This is our first year in the Conference, and so our first appointment was Meadows and Antioch. We came last Winter as a stranger into the community, but soon we found many kind hearts and welcome homes ready to receive the new pastor. The blessed promise of "manifold more in this present life" has been verified to us. We have only two appointments on the work, the churches being six miles apart. While the membership is very small, there has been abundant opportunity for work.

We held a week's meeting at Meadows Chapel in June. Bro. A. S. Lutz was with us. With vigorous thought, clothed in clean, clear words, he preached the blessed gospel with the power of the Holy Ghost. Much good was done; deep conviction prevailed, and many were blessed.

Bro. H. W. Rickey preached for us a week. We held the meeting in a hall at Hope Villa, a point half way between the two churches. It was the first protracted meeting, we were told, ever held in the place. Bro. Rickey is a revivalist. His manner is quiet, but with power. His words seem to burn into the very conscience of the hearers. I could not ask for better or more divinely called evangelists than such men. Many that heard were blessed, and the influence of the meeting was for great good. We began a meeting at Antioch, Aug. 1, just after we closed at Hope Villa. Bro. T. J. Upton was with us. But for the continuous rains we would have had a good meeting. We were compelled to stop after two or three days' service. The quarantine restrictions have prevented any further meetings.

The church at Antioch has purchased a new organ this year, and both churches have been supplied with Young People's Hymns. With organs at both churches, and splendid talent to use them, we have good singing. We have had only six accessions this year—five on profession of faith, and one by letter.

About 75 per cent. of the Conference collections are raised; preacher's salary a good deal behind. We have taken three yearly subscriptions to the ADVOCATE, thus doubling its circulation on the work.

We have come to love this people very much. All have been kind, and some in an especial manner have blessed and gladdened our life. These debts of love we can never pay, but the Lord will reward them openly. May the greatest blessings rest upon the people of Meadows and Antioch.

M. F. JOHNSON.

A Steward, Montpelier, Miss., Nov. 5, 1898: "The Montpelier circuit, Aberdeen district, North Mississippi Conference, has been served the past two years by Rev. J. W. Raper as pastor, whose labors have been marked with success at every step since he has been on the work. No part of the work that properly belonged to him as pastor has been neglected. The circuit embraces five appointments—Foster's Chapel, Prospect, Friendship, Sparta, and Palestine. Foster's Chapel has been painted, Prospect and Palestine reseated, and chancels put in both, nicely carpeted; Palestine recovered. A new church in course of construction at Sparta, passed failure. A parsonage completed, nicely finished and painted, a thing of beauty, located in the thriving town of Montpelier, which is connected with our leading railroads by a daily mail and telephone line. Nor has our beloved pastor, while looking after these material matters of importance to the church, neglected the spiritual interests of the work. He reported every dollar of Conference assessment paid in full at the last Annual Conference, and expects to do so again. He added 100 members to the church last year, and 72 this year. Twenty-six of these were received at Palestine at a recent protracted service, where he was assisted by Bro. Ward, of the local ranks, and Bro. Givings, of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, who rendered valuable service. The meeting at Palestine was a marked success. It reminded some of us of the olden time, when the waters were troubled and the people were made whole."

THE CHURCH AND MISSIONS.

The proclamation of the gospel in all the world to every creature, is the great work which Christ has committed to the church. Men may speculate as they please about the present condition and future destiny of the heathen, but all these speculations are vain and fanciful. The church has a duty to perform for the heathen from which no human theory or human authority can release her. She must give them the gospel—she must make known to them the way of salvation revealed therein, and until she has done this, she has failed to perform her whole duty. Dr. Pierson says, in his late book on "The Crisis of Missions," that "nothing can be plainer, without argument, than that the church of Christ has never yet attempted to solve the problem of missions. Dr. Duff was right in saying that we are only 'playing at missions.' Were true, sound, sensible, business principles applied to this question, no practical hindrance would be found sufficient even to delay the prosecution of the work solemnly committed by Christ to his church. Let us have throughout the church thorough organization and practical co-operation, and within the lifetime of one generation the gospel may be preached for a witness, not only among all nations, but to every living creature." But in order to secure "thorough organization and practical co-operation," the churches at home must receive a greater baptism of the Holy Ghost; they must be more fully imbued with the spirit of Christ. We need a general revival; and then with the light we have, and the love of Christ glowing in every Christian heart, men will be ready to "attempt great things for God," and to "expect great things from God." Nothing but the constraining love of Christ can induce the church to engage in a proper spirit and manner in the great work of missions. Dr. Thoburn, a missionary from India, declared on a recent occasion, that he had nothing on earth that he would not give up for Christ, not even his neck. When all Christians possess this feeling, the heathen will soon have the gospel preached to them everywhere.—Recorder.

Life in the soul is the tide of the divine ocean flowing as it has opportunity through the narrow channels of human nature. Everything else is only a colorable imitation of life, and a mode of existence.—John Watson, D. D.

A baby is like crazy patchwork, composed of bits of its ancestors. All of them contribute something to baby's physical or mental or moral make-up. The mother gives the largest share. To a great extent the health of a child depends upon the health of the mother, both before and after birth.

If, during the period of expectancy, the mother enjoys good general and local health, she will have a child with a robust body, an alert brain and vigorous health. You cannot expect such a child from a weak, sickly nervous, despondent woman, who is broken down by derangements and disease of the distinctly feminine organs. A woman in that condition is almost sure to have a puny, sickly, peevish baby. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best preparation for motherhood. It relieves maternity of its dangers, and of almost all its pain. It restores the delicate and important organs that bear the brunt of maternity to perfect health and strength, and assists the regular and healthful performance of all the natural functions. It banishes the ailments of the critical period, and makes baby's debut easy and almost painless. It insures the little new-comer's health. Thousands have testified to its merits. Good medicine dealers sell it, and no honest druggist will insult your intelligence by urging upon you something else as "just as good." The "just as good" kind is dear at any price.

Mrs. F. B. Cannings, of No. 4320 Humphrey Street, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I am now the happy mother of a fine, healthy baby girl. I feel that your 'Favorite Prescription' has done me more good than anything I have ever taken. I took three bottles of the 'Prescription,' and the consequences were I was only in labor forty-five minutes. With my first baby I suffered eighteen hours, and then had to lose him."

Best Edition of the World's Best Book,

—THE—

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers. New Type. All Proper Names. Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Every body is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangment for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to November, '99. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

SELF-PRONOUNCING

S. S. Teachers' Reference Bible.

Text Conforms Exactly to the Oxford Teachers' Edition.

The self-pronouncing text enables the reader to pronounce all proper names at a glance.

This Bible is printed from Large, Beautiful and Clear New Type. All Proper Names are Divided into Syllables and Every Vowel is Marked and the Syllables Inflected, showing the Sounds and Accents as they are given in a Dictionary, thus enabling the reader to properly pronounce every word. This feature is a great improvement and a strong recommendation for this Bible over others.

This Bible contains the celebrated Oxford Teachers' Helps together with a complete series of New Maps illustrating the geography of Palestine and the surrounding countries from the earliest times, and embodying the most recent discoveries renders this Bible especially desirable to teachers and students of the Holy Scriptures.

Imperial Seal Binding, Tuck Edges, known as "Divinity Circuit," Linen Lined, Round Corners, Red under Gold Edges, Price, $4.00.

This book in Bourgeois type will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price ($4) to any address; but to that select class who read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, we furnish it on the following terms: Pay your subscription one full year in advance, viz., to November, '99, and we will send it to you, postpaid, for $1.75. (A little later you will have to pay to December, '99.)

The same Bible in Minion type will be sent for $1.55; in Emerald type, for $1.15, to those who pay a full year in advance.

For fifty cents additional we will send Bible with index. For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved on the outside in gilt letters.

We account the Scriptures to be the most sublime philosophy. I find more sure marks of authenticity in the Bible than in any profane history whatever.—Sir Isaac Newton.

A man will talk about the vanity of women and then march five miles through the hot sun in a parade, under the delusion that he is the only fellow in line attracting any attention.—Exchange.

The great thing which a young man needs in a crisis of temptation is to declare for the right quickly. Leave no time for temptation to accumulate. . . . It often requires a great deal of character to do that; not only a religious principle, but a strong character back of that.—Austin Phelps.

Like flakes of snow that fall unperceived, unimportant events of life succeed one another. As the snow gathers together, so are our habits formed. No single flake that is added to the pile produces a sensible change; no single action creates, however it may exhibit, a man's character.—Jeremy Taylor.

The snappish saint is saturated with the spirit of Satan, not of the Savior. Whatever Jesus was, he never failed to be a gentleman. No man ever went out of his presence with his ears tingling from insults. He came not to make people feel that they were on thorns, but to wear the thorns himself.—Bible Reader.

God wants our life to be a song. He has written the music for us in his Word and in the duties that come to us in our places and relations in life. The things we ought to do are the notes set upon the staff. To make our life beautiful music we must be obedient and submissive. Any disobedience is the singing of a false note and yields discord.—J. R. Miller, D. D.

WHISKY AND THE WORKINGMAN.

The recent report of the National Department of Labor contains some interesting and valuable items regarding the economic aspects of the liquor business. Inquiries were sent to a large number of employers asking their attitude towards drinkers in the selection of laborers, and for information concerning the relation of pay-day and holidays to drunkenness and other features of the drink evil. Suggestions were also solicited as to the best remedies for the liquor evil. Over seven thousand responses were obtained from establishments and individuals employing in the aggregate nearly two million men. More than three-fourths of the replies stated that the drinking habits were investigated to some extent before they were given employment, and that an abstainer has a decidedly better chance of obtaining work than one who drinks.

It appears from these reports that intemperance is given the least attention in the industries of agriculture and mining, while in the manufactures and transportation it is considered disadvantageous and dangerous, and considerable precaution is taken against it. "To guard against accident" and "because of responsibility of position," certain classes of workmen, such as foremen, engineers, machine hands, handlers of explosives, watchmen, etc., are not allowed to use intoxicants at all. The majority of the railroad companies now prohibit liquor drinking among their employees while on duty, and 203 out of 729 of the transportation companies reporting forbid drinking altogether.

Another fact brought out by the reports is that workmen drink more just after pay-day than at other times, and that a Saturday pay-day is unfavorable to temperance. Some of the employers have changed pay-time to some other day, and found the change advantageous in about two-fifths of the cases.

The custom of paying employees by check, which is followed by a large number of corporations, has been found to promote intemperance to a surprising extent. Saloon keepers, ever anxious to increase their trade, no matter what ruin and suffering it involves, make a business of cashing these checks, knowing full well that those who come to their shops for such a purpose will almost invariably become their patrons.

A Chicago coal company found that of the Hungarians, Poles, Germans, Scotch and Irish in their employ, three-fourths went to the saloons to have their checks cashed, while only one-fourth went to savings-banks and groceries. Of the Swedes and Norwegians, however, 91 per cent. had their checks cashed by groceries.

Upwards of 5,000 of the employers who sent in replies suggested means to diminish the drink evil among workingmen. Prohibition was advocated by about one-fourth as the most effective remedy. The measure favored by the next largest number is the refusal to employ drinkers. Other suggestions were that treating be prohibited, that employers set a good example, and that saloons be closed on Sunday and early on week days, so as to prevent night carousing.

The almost unanimous verdict of employers is that the use of intoxicants, including beer, seriously incapacitates workmen for their duties. Notwithstanding these conclusions of business men, many workmen persist in claiming that they must have liquor in order to labor to the best advantage. They need to be enlightened. They need to be taught that rum, instead of being an aid to endurance, is a strength and nerve-destroyer.

The poor marksmanship of the Spanish gunners in the battle of Manila was largely due, it is said, to the fact that just as the battle began "a ration of rum" was issued to them, while Dewey's men were not allowed a drop of spirits. Says the eminent scientist, Liebig: "Brandy, in its action on the nerves, is like a bill of exchange drawn on the health of the laborer, which, for lack of cash to pay it, must be constantly renewed. The workman consumes his principal instead of interest; hence the inevitable bankruptcy of the body."

The study of the experience of the Canadian lumbermen, who spend the whole Winter in the hardest labor exposed to a freezing temperature, being allowed no spirits, but an unlimited supply of tea, has resulted in the substitution of tea for the rum ration in the English army.

Says the New York Independent: "Since the day when William and Mary stimulated the production of intoxicating liquors, under the idea of thus 'encouraging agriculture,' there has been a large body of people who honestly believe that breweries and distilleries, with the immense capital invested, and the large number of men employed in the work, are an important element in national prosperity; but those who can look below surface indications know better, and realize that if the enormous sums spent for intoxicants were spent in good food, warm clothing and comfortable homes, it would do much to eradicate the misery and consequent discontent among the very poor."

It is stated on the authority of Carroll D. Wright, the noted government statistician, that several thousand persons starve to death every year in Greater New York. Yet he also states that nearly $400,000 a day passes over the saloon counters of that city for liquor, a large per cent. of it coming from the pockets of the poor, who, having become victims of the drink habit, deprive themselves in many instances of food and clothing in order that they may buy rum. The wage-earners having thus wasted the bulk of their money at the saloons, the helpless wives and children are left to suffer and die of want and disease.

No greater boon can be conferred upon the workingmen than to enlighten them concerning the true character of alcoholic stimulants. Press, pulpit, platform and school room should be efficient instrumentalities in this educational work. Much can be done also by individual effort. Here is a "field white unto the harvest" open to those who are willing to serve God by serving humanity.

JUDGE HAMM DEAD.

Judge J. S. Hamm died at his home in Meridian, Miss., on the tenth. He had long been the recognized leader of the Meridian bar. He was on the bench for many years, and made a record as a jurist of which any man might be proud. He was not only learned in the law, but was also a man of remarkable literary attainments. He was the very soul of honor. All through his long life, wherever he was known, his name was the synonym of integrity. Though always a firm believer in the divine origin of Christianity, he did not assume the vows of discipleship until a few years since. During our pastorate at Meridian we had the pleasure of administering to him the ordinance of baptism, and receiving him into the church. As fully as anyone we have known, he felt the responsibilities involved in this step. His subsequent life was that of a Christian. He soon became an official in the church and the teacher of a Bible class. We feel it an honor to have enjoyed his friendship.

RETURNING TO THEIR SENSES.

Two years ago the State of Colorado passed a law making life imprisonment, instead of death, the penalty for murder. It has been found by experiment that murders began to increase as soon as the law abolishing the death penalty was passed. There is now a popular agitation for its repeal, and there will be an effort to restore the death penalty for murder in the first degree.

No legislative action is more absurd than that which attempts to punish a murderer by simply guaranteeing him his board and clothing, and life in an equable temperature, with the high probability that if dissatisfied with it he can escape, or secure a pardon, especially if he has a political pull or the pardoning power passes under the control of a sentimentalist.

The United States to-day leads the civilized world in number of homicides, in the number of unpunished murderers, and in the number of lynchings; and the last is the natural consequence of the first and second. —New York Independent.

AN EVIL TO BE CORRECTED.

"We trust that the occupation of the clerical fun-maker is gone. We hope that the pulpit will speedily regain its old-time solemnity and keep it. We frankly confess that we like awe-inspiring sermons. The desecration of holy ground and the profanation of sacred hours, through the instrumentality of cheap wit and stale anecdotes, ought to be a thing of the past."

We take the foregoing paragraph from one of our religious exchanges. We would emphasize every word of it. Some time ago Bishop Vincent, in one of his helpful and suggestive addresses to a class of young ministers who were about to be admitted to Conference, gave some pertinent advice in regard to deportment in the pulpit, and he spoke especially of the practice of some preachers who get off jokes and would-be witticisms in giving out notices.

If ministers who have fallen into that pernicious habit understood or realized how such things are viewed from the pew, they would never again perpetrate a joke in the pulpit. Some are vain enough to be flattered by a ripple of laughter as the result of some "smart" saying, and seem to think that they make a good hit when they get off a pleasantry. But they are mistaken. The pulpit is for edification, worship, inspiration. And this comes through the presentation of truth enforced by the power of the Holy Spirit.—Uplook.

Dr. Hall's pastoral success made him well known throughout the United States. He preached morning and afternoon, and was constantly in readiness to accept invitations, without distinction of denomination, to preach on Sunday evening. He had a genius for the establishment and maintenance of missions, and his church sustained five of them in this city.

Immense as was his congregation he annually visited all the members, besides attending closely to the sick, the inquiring, and the stranger. On the Sabbath he would announce the streets in which he intended to visit on particular days, and fulfilled his engagements with as much regularity as though he were a physician receiving immense fees for each call. In all that concerned the families upon which he called he took a lively interest. Not being able to trust his memory about all the details, he carried on a remarkable system of bookkeeping. For example, calling on a certain family and asking after the health of the members, the lady of the house might state that all were well except her daughter Mary, who had studied so hard in school that she had headaches, and she thought perhaps she would have to take her out of school. After leaving, Dr. Hall would make a note that Mary was suffering from overstudy. One year afterward, having refreshed his memory by reference to his book, on making his regular annual call, after all he might wish to say relative to that occasion, he would express the hope that Mary had recovered from those attacks from hard study, and was progressing finely.

And why should he not make a record if his memory did not retain such details? He demonstrated his deep interest in his people in so many ways that no cynic would suspect that this indicated the absence of feeling. He also made notations relating to their spiritual condition. —New York Advocate.

Yonder stands a marble shaft twenty feet high, beautiful in design and workmanship. It has been erected there at a cost of $550 by a Christian man in memory of his son. I never look on that cold, lifeless, crumbling marble without thinking how nobly that father might have honored God, memorialized his boy and helped his fellow-men had he devoted that money to missions, to educating a preacher of the gospel, or helping the better to equip some one of our struggling institutions of learning in their effort to fit noble, aspiring young men to do good in the world. May God speed the day when Christian men will realize their responsibility to God for the use of the money he has committed to them as his stewards!—Exchange.

An expert and discerning layman the other day at the Rolla District Conference in a brief address spoke with earnestness of the value of church literature as an agency for rightly training children. He said in substance that he would, were he to begin domestic life over again, spend his last dollar, if necessary, in order to secure the right sort of a church paper for the home. The influence of such a journal, he suggested, in its regular visits to the home—elevating the tastes of the children, stimulating their spirit of emulation in the right direction, interesting them in the work of Methodism, and fostering habits of devotion—is not easily to be exaggerated. He declared that parents, in his judgment, were neglecting a great duty and exposing their homes to needless risks, when they attempted to bring up their children without affording to them the restraining, molding, and inspiring influences of the church paper, week by week.—Central Advocate.

An experiment recently made in a Missouri town calls for some comment. For some years no saloon was licensed in the community, but the drug stores in one time became notorious as illicit liquor-selling resorts, so that many began to advocate the policy of licensing the sale of alcoholic beverages, making the usual plea that thus the business could be "regulated." This view prevailed and two saloons were established by law a year or two ago. What has been the result? First, the illicit liquor trade of the druggists did not stop; these law breakers kept right on, selling drams on the sly about as they had done, there being none to molest or make them afraid. On the other hand, the saloons from the start have done a thriving trade, no one seeming to care particularly whether they obeyed the law or not. Hence under the new regime there is no better regulation of the traffic than there was under the old policy of "no license," while at the same time the trade in whisky and beer, lawful and unlawful taken together, is more than doubled. If these facts need any further exposition and application, the reader may make them himself.—Central Advocate.

About the only decent man the world has no respect for is the quibbler. We mean the pedantic porcupine who never reads an unbalanced sentence in a newspaper without sending the editor a column and a half of vinegar-soaked criticism; who never hears a sermon without going into spasms over some unscientific statement; who can't listen to a plain man talk in prayer meeting without jumping up to correct his rhetorical blunders. We can not hope to learn what part of the divine plan such men were intended to fill until we have heard the latest opinion of science on the mission of fleas. —Bible Reader.

NOTES.

Rev. Charles F. Evans, D. D., was married Thursday, Nov. 10, to Mrs Mary L. Roberts, of Lexington, Ky. We extend hearty congratulations.

Rev. S. B. Cox has been transferred from the North Mississippi Conference to the Indian Mission Conference, and stationed at Weber's Falls.

Rev. Dr. G. H. Zimmerman, editor of the Baltimore Advocate, died a few days since. He was an excellent man, highly honored wherever he was known.

***

The Publishing Committee of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE met on Wednesday, the ninth, all the members being present. The report reached us too late for this issue.

Rev. C. R. Godfrey, a supernumerate of the Louisiana Conference, died Friday, Nov. 11, after an illness of three weeks. This news reached us just as the paper went to press. Hence we have no room for a fuller notice.

***

Our friend and brother, Dr. W. C. Black, of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, has printed in neat booklet form his sermon on "Eternal Punishment." Like all his discourses, it is strong, sound, and eloquent.—Epworth Era.

We will be greatly obliged if the preachers of the patronizing Conferences, as far as they can do so without inconvenience, will settle their accounts before Conference. Those who wish to do so will please write us for a statement.

Rev. T. W. Lewis writes: "Grenada College opened auspiciously, and is moving forward admirably. Seventy boarders now in the college, and 10 in town, and still they come. The teachers are all in place and doing well. The outlook is hopeful."

In the disastrous fire at Covington, La., last week, Rev. D. C. Rawls was a great sufferer. His house, with almost everything he had, was consumed, with not a dollar of insurance. He has a large family. We deem it unnecessary to do more than to state the facts in order to enlist the practical sympathies of Christian people in his behalf.

Dr. J. O. Andrew, editor of the Alabama Advocate, has resigned, and Dr. H. Urquhart has been elected in his stead. Dr. Andrew has made an excellent paper, and has endeared himself to his brethren of the tripod. No man among us is more loyal to the church. We part with him with regret. Dr. Urquhart is a strong, scholarly man, and will, doubtless, give a good account of himself in his new field.

Dr. W. C. Black, editor of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, has published a little pamphlet on "Eternal Punishment." The argument is short, but it is strong, clear and conclusive. The positions he takes are based on the Word of God and his conclusions are clearly logical. Any one having any doubts or wanting information on that subject will do well to read this booklet.—Wesleyan Advocate.

We invite special attention to the communication of Sister L. Crary Sadler. The cause she represents is eminently worthy. Many of our subscribers could, doubtless, spare a small sum in aid of this worthy enterprise. As we have previously stated, the need is great, and our church in Slidell is weak. The people are doing what they can, but are unable to complete the work. Those who wish to honor the Lord with their substance will make no mistake by investing it in this enterprise.

Rev. H. W. Knickerbocker has been transferred from the Louisiana Conference to the Los Angeles Conference, and stationed at Trinity Church, Los Angeles, the leading church of that Conference. He will close his pastorate at Louisiana Avenue next Sabbath, and will take his departure on Tuesday following. His parishioners will part with him with great regret, he having greatly endeared himself to them during his two years' pastorate. We predict for him a successful career in the metropolis of the far West.

Mrs. Annie C. Peyton, of the faculty of the Mississippi Industrial Institute and College at Columbus, died on Saturday last. Mrs. Peyton was the originator of this renowned institution. Soon after her graduation at Whitworth College she began through the press the agitation of the question of a State institution for girls, and so cogent were her arguments that only a few years elapsed until her hopes were realized in the founding of an institution which is an honor to the State. After the death of her husband, Judge E. G. Peyton, about eight years ago, she was elected to a chair in the institution, which she ably filled until her death.

A REPLY.

Mr. Editor: To correct an erroneous opinion which is prevalent in some localities, and to reply to some of the unkind things which "Dr. Peebles" says about the fever prevailing during the past Summer, I submit the following facts for your consideration:

1. The fever in this city was not found by an expert, but was so pronounced by Dr. McPheeters, who has been through the terrible epidemics of '67 and '71, and our own doctors. The "expert" only confirmed our diagnosis.

2. There have been four deaths in town and one out in the country.

3. The fever began one and a half miles from center of town, in a negro neighborhood, "Under-the-Hill," and was introduced into white families by servants.

4. No case has appeared here since Nov. 1, and we believe there will be no others.

In reply to the strictures of Dr. Peebles, I will say that all of our trouble this year is directly traceable to the false statements and silence of the Louisiana health authorities. Had they dealt with us fairly, there would have been no spread of the disease or epidemic in Mississippi. We would have excluded people from the State, and no fever would have entered here. The death-rate here will be about six or seven per cent., but we would prefer not to have it at all, as one death from a preventable disease is in the nature of a homicide. If this disease is reported, it can be completely stamped out, weather conditions being favorable. When we first found the fever here, on South Canal street, it was quickly cleaned up, and there have been no other cases in that neighborhood. Had we then been able to trace the source of infection, as we did later, several valuable lives might have been saved. To date we have had about 35 cases, located as follows: First Ward, 44 (all on north end of ward); Second Ward, 4 cases; Third Ward, 4 cases, and Fourth Ward, 1 case, all directly traceable to original infected area. These figures are significant. They conclusively prove that the disease is amenable to scientific treatment, and if thus handled, an epidemic can be prevented. Fifty-three cases in a town of 13,000 people is only one-half of one per cent. The reason we had so few cases was owing to our "expert" report. The people stopped visiting, kept their children at home, and stayed out of the night air, all churches were closed at night, and everything done to prevent people gathering in crowds. The figures presented show the result. When we were afflicted before, in 1871, there were about 1,200 cases and about 119 deaths. What a contrast in these days, when "experts" are so foolish as to report yellow fever, and try to stamp it out.

INDIAN MISSION.

To the Friends of the Indian Mission—

Dear Brethren and Sisters: We have done very little toward the support of our missionaries this year. We have only paid our Choctaw preacher a few dollars, and, as far as I have heard, he has been faithful. Now, what will we do? Let us come to the rescue and pay him up at Conference. You may say we are not able. That is the way to get able: do your duty to the Lord, and you will be able to do all he wants you to do. Send amounts to me at Hermanville, Miss., or hand to your pastor to be handed to me at Conference. Please do not forget this. If so, the good Lord may forget you. Send and oblige. A. D. Miller.

You will soon observe Thanksgiving Day. You will take your offering to the place of prayer. Let me make this statement: We have several very worthy poor boys we are trying to help obtain an education, and others who are applying for assistance, and we could use $400 or $500 to a great advantage just now. It would do my heart good if you would send me a contribution on Thanksgiving Day for my poor boys' fund. This would be a timely help, as I had been quarantined for about fifty days and could not solicit for the above fund.

FROM MRS. SADLER.

Mr. Editor: The old year, with its marvelous and wonderful events, is fast drawing to a close. To touch upon even the most notable of these would lengthen out a letter to the editorial censorship, and occupy too much space in your valuable columns. All have read as they ran. This is literally true, as many read as the iron horse carries them on and on. In these epochal times, perhaps, few stop to ponder or ask, Whither are we tending? Yet all who note passing events must say with the poet,

"We are living, we are living,
In a grand and awful time."

The Conference year is near its end also, and with some of the preachers there is, perhaps, a feeling of sadness and a fear that they will have to take up "an ill report," while the more favored Caiebs and Joshuas, with their luscious grapes of Eschol's bountiful providence, are to be envied. Yet, if they have done the best they could, they ought to take courage and keep a hopeful spirit.

Times have been hard in some places, and the people may not have heard much of the "gospel of giving," or had any experimental knowledge of its blessedness, and so some of the financial problems are still unsolved.

"The heroines of the parsonage" have their troubles also, and many will have to move at a time when they would like to have a settled feeling to prepare for the Christmas tide. There is instead a tearing up of the lares and penates of the household, and a sense of a-leap-in-the-dark, as it were, takes possession of them. Some, perhaps, inwardly rebel, and think it is too hard, while the "Mary Clarkes" say to their husbands, "We will go and forget all but to win souls for Christ."

The greeting and the parting come close together with the pastors and their flocks, and many are sad that they will see each others' faces no more.

Bro. J. J. Kelley, our pastor, has been trying to get the parsonage at Slidell built. He has moved four times this year, including the move from his last year's work. The parsonage is a necessity. The lot is donated, and our good editor headed the list with the proceeds of his lecture. Others have responded; yet still his hands are not full enough to finish the work.

Slidell is a growing place, and unless the church holds on to the vantage ground already gained at this important point, others will "go up and possess the land." Anyone of the thousands of readers of the Advocate who could help in this good work would make Bro. and Sister Kelley sing for joy, and be joyfully blessed themselves.

"Remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, it is more blessed to give than to receive."

PRESIDING ELDERS AND DISTRICTS.

Some of the brethren are a little exercised over the size of districts just now. I truly hope no change will be made in the size of districts in our Conference; do not think the new law comprehends any change except in exceptional conditions. I do not know why a pastor should want any change, unless he is a little jealous of his presiding elder's popularity, or has a kind of Rev.-I-can-do-it-all-myself spirit, and vainly thinks he can get along without any help.

Neither can I understand why a layman should want any change, unless he is not just in harmony with Methodist policy, or wants to dictate the whole thing himself, and thinks if he could get rid of the sturdy presiding elder, he could, by a kind of majority, persistently bring the good-natured pastor to his terms. Or it may be because their pastor is a more able man than the presiding elder, and it is a kind of respectful endurance on their part to welcome the presiding elder for his position sake, and not for his sake.

If this be true in any instance, we need a change of the character of men who are given the charge of districts, and not a change of the size of districts, to keep the presiding elders away as long as possible, or to make their stay short.

The presiding eldership is of more importance than any station, and the great men of our church, the real soul-winners, are available for any place where they can do the most good, for, like their Lord, they are ready to minister, and not to be ministered unto.

God bless the noble men who have guided our holy Zion so well, and may their places never be filled by men of small ability, nor their visits made shorter or less frequent.

BILOXI STATION.

Our fourth Quarterly Conference was held on the sixth instant; Rev. C. A. Powell, though far from well, preached with unusual power, eliciting most favorable comment from many of his hearers. He spoke kindly and encouragingly of the work done here during the year, and predicted that at the present rate this would in a few years become one of the best appointments in the Mississippi Conference.

About fifty members have been added to the church this year. Notwithstanding the financial depression under which this place has labored continuously since the advent of yellow fever here last year, finances will not be very far behind. The attendance on the prayer meetings and preaching services have been larger, I am told, than ever known in the history of the church.

It may be confidently asserted that our Conference can make no safer investment of missionary money than in a concentrated effort to build up our Zion along the Mississippi coast.

I close with the following which appeared in both the local papers:

"Rev. C. A. Powell, presiding elder of the Seashore district, preached two edifying sermons to the Methodist congregation last Sunday, after which the regular fourth Quarterly Conference was held for Biloxi station. This is Mr. Powell's last year as presiding elder of this district, and after the Conference Rev. C. F. Emery offered the following resolution, which was adopted by the congregation by a rising vote:

"Whereas, The office of Rev. C. A. Powell as presiding elder of the Seashore district, Mississippi Conference, expires by limitation with the current year; therefore, be it

"Resolved, By the fourth Quarterly Conference of Biloxi station that we hereby endorse his faithful and efficient administration, and affectionately commend him to the Great Head of the church."

JUDGING OF PREACHING.

It is interesting to hear the opinions of different persons as to the quality of the sermons or the preaching ability of their pastor. If a minister shows strong thinking powers, and packs his sermons with the results of careful research concerning the subject he may be discussing, putting his thoughts in good language, making his points clear and instructive, he will have the attentive ear of those who seek instruction, and he will always have listeners for whom it is needful to carefully prepare his addresses and sermons. Others of his congregation will be listless and fall asleep, complain of the dry sermons, and be a source of trouble in Israel because the preacher has no feeling. It is not always a happy condition of affairs when a pastor depends upon his preaching to draw his people to him. The character of one's pulpit efforts must of necessity be subject to a variety of opinion. What may please some may not be acceptable to others. There is a way, however, to have everybody appreciate the sermon, viz.: Secure the love of the people through your pastoral care of them. When this is done, whatever the grade of your pulpit efforts, they will always be acceptable to the people, because love for a minister gives force and worth to his utterances from the pulpit. It is a rare thing for a greatly beloved pastor to preach an unacceptable sermon. On the other hand, it is difficult for most people to judge rightly of a minister's ability if they don't highly esteem and love him.—Peninsular Methodist.

YOU AND I.

BY W. H. BURLEIGH.

What if either of us should die?
Could the hearts that have loved us so tenderly
Be severed by death? No! no! not so!
My soul leans out from its house of clay,
When the breeze that has fanned your cheek goes by,
And says: "She's near!" I feel the touch
Of her lips to mine! of her hand at play
With my hair as it did, when, long ago,
We sat in the hush of Summer eaves,
Saying but little, but loving much,
And believing all that Love believes,
And so I know, whate'er I list,
Our soul shall keep the holy tryst
Through all the years of the life to be.

HIGHER AND HIGHER.

Rarely in the history of the world has one measured up so nearly to the most perfect ideal of manhood, physically, mentally, and morally, as did William Ewart Gladstone. He satisfies the inherent love in the human mind for wholeness, largeness, symmetry—the demand that man shall come up to the noblest standard; that he shall be raised to his highest power. Nature was nnusually generous to the man who was to fill such a prominent place in the world's history.

Amplius, that is "larger," seemed to be the motto which inspired Gladstone's entire life. He never ceased to feel the thing he ought to be, beating beneath the thing he was; the ideal life persistently haunted him.

"Higher and still higher," "larger and still larger," were the words constantly repeating themselves in his mind.

To grow ever higher, deeper, wider; to conquer difficulties and acquire more and more power; to feel all his faculties unfolding, and taking deeper root in his soul, was his constant ambition.

He lost no smallest opportunity for growth. In Parliament or committee-room; while waiting for an appointment, or at a railroad station—wherever he was, he had the inevitable book in his pocket, lest seconds of unused time should escape him.

What an example he gave to the yonth of to-day! If such a genius thought it necessary always to have a volume at hand lest a precious spare moment elude him, to what should we of common ability not resort to save from oblivion the odds and ends of time which come to the busiest lives? One of the bnsiest men in the world, he could yet climb the stairs to an attic, to carry flowers to a poor street-crossing sweeper. He could find time to talk with a poor American boy when others had shut the door in his face, and even arrange to secure for him an interview with the Queen.

Nothing in this great spirit was small or trivial. Every occasion, with him, was a great occasion.

He had that happy alchemy which can turn the prosiest life into poetry, and touch with grace the ngliest surroundings—which infuses the sense of beanty and harmony into the homeliest duties. Like Ruskin and Agassiz, he could see the marvelous in the common.

With him, system seemed almost omnipotent. "Order, heaven's first law," is heaven's first means to win success. Dr. Lorimer tells us that, in one visit to him, Gladstone, twice wishing to refer to certain volumes in his library, went straight among the thonsands of books, to the volumes he wanted.

From his great natural powers, reinforced by his systematic employment of time and opportnnities, came vast accomplishments and varied development.

He addressed an audience at Corfu in Greek, and another in Florence in Italian; a little later he conversed at ease with Bismarck in German, or spoke French fluently in Paris, or piled up argument npon argument in English for hours in Parliament. He once addressed ten thousand people in Athens, in modern Greek. Clemenceau, a distinguished French statesman, was astonished at the fluency and accnracy of his French. His knowledge of Italian enabled him, during a very short stay in Naples, in 1851, to expose to the eyes of Europe the corruption and tyranny of the Neapolitan government, which had thrust hundreds of reputable citizens into filthy dungeons for alleged offenses.

Few classical scholars ever had a more intimate aequaintance with Greek. From a dry debate in Parliament, he would seek relief by translating "Rock of Ages" into Greek verse. Few clergymen were ever so well equipped with theological lore. His elocution was so charming that the people of Chester and Liverpool used to walk miles on Sunday to hear him read the services at Hawarden Church.

Almost as soon as he entered Parliament, he stepped to the front and took rank among the first parliamentary orators of the day.

He was graduated from Oxford, a mere lad, with double first honors in Greek and mathematics; he was in Parliament before he was twenty-two; he was Lord of the Treasury at twenty-four; and he was still ruling England with a mighty hand at eighty-four!

When only eighteen, at Eton College, in a little article contributed to the school paper on "Eloquence," he said: "A successful debut, an offer from the minister, a secretaryship of State, even the Premiership itself, are the objects which form the vista along which a young visionary loves to look." Little did he think that, in six years, he would himself make the "successful debut," and that the Secretaryship would soon follow and open up the way to the Premiership, which he was to hold for three long periods.—Success.

ON CONVERSATION.

A good talker should be a good listener, though also capable of cutting short a bore; he should be appreciative of the remarks of others, and never influenced by that vulgar rivalry that causes some men to strive for the mastery in anecdote—the "capping" of stories, as old writers term it. Anecdotes, however apt and witty, are, after all, a form of monologue, and should be used with discretion. Even the best raconteurs are tempted to draw too largely upon their deposit accounts; a certain intoxication seems to seize those not in the very first rank when they have made a success or two in this line, and I have known one with a great reputation who could never be trusted after a capital story not to wipe out the remembrance of it by a dull one. He really did not seem to know what was good and what was indifferent; he had a large qnantity of the commodity (anecdote) on his hands, and must needs get rid of it at any cost to his reputation. A high-class, but still detestable talk-stopper is the man of rounded periods. Everybody knows how he is going to finish his sentences, but he will do it his own way, and it is a long way round. One is inclined to say to him what Scrooge so pathetically observed to his partner's ghost, "Don't be flowery, my friend, don't be flowery."

These are by no means the greatest obstructionists in the way of conversation. Some persons might almost be called professional talk-stoppers. They delight in questioning the truth of a good story, or in picking some hole in it, to prove that it had a better reception than it deserved. They lay their finger on some trivial inaccnracy in a date or name; they bring no provender to the intellectnal picnic; their sole contribution to it is a senseless depreciation, which they conscientiously believe adds to the agreeableness of the evening. I wish no fellow-creature dead, but I do think this class of persons should be relegated to some other sphere of usefulness, where (like Miss Snevellicci's papa) he would be appreciated. It is all very well to say, "Let us have no cliques," bnt some precaution must be taken to keep persons of this sort out of any society which has a claim to consider itself agreeable.—The Nineteenth Century.

A WORD ABOUT BOOKS.

Life being short, and the quiet hours of it few, we ought to waste none of them in reading valueless books; and that valuable books should, in a civilized country, be within the reach of everyone, printed in excellent form, for a just price; but not in any vile, vulgar, or by reason of smallness of type, physically injurious form, at a vile price.

For we none of us need many books, and those which we need ought to be clearly printed, on the best paper, and strongly bound. And though we are indeed now a wretched and poverty-struck nation, and hardly able to keep soul and body together, still, as no person in decent circumstances would pnt on his table confessedly bad meat without being ashamed, so he need not have on his shelves ill-printed or loosely and wretchedly-stitched books; for though few can be rich, yet every man who honestly exerts himself may, I think, still provide for himself and his family good shoes, good gloves, strong harness for his cart or carriage horses, and stout leather binding for his books. And I would urge upon every young man, as the beginning of his due and wise provision for his household, to obtain as soon as he can, by the severest economy, a restricted, serviceable, and steadily—however slowly—increasing, series of books for use through lite; making his little library, of all the furniture in his room, the most studied and decorative piece; every volume having its assigned place, like a little statue in its niche, and one of the earliest and strictest lessons to the children of the house being how to turn the pages of their own literary possessions lightly and deliberately, with no chance of tearing or dogs' ears.—John Ruskin.

THE BAD BOY.

"What is to be done with the bad Sunday-school scholar whom nobody can manage?"

This question was recently drawn from a "question-box" during the session of a Sunday-school Conference. A lady teacher arose and said:

"I have a boy who, before he came into my class, was reputed to be very unstudious and unmanageable, but he is well-behaved and studious now."

"How did you succeed in controlling him?" was eagerly asked.

"Well," said she, "I don't exactly know how I did it. All I can say in explanation is, we love each other immensely."

The Conference was satisfied. She had furnished the key which unlocks the whole question. The teacher who loves, and is loved in return by his class, will find little trouble in its management. May this all-conquering principle of love rnle in the hearts of teachers and pupils everywhere!—Selected.

SNUB NOT AT ALL.

Don't snub a boy because he wears shabby clothes. When Edison, the inventor of the telephone, first entered Boston he wore a pair of yellow linen breeches in the depth of Winter.

Don't snub a boy because his home is plain and unpretending. Abraham Lincoln's early home was a log cabin.

Don't snub a boy because of the ignorance of his parents. Shakespeare, the world's poet, was the son of a man who was unable to write his own name.

Don't snub a boy because he chooses a humble trade. The author of "Pilgrim's Progress" was a tinker.

Don't snub a boy because of his physical disability. Milton was blind.

Don't snub a boy because of his dullness in lessons. Hogarth, the celebrated painter and engraver, was a stupid boy at his books.

Don't snub anyone; not alone because some day they may outstrip you in the race of life, but because it is neither kind, nor right, nor Christian.—Great Thoughts.

Hygiene.

THE DANGER OF CHEWING-GUM.

The custom of gum-chewing, which is quite common in this country, as the legions of slot-machines for selling chewing-gum testify, seems to have but recently gained ground in England, says The Literary Digest, judging from comments in English journals. The following note from The Hospital is especially interesting as controverting the principal claim of the advocates of gum on this side of the water, namely: that its use aids digestion by stimulating the flow of saliva. Says the journal just named:

"Attention has been called to the dangers attending the sale of 'chewing-gum' by an inquest which has been recently held at Lincoln on a child aged between seven and eight years old, who died after eating this substance, which it not unnaturally imagined was a sweetmeat. We would point out, however, that, besides such risks as this, the habit of masticating this filthy compound of flavored india-rubber is undoubtedly a cause of much dyspepsia. The constant titillation of the salivary organs kept up by chewing this stuff not only causes a steady drain of saliva, which is most wasteful, but, what is more serious still, in consequence of the frequently repeated stimulation to which these organs are thus exposed, they fail to respond to the normal excitation which ought to rouse them to action when food is taken. A constant dribble of salivary secretion is substituted for the healthy flow which should occur only at mealtimes. The glands fail to respond to any stimulant less potent than the peppermint, aniseed, or other constituents found in chewing-gum; and the more insipid foods, such as bread and other starchy compounds, pass into the stomach unchanged. This is disturbing to digestion at its very commencement, and it is extremely probable that the indigestion of starchy substances, which is so commonly met with at the present day, is largely due to the waste of saliva caused by smoking and by the constant chewing of various substances, which we see going on all around. The chewing of gum is thus not only a nasty habit, but is provocative of ill-health. Unfortunately, when 'chewing-gum' is sold in the form of a sweetmeat, it may cause still more serious consequences, being apt to be swallowed by children."

BEAN—MILTON GEORGE BEAN was born in Northamberland county, Va., March —, 1816, and died in Brookston, Texas, March 15, 1898.

These two dates comprise the life of a man remarkable in many respects. He embraced religion at the early age of twelve years, and was ever faithful to his profession. He left Virginia while a lad of sixteen, and settled in Columbus, Miss., where he soon made many friends, and by his industry and economy accumulated quite a handsome property. He was married in 1842 to Miss Elizabeth Cross, with whom he lived fifty-five years and six months, and who still survives him. They raised a large family of eight children, one dying in infancy. The close of the war found him stripped of all his hard earnings, and he had to start again at the foot of the ladder. It was a rough experience, and beset with many difficulties, but he bravely met and overcame them all. He selected Texas as his next home, and came to this country in 1869, and settled near Paris, Lamar county. His labors here were abundantly successful, and he died possessed of a large property.

Col. Bean's chief characteristics were a sound judgment, a strong will, and indomitable energy. He loved the Methodist Church devotedly, and contributed liberally to all her enterprises, and greatly enjoyed all her meetings. He lived to see all his children happily married, and died possessed of the confidence and love of the entire community. Truly he could say with Paul, "I have fought a good fight, I have kept the faith." S.

Brookston, Texas.

MOLLINS—Miss MARY MOLLINS, oldest daughter of H. J. and M. E. Mollins, died Oct. 16 at her father's home near Brown's Wells. Mary had a large circle of loving relatives and friends, and it was hard indeed for them to give her up in the first flush of youth and beauty. She was born Oct. 17, 1876. She was always loving, obedient, and dutiful in the home. She joined the Methodist Church at Pleasant Valley when a child of thirteen. When about fourteen her mother was taken away by death, and new cares and responsibilities came into her young life. She was for several years a pupil of Miss Della Martin's school, and was much loved by both teacher and pupils. During her stay at Athens Female College her spiritual life was greatly quickened by the influence of Christian teachers, and she came home earnestly desirous of living a useful Christian life, and doing all in her power to influence others for good. Always ambitious to succeed, she studied very hard at school, and came home in failing health, and when attacked with congestion had not strength to rally. She was the pride and comfort of her father, and a counselor and guide for the two younger sisters and only brother.

May the loving Savior whom she loved and trusted comfort the bereaved ones!

A FRIEND.

Brown's Wells.

MYRES—DORCAS MYRES (nee Creel) was born in South Carolina in 1802 or 1803, and died in Scott county, Miss., Oct. 4, 1898, aged ninety-five or ninety-six years.

Sister Myres moved to this country when she was ten years old, and for eighty-five years, or more, she lived in this county. In early womanhood she was united in marriage to Bro. Myres, who, thirty years ago, died and left her a widow. To them were born nine children; six of them are gone. Sister Myres joined the Methodist Church when young, and for seventy-three years lived a consistent member of the same. She was true to her church vows, which implies that she was also true to all other obligations in life. She was a loving wife, a gentle mother, a cheerful, consecrated Christian. It was her mission to cheer and comfort those in trouble, always looking for and on the bright side of life. Her faith was strong, never doubting; her end was peace. Said to her son a few moments before she died, "All your preparations had been made for many years for that hour. But for skilled medical aid and careful nursing she would have died months before she did. She is gone, but not forgotten. She leaves three children and a host of warm friends to mourn, but not as those who have no hope, but in hope of a happy reunion in the sweet beyond.

W. M. SULLIVAN.

HALBERT—J. S. HALBERT was born Jan. 25, 1815, in the State of Virginia, and died in Forest, Scott county, Miss., Oct. 3, 1898. He joined the church and was converted when only seven years old. Thus for seventy-seven years he was in the service of his Lord. In 1835 he moved to Green county, Ala., and in 1851 to Scott county, Miss., where he spent the balance of his life. When he came to Mississippi he united with the Protestant Methodist Church, and when the union was consummated he became a member of the M. E. Church, South, and lived a consistent member of the same till "God took him."

Bro. Halbert was a kind husband, a devoted father, and a consecrated child of God. For many years he was steward and class leader in the church. These places he filled well. Liberal with his means, he did great good in looking after the temporal interest of the church. He was very spiritual. The last benevolent act of his life was looking after the new parsonage. In this he took great interest. It was his delight to see his preacher's family comfortable. He died in full triumph. As he requested, the funeral services were conducted by his pastor. He was buried with Masonic honors. He leaves an afflicted wife, several children and grandchildren, and a host of friends to mourn his death.

W. M. SULLIVAN.

CLARK—Mrs. ELIZA CLARK was born in Claiborne county, Miss., about the year 1808, and died at her home in Forest, Miss., Aug. 15, 1898. Her husband preceded her about seven years, and was about the same age when he died. For many years they faithfully and patiently fought the battle of life together. While they were years of trouble that the human family are heir to, they were years of happiness and joy. They lived together sixty-one years a loving wife and devoted husband.

Sister Clark was a member of the Methodist Church sixty-six years. These years were full of piety and self-consecration. She performed the duties of life well, with a loving, trusting faith. She resigned herself, her all, to God, fully realizing that he doeth all things well. It was a spiritual feast to witness her growth in grace during her afflictions—so cheerful, so full of hope, without a murmur, though her sufferings were intense. She so often said to this writer, "It is all for the best." Her children know what a true, loving mother was, and she felt the loving, tender care of her faithful children.

In the absence of her pastor and presiding elder, Bro. Linfield kindly came, and, with a beautiful and impressive service in the presence of her loved ones and a number of friends, buried her. W. M. SULLIVAN.

CLAY—CLEVELAND CLAY was born June 15, 1869, and died Oct. 26, 1898.

The first death in a family of eleven children, it was natural for the family to feel specially smitten and hurt, for Cleveland was a favorite with all, not only at home, but all who knew him loved him. His mission on earth was short, but we believe it was blessed of God, and will be still greater blessed to the good of those who knew him. We laid him away in Union Church graveyard to await the resurrection morn, the funeral services being conducted by this writer.

May God's grace sustain the heart-broken parents and brothers and sisters, and may we all meet him in heaven! Good-by, Cleveland; we hope to meet you by and by.

LADNER—Resolutions passed by Purvis Sunday-school, Oct. 23:

Whereas, Our heavenly Father, in his inscrutable wisdom, has seen fit to remove from among us the sweet spirit of Miss EMMA LADNER, our well-beloved Sunday-school teacher and sympathizing friend, to her eternal home of happiness "over the river;" And, whereas, This sudden blotting out of a young life so full of promise, so capable by nature and education of wielding a great and lasting influence for good, is a mysterious dispensation of divine providence we can never, in our finite condition, understand; therefore, be it

Resolved, That in unmeasured submission we bow to the will of Him who made and owns all things, and does all things in perfect wisdom.
